MIDSHIPMAN KILLS SELF.

Manila, Oct. 14.—Charles Denniston Price, a midshipman of the cruiser New Orleans, belonging to the United States Asiatic fleet, committed suicide yesterday. He shot himself in the head.

Price had been ordered to resign. He was appointed to the Naval Academy at Annapolis from Pennsylvania on July 27, 1905. No explanation of what led to the demand for his resignation is given here.

The New Orleans is lying off Cavite, having recently returned from a cruise in Chinese waters.

John Ulrich will speak at the West End Tabernacle tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Instinctive Playing With the Virtuolo

THE Virtuolo is an art medium. It enables you to put into your playing, involuntarily, beautiful tone and touch and accent. It is involuntarily to such an extent that you would really have to pay attention to find out how you produce much of the expression, such as accent, shadings of force, attack and delicate touch effects.

The result of distinctive control is that you at once enjoy the sensation of playing music—not of operating an ingenious machine. This sensation to its fullest extent, has been known only to the few most skilled pianists.

Until you have had the Virtuolo in your home you cannot realize how true this is. From the first hour you are fascinated. From the first you find that you are led naturally and almost involuntarily to put feeling and expression into your playing, more beautifully than you would ever do if you had to master difficult control devices. Your instinctive control over tone, touch and accent to such an astonishing extent makes you eager to play with fine tone shading, moulding every phrase to your fancy or mood. So, month by month, your ideas grow beyond anything you ever believed possible. You never tire of it.

The Virtuolo departs from all other players in principle. Instead of using lifeless wood and leather as the substitute for the pianist's hands, the Virtuolo plays upon its own set of keys with "air muscles" located in its eighty eight "channel fingers." The flexing of these sensitive "air muscles" is in response to every natural impulse given by the Virtuolo pianist. All of the touch expression which makes playing artistic, is produced involuntarily. That is why the novice "finds himself" when he begins playing the Virtuolo.

PETS STILL CHAMPS

Defeat Local B. P. O. E. Nine in Season's Final Game.

BOTH TEAMS SHOWED CLASS.

Spectacular Fielding Stunts and Plenty of Snap in Handling Hard Hit Raps Kept Spectators Applauding.

The final curtain on the local baseball season was lowered on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon, when the Plainfield Pets, winners of the pennant in the Central New Jersey League, played and defeated the local Elks lodge nine, champs of the Elks' State League. The score was 7 to 4, the result of tallying in two innings only by both teams.

The attendance was not as large as desired nor anticipated, in view of this being the last opportunity fandom will have to see a local diamond battle until next season. Neither was the spectators as numerous as the contest deserved, for taken all in all the game was a good one and far from the lack-lustre class. It was featured by spectacular catches aided by players on both teams, some heavy hitting and snappy fielding tinged with cayenne. In the outfield grabs, Frank Evans and Wally Cosgrove, the right fielders, carried off the lion's share, with Tommy Mullen, in left for the B. P. O. E. a close second. Evans has three classy catches to his credit two of which came in rapid sucession.

Jack Martin and Jimmy Emory divided honors on the infield for the Pets. Dalton at short for the Bills shone luminously and had the satisfaction of putting a few over on his former team mates, just to give them something to remember him for while the wintry winds are blowing.

Warry McLaughlin was a mystery to the Pets' hitsmiths until the fifth. Then they found his bends three times hard. A bad bounce over Nolan's head let Linderman's drive go for a double and as Evans was racing in to meet Cosgrove's poke he fell. Before the pellet was recovered Cozzy was warming third. The hit drove in Bill Stallings, who had doubled clean to left just before Linderman connected, and also scored Ernie. On an infield tap by Driscoll, Cozzy scored. Harter was walked and on wild heaves by Torpey and Nolan scored after only essaying to steal second. That was in the fourth. Until that time the Pets had not had a look in, not a man passing second.

In the eighth an error by Wiltse, a single by Martin, a double by Emory and another single by Eddie Stallings, all in quick succession, one right after the other, scored a run and stuffed the cushions with none down. Here is where Evans came into action. After nabbing Nelson's earoming clout, Frank shot the ball to Dalton and caught Eddie off the bag. Linderman made Frank again get busy and furnished him with the chance to make his third put out and second sensational catch of the session retiring the side.

Although the Bill boys had been feeling Linderman, he managed to keep the bingles well scattered until the seventh when Warry and Nolan rapped out singles and Torpey got on on a fielder's choice on which Warry scored, although it forced Nolan at second. Tommy drew a pass and on a wild heave by Nelson to nab Torpey stealing, he was able to reach the plate. Evans and Dalton fanned ending the inning. In the next a pass to Kettler and two more singles by Warry and Nolan brought two more across. The Elks went down in one two three order in the ninth, their last chance to even the score.

HE SCOLDS SOCIETY AND ARRAIGNS CAPITAL

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire preached one of his strong characteristic sermons at the evening service yesterday, taking as his text Luke 24:29 "And when He had thus spoken, He showed them His hands." The pastor then defined the hands thus exposed to view saying that they were a man's hands, that they were pure, strong, calloused, friendly, wounded, and outstretched hands.

In the course of his sermon the pastor drew numerous comparisons; arraigned capital, defended labor, scolded society, and pointed out that honest hands are still outstretched to mankind. He said that there is no more fitting a crown than a workman's cap and that the true American is neither an almstaker nor the gentleman of leisure.

DEVOTED TO FASHION NOT TO THEIR HOME

The celebration of the Feast of Maternity in St. Joseph's church yesterday morning furnished Father Miller, the rector, with an opportunity to speak on the present day styles of dress worn by the women. In no unmistakable language he made it very clear to his hearers that he does not approve of the gowns and gave his reasons.

In drawing a comparison between olden days and present time conditions the priest said that as a result of the fads and fancies which have been affected by women in recent years, the home is being neglected, and that in spite of all the attention women pay to their appearance at the sacrifice of the home, they do not look as well as in days of old. Among the fads mentioned was the suffragette movement and pet dogs. He also decried the present day tendency not to raise children, saying that in olden days a woman was looked up to and respected for the number of her children and that probably some of the lack of respect shown women today is because of this absence of family.

Became Bride of George W. Foster at Her Home Saturday Evening.

A pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Lack, 316 Park street, Westfield,, at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, when their daughter, Miss Lucile Gertrude Lack, became the bride of George Weeks Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Foster, also of Westfield.

Auto Hits P. S. C. Pole.

While George A. Lutz, of Myrtle avenue, was driving his automobile west on West Front street yesterday, the front tire of left front wheel burst, causing him to lose control of the car which dashed into a P. S. C. pole in front of the First Baptist church bending the pole and badly damaging the car. That some of the four passengers in the car was not injured seems miraculous for the force of the collision broke the wind shield, the glass flying in all directions and over the passengers. The damaged car was removed to a nearby garage where it is undergoing repairs.

Store Proprietor in Trouble.

David Robinson, a member of the firm that bought T. A. Garthwaite's business at Watchung avenue and Fourth street several weeks ago, was arrested yesterday for a violation of the Sabbath observance ordinance. He was admitted to bail for his appearance Wednesday morning.

FINALS OF TENNIS

Boys Singles and Girls Doubles in City High School Tournament Decided.

OTHER MATCHES UNFINISHED.

A Silver Cup for Philip VanDeventer—The Misses Butler and Phillips Winners of Bronze Medals in the Doubles.

The school championship finals in the boys' singles and girls' doubles tennis tournament were played Saturday afternoon at the Plainfield High School courts. The matches in the girls' singles and boys' doubles and mixed doubles will be played today and tomorrow. The match in boys' singles was won by Philip VanDeventer, who will be awarded a silver cup. His opponent was Jack Zerega. The winner took three out of five sets in succession.

The match in girls' doubles was less exciting, being easily won by the Misses Gertrude Butler and Esther Phillips, who defeated the Misses Daisy Day and Marguerite Shotwell in two short sets. The winning team will be presented with bronze medals. The winners showed exceptional team work and controlled a variety of swift strokes which their opponents could not return.

The Misses Butler and Phillips had the disadvantage of facing the sun in the first set and lost many opportunities on this account, but their accurate placing soon told and they clinched the set with a score of 6-4. After the teams had changed courts at the end of the first set, the winners took the games in quick succession as their opponents were completely bewildered by the sun. The score of this set was 61.

HISTORIC HOTEL NOW IN HANDS OF RECEIVER

When the Globe hotel of Red Bank went into the hands of a receiver Wednesday, many politicians and professional men all over New Jersey became reminiscent because of their association with the old hostelry. The hotel is one of the oldest in the State and has housed Governors, a President, Congressmen, Senators and others of prominence. President Grant often took a dinner there after a drive up from Long Branch. Governor Leon Abbett, Governor Joel Parker, Governor Edward C. Stokes and Governor J. Franklin Fort have enjoyed its hospitality. As for county political lights, they made it their headquarters for many years.

The hotel is noted for having the oldest boarder in point of time spent in one place in this country. Charles Preston went to the hotel to board about sixty years ago and he boards there yet. He is past 80 and is still a bachelor. He works every day at his trade of carpenter.

The hotel was not new in the forties and among its numerous landlords was William J. Poulson who ran the Kensington, in this city for several years after disposing of the Globe.

PASTOR'S WARNING

Rev. Dr. Eaton Says the Integrity of Our Political Institutions are in Danger.

DENOUNCES CLASS DIVISIONS.

Teachers Not Instructing Children in Morals as They Should—Makes Reference to the McNamara Trial.

"Not since the beginning of our history have the validity and integrity of our political institutions seemed in such danger as today," said the Rev. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, in his sermon yesterday in the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York. He added that business men know that the entire fabric of our institutions is close to what looks like almost ruin. "Industrial conditions have divided the country into classes," he continued, "which have developed such a demonical hatred for each other that men are on trial charged with fielding murders in attempting to rescue a great group of their fellows from the oppression of employers.

The clergyman referred to the McNamara trial in Los Angeles as an instance. He added we have been trying to sing ourselves in to a "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," instead of fighting to attain that goal like true soldiers. Literature has become materialistic, our pleasures and recreations are entirely material and teachers are not instructing children in morals as they should, he asserted.

FAMOUS CIRCUS HORSE 'DAHLMAN' IS DEAD

"Dahlman," the beautiful white performing horse belonging to Robert Whittaker, of this city, is dead, following four years of retired life on the farm of Mrs. Mary Giles at South Plainfield. The faithful animal was found lifeless in a corner of the meadow where he had fretted and pined for the sawdust and tanbark since placed in it, a victim of old age and complications. It may be that the profound silence of the pasture was so great a change from the blare of the bands and the barging of the "blues" that had been music to his ears that it caused him to brood and aid the ravages of time, but at any rate he is gone and the hundreds of Plainfielders who knew him join in extending sympathy to his owner.

"Dahlman" was purchased by Mr. Whittaker from Isaac Dahlman, the well known New York dealer, since succeeded by the firm of Fiss, Doerr & Carroll, the largest firm of the kind in the country. That was in 1888 and the horse was then nine years old. He was pure white and one of the handsomest equines that ever stepped in a ring. Mr. Whittaker named him after the former owner and the combination of "Robert Whittaker, the great American rider and his famous horse 'Dahlman'" appeared on brilliant lithographs all over the world. The Plainfielder trained the animal almost to a point of human intelligence and appeared with him as a member of the Barnum, Ringling and other big shows for many years. The owner was then a daring equestrian but a broken leg sustained by a fall while performing in Germany, caused him to change his act to a "high school" performance, especially adapted to the vaudeville stage. "Dahlman" was last seen in Plainfield at the Elks' minstrel show in 1906. A year after that, he fell and injured his back while stabled in Chief Kiely's barn on East Fifth street. He never recovered from it and was eventually pensioned off.

Mr. Whittaker, who is known professionally as "Professor Walberti," has recently been touring the country with a big dog and pony act, broken by himself, but never lost an opportunity to visit his old partner when any where near Plainfield.

D. U. Convention Ends.

Stanley Robins, of this city, a junior at Rutgers College, and a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity, was a member of the committee from the society which planned the dance held in Kirkpatrick Hall, New Brunswick, Friday night. The delegates left Saturday in four special cars for Perth Amboy, where they took a boat for West Point to see the football game between the Army team and Rutgers.

MISS BESSIE DUNHAM BRIDE OF A. L. CONANT

Miss Bessie Dunham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dunham, of West Fifth street, and Alvah L. Conant, formerly of Elizabeth, but now of this city, were quietly married Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, performed the ceremony. Only the members of the two families were present. Miss Fanny Schwan, of Red Bank, was the bridesmaid and Jacob Kohler, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Jersey City, was the best man.

The bride holds a position as a teacher in the North Plainfield public schools, and she will continue to teach. Mr. Conant is engaged in the insurance business in New York. Upon their return the couple will reside at West Fifth street and Central avenue.

RAID SPEAK-EASIES

Mayor With Police When They Take Prisoners in Four Italian Joints.

GAMBLERS IN THE TOILS TOO.

Prisoners Arraigned In Court Today Held In Default of Bail For Hearing Thursday Morning.

As the result of quiet investigations for several weeks four places were raided by the police with Mayor Moy on Saturday night. When the prisoners were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, the newly appointed corporation counsel, William Stillman, made his first official appearance for the city. At each house visited all of the occupants were made prisoners, the proprietors on the charge of selling liquor without a license and the others as material witnesses. At the first place, that of Pasquelli Lucarelli, of Cottage place, a stud poker game was in progress when the police broke in. The participants were arraigned on the charge of gambling.

While the raids were in progress Alexander Zogi, whom the police say is a driver for the People's Transportation Co., was arrested for delivering beer in violation of the law. He was taken into custody on Cottage place and when his alleged employers were appraised of his arrest they declined to come to his assistance. In default of $300 bail he was held for further examination Thursday morning. All of the others charged with running speakeasies were held in the same amount. The poker players were held in $200 each. None of those arraigned was able to furnish bail.

After visiting the Lucarelli home, that of John Mango nearby, was stopped at and there the same conditions as to the liquor violation existed. The Sunday supply of "booze" was loaded in the patrol wagon and removed to headquarters. It consisted of several kegs and cases of beer; bottles of wine and whiskey. With what was secured at Lucarelli's home the patrol looked like a delivery wagon for a combination brewery and distillery.

The last raid made was on the home of Louie Davigo, of Johnson avenue. Louie works on the streets, and is said to have made the boast that because he was an employe of the city he is immune from arrest. However this may be, he is by far the wisest of those arrested and some time ago built a so-called spite fence around his house, presumably to prevent neighbors from seeing what went on indoors. This fence also offered a difficulty to the police in obtaining evidence. About the same quantity of wet goods and prisoners were taken to the police station from Louie's home.

The poker players gave their names as Patsy Anna, Patsy Firsco, Rocco Joromo, Louis Rowano, and Tony Periga. They all plead guilty to the charge of gambling and will be sentenced Thursday morning.

In making the raids Chief Kiely was assisted by Captain Frederickson, Sergeants Overbaugh and Flynn, Roundsman Higgins and Patrolmen Flynn, Kelley, Dobson, Nolan and McGinley.

TO GAIN ADMITTANCE JUST BRING PACKAGE.

Rev. and Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey announce that they will hold their first "at home" of the season at the chapel on Thursday evening. It will be known as an "exchange social," something entirely new here. The price of admission will be a package of something, anything that a person chooses to bring, and these will be placed on a table. Later, after an informal program including soprano solos by Mrs. Elizabeth Boyd Edgar; darkey dialect stories by Mrs. G. H. Campbell and piano selections by Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, Charles Montfort will distribute the packages.

Those who receive something that they do not want is privileged to exchange it with somebody else, and this feature promises to afford no end of fun for those who engage in the affair. Sunday-school teaches and in fact anybody who is interested is invited to be present.

The annual report of the Commissioner of Pensions showed 28,985 fewer names and $3,498,154 reduction in the amount paid last year; mailing of checks is proposed, to save $1,000,000 to pensioners and $180,000 to the government annually.

PLAYERS OF PREVIOUS SERIES SCATTERED.

Of the Giants who played in the world's series of 1905 Roger Bresnahan is now manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Dan McGann, the first sacker, committed suicide in Louisville a year ago. Billy Gilbert managed the Erie team in the Ohio-Pennsylvania League this season, and Bill Dahlen leads the Brooklyn Superbas. Sandow Mertes went down to the minors and Mike Donlin is with the Boston Rustlers. George Browne is playing semi-professional ball around Newark and Joe McGinnity is manager-owner of the Newark Tigers. "Dummy" Taylor pitched for Buffalo during the year, and Frank Bowerman is with the minors. Sam Strong, the former pinch hitter, was recently with Baltimore.

The Athletics of six years ago are widely scattered. Lave Cross played in the Carolina Association during 1911, and Monte Cross managed the Scranton-New York State team. Sox Seybold's whereabouts are not known. "Doc" Powers, the catcher, died two years ago, and Schreckengost, the other backstop, is in the minors with Louisville. Andy Coakley is manager of a semi-pro team of his own. Jack Knight, who was on the bench, is now with the Yankees, and Rube Waddell is in the American Association. Danny Hoffman was released by the St. Louis Browns to Indianapolis several months ago.

The Detroit Tigers have taken part in three, losing all of them, while the Philadelphia Atheltics have won one and lost one. The others to take part in the series are the Giants, White Sox and Pirates. All three won out. STATE COMMITTEE TO FURNISH NO SPEAKERS

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, referring to a report sent out from Newark last night that as chairman of the Republican State Committee he had made practically no arrangements for campaign speeches fearing that some of his opponents in the Republican party would make themselves popular to the detriment of himself in seeking re-election to the United States Senate, said today:

"It has not been customary for the State Committee to meddle in the affairs of the various counties, especially when there are no State issues involved.

"This year there are no State officers to be elected, the issues are purely local, and the various county committees are capable of managing their own affairs. I think it wise not to interfere with such a situation.

"Regarding speakers, there has been a demand but from two counties, and I am arranging for them now and for the men asked for. The State committee stands ready to do everything in its power when called upon by the various organizations.

"It is impossible for the Chairman of the State Committee to create a demand for any particular speaker which would equal his expectations."

—H. C. Reynolds, of Church street, has opened a meat market in the Humble building at Somerset street and Lincoln place. The proprietor has had many years of experience in this line and can be relied upon to conduct a first class place.

Cigarette Causes Blaze.

A lighted cigarette left on a dresser at Mrs. Lena Hellstrom's boarding house on East Seventh street yesterday morning, caused a small blaze which before being extinguished burned a hole through the floor of the room. The fire department was summoned by phone, but a volunteer bucket brigade of boarders had the flames out when the firemen arrived.

Dr. Snodgrass to Preach.

The revival services being held under the auspices of the Methodist churches will be continued this evening at the First M. E. church, when Rev. Dr. W. C. Preparing Tax Bills.

Borough Tax Collector George F. Brown is rushing work on the tax bills and will probably have them ready for mailing the latter part of next week. There is a large increase in the number this year, but the borough makes no appropriation for extra help in preparing them as is done by the city.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

GUNNING SEASON ON; FIRE PATROL ACTIVE

In anticipation of the opening of the gunning season today the North Jersey Forest Fire Patrol, organized for the prevention of fires in the woodlands of that section of the State, was put into operation Saturday. The patrol has been established by the United States forest service in co-operation with the New Jersey Forest Commission. The men engaged for the work of patrolling and watching for forest fires will be paid by the Federal forest service, while the system has been planned and the men engaged by the State fire warden, who will exercise general supervision over the patrol, both during the gunning season and at other times when forest fires are particularly likely to prevail.

The aim of the patrol organization is to discover fires in the woods, get fighters on to the ground promptly in order, by putting them out while they are small, to prevent their becoming destructive, and more particularly to get hold of those responsible for the fires. Gunners, therefore, will do well to see that they do not violate the provisions of the laws relating to the preservation of the forests by the prevention of fires.

In the past fire wardens have been in a large measure unable to apprehend persons responsible for fires because of the more urgent necessity for the actual fire fighting which is their first duty. Members of the Forest Fire Patrol on the contrary have been particularly instructed not to spend their time fighting fire but to leave this to the local wardens. It will be the primary duty of the patrolmen to give warnings of fires and to capture violators when they can. Each man on the patrol is, however, a regularly appointed district fire warden, having thereby the power of summary arrest given those officers by the State law.

This provision will make it possible for the patrolmen to hold gunners, picnickers, transients and non-residents of the State for the enforcement of the legal penalty ranging form $50 to $200 for violation of the forest fire law, due to carelessness with fire or indifference to the damage done by it. The patrol will cover roads and trails on prescribed routes from which there is the fullest view of the surrounding forest or upon which the nature of the travel creates a fire menace. The patrolmen will do their work on foot or bicycles or by driving, acording to the topography of the territory to which they are assigned.

Forty-seven patrolmen went on duty and the territory covered will include practically the whole forest area in Bergen, Passaic, Morris, Sussex and Warren counties. Supplementing the work of the patrolmen six lookout stations have been established from which a comprehensive view may be had of a large area and from which reasonably quick acess can be obtained to communication with the local fire wardens in the vicinity.

McIntyre Concert.

Joseph McIntyre has decided upon October 24, November 14, December 12 and January 10, as the dates for his concerts to be given at the High School auditorium. The reservation of seats for subscribers begins Wednesday morning at Armstrong's drug store. The sale of single tickets will be on and after Friday, October 20. The advance guarantee has been large. At the first concert, Mr. McIntyre will be at the piano, and the other two members of the trio will be Bonarios Grimson, violinist, and Stanislas Bem, 'cellist. The assisting artists will be Miss Lucy Marsh and Miss Inez Barbour, sopranos, and Miss Christine Miller, contralto.

Neither Side Scored.

The Holy Cross football eleven and the Young Men's League, of Rahway, met on the Rahway gridiron, Saturday afternoon, and the game had to be called in the middle of the third quarter, owing to an injury to a Rahway player. Up to that point neither side had scored. Miller, of the Plainfield team, put out the opposing player for the rest of the game.

Attending Synod Meeting.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church; Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel; Rev. F. L. Greene, of Hope chapel, and Rev. P. D. Tildon, of Bethel chapel, left today for Atlantic City, to attend the Synod meeting of the Presbyterian church.

The monthly meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The executive committee will meet at 2 o'clock.

STATE NORMAL TEACHERS TAKE GUARD'S PLACES.

Three guards at the New Jersey Reformatory have been suspended and their places filled by teachers from Pennsylvania, who will instruct the inmates and act as guards at the same time. The suspended guards are: Bruce Drummond, of Woodbridge; William Parsons, New Brunswick; Charles Woodkoski, of Rahway.

It is understood that no charges have been made against the men suspended, but that they will simply be placed on the waiting list owing to the addition of four new teachers, and will be given the preference when vacancies occur. The men have been employed as inner guards for some time. The new school teachers will conduct the classes all day under the new ruling, which obliterates night school, and State Normal School graduates.

CALLED "PIKER," GIVES AWAY RECOVERED CASH.

Trenton, Oct. 16.—His "sporting blood" being put to the test by William Edwards, a convict in the State prison, Henry W. Baldwin, of Pennington, has directed Police Captain John J. Cleary to distribute $84 among McKinley, Mercer and St. Francis' hospitals and the New Jersey Children's Home Society. Edwards some time ago picked Baldwin's pocket, and the latter was largely instrumental in having the man sentenced to five years. Edwards then stated that his victim was no "sport" if he could not lose that sum of money without making a fuss over it. Baldwin was stung by the taunt and directed the distribution of the cash.

MISS AMY CORBETT'S WEDDING ON SATURDAY.

Miss Amy Corbett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Corbett, of 669 West Seventh street, and Franklin Conkling, of this city, will be married Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the home of Miss Corbett's parents. Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will officiate. The affair will be a quiet one and will be attended only by the immediate members of the two families.

Men's Clubs to Take Census.

The Federation of Men's Clubs of the Westfield churches proposes to take a religious census of the town. Enumerators from the various churches will be appointed and the town divided into districts. The census will be taken about the first of the month. The idea is to ascertain how many men of the town's population do not attend any church and an effort will be made to have those with no church affiliations join some one of the churches.

Horse's Fall Draws Crowd.

A fine big chestnut horse, valued at $250, the property of VanZandt & Voorhees, fell on Park avenue, near the firm's office at noon today. It was unable to get up, being stricken with astorea, or what is generally called spinal meningitis. A sled was hastily rigged up and the animal was removed to its owner's barn, where all efforts are being made to save its life. A crowd of 100 men were attracted when the horse fell.

Held Rally Exercises.

Rally day exercises were held at Monroe Avenue church, yesterday, under the auspices of the Sunday-school, when the children took part in an interesting program of songs, concert recitations, etc. A feature was an address by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, a former pastor, on a subject appropriate to the occasion.

OBLIGING CRABS.

Present Their Claws to Fishers Who Shake Hands With Them.

Visitors in Seville see women carrying baskets full of crabs' claws. The claws are cooked, and people nibble at them more for fun than sustenance, just as Russians nibble sunflower seeds. What becomes of the rest of this crustacean, especially if he is a crawfish, of his tail?

As a matter of fact the crawfish has no part in the business. The claws are taken from a salt water crab which lives along the shores of Morocco, Spain and Portugal. Each little crab, with its one little mate, has a cave for a home, and, adopting the eastern estimate of the other sex, he usually keeps his wife shut inside the cave, meanwhile staying about the threshold himself and making a brave show with his big claws.

When the tide runs out the crab fishers prowl along the beach looking for crab holes. Either the crab is stalking up and down seeking what he may devour and thus showing whether he has fine claws or he is still at home, and the size of his doorway indicates the size of the householder. In one case the fisherman cuts off his retreat by blocking his front door with mud; in the other case he digs him out. Anyway, he deprives him of his pincers and sets him at liberty to grow some more.

Right here appears the quaintest feature of the whole affair, for the pincers are not torn away from the crab at all. Instead he presents them to the fisherman, perhaps even with his compliments. It is a fact easily demonstrable that the crab can detach his claw by muscular effort, thus making no hemorrhage, but leaving the stump in such condition that a new claw is soon grown. The fishermen simply take the crab by the hand, whereupon it lets go, leaves the claw with them and romps off home without it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

PRESSURE OF WATER.

Its Effect Upon a Corked Bottle Lowered Into Ocean Depths.

A bottle partly filled with fresh water and tightly corked can be lowered into ocean depths, and on being raised to the surface it will be discovered on opening it that the fresh water has been replaced by salt.

This really extraordinary phenomenon is explained in the following way: The pressure of water increases as the distance from the surface increases. Thus at the distance of a foot beneath the surface the pressure of the water a square inch will be about half a pound; at a distance of, say, 200 feet it will be 125 pounds to the square inch. At ocean level the pressure of the atmosphere is a little over fourteen pounds. Thus if a bottle containing air were lowered thirty feet beneath the surface the pressure of water would more than counterbalance the pressure of the air. Ordinarily at this depth, therefore, the pressure of water should be sufficient to drive the cork within the bottle, but the cork is tightly wedged in position. To squeeze it within the bottle it, too, must first be compressed, and also there is friction to be overcome.

The distance varying, then, according to these conditions, at some point beneath the surface the weight of water will force the cork into the bottle, compressing the air before it. The salt water of the ocean mingles with the fresh water within the bottle. As the bottle again approaches he surface the air that remains within is subjected to less and less pressure till finally, now having itself a pressure greater than that of the water, it drives the cork back into position.—St. Louis Republic.

Counterfeit Detectors.

"Few men carry a bigger roll than the professional detector of counterfeits," said a receiving teller of one of the big banks recently. Each of these counterfeit detectors has a special license from the treasury department at Washington which permits him to carry about 150 samples of counterfeit money. It is a felony to have counterfeit money in your possession without proper authority. For each bogus bill the counterfeit detector carries a genuine note of the same kind and denomination for the purposes of comparison. The total value of this good money that is carried side by side with the bad is between $40,000 and $50,000. The bills run from a dollar up to $1,000 in denomination."—New York Sun.

The Solar Plexus.

The Scriptural expression "bowels of compassion" is justified by the discoveries of modern science. Whenever anything affects our nerves we feel it more or less in our "innards." It is the solar plexus which is concerned in such emotionalism. Of course in itself it cannot feel, but it sends messages to the brain, which interprets them as coming from there. The solar plexus is a mass of nerves and nerve structures in the abdomen at the back of the stomach.—New York Tribune.

Her Great Love.

"Could you love me, darling?" he whispered, with a tender, pleading look in his eyes, "if I had only the one coat to my back?"

"I could," she replied softly as she nestled in his great strong arms, "if I knew you had sacrificed the others to buy me a new dress."—London Mail.

THE COWBOY'S TICKETS.

They Were Good on the Train, but Only For a Little While.

A bunch of old time traveling men were visiting at a Topeka hotel, and talk turned on to courageous conductors "I have known."

A story was told on John Becker, for years a conductor on the Santa Fe. He was practically awarded the palm for being the bravest "con" who ever set foot on a through Kansas train in the old and perilous days.

One day, just after the Santa Fe train had left Dodge City, Becker passed through the car to take up the pasteboards. Two cowboys had boarded the train at Dodge, and Becker went up to them and said, "Tickets, please."

For an answer the cowboys whipped out big revolvers—the Colt's blue steel brand, 44 caliber—and replied:

"Here they are."

"They're good," said Becker quickly, with a deprecatory wave of his hand, and he passed on through the car. The cowboys chucked their "irons" back into their holsters and settled back comfortably, thinking that the train was theirs.

Becker walked on back to his little wardrobe at the front end of the next car and, unlocking it, took out a sawed off double barreled shotgun loaded with slugs. He cocked both hammers—for it was before the hammerless automatic days—and, getting the gun properly placed in front of him, he marched back into the car where the cowboys were.

He stepped briskly in front of them and shoved the big gun into their faces, holding it at such an angle that a shot would have swept off the heads of both.

Then he said again, gently, "Your tickets, please."

The hands of the cowboys twitched convulsively toward their pockets, and Becker interjected, "Give me those tickets, please, that have handles and shove 'em at me with the handles toward me—toward me, understand?" he added, bearing down hard with the emphasis on "me."

The tickets came across with the handles in the requested direction.

"Now, dig up the coin," he demanded, "to the next station where we stop."

They dug.

"Now, at the next station you fellows unload. Understand?" The sawed off was still at a dangerous location and the hammers still up.

The cowboys nodded vigorously in the affirmative, and they unloaded quickly and without words at the next stop.

Becker made no fuss over the matter; didn't talk about it at all. He just accepted it as part of the day's business and seemed to see nothing in it that was extraordinary.—Kansas City Journal.

Life Rings on Mountains.

An extraordinary example of the way in which a mountain may afford on a small scale an image of the earth's climates, arranged in successively higher circles, has been found in the San Francisco peaks. These ancient volcanoes rise out of a plateau having a mean elevation of 7,000 feet above sea level.

The peaks are encircled with zones of vegetation which run almost like contour lines around them. Between 6,500 and 8,500 feet the yellow pine is the dominant tree. From 8,500 to 10,300 feet the Douglas fir, the silver fir, the cork fir and the aspen share the available ground. Between 10,300 and 11,500 feet the Engelmann spruce and the foxtail pine take possession and ascend to the tree limit.—Scientific American.

Misleading Book Titles.

Some book titles are distinctly misleading. Ruskin's "On the Construction of Sheepfolds" is a famous example of these, and there are others. Mr. Henry James' novel "The Lesson of the Master" has more than once been catalogued as a religious work. The same fate befell Sir Edward Hamilton's "Conversion and Redemption," a highly technical study of schemes for the reduction of the national debt. "Disloyala; or, The Doubtful Priest," was the title originally selected by Shorthouse for the book we now know as "John Inglesant." It was pointed out to him that such a title would lead people to regard it as an attack on Roman Catholicism, and this induced him to change it.—London Chronicle.

How an Ostrich Shows Temper.

When annoyed or angered by the approach of a human being, says a writer in the Strand Magazine, the male ostrich slightly arches his neck, and, drawing in a big breath, he blows out his neck and issues a three note defiance ("bo-bo-bo-o-h"). It is in the last prolonged note that his neck swells out so abnormally. The hen bird never "drums," as the natives term it, though I have heard of one that tried very hard to ape the male, but the result was ghastly failure.

His Achievements.

"After I am gone," he complained, "people will begin to notice what I have done."

"Well," his wife sadly replied, "if they do it won't take them long."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Shrewd Woman.

Howard—I can't get my wife to pay her bills by check. Edward—Why not? Howard—She says that she won't have the horrid bank people know what everything costs her.—Judge.

Such help as we can give each other in this world is a debt we owe each other.—Ruskin.

ALASKAN MOSQUITOES.

They Are Small and Silent, but Work With Fire Tipped Stings.

Mosquitoes in this icebound northern country, Alaska, are a plague beyond relief. They come to life about the middle of May, before the ground is thawed out and while many feet of ice still cover the lakes and all but the swiftest rivers. Stagnant, sun heated water is not in the least necessary. They breed in the glaciers wherever a bit of earth or manure has melted a little pool. Their wrigglers are seen in running ice water. By the 1st of June it is uncomfortable to sleep without protection, and from that time on until September, when the first frosts have benumbed them, especially during the warm, rainy season of July and August, they become a never ceasing scourge, swarming in thousands.

The Alaskan mosquito is small, brown, silent and very much in earnest. He never sings a warning nor fools about selecting a spot to his taste, but comes in a bee line with his probe and gets into action. Every inch of your clothing is industriously bored, so that you look like an animated brown cocoon, and the slightest exposed spot on wrist or neck is promptly set on fire. I experimented with a small hole in my glove. After the first mosquito had found the opening others came in quick succession to the spot. He left some microscopic "kind lady and no dog" sign there. If I killed the first and left his carcass it served as a warning not at all. The others came the faster, and the more I killed the more eager the survivors became, perching quite unmoved on the remains of their confreres.—World Today.

EUGENIE'S ESCAPE.

How the Empress Got Out of France After Sedan.

As soon as the hot headed citizens of Paris learned in September, 1870, that their emperor, Napoleon III., had surrendered to the Prussians at Sedan these Parisians rose in a riotous mob and made posthaste for the Tuileries. They were armed and after royal blood and plunder. The empress had to flee for her life. Assisted by the Austrian and Italian ministers, she made a hurried flight from the palace, but found the mob ahead of her in the garden; back again and then out by a secret way into a side street, where they entered a carriage. A street gamin recognized the empress here, but the shouting of the mob was so great that the boy's cry of warning was not heeded.

Once the carriage was stopped by a mob, but the party alighted and managed to escape. Finding themselves near the residence of Dr. Evans, the American dentist, they took refuge there, and the doctor took upon himself the responsibility of Empress Eugenie's safety. The empress put on a dress belonging to Mrs. Evans and, with Mme. Breton, her friend, was driven by Dr. Evans to the suburbs. Dr. Evans explained that the women were a patient and her attendant whom he was taking to a sanitarium. Two days later the fugitives reached a coast town, whence they escaped to England.

Plants That Shoot Arrows.

The arrows are crystal needles of oxalate of lime. They are of microscopic domensions, and they are shot from minute capsule shaped bodies found in the tissues of such plants as the Indian turnip and the Polynesian taro. An extraordinary spectacle may be viewed in the field of the microscope when the "bonds" contained in a drop of taro pulp begin to discharge their arrows. Sometimes only one or two needles and sometimes groups of four to ten were discharged at once, the bomb recoiling as the projectiles left it. It has been suggested that the intense burning and pricking sensations experienced in chewing such plants as those just mentioned are due to the release and discharge of these crystal arrows when the plant tissues are crushed in the mouth.—Harper's Weekly.

A Fine Distinction.

Sometimes a small boy can draw a fine distinction. Two fishermen of the sportsman type, equipped with all the latest appliances for angling, were walking a mountain road when they met a barefooted boy with a tin can in his hand and a carelessly trimmed branch of a tree slung over his shoulder.

"Hello, sonny!" exclaimed one of the men. "Going fishing?"

"No," drawled the youngster, with only a glance at the splendid outfits, "I ain't goin' fishin'. I'm just goin' down to the crick to ketch some fish."

Air In the Lungs.

In one minute, in a state of rest, the average man takes into his lungs about 48.8 cubic inches of air. In walking he needs 97.6 cubic inches; in climbing, 140.3 inches; in riding at a trot, 201.3 cubic inches, and in long distance running, 347.7 cubic inches.

An Optical Delusion.

Affable Stranger—I beg your pardon, but isn't this Miss Greenleaf? The Lady—No; I am Miss Redpath. A. S.—Ah, excuse me! I must be color blind.—Boston Transcript.

Revenge.

She—You ask me to marry you. Can you not see your answer in my face? He (absently)—Yes—er—er—it's very plain.—Life.

Take a good book slowly. You see much finer country in a traveler's way on than you do from a car window.

THE USE OF TOBACCO.

Cut It Out One Day Each Week Is the Advice of a Doctor.

If a man who uses tobacco will give it up for one day each week he will keep himself from becoming a "tobacco fiend." This is the advice of a well known doctor, who says that quite a number of men, including himself, have adopted this plan.

"By leaving off tobacco for one day a week you give your system time to get rid of the effects of the drug," he said.

"You will then enjoy your tobacco far more, too, because you have become unaccustomed to the flavor, and it is therefore more enjoyable when you resume smoking.

"The effect of tobacco is a general sedative action on the nervous system, which diminishes the power of taste and smell. That is why tea tasters seldom or never smoke.

"Leave it off for a day, and the sense of taste recovers. Not only that, but leaving off tobacco for one day voluntarily breaks the tobacco habit, exercises the self control and prevents one from becoming a slave to the habit.

"Slaves to the tobacco habit suffer from irritable hearts, loss of appetite for breakfast, eye trouble, sometimes going as far as blindness, chronic catarrh of the throat and nervous depression."—New York American.

STUYVESANT'S LOST LEG.

Doubt as to Which It Was Shown In Paintings and Statues.

There is no doubt Peter Stuyvesant had a wooden leg. The histories tell of how he stomped about the streets of New Yieuw Amsterdam, leaving a dot and dash trail in the road like a Morse code. But there is one point on which historians seem perplexed—or it may be that the readers of history are unobserving—which leg had the good Peter lost?

In the Wall street section those who roam may see at least five representations of the late lamented governor of the Dutch colony. Three of these are painted on the panels of signs, and two are statues, like Peter's leg, made of wood.

One of the statues and two of the paintings represent the governor wearing a chair leg attached to his right nether limb, while in the others painters and sculptors have chosen to represent that it was his left leg he had lost.

All show the leg bedecked with ribbon bows, and all show him as a benign individual—not at all in keeping with the character given him by the historians in question—wearing knickerbockers and a felt chapeau and offering a roll of manuscript to whomsoever looks.—New York Times.

London Through the Ages.

The occupation of the site of London dates back much farther than most readers are aware. The city that Julius Caesar found occupied a site which had been inhabited for unnumbered thousands of years. It is now known that during paleolithic and neolithic times—the two great divisions of the stone age—man dwelt on the site of London, but it first became the settlement of a community at the opening of the historic age, when it was a stronghold of the Celts. The remains of its Roman period are the finest of the kind in Great Britain. The Anglo-Saxon and Danish periods are finely represented, and even later periods, such as the Tudor, furnish relics that have been buried by that strange process of superincumbent growth which makes the soil under a great city resemble the fossiliferous strata of geology.—Youth's Companion.

Bathing an Elephant.

The elephant's bath takes a week to carry out in every detail. It requires the services of three men, and it costs $300. This treatment is necessary for a circus elephant, and if the animal is a valuable one the proprietor of the circus does not consider the money wasted. The first process consists in going over the immense body with the best soap procurable; 150 pounds of soap is used, and the elephant's ears are especially carefully attended to. When the soaping and drying are completed the elephant is well sandpapered and after that rubbed all over with the purest Indian oil until the mouse gray skin is supple and glistening. This last touch is the most expensive part of the bath, as $150 has to be spent on the oil alone.—Philadelphia Record.

A Puzzle For Willy.

The new school superintendent was chock full of new pedagogy.

"Never ask leading questions when examining your pupils," he commanded his teachers. "Do not hit at the answers. Make the learner find them unassisted."

This is how the young lady teaching Greek history obeyed:

"Willie, who dragged whom how many times around the walls of what?"—Everybody's.

Ambiguous.

"Did your late employer give you a testimonial?"

"Yes, but it doesn't seem to do me any good."

"What did he say?"

"He said I was one of the best men his firm had ever turned out."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

PILLMAKING CRABS.

Queer Way These Tiny Creatures Get Their Food From the Sand.

Curious little crabs, mostly about the size of a pea, are found in abundance on the shores of the Malay peninsula. They are usually first perceived on the beaches after the going down of the tide, when they give the beach the appearance of being covered with loose, powdery sand and holes of various sizes. Upon looking more closely it is perceived that little radiating paths converge among the litter of sand to each hole and that the sand itself is in minute balls.

At the approach of an observer there immediately becomes apparent a peculiar "twinkle," which is nothing else than the simultaneous and rapid retreat of a multitude of the tiny crabs into their holes.

Should one who is watching these curious little creatures take up his position by one of their holes and remain perfectly motionless they will in time come out, when he will be enabled to see them at work.

Coming cautiously to the mouth of the hole, the crab will reconnoiter a bit, and when satisfied that no enemy is near it will venture about its own length from its lurking place. Then, rapidly taking up particles of sand in its claws, it will deposit them in a groove beneath the thorax.

As it does so a little ball of sand is rapidly projected as through its mouth. This it seizes with one claw and deposits on one side, proceeding in this manner until the smooth beach is covered with little pellets or pills corresponding in size to its own dimensions. This is evidently its method of extracting particles of food from the sand.—Harper's Weekly.

AN IRISH LEGEND.

The Foxes Mourn When a Head of the Gormanston Family Dies.

"Among the oldest families in Ireland are the Gormanstons. It is said that when the head of the house dies and for some days before the foxes leave all the neighboring coverts and collect at the door of the castle. This strange phenomenon," writes E. T. Humphries in the National Review, "occurred when the twelfth Viscount Gormanston died in 1860 and again in 1876, when the thirteenth viscount shook off this mortal coil. The fourteenth holder of the title died in 1907. Inquiry was then made to test the truth or otherwise of the weird legend.

"The son, in a letter published in the New Irish Review, stated that when in the chapel watching his father's remains prior to burial he heard noises outside as of a dog sniffing at the door. Upon opening it there was a full grown fox close to the steps and several more around the church. The coachman confirms the presence of the foxes; so does another family retainer.

"The daughter of the thirteenth successor wrote saying that upon the illness of her father the foxes sat in pairs under the bedroom windows, howling and barking all night, and if driven away returned.

"The family crest is a running fox, and a fox is one of the supporters of the family arms."

His Thoughtful Wife.

"I hate to boast," said a Cleveland lawyer, "but my wife is one of the most economical women in the world. The other day she told me she needed a new suit. I said she ought to have it, by all means, but asked her not to spend a big bunch of money without letting me know about it. Well, the next day she said: 'The tailor said he couldn't make that suit for less than $150. I thought it was too much, but told him to go ahead.'

"'Well, I suppose it is all right,' I said, 'but why didn't you consult me first?'

"'Why, dearie, I didn't want to spend car fare for two visits.'

"I tell you, it's these little economies that count, eh?"—Cleveland Press.

Pay of French Ministers.

Ministers in France are not so well paid as in England. All members of the French cabinet receive the same salary, £2,400 a year, and as they have to forfeit the allowance of £600 which they receive as senators or deputies their net annual gain through taking office is only £1,800. It is true they are provided with official residences, furnished, heated and lighted at the public expense. Their tenure of office is, however, so precarious that they can never venture to let their private residences, so they save nothing under the head of rent.—London Chronicle.

The Oxidization of Brass.

Brass when immersed in a hot solution consisting of one-half ounce of golden sulphuret of antimony and four ounces of caustic soda in each gallon of water becomes oxidized with a pleasing brown shade. The shade becomes darker if the metal is immersed in a dilute solution of sulphate of copper, used cold, about four to eight ounces to the gallon. Several immersions in the same manner give deeper brown tones.

Felt So Small.

Boggs—Did you get in all right last night? Woggs—Oh, yes. Boggs—Then the doors wern't locked, as you feared? Woggs—Indeed they were, but my wife yelled at me as I was coming up the steps, so I crawled in through the letter slot.—Puck.

He who has truth in his heart need never fear the want of persuasion on his tongue.—Ruskin.

SAVING MONEY.

A Dollar a Week Put Into the Bank Is a Good Investment.

"It is mighty hard," said an unfortunate workingman some time ago to the writer, "to save up a thousand dollars by laying aside a dollar or two a week and then to take it out of the savings bank and lose it to a get rich quick swindler, as I have just done." The poor fellow could work and save, but he had not had even a kindergarten education in finance, else his story would have been different. He had never given a thought to interest and so was absolutely ignorant of growth through compound interest and, of course, had never heard of that wonderful process of accumulation known as "progressive compound interest."

One dollar deposited in a savings bank that pays 4 per cent will amount to $2.19 in twenty years. This is simple compound interest. Now, if you deposit $1 every year for twenty years, or $20 in all, the sum to your credit will have grown to $30.97.

Any wage earner can put by $1 a week. That money deposited in a savings bank for twenty years will have increased to $1,612. A deposit of $5 a week will have grown to $8,000, and this at 4 per cent will be $320 a year. There is no secret, no mystery, about this. It is as clear as the cloudless sun, and the method is just as clean and honest."—Christian Herald.

CAN'T READ THEIR LIPS.

When Actors Do Not Face the Audience It Bothers the Deaf.

"Time and time again we're asked to have our actors face the audience squarely when speaking lines that are of great importance," a theatrical manager said recently. "The explanation for the request is generally the same—that deaf people in the audience who depend on lip reading rather than hearing lose the run of the play if some important lines are spoken by a person whose lips can't be read. An actor or actress who's stuck on posing in profile is always the despair of the deaf people in the audience, as they say it's almost impossible to read lips in profile.

"Out ticket agent hears another side of the same question. People tell him when buying tickets that some one in the party is stone deaf and must read the lips of the actors in order to follow the play. Then they ask him on which side of the theater these particular seats should be located to make this lip reading the most satisfactory. Often the stage setting decides which way the actors must face, and if a deaf person gets on the wrong side of the house the play is practically lost."—New York Sun.

Too Late.

Mr. B. drove up in a hansom and entered the jeweler's shop accompanied by his valet, who carried an oblong box of steel. Mr. B. asked for a private interview, and on being shown into the office he opened the box, exposing a splendid array of diamond and pearl necklaces, earrings, tiaras and rings.

"Mrs. B.," he said, "is now abroad. Before she returns I want you to extract these stones and replace them with good imitations, selling the real jewels and giving me the money. This, of course, is to be a confidential transaction. Mrs. B. is to know nothing of it."

"My dear sir," said the jeweler, "I should be glad to do as you ask, but it is impossible. Two years ago Mrs. B. called here on the same errand that now brings you, and this errand in her case was successful. The paste jewels that you offer me are worth little more than the hire of the hansom awaiting you outside."—London Tit-Bits.

Thackeray and Colonel Newcome.

Mr. Louis Melville tells a characteristic story of Thackeray's fondness for his greatest hero. "It was outside 'Evan's,'" he writes, "that Lowell, being on a visit to London, met the novelist looking so haggard and worn that he asked if he were ill. 'Come inside, and I'll tell you all about it,' said the latter. 'I have killed the colonel.' At a table in a quiet corner Thackeray took the manuscript from his pocket and read the chapter that records the death of Colonel Newcome. When he came to the end the tears that had been swelling his lids trickled down his face, and the last word was almost an inarticulate sob."—London Chronicle.

Pretty High Hills.

A distinguished astronomer once took the trouble to measure in several paintings the size of the moon and to deduce from it the height of the mountains shown in the same picture. He found that the average height of the hills was about forty-three miles, while one giant peak raised its head more than a hundred miles above sea level. Turner, who was one of the greatest masters of landscape composition and coloring, frequently exaggerates the height of his hills with the intention of conferring upon them a majesty which otherwise they would not possess.

Happiness.

That all who are happy are equally happy is not true. A peasant and a philosopher may be equally satisfied, but not equally happy. Happiness consists in the multiplicity of agreeable consciousness. A peasant has not capacity for having equal happiness with a philosopher.—Johnson.

The bread of life is love; the salt of life is work; the sweetness of life, poesy; the water of life, faith.—Mrs. Jameson.

TWAS FINE SOCCER

Plainfield and Elizabeth Hawthornes Tie in Inter-City League Contest.

FAST PLAYING THROUGHOUT.

Final Score 2 to 2—Local Team Holds Third Place, the Leaders, Nairn and Eureka, Being Tied—The Details.

The Plainfield Association Football Club and the Elizabeth Hawthornes, played a tie game in the Inter-City Socces Amateur League series on Clinton avenue, Saturday afternoon, the score being 2 to 2.

From the kick off both ends were visited in quick succession and ultimately the Hawthornes were awarded a penalty, but the ball was sent over the bar. Plainfield was playing a fine game and doing most of the pressing now. Heneghan sent across a fine shot, and the ball glanced off a Hawthorne player and went through the goal.

The visitors got away and getting well down the outside right sent in another fine shot which struck the bar and went out of play on the other side. The visitors were having a show now and with only McNeice to beat Denby sent the ball high over from five yards out. Half time was called with the score 2 to 0 in favor of Plainfield.

Heaume re-started and made tracks for goal, breaking through the defense of the players and the spectators. The referee did not allow a goal. This was hard luck on Plainfield as they fully deserved the goal and it meant the loss of a valuable point. The game continued fast until the finish, when the result was 2 to 2. The lineup:

HUNT CLUB ENJOYS TWELVE MILE CHASE

The weekly chase of the Watchung Hunt Club on Saturday, attracted about sixteen riding members, and the event was thoroughly enjoyed. There was only one accident, Edward R. Finch going off at a ditch. He was not injured to any extent and was able to finish with the rest.

The riders met the hounds at the water tower, Netherwood, and from that point the chase led through Fanwood, Westfield to the Brass Kettle Inn, where a check was held. The scent was again taken up and the hounds were followed through Scotch Plains and Fanwood to Netherwood, the finish, covering a distance of about twelve miles. There were a number of grooms out exercising new hunters and several people followed the riders in automobiles. The following finished:

Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H., Edward R. Finch, C. W. Holland, Schuyler Casey, W. R. Towner, J. J. O'Donohue, Stanley Bellows, Miss Caroline Brice, Lewis E. Waring, Col. C. E. S. Bellows and Huntsman Henry Watkins.

DEATH VALLEY SCOTTY HAS ANOTHER BIG ROLL

"Scotty," better known as "Death Valley Scotty," but whose real name is Walter Scott, and who formerly resided here, has another bank roll, even larger than the first, it is said. "Scotty" since leaving Plainfield has visited here several times to see his old friends. His claim to fame is based upon the various sensational money-spending dashes he has made through the East. He is now in Los Angeles and judging by appearance is well supplied with this world's goods.

"They say I'm broke," he snorted, disgustedly. "Just take a slant at that."

And he drew forth from his trousers pockets a roll of yellow bills as large as a tomato can.

Just where "Scotty" got his money no man has been able to say with definiteness. That, during the years 1904-06 he had plenty of it, and that he spent it with fierce recklessness is as certain as there is a Death Valley, where his supposed gold mine was.

In July, 1905, he hired a train on the Southern Pacific and swept up the dust across the Southwest in his hurry to get to New York, where there was a gallon of whisky awaiting him.

This trip was so well advertised that skeptics declared Scotty was in the employ of the railroad press agent.

This mine, according to Scotty, was somewhere in Death Valley. He was the only man who knew its location. He declared it was amazingly rich and would last a man his lifetime. It's true that in the early days he did carry around a lot of loose gold.

It is true also that Scotty made frequent trips from Los Angeles into the desert, but, although he was trailed, no person followed him to a mine.

7TH-DAY BAPTIST MEN'S ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT.

The members of the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church who planned to hold their annual fall outing on the mountains yesterday afternoon were obliged to forego the "electric strawride" and instead they gathered in the church parlors and enjoyed the festivities until 9 o'clock last night. There were about fifty men present, whose ages ranged from 14 to 82 years.

The committee in charge of the refreshments, of which John Cottrell was chairman, had a jolly time preparing the menu. Frankfurters were roasted and corn was boiled out of doors, and in addition coffee and sandwiches were served.

The program, as well as everything else about the affair, was strictly informal, and there were short interesting adresses by Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Gardiner, David E. Titsworth and Dr. Henry M. Maxson. Dr. Gardiner's remarks were of a reminiscent nature, while Dr. Maxson related some of his experiences in the Maine woods and in the south, where he visited quite recent. Mr. Titsworth spoke of the opportunities of men today for Christian work. Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, president of the club, had charge of the affair.

MISS HUSE TO TELL OF ROYAL CHATEAUX.

The talk to be given by Miss Carolyn Evans Huse on Wednesday afternoon, October 25, at the residence of Mrs. Stuart Hoyt Patterson, 1006 Park avenue, treats on a subject full of interest both to the stay at home students and to the present day tourist. Miss Huse, who not long ago returned from a long sojourn in the heart of the chateaux country, where royal domains are many, will draw a brief outline of the castle region and of the condition of society in the middle ages and will then center her remarks upon the feudal chateaux which while less beautiful than those of the Renaissance are replete with interest. The talk will be fully illustrated with stereopticon views which will include pictures of Chinon, the cradle of the Plantagnet kings, and Langeais of Louis XI. fame, and Ambois teeming with memories of Francis I. and Mary Stuart.

It is Mrs. Patterson's intention to divide the proceeds between Muhlenberg Hospital and the Loyal Daughters Circle of King's Daughters.

PLAN WILSON TRIP

Martine and Hughes to Accompany Governor When He Invades Union Co.

HIS SCHEDULE AS ANNOUNCED.

Aims to Steer Clear of Factional Entanglements When He Stumps the County Thursday—Here At 9:30 P. M.

It required the greatest persuasion that Representative William E. Tuttle, chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee, and General Dennis F. Collins, State committeeman, could bring into play yesterday afternoon to secure the final consent of Governor Wilson to the arrangements that have been made for his campaigning trip in Union county next Thursday. Putting it mildly, the Governor thought the Union county Democrats had gone the limit in arranging for a series of meetings to be addressed by him in one day. Between noon and 9 p. m. he has been advertised to make speeches in seven different towns on his visit to Union county, involving about sixty miles of travel.

Besides finding fault with the number of speeches arranged for him next Thursday, the Governor has been embarrassed by the fact that plans were also made for him to be entertained at dinner in Elizabeth by General Collins. The announcement that he would be the guest of the General immediately raised a storm among the Elizabeth Democrats, with which the Governor and State Chairman Grosscup were quickly acquainted. Mr. Grosscup looked into the situation and concluded that it would be productive of more harmony in the Democratic ranks if the Governor cut out being a guest of General Collins. After being acquainted with the political conditions that exist in Elizabeth the Governor himself was reluctant to allow the leaders of either Democratic faction in Elizabeth to entertain him on his visit to that city.

It appears that General Collins had gone ahead and made quite elaborate arrangements for the dinner party in honor of the Governor. The prospect of a cancellation of this feature of the program thoroughly upset the General and today he went to Trenton determined to induce the Governor to change his mind and be his guest, as announced. There was a long conference between the Governor, State Chairman Grosscup and Messrs. Collins and Tuttle, and it was finally announced that Mr. Wilson would yield to the arranged program and break bread with the General Thursday evening.

Congressman Tuttle said that in addition to the Governor, United States Senator Martine, Congressman Hughes and Dudley Field Malone would make speeches in Union county Thursday, so as to keep the program moving smoothly while the Governor is being rushed from place to place.

The Governor will make his first speech at 12 o'clock at Garwood, where he will address an audience of workingmen composed of the operatives employed in a number of factories in that town. He will take lunch with Congressman Tuttle in Westfield and deliver an address there at 2 p. m. From there he will go to Cranford, then to Roselle, then to Summit, and wind up the afternoon in Rahway. He will speak at Proctor's Broad Street theatre in Elizabeth at 7:45 p. m. and then go to Plainfield to make his last speech of the day at 9:30.

HE SELLS SALOON TO RUN FOR SHERIFF

J. Logan Fay, Democratic nominee for sheriff, in an interview yesterday, did not deny that he recently had the excise license for his hotel at First and Trumbull streets, Elizabeth, transferred. He did not deny that for years he held a liquor license and under it conducted a place opposite the Singer factory, but he refused to admit that recently he transferred his license because he believed the fact that he was in the liquor business would seriously handicap his chances of success in the campaign.

For the transfer of the license for his saloon Mr. Fay would give nothing other than business reasons. He was out of the business for all time he said.

TROLLEY MAN KILLED EJECTING PASSENGER

John Miller, an inspector for the Public Service Corporation who was well known in this city, died in the Alexian Brothers' Hospital, Elizabeth, at 3:15 this morning, from injuries received three hours earlier when he was pushed from a trolley car on First street by a passenger who refused to pay his fare. The latter, Joseph Flannigan, of 469 Walnut street, Elizabethport, fell to the roadway at the same time and sustained a broken leg. He is now in the Alexian hospital under a police guard.

Flannigan boarded the car at midnight and assumed a belligerent attitude when the conductor approached him. He declined to bay for his ride, causing a dispute that was in progress when Miller swung on board. He urged Flannigan to pay up but his talking was unheeded. Finally the inspector caught hold of Flannigan to eject him and a scuffle ensued. Miller was given a violent shove that threw him off the car platform but in falling he pulled the fighting passenger with him. Both men toppled to the pavement where they remained, unable to arise, and when the conductor and assistants picked them up it was found that the inspector's neck was broken. He retained consciousness until death ensued.

Miller was thirty years old and leaves a wife and family. He had always lived in Elizabeth, where he had an excellent reputation.

Dunham took place Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dunham, of Madison avenue. Mr. Conant is now on his wedding tour, having departed before his name was drawn from the box by Sheriff Robert J. Kirkland and consequently before the notice to serve on the jury could be served.

The others from this city are Geo. M. Rittenhouse, Lucius T. Koons, Frederick B. Schomp, Harry K. Lister, Augustus G Jenkins, Charles G. Little, Garrett Dunham, William G. Shoemaker, Samuel T. Williams.

FOR CAR SERVICE

Ordinance on Third Reading Gives City Proper Trolley Cars and Equipment.

PENALTIES FOR INFRACTIONS.

Supervisor Appointed By Mayor Will Rid Community of Flat Wheels, Second-Hand Motors and Antiquated Cars, It Is Expected.

After months of delay there appears a chance that the Common Council will pass an ordinance providing for stricter regulation in the operation of trolley cars in this city. Such a measure was presented some time ago, but failed to get beyond the first reading.

Councilman Holt, who had the matter in charge, finally drafted a new ordinance and after making several changes, consulted with Corporation Counsel William M. Stillman, secured his approval of the same and introduced it at the adjourned meeting last night. The old ordinance was killed and after considerable discussion on the part of Councilmen Mygatt and Buxton the proposed new ordinance was finally passed on second reading and ordered advertised.

Among the important features of the new measure are that the Mayor is empowered to appoint a competent person to examine the trolley equipment of the P. S. C., at such times as he may think best, and he is privileged to call upon Street Commissioner Gavett to do this work if he desires. Furthermore, it provides that the company shall at all times maintain its cars and equipment in first-class manner. The proposed ordinance covers flat wheels, defective motors and gives the Mayor the power to order off the street any cars that may be run with a flat wheel or defective motor; also providing that due notice be given to the company in writing calling attention to infractions of the ordinance, and imposing a fine of $20 for infractions after notice is given the company. Not more than $25 can be expended for an inspection of the equipment without a resolution of the Council.

Mr. Mygatt at first favored holding the suggested ordinance up until the members had received copies of it so that they could vote more intelligently on the same. He asserted that he was not sure that the ordinance was perfectly clear in its definition of what constitutes unnecessary noises. Mr. Buxton favored placing the ordinance on the table before adopting it on second reading so that changes might be made if thought necessary as it might save the expense of advertising it twice.

Mr. Holt said that he was anxious to get the ordinance through this year and if the members could agree he would like to have it passed at this time. It was finally agreed to pass to on second reading. All the members present, except Mr. Buxton voted in the affirmative and he voted against the adoption of the ordinance.

FATALLY STRICKEN IN A PHYSICIAN'S OFFICE

Mrs. Emma Jane Apgar, wife of Pythias E. Apgar, of Bound Brook, while visiting the office of Dr. F. C. Ard on Park avenue, with her niece, yesterday afternoon, had a stroke of apoplexy. She was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital as quickly as possible, but died within a few minutes after reaching the institution. Mrs. Apgar had suffered two strokes of apoplexy, previously, one quite recently, and in consequence she was in a feeble state of health. While Mrs. Apgar's niece was receiving treatment, another patient, who had been sitting in the reception room with Mrs. Apgar sent word to the specialist that the woman was ill and that she considered her condition serious. Dr. Ard assisted the woman to a couch and realizing that she required medical attention summoned the ambulance and had her removed to the hospital, where she soon passed away.

Mrs. Apgar was about fifty years of age and had been a resident of Bound Brook for many years. Her husband is engaged in the grain and feed business at Bound Brook, where he has a mill. Beside a husband Mrs. Apgar leaves a daughter also of Bound Brook.

GET $385 IN FINES

Italians Pay Penalties in Court For Running Speak-Easies and For Gambling.

JUDGE DE MEZA'S DEPARTURE.

Instead of Holding Culprits For the Grand Jury He Adds to City's Revenue By Assessing Proprietors $100 Each.

The three speakeasy proprietors arrested Saturday night were arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning and plead guilty as charged. Sentence in each case was $100 fine or 90 days in the county jail. John Mango and Pasquale Lucarelli, of Cottage place, and Louis Davigo, of Johnston avenue, were the men arraigned. All paid their fines. F. J. Blatz apeared for Mango and the others were represented by J. Henry Crane.

The five men arrested at Lucarelli's home for playing poker were also arraigned, charged with gambling. Pleas of guilty were received for them through J. Henry Crane and Judge DeMeza disposed of the complaints as follows; Patsy Anna, $15 or 40 days; Patsy Fursco, $5 or 20 days; Tony Patogrini, $15 or 40 days; Rocco Caromo, $15 or 40 days, and Louie Romano, $20 or 60 days. Lucarelli was also arraigned on the gambling charge, in addition to the speakeasy complaint and was fined $20 or 60 days.

When Judge DeMeza took his seat on the bench the court room was crowded. There were as many women present as men and each had a child in her arms and two or more clinging to her skirts. Before proceeding with trial of the prisoners, Judge DeMeza ordered the little ones taken outside. This necessitated the removal also of nearly all the women, those who wanted to remain in court turning their children over to the others to look after.

As naturally could be expected, these volunteer guardians did not have as much control over the children as their own parents and being outside they gave themselves up to childhood pastimes. While the downcast father was standing trembling before the bar of justice, either being lectured by the court for flagrantly violating the laws of this country, or else listening to the eloquent plea of his counsel for clemency, who meanwhile pictured the wrongdoer as a hard working, thrifty ,though withal, ignorant immigrant who come to this country for a chance, the joyful shouts of his children mingled with those of his neighbor were wafted to his ears through the open court room windows.

One of the women who did not leave the court room was Lucarelli's wife. After sentence had been passed on him she made such a fuss that Patrolman Kelly, doing court duty this morning, had to remove her at the court's order. Louie Davigo's wife with their five children and Mango's wife with their three were not in court when the head of the house was sentenced and this probably prevented the same kind of scenes.

After court had adjourned an indignation meeting of all the spectators was held on the sidewalk and street in front of police headquarters. The wrath of all voicing their sentiments was not directed towards Judge DeMeza, but towards the man who while living among these people had collected the evidence on which the raids were made. From what could be gathered from the expressions, punctuated with much shrugging and eloquent gesturing, his life would not be worth a farthing if they had their way, and all advise to the contrary by lawyers could not alter this feeling.

WM. D. YOUNG DIES IN SIXTY-NINTH YEAR

William D. Young, aged sixty-eight years, who for many years was a passenger conductor in the employ of the New Jersey Central, died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert W. Wright, 20 Vine street, North Plainfield. He had been a paralytic for the past ten years, during which time he had been unable to work. For the past nine weeks his condition was such that he was practically helpless. Mr. Young had been a resident of this city for several years, he and his wife living with the daughter.

Mr. Young is survived by his wife and daughter, Mrs. Wright; also two sons, Parker Young, who lives at home and the other one is employed by the New York Telephone Company at the Newark office. The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

"MED" SOCIOLOGY

Tuberculosis an Important Field For Social Workers Says Dr. Richard C. Cabot.

HE URGES HOME TRAINING.

Harvard Medical School's Noted Author Gives Instructive Address Before the Monday Afternoon Club.

A large audience listened with appreciative interest to the first lecture in the course on "Hygienic Development of the Present Day," given yesterday afternoon before the Monday Afternoon Club in the Hartridge auditorium. The sub-division of the theme, "Medical Sociology," was treated in a masterly manner by Richard C. Cabot, M. D., of the Harvard Medical School. Dr. Cabot is an authority on this subject because he had a mind to see the need of social service to make effective the physician's diagnosis and prescriptions and the courage to put his theories in practice. He told yesterday of the successful operation of his theories in Boston hospitals. He gave the proportion of ward or in-patients as one-fifth of the dispensary or out-patients and this larger number, he said, needed social service to supplement the work of the accurate expert and prescribing physician.

Dr. Cabot's account of the installation of a woman with the qualifications of a trained nurse, a settlement worker and schooled by suffering into the hospital work of Boston, was full of absorbing interest. The investigation of home conditions, the education of mothers and the oversight of the doctor's prescriptions had all worked successfully in the accomplishment of the desired end. These social workers, he said, cared for children, looked after cases of tuberculosis, inspired hope to victims of nervous prostration and wisely guided women and girls who would otherwise be outcasts.

Tuberculosis, he considered especially a field for the social worker. It was not only an individual problem, but a family problem and a social problem and menace. In the corps of workers employed under Dr. Cabot's direction were a number of pair nurses and volunteers, who after practice sometimes became so expert that their services could not be dispensed with.

The happy results of home training and education in hygiene, Dr. Cabot said, gave the physicians more interest, for with the help of the socila worker, they expected satisfactory results. The sympathetic and large hearted social worker described by Dr. Cabot has the object of education in mind, teaching their patients how to eat, how to exercise, how to sleep, indeed the whole art of taking care of themselves and thus they supplement the expert's skill in the care of all humanity.

The lecture was preceeded by an interesting account of the annual meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs held in Asbury Park last May, given by Mrs. William Griscom.

All vacancies in any office must be filled by this date also.

Under the new election law the office of the County Clerk will be rushed with work and to facilitate the work it is requested that all the petitions be filed at the earliest possible opportunity.

NEGRO SNATCHED PURSE CONTAINING $93

Edward Davis, of East Third street, reported to the city police yesterday afternoon the loss of a wallet containing $93 in bills. He said, according to the police, that he had ridden on his bicycle to a local bank intending to get a draft for the cash.

Leaving his wheel at the curb he had reached the door of the bank when he felt for the pocketbook only to learn it was gone. Turning instantly he was just in time, he says, to see a colored man pick the roll from the sidewalk near the bicycle and run. This, he says, happened yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. The police were not notified until after 1 in the afternoon. The colored man's description was taken and the police are looking for him and the money.

DESPITE MAYOR'S VETO PAY CHIEF'S TRIP BILL

Chief T. O. Doane's bill for $125 incurred by his trip to the convention of international fire chiefs in Milwaukee, was passed at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, notwithstanding the objections of Mayor G. W. V. Moy. Mr. Taylor, chairman of the fire committee, asserted that the bill was a seasonable one and believed it should be paid. It was so ordered and the Mayor's objections will be noted on the minutes.

City Clerk J. T. MacMurray presented a copy of the Union county ratables for the year and it was ordered filed. The Adams Express Company furnished the Council with a copy of its list of special officers employed between Phillipsburg and Jersey City and the list was filed. The Public Service Corporation notified the Council that it had located one arc light at Park avenue and Second street, as directed. City Judge W. G. DeMeza presented his third quarterly report showing that $462.25 received in fines had been turned over to City Treasurer W. F. Arnold.

Mr. Buxton offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing an appropriation of $200 for employing extra clerical help for the tax office.

Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, providing that in cases where property-owners had failed to lay sidewalks as directed, they be given the usual notice and then if they failed to comply the city will do the work, charging the expense up to the owners. He also called up on third reading the ordinance providing for an extension of the sewer system and it was adopted.

A resolution by Mr. Taylor, and adopted, authorized the installation of two two-way fire hydrants, one at Arlington avenue and Laramie road and the other at Randolph road and Cameron avenue, as petitioned for by residents.

Upon motion of Mr. Clay, the following lights were ordered, in accordance with petitions: Five on George street, one on Woodbine avenue, one on Hillside and Martine avenues and one on Martine avenue.

Mr. Holt called up the ordinance on third reading providing for the establishment of a pension fund in the police department and it was adopted without a dissenting vote. This matter was overlooked at the last meeting.

OUR MANUFACTURE

Increases in Plainfield Are Announced by Chief Statistician of U. S. Census.

FIVE YEARS' COMPARISONS.

Sixty Establishments In 1909 and But 49 In 1904—28 Per Cent. Increase In Capital Invested In Local Plants.

A preliminary statement of the general results of the Thirteenth United States census of manufactures of this city was issued today at Washington, D. C., by Census Director Durand. It contains a summary comprising the figures for 1904 and 1909, by city totals, prepared under the direction of William M. Steuart, chief statistician for manufactures, Bureau of the Census. The figures are subject to such revision as may be necessary after a further examination of the original reports.

The summary shows percentages of increase as follows: 33 per cent. in the cost of materials used; 28 per cent. in the capital invested; 22 per cent. in the number of establishments and 2 per cent. in the value of products.

The decreases were: 41 per cent. in the miscellaneous expenses; 13 per cent. in the number of salaried officials and clerks; 12 per cent in the value added by manufacture; 11 per cent. in the average number of wage earners; and 1 per cent in the salaries and wages.

There were 60 establishments in 1909, as compared with 49 in 1904; an increase of 11, or 22 per cent.

The value of products in 1909 was $3,649,000 and $3,572,000 in 1904; an increase of $77,000, or 2 per cent.

The value of products represents their selling value or price at the plants as actually turned out by the factories during the census year, and does not necessarily have any relation to the amount of sales for that year. The values under this head also include the amount reecived for work done on materials furnished by others.

Further details can be drawn from the tabular summary which follows:

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

SOMERVILLE.

A commuters' club has been organized, with the following officers: President, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen; vice president, George A. La Monte; treasurer, Arthur L. Canfield. The club will have a private car attached to the train leaving Somerville at 8:17 in the morning and returning from New York on the 5 o'clock train. The club comprises a membership from Bound Brook and Somerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethan W. Judd and daughter, Laura, of San Juan, Porto Rico, are guests of Mrs. Judd's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Matthews, of Cliff street.

Mrs. Jacob Kershaw, of Mercer street, has been spending a week with her brother, Rev. J. H. Thompson, at Hastings-on-the-Hudson.

Mrs. Charles P. Davis, of Green Knoll, is the guest of cousins, Mrs. James Quick and Mrs. Manning Bainbridge, at Interlaken, N. Y.

Mrs. Emma Woodruff and family have moved to the house formerly occupied by Mrs. Henry Hummer, at East Millstone.

Mrs. Ellen Sulter moved from Millstone to New Brunswick last week.

Mrs. S. O. B. Taylor, of Millstone, is visiting relatives at Bayonne.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The baseball season for the 'Plains is practically over. The result of the season's work by the team is most encouraging. Manager Alberts, with a combination of local talent, kept a team in the field which made a most creditable showing against the best semi-professional teams in this section of the country. The club cleared all expenses and closed the season with a small balance, but not enough to enable any of the members of the club to enjoy life this winter without work. Prospects for next season look good, several weak spots will be strengthened and the club will again enter a team in the Central New Jersey League.

The open season for woodcock started Saturday. A number of hunters were out on the opening day and yesterday but few birds were brought in as they are reported as being scarce this season.

Robert Walpole, who injured his leg while getting out of a wagon Tuesday of last week, is still detained at home from his duties as court constable at Elizabeth.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clawson have returned from a visit with Mr. Clawson's parents at New Market.

Mrs. Thomas Walsh has returned from a visit with relatives in New York.

STOKES FOR PUBLICITY; DIDN'T ACCUSE BRIGGS.

Trenton, Oct. 17.—When asked about the statement, which has been indirectly attributed to him, that United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, as chairman of the Republican State committee, was keeping his prospective rival candidates for the Senatorship off the stump, former Governor Edward Caspar Stokes said that he was in no way responsible for the story and had not inspired it.

"Of course, it is well known," said the former Governor, "that I do and always have favored a campaign of discussion and publicity. This, however, has no bearing upon the insinuation that I have accused Senator Briggs of keeping myself or former Governor Fort or anyone else off the stump, during the present campaign I have said nothing at all in regard to the matter and want it distinctly understood that I am not playing politics that way."

MEREDITH GETS FRECH'S POST.

Long Branch, Oct. 17.—Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of John W. Meredith as superintendent of the New Jersey southern division of the New Jersey Central Railroad to succeed the late George H. Frech, who was buried at Somerville Saturday.

Mr. Meredith has been in the Central's employ for twenty-seven years, and filled the position of train master under the late Mr. Frech. E. T. M. Carr is the new train master succeeding Mr. Meredith. The position of chief dispatcher to succeed Mr. Carr is still open.

Mr. Carr, the new train master, started with the Central as a mail boy twenty-nine years ago. Mrs. Frech, widow of the late superintendent, is critically ill at her home at Red Bank.

A "TRIAL ENGAGEMENT."

Newport, R. I., Oct. 17.—Harold Sterling Vanderbilt and Miss Eleanor Sears have entered into a "trial engagement," to last one year. This is the confidential announcement made by Mrs. Frederick R. Sears, of Boston, mother of the young woman, upon whom society looks with animated interest as having won the heart of the younger son of William K. Vanderbilt.

The terms of the "trial engagement," says Mrs. Sear's confidant, will not expire until next summer, so that a public announcement that the couple are engaged is not considered likely before the time is up. Should the young pair conclude to "call it off" it may be there never will be any public acknowledgement that there was an engagement.

POSTAL CLERK GIVES SELF UP.

After a general alarm had been sent out for the arrest of Henry T. Haverty, of Roselle, a mail clerk on the New York and Mauch Chunk railroad, on a charge of robbing the mails, he surrendered himself to United States Deputy Marshal Louis G. Beekman, in the office of United States Commissioner Jones, at noon yesterday. The prisoner was held in default of $2,000 bail for a hearing Thursday.

Sparta's Wingless Chicken.

Sparta, N. J., Oct. 17.—J. C. Coursen, a market gardener living near this place, has on exhibition at his poultry yards, a wingless hen, probably the only one of its kind in the country. The bird, which is a full-blood White Leghorn, is about a year old, and aside from the fact that it cannot fly, is not at all unlike the other denizens of the chicken yard. There are no indications of wings on either side of the fowl, the feathers being the same as that covering its back. Mr. Coursen has refused several offers for the bird.

HIBBEN MAY HEAD PRINCETON.

Princeton, Oct. 17.—It was learned here Saturday, through an unauthoritative but supposedly reliable source, that John Grier Hibben, Stauart professor of logic in Princeton University, will be the choice of the board of trustees for president of Princeton at their meeting here next Thursday.

It was also reported that the name of President H. A. Garfield, of Williams College, was the last one to be dropped off the list of possibilities. President Garfield is not a Princeton graduate, and it's said that this fact influenced to some extent the selection.

On Thursday Princeton will have passed one year without a president. Professor Hibben is at present confined to his home by a slight illness.

BURNING DAYLIGHT

Jack London's Brilliant Story of Millions and a Maid Will Appear in Serial Form in This Paper

BURNING DAYLIGHT is the best work yet produced by this masterful writer who has roughed it in many fields of adventure. Burning Daylight is a character fashioned out of the frozen North; how he comes out of the Klondike with wealth won from the obdurate earth, is vanquished and stripped of his millions in Wall Street, regains them, and returning to the West from whence he came, is conquered anew by love, then to renounce his riches, is told in the powerful style of this author who has achieved world-wide popularity.

35,243 VETERANS DIED; 892,088 PENSIONERS

A saving, estimated at $1,000,000 annually, to the pensioners of the United States and eventually about $18,000 a year to the government is contemplated by a simplified plan for the payment of pensions without vouchers, which Commissioner of Pensions J. L. Davenport submitted to the secretary of the interior in his annual report, made public yesterday.

During the year $157,325,160 was paid as pensions, a decrease of $3,498,154 from last year, making the total amount paid in pensions since the foundation of the government $4,230,381,730. There were 55,185 names dropped from the roll and 26,200 added leaving a net loss of 28,985 pensioners. The total number at the end of the year was 892,088, the smallest since 1892. Methods of economy resulted in a decrease of the cost of administration by $140,546, the amount being $2,517,127, the lowest since 1882.

Commissioner Davenport's plan, which was devised at the request of congress, and which will require the passage of a law, would greatly simplify the methods of paying pensions, result in the mailing of pension checks on the date upon which the pension falls due, eliminate the cost to the pensioners in a large majority of cases of the execution of pension vouchers, which varies from $1 to $3 yearly; decrease to a considerable extent the work in drawing and mailing of pension checks, and eliminate the sending of 4,000,000 letters yearly through the mails, saving about $80,000 thereby.

The plan contemplates payment direct by checks mailed to the last address of the pensioner. Besides the indorsement on the back of these checks, the government would require certification by two witnesses as to identity. In a few instances Commissioner Davenport said vouchers still would be required.

Commissioner Davenport told of his efforts to ascertain the truthfulness of reports in the press and elsewhere that the pension roll was honeycombed with fraud. He sent field men from pensioner to pensioner in the Washington agency, and is now doing the same in the Knoxville agency, with a view to probing fraud. Out of a total of 47,181 pensioners seen and questioned only 26 cases of improper pensioning were revealed. The commissioner said he believed the check system would put an end to any fraud that may now exist.

The number of soldiers and sailors on the pension roll at the close of the fiscal year was 570,050; dependents and widows, 321,642, and army nurses, 406. There were 529,884 survivors of the civil war; 35,243 having died during the year. It is believed that only about 25 per cent. of the estimated 2,213,365 individuals in the United States service during the civil war are now living, the death rate of the survivors now slightly in excess of 6 per cent. yearly. The average age of survivors is now about 70 years.

The last pensioner of the revolutionary war, Mrs. Phoebe M. Palmeter, daughter of Jonathan Wooley, who served in a New Hampshire company, died at Brookfield, N. Y., April 25, 1911, aged 90 years.

Mrs. Brittannia W. Kennon, of Washington, D. C., Martha Washington's great-granddaughter, who died during the year, drew a pension as a widow longer probably than any other person in the history of the pension office, having received $50 a month also sixty-seven years. Mrs. Kennon was the widow of the captain of the U. S. S. Princeton, who was killed February 28, 1844, by the bursting of a cannon on that vessel, on which occasion two members of President Tyler's cabinet were killed.

MEMORIAL TO PRIEST KILLED BY ANARCHIST

New York, Oct. 17.—A memorial tablet to Rev. Leo Heinrichs, the Franciscan monk, who was shot to death while administering holy communion in St. Elizabeth's church, in Denver, Col., has been completed and is on exhibition at 36 and 38 Barclay street. The tablet, four feet by two feet six inches, is of bronze, highly polished and ornamented, with a bust of the dead priest at the top.

Father Heinrichs was killed by Giuseppe Alia, a Sicilian, who opposed religion and the clergy. He was hanged for the crime.

The memorial was ordered by Rev. Bernard Speigelberg, of St. Elizabeth's church, Denver, and is to be dedicated next month.

SUICIDE AFTER TRYING MURDER.

Roselle, Park, Oct. 17.—After firing three shots at his fleeing wife and putting a bullet through the neck of his landlord, who he believed had alienated his wife's affections, Charles Lukufowsky, aged thirty-two years, of the Aldene section of the borough, late Saturday night killed himself, firing a bullet into his head.

Stephen Messick, the landlord who had been shot while he was lying in bed with two children, will recover, though the wound in his neck is serious. The woman was not injured. Lukufowsky was crazed from drink and jealously, the police say.

WHY TAXES ARE HIGHER.

Some days ago, Cornelius vanHerwerden took exception to the action of the Common Council in piling up expenses in its prolonged investigation of the scheme for public control of the water supply or in other words municipal ownership. Thousands and thousands of dollars of the tax receipts have been used to pursue this investigation and Mr. vanHerwerden thinks it is a mistake for the Common Council to have retained James H. Fuertes at "$50 a day and expenses" to assist Mr. Wall, a Jersey City lawyer, engaged to furnish legal advice to the Councilmanic committee. It was Fuertes, whose report, costing the city at least $7,000, recommended other than condemnation of the local privately owned plant, and his report was practically cast aside when the committee decided on its condemnation course.

Mr. vanHerwerden asserts that "it is not at all improbable that the cost of this reckless enterprise," meaning the services of Wall and Fuertes, "will range from $500 to $1,000 a day and how many years the litigation will continue no one can tell." He is prompted therefore to state "as a citizen and taxpayer of Plainfield"—and he is a large taxpayer—"I protest against the extravagance while our tax rate is mounting higher and higher on largely increased valuations."

There are not a few thinking men in this community who share Mr. vanHerwerden's views and as the months roll by and the expenses continue to pile up, the number is increasing. And the question is asked, when is it going to be stopped? The tax rate last year was $1.65—higher than it had been for many, many years—and startling as it may seem it is now soaring higher. Had they not resorted to increasing valuations to help out, the rate this year would be $1.84. As it is, the tax bills are now being made out on a rate of $1.75—actually ten points higher than last year.

This ten points raise is largely due to the fact that a little item in the big budget contains an appropriation of $12,000 for more water investigation. Based on the assessed valuations of last year, this item would have been responsible for nearly five of the ten points increase. As a matter of fact, even on the new valuations, over four of the ten points raise are caused by this $12,000 appropriation. And it should be remembered if this investigation is going to be continued indefinitely, many, many more thousands will have to be appropriated and we will have to expect many, many more increases in the tax rate.

Fully in keeping with his excellent record since assuming the office, City Judge William G. DeMeza today disposed of the Italian speakeasy cases by exacting a fine of $100 in each instance. He pursued the proper course. To have held the culprits for the action of the grand jury would have meant in the end either one of two things—they would have been given jail sentences which would mean expense to the county or would have been fined, and money would have gone to the county and not to the municipality which must bear the expense of bringing about the arrest of the wrongdoers.

In voting against that proposed amendment to the building code which would permit the Standard Oil Company to place a gasolene tank with 50,000 gallons capacity above ground, making an added fire menace and an added disfigurement to adjoining property, five members of the Common Council deserve the thanks of the community. They are Clay, Gloak, Holt, Montgomery and Wilson.

After reading the proposed ordinance regulating the trolleys, one may suspect that Councilman Holt at some time or other has enjoyed a ride on the Coney Island coaster otherwise known as the Netherwood trolley line.

REV. DR. SNODGRASS SPEAKS AT REVIVAL

The second week of the revival services, being conducted by the three local Methodist flocks, was inaugurated at the First M. E. church last night, when Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, for many years pastor of that church, but now pastor of the Market Street Methodist church in Paterson, preached to a large congregation in Vincent chapel. The services for the rest of this week will be held in this edifice and next week will be conducted in the Monroe Avenue church.

This evening Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson will be the preacher. Tomorrow evening Rev. C. E. Kemble will relieve Rev. Dr. Anderson and on Thursday evening Rev. C. C. Cain will occupy the pulpit. At Friday evening's service all three of these ministers will speak. Large congregations marked the meetings held last week in Grace Methodist church and the attendance at last night's service gave indications that this would be the rule during the remainder of this week. Those carrying on this revival movement feel very much encouraged and look for an increased interest in the church and additions to the membership after the meetings are over.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

BLOCK HUGE TANK

Common Council Upholds Mayor's Veto of its Amendment to Bldg. Code.

ACTION MEANS MUCH TO CITY.

The Standard Oil Could Have Built a 50,000 Gallon Gasolene Tank, a Disfigurement and a Fire Menace.

For the first time since G. W. V. Moy became Mayor, the Common Council at its adjourned meeting last night voted to support his action in vetoing a measure and members of that body actually commended His Honor for the action. The matter referred to was that in reference to amending the building code permitting the erection of tanks for the storage of more than 250 gallons of volatile liquids. The amendment failed to pass. Councilmen Clay, Gloak, Holt, Montgomery and Wilson voted against the amendment, and Councilmen Taylor, Mygatt, Buxton and Tolles voted in the affirmative.

Mr. Taylor, as chairman of the fire committee, called up the proposed amendment and moved that it be passed notwithstanding Mayor Moy's objections. Mr. Moy objected to the plan of the Standard Oil Company to erect a large steel tank above ground, asserting that the storage of large quantities of volatile liquids in this manner is dangerous and that the Council should regard the interests of people who would likely be effected by such a matter. In the opinion of Mr. Moy the tank should be placed under ground or beyond the city limits.

Mr. Holt, who has opposed the amendment, said that in his opinion the situation had not changed since the last meeting and while he was sorry to be obliged to interfere with the plans of the Standard Oil Company he could not conscientiously vote for the amendment. He understood that the company's present tank of 11,000 gallons' capacity on East Fourth street is underground. Mr. Holt said that he did not feel like voting to impose greater risk on any part of the city. Until he was satisfied that the proposed large tank would not be dangerous he would oppose the matter.

Supporting Mayor Moy in his position, Mr. Montgomery stated that he thought the Mayor's veto was correct, that the ground was well taken. Plainfield, he said, is a city of homes and not to be compared with Newark. He cited the fact that recently there was a bad fire in Bayonne caused by conditions which were proposed for this city. He concluded by asserting that he would vote against the amendment.

Explaining the situation, Mr. Taylor said that the handling of volatile liquids in large quantities such as the Standard Oil Company does, is vastly different from the method of handling small quantities, and he favored the proposition. President Tolles said that in voting for the amendment he was not bound to grant certain privileges to the Standard Oil Company or any other concern.

This led Mr. Montgomery to remark that if the amendment passed the Council would feel bound to give the Standard Oil Company such privileges it might want under its provisions, that it would be the same as going on record in favor of the proposition. The vote was then taken and the amendment was defeated as previously stated.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

James Thymus, a Plainfield peanut vendor who plies his calling in the borough, was arrested by Marshal Benson, Saturday afternoon, for peddling without a license. He showed one to Recorder Campbell that had been taken out for the peanut wagon by his brother, Joseph Thymus, who has been ill. The court considered the explanation satisfactory and dismissed the defendant. John Crawford, of Westfield, was arraigned before the recorder, Sunday, on a charge of disorderly conduct. Sentence was suspended on his promise to give the borough a wide berth.

One of the largest ban loads of goods seen in the borough in a long time was hauled through, Saturday night, by H. C. Smith, the local teamster. It was being taken from Dewey Park to Elizabeth. Mr. Smith stopped in Dunellen for an extra team of horses and the load attracted a large group of interested spectators. There was enough furniture and odds and ends on the hood of the van and on ladders reaching out in back to make an ordinary load.

The Holy Name Society of St. John's church attended the vesper service of the Somerville Knights of Columbus, Sunday night. The society received a special invitation for the gathering and attended in a body.

Russell Brakeley returned yesterday from Baltimore, where he attended the wedding of his brother, Paul Brakeley, and Miss Callow.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church will attend a district meeting of the league at Westfield, Thursday night.

The G. E. Club will be entertained tonight at the home of Miss Minnie Weaver.

PLAINTIFF CAN'T GET DATA FROM RAILROAD.

Trenton, Oct. 17.—Basing his conclusion upon rulings handed down by the Circuit Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court, Judge Cross in the United States Circuit Court yesterday, refused to sign an order compelling the Lehigh Valley Railroad to produce certain books, rules and records of inspection relative to an accident on November 17, 1909, at Parkview, near Newark, in which Charles Anderson, an engineer was killed.

The motion was made by Richard J. Donovan, of Newark, as counsel for Kate Anderson, administratrix of the deceased, who sues to recover $50,000 damages. Opposition to the granting of the motion was made by Coroner English, of Newark, who contended that the complainant's only right to inspect the books was at the trial and not before.

In refusing to sign an order in conformity with the request made by complainant's counsel, Judge Cross stated that the affidavits presented were mere hearsay that the papers offered to the court for consideration was a "scoop net."

Anderson was an engineer on the Lehigh Valley on the day of his death and was going west, when his engine toppled over as the result of tracks having been torn up by an eastbound train.

THIEVES WORK IN TWO HOUSES UNDISTURBED.

Far Hills, Oct. 7.—Burglars broke into two houses here early yesterday morning. From the home of W. B. Flomerfelt they stole five gold watches, two silver watches, two gold chains and lockets, and about $100 in money. Entrance was gained by breaking a parlor window.

The other victim of the burglars was John L. Dillon, a New York lawyer, who is counsel for the Western Union Telegraph Company and other large corporations. About $40 was taken here.

The value of the loot taken from the Flomerfelt house was said to be about $500. The burglars went through the rooms on the second floor, where the members of the family were sleeping, but none of them heard any unusual noise during the night. The watches, lockets and chains were on the bureaus in the several rooms.

Both robberies were reported to the county authorities at Somerville yesterday morning by Mr. Flomerfelt. Prosecutor Pope immediately detailed County Detective Totten on the case.

CORRAL 25 AUTOISTS HAVING WHEEL CHAINS.

Twenty automobilists passing through Springfield Township, Sunday afternoon, with skidding chains on wheels of their machines were stopped and forced to remove the chains. The autos were halted by Special Policeman Edward Ruban.

Each driver was taken before Justice of the Peace Albert P. Cain and besides being ordered to remove the chains were given a reprimand.

CLEARS UP MAN'S DEATH.

Hackensack, Oct. 17.—The mystery which partly surrounded the death of Harry Cort, a motorcyclist, in the Englewood Hospital last Monday morning, has been solved by J. C. T. Rowe, of the law firm of Blandy, Mooney & Shipman, of New York, who has come forward with the statement that it was his auto with which Cort collided last Sunday near the latter's home in Norwood.

Cort, in turning out for a group of children, an into Rowe's car. Rowe's machine was disabled by the mishap and he persuaded a Dr. Phillips, who was passing, to take the man to the hospital. Dr. Phillips, it is said, did not take the number of the Rowe auto.

Rowe telephoned Prosecutor Wright the particulars of the accident, and promised to be on hand tomorrow night, when the inquest is held.

Cort died of a fractured skull. He was twenty-eight years old and was engaged in the commission business in New York.

BRIBERY TRIAL NOT MOVED.

Elizabeth, Oct. 17.—The indictment found by the May grand jury against Jacob Hagin, former Republican license inspector for the Excise Board and which was set down for trial before Judge Atwater in the Union County Court of Common Pleas yesterday, was not moved and the matter seems to have gone off indefinitely.

Hagin is charged with trying to bribe Democratic Excise Commissioner McLaughlin by offering to pay him $250 to vote for a Polish license application at Elizabeth. It looks now as if the case would probably go over until the January term. Hagin is under $500 bail, furnished by himself.

Fined for Sunday Hunting.

Whitehouse, Oct. 17.—On a charge of Sunday hunting, Rossi Gratti was arrested at Carey's Station, on the High Bridge branch railroad, by Game Warden John J. Park, of Whitehouse Station, and Warden Young, of Chester. The prisoner was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Rarick at Flanders, who fined him $20 and costs. The prisoner paid.

SAVAGE SPORT.

Slapping Game of the Bontoc Igorrotes a Unique Contest.

Every nation has its own idea of sport. That of the wild Igorrotes of northern Luzon used to consist principally of head hunting, a grisly and bloody recreation which the American occupation discouraged. But not all the pastimes of the Igorrotes are as horrible as this. One rather amusing game of which they are fond is thus described by Dean C. Worcester in the National Geographic Magazine:

A constabulary officer tells us that if we want to see a unique contest we must ask for the slapping game of the Bontoc Igorrotes. We want to see all there is going and say so.

A wooden bench is brought out, and two lithe and muscular young men step forward. One of them squats on the bench, grasping his right thigh in his hands so as to tighten the muscles as much as possible.

The other stands beside him and stretches out his right arm. He throws his arm back and then sweeps it forward in a full round arm swing. The blow falls on thin air, close to the tightened thigh muscles of his opponent.

He now swings his arm back again, his whole body turning with it, rises on the toes of his left foot and puts every ounce of strength which he possesses into a blow delivered with the flat of his hand upon the rigid thigh of his opponent. Knots of muscle spring out on his arm, back and legs as he strikes and the blow cracks like a revolver shot.

The recipient endeavors, sometimes with poor success, to preserve an expression of contemptuous indifference. The judges examine his thigh. If the blow has been hard enough blood will show just beneath the skin and he will not have the stisfaction of taking a whack at his opponent, but if this result has not been achieved the other must take his seat on the bench and submit to be smitten.

The contest continues until one succeeds in producing the bloody mark on the other.

DECAY OF THE TEETH.

Lime Starvation the Basic Cause, Says a Chemist.

"The almost universal decay of the teeth is proof positive that our nation is suffering lime starvation," writes a chemistry lecturer in the Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

"Our dentists prescribe tooth washes and tooth pastes, advocate local hygiene, fill cavities and fit bridges, and all this time ignore the fact that the basic cause is lime starvation.

"Dentists will tell you that the sugar you take in your mouth acts directly upon your teeth. Dentists shut their eyes to the evident fact that decay starts first in the pulp beneath the intact enamel and honeycombs the interior tooth until the shell-like bridge of enamel breaks beneath the strain.

"The enamel gives absolute protection against the external attacks of acids and sugar. I have immersed sound teeth for months in a solution of fruit acids and sugar and have been unable to detect any erosion of either the enamel or the pulp.

"When you eat sweetmeats the sugar, with its irresistible affinity for soluble lime, combines with the calcium of the blood, and the blood retaliates by sapping the soluble from the pulp and substance of the teeth. Druggists make use of this affinity of soluble lime for sugar when preparing the official sirup of lime. Lime forms a solution thirty-five times stronger in simple sirup than in the same quantity of water. If you want your children to have sound, white teeth, see that their diet is rich in lime and poor in sugar."

A Fine Savage Custom.

The untutored mind of the Indian or savage often appears strange to us, but there is sometimes reason in what at first sight seems eccentric. A South African tribe has an effectual method of dealing with bores, which might be adopted by western people. This simple tribe considers long speeches injurious both to the orator and his hearers, so to protect both there is an unwritten law that every public orator must stand on one leg only when he is addressing an audience. As soon as he has to place the other leg on the ground his oration is brought to a close.—London Globe.

Generosity.

Patrick worked for a notoriously stingy boss and lost no chance to let the fact be known. Once a waggish friend, wishing to twit him, remarked:

"Pat, I hear your boss just gave you a brand new suit of clothes."

"No," said Pat, "only a par-rt of a suit."

"What part?"

"The sleeves iv the vest."—New York Times.

The One Flaw.

"I suppose you are engaged to the duke?"

"Well, nearly."

"What's the hitch? Awaiting his father's consent?"

"No; he can't marry without a majority favorable report from his creditors."—Kansas City Journal.

Comfortable.

"That fellow looks rather comfortable in spite of the weather."

"Yes; he takes things easy. He's a pickpocket, you know."—New York Times.

A Pessimist.

A pessimist is a person who tells you that what appears to be a silver lining in your cloud is only a low grade of tin foil.—Galveston News.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

YEGGMEN SERVE "SOUP."

Its Queer Recipe Is In Possession of the Secret Service.

Here is a recipe for soup served only after nightfall, preferably in the early morning hours.

"First take about ten or a dozen impwri hz xug, crumble it up fine and put it in a pan or washbowl, then pour over it enough uswhohs (either chhx or inky) to cover it well. Stir it up with your hands, being careful to break all the lumps; leave it set a few minutes; then get a few yards of cheesecloth and tear it in pieces and strain the mixture through the cloth into another vessel, wring the sawdust dry and throw it away. The remains will be the lhai ugx uswhohs mixed. Next take the same amount of water as you used of uswhohs and pour it in; leave the whole set for a few minutes."

This is the "soup" employed by yeggmen, and a single portion of it is guaranteed to open the door of the stoutest safe, provided an aperture can be made sufficiently large to pour in the stuff. The names of the ingredients are written in a crude sort of cipher commonly used for preserving such secrets. This and dozens more of the same transparency of meaning are in the possession of the United States secret service men, the police, detective agencies and others who deal with the cooks of such dishes. By a substitution of letter for letter—the first six for the last six of the alphabet, the second six for the third six, with G and N taken out of turn and made interchangeable—the cipher is easily read. "Impwri hz xug," translated, is "sticks of dan" (short for dynamite). "Uswhohs, either chhx or inky"—alcohol, either wood or pure—may be used.

The directions for serving this soup require considerable attention and the best of trained service. After the "gay cat," or advance agent of the band, has learned all that can be found out about the bank, store or post-office, its lighting, protection and the means of escape by freight train, vehicle or on foot, his companion or companions come on, avoiding notice as far as possible. "Stickups," or lookouts, guard the place while the "inside men" break into the safe. Sealing the cracks about the safe or vault door with soap, the yeggmen pour in the soup through a small hole left open at the top. The liquid flows down by locks, hinges and bolts and is set off by fuse or detonator. Blankets and covers of any kind are used to muffle the sound of the explosion and the fall of the door. Perhaps the "stickups" are forced to create a diversion outside and to frighten the citizens or mislead them while the "inside men" pick out the valuable papers escape. Who pays the check for the soup then depends upon the ingenuity of detectives.—New York Post.

EYE STRAIN.

It Has Many Symptoms and May Affect the Whole System.

Chief among the symptoms of eye strain are watering of the eye, a gluing together of the eyelids on awakening in the morning, headache, the position and character of which vary with each individual. It may be neuralgic or it may be deeply seated, as was the case with Wagner, the musician, who was complaining constantly of "the nerves of his eyes."

The headache is often replaced by an inflammation of the eyelids, especially in young and healthy persons, who also have a little conjunctivitis, with a feeling of tension or fullness in the eyes which may become real pain of a dull aching character, the eyeballs being very tender on pressure.

Sometimes there are vertigo and sickness, with dyspepsia, palpitation and even difficulty in breathing. Sleeplessness is a very frequent symptom, due in part to the excessive flow of blood to the brain and in part to the low tone of the whole nervous system.

The symptoms of eye strain appear sooner in those who lead a confined and sedentary life, who follow occupations which need a constant use of the eyes in bad or unsuitable light and in those who are debilitated from any cause. The symptoms appear later in those of coarser fiber, who pass much of their time in the open air or who follow occupations which do not need a prolonged use of the eyes for close work.—London Lancet.

Odd Bargain of Dumas.

The library of Carpentras possesses among its treasures a curious collection of autographs. One is the signature of Alexandre Dumas pere to an old bargain which he proposed and which was accepted. This strange contract was that the author should present to the library of Cavaillon copies of all his works, those already published and others which he might write in return for a supply of melons to be sent to him as long as he lived.—Westminster Gazette.

The Sperm Whale's Oil Tank.

Professor R. C. Andrews believes that the oil tank in the head of the sperm whale is a provision of nature to save the monster from starvation when food is scarce. He says that his experiments show that the oil from the tank is absorbed by the whale's body at times when adequate food is unobtainable.—London Telegraph.

Anecdotes.

What is an anecdote?

An anecdote is a story of extremely uncertain age that is founded on fiction and embellished by fancy.

After lying dormant for years it is dug up and credited to an entirely innocent and unsuspecting United States senator.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PART I.

CHAPTER I.

It was a quiet night in the Tivoli. At the bar, which ranged along one side of the large chinked-log room, leaned half a dozen men, two of whom were discussing the relative merits of spruce tea and lime juice as remedies for scurvy. They argued with an air of depression and with intervals of morose silence. The other men scarcely heeded them. In a row, against the opposite wall, were the gambling games. The crap table was deserted. One lone man was playing at the faro table. The roulette was not even spinning, and the gamekeeper stood by the roaring, red-hot stove, talking with a young, dark-eyed woman, comely of face and figure, who was known from Juneau to Fort Yukon as the Virgin. Three men sat in at stud poker, but they played with small chips and without enthusiasm, while there were no onlookers. On the floor of the dancing room, which opened out at the rear, three couples were waltzing drearily to the strains of a violin and a piano.

Circle City was not deserted, nor was money tight. The miners were in from Moosehead creek and the other diggings to the west, the summer washing had been good, and the men's pouches were heavy with dust and nuggets. The Klondike had not yet been discovered, nor had the miners of the Yukon learned the possibilities of deep digging and wood-firing. No work was done in the winter, and they made a practice of hibernating in the large camps like Circle City during the long Arctic night. Time was heavy on their hands, their pouches were well filled and the only social diversion to be found was in the saloons. Yet the Tivoli was practically deserted, and the Virgin, standing by the stove, yawned with uncovered mouth and said to Charley Bates:

"If something don't happen soon, I'm goin' to bed. What's the matter with the camp, anyway? Everybody dead?"

Bates did not even trouble to reply, but went on moodily rolling a cigarette. Dan MacDonald, pioneer saloonman and gambler on the upper Yukon, owner and proprietor of the Tivoli and all its games, wandered forlornly across the great vacant space of floor and joined the two at the stove.

"Anybody dead?" the Virgin asked him.

"Looks like it," was the answer.

"Then it must be the whole camp," she said with an air of finality and with another yawn.

MacDonald grinned and nodded, and opened his mouth to speak, when the front door swung open and a man appeared in the light. He would have appeared a large man had not a huge French-Canadian stepped up to him from the bar and gripped his hand.

"Hello, Daylight!" was his greeting. "By Gar, you good for sore eyes!"

"Hello, Louis, when did you-all blow in?" returned the newcomer. "Come up and have a drink and tell us all about Bone creek. Why, dog-gone you-all, shake again. Where's that pardner of yours? I'm looking for him."

Another huge man detached himself from the bar to shake hands. Olaf Henderson and French Louis, partners together on Bone creek, were the two largest men in the country, and though they were but half a head taller than the newcomer, between them he was dwarfed completely.

"Hello, Olaf," said the one called Daylight. "Tomorrow's my birthday. And you, too, Louis. Come up and drink, and I'll tell you-all about it."

The arrival of the newcomer seemed to send a flood of warmth through the place. "It's Burning Daylight," the Virgin cried, the first to recognize him as he came into the light. Charley Bates' tight features relaxed at the sight, and MacDonald went over and joined the three at the bar. With the advent of Burning Daylight the whole place suddenly became brighter and cheerier. The barkeepers were active. Voices were raised. Somebody laughed. And when the fiddler, peering into the front room, remarked to the pianist: "It's Burning Daylight," the waltz time perceptibly quickened, and the dancers, catching the contagion, began to whirl about as if they really enjoyed it. It was known to them of old-time that nothing languished when Burning Daylight was around.

He turned from the bar and saw the woman by the stove and the eager look of welcome she extended him.

"Hello, Virgin, old girl," he called. "Hello, Charley. What's the matter with you-all? Why wear faces like that when coffins only cost three ounces? Come up, you-all, and drink. Come up, you unburied dead, an' name your poison. Come up, everybody. This is my night, and I'm going to live it up. Tomorrow I'm thirty, and then I'll be an old man. It's the last chance I'll have. Are you-all with me? Surge along, boys. Surge along."

In the back room being finished, the three couples, followed by the fiddler and the pianist and heading for the bar, caught Daylight's eye.

"Surge along, you-all!" he cried. "Surge along and name it. This is my night, and it ain't a night that comes frequent. Surge up, you Siwashes and Salmon-eaters. It's my night, I tell you-all—"

"A blamed mangy night," Charley Bates interpolated.

"You're right, my son," Burning Daylight went on, gayly. "A mangy night, but it's my night, you see. I'm the mangy old he-wolf. Listen to me howl."

And howl he did, like a lone gray timber wolf, till the Virgin thrust her pretty fingers in her ears and shivered. A minute later she was whirled away in his arms to the dancing floor, where, along with three other women and their partners, a rollicking Virginia reel was soon in progress.

Few men knew Elam Harnish by any other name than Burning Daylight, the name which had been given him in the early days in the land because of his habit of routing his comrades out of their blankets with the complaint that daylight was burning. Of the pioneers in that far Arctic wilderness, where all men were pioneers, he was reckoned among the oldest. Men like Al Mayo and Jack McQuestion antedated him; but they had entered the land by crossing the Rockies from the Hudson Bay country to the east. He, however, had been the pioneer over the Chilcoot and Chilcat passes. In the spring of 1883, twelve years before, a stripling of eighteen, he had crossed over the Chilcoot with five comrades. In the fall he had crossed back with one. Four had perished by mischance in the bleak, uncharted vastness. And for twelve years Elam Harnish had continued to grope for gold among the shadows of the Circle. Heroes are seldom given to hero-worship, but among those of that land, young as he was, he was accounted an elder hero. In point of time he was before them. In point of deed he was beyond them.

He was a striking figure of a man, of all the men in the Tivoli. Soft-tanned moccasins of moose-hide, beaded in Indian designs, covered his feet. His trousers were ordinary overalls, his coat was made from a blanket. Long-gauntletted leather mittens, lined with wool, hung by his side. They were connected, in the Yukon fashion by a leather thong passed around the neck and across the shoulders. On his head was a fur cap, the ear-flaps raised and the tying-cords dangling. His face, lean and slightly long, with the suggestion of hollows under the cheek bones, seemed almost Indian. The burnt skin and keen dark eyes contributed to this effect, though the bronze of the skin and the eyes themselves were essentially those of a white man. He looked older than thirty, and yet, smooth-shaven and without wrinkles, he was almost boyish. The impression of age was based on no tangible evidence. It came from the abstracter facts of the man, from what he had endured and survived, which was far beyond that of ordinary men. He had lived naked and tensely, and something of all this smoldered in his eyes, vibrated in his voice and seemed forever a whisper on his lips.

It was two in the morning when the dancers, bent on getting something to eat, adjourned the dancing for half an hour. And it was at this moment that Jack Kearns suggested poker. Jack Kearns was a big, bluff-featured man, who, along with Bettles, had made the disastrous attempt to found a post on the head-reaches of the Koyokuk, far inside the Arctic circle. After that Kearns had fallen back on his posts at Forty Mile and Sixty Mile and changed the direction of his ventures by sending out to the states for a small sawmill and a river steamer. Jack Kearns suggested poker. French Louis, Dan MacDonald and Hal Campbell (who had made a strike on Moosehide), all three of whom were not dancing because there were not girls enough to go around, inclined to the suggestion. They were looking for a fifth man when Burning Daylight emerged from the rear room, the Virgin on his arm, the train of dancers in his wake. In response to the hail of the poker-players, he came over to their table in the corner.

"Want to sit in," said Campbell. "How's your luck?"

"I sure got it tonight," Burning Daylight answered with enthusiasm, and at the same time felt the Virgin press his arm warningly. She wanted him for the dancing. "I sure got my luck with me, but I'd sooner dance. I ain't hankerin' to take the money away from you-all."

Nobody urged. They took his refusal as final, and the Virgin was pressing his arm to turn him away in pursuit of the supper-seekers, when he experienced a change of heart. It was not that he did not want to dance, nor that he wanted to hurt her; but that insistent pressure on his arm put his free man-nature in revolt. The thought in his mind was that he did not want any woman running him. Himself a favorite with women, nevertheless they did not bulk big with him. They were toys, playthings, part of the relaxation from the bigger game of life. He met women along with the whisky and gambling, and from observation he had found that it was far easier to break away from the drink and the cards than from a woman once the man was properly entangled. He resisted the pull on his arm by the mere negative mass of him, and said:

"I sort of feel a hankering to give you-all a flutter."

Tact and sympathy strove with him, and he smiled with his eyes into the Virgin's eyes as he said:

"You-all go and get some grub. I ain't hungry. And we'll dance some more by and by. The night's young yet. Go it, old girl."

He released his arm and thrust her playfully on the shoulder, at the same time turning to the poker players.

"Take off the limit and I'll go you-all."

"Limit's the roof," said Jack Kearns.

Once started, it was a quiet game, with little or no conversation, though all about the players the place was a-roar. Elam Harnish had ignited the spark. More and more miners dropped in to the Tivoli and remained. When Burning Daylight went on the tear, no man cared to miss it. The dancing floor was full. The luck at the table varied monotonously, no big hands being out. As a result, high play went on with small hands, though no play lasted long. But at three in the morning the big combination of hands arrived. It was the moment of moments that men wait weeks for in a poker game. The news of it tingled over the Tivoli. The onlookers became quiet. The men farther away ceased talking and moved over to the table. The players deserted the other games, and the dancing-floor was forsaken, so that all stood at last, fivescore and more in a compact and silent group, around the poker table. The high betting went on, with the draw not in sight. Kearns had dealt, and French Louis had opened the pot with one marker—in his case one hundred dollars. Campbell had merely "seen" it, but Elam Harnish, coming next, had tossed in five hundred dollars, with the remark to MacDonald that he was letting him in easy. MacDonald glancing again at his hand, put in a thousand in markers. Kearns, debating a long time over his hand, finally "saw." It then cost French Louis nine hundred to remain in the game, which he contributed after a similar debate. It cost Campbell likewise nine hundred to remain and draw cards, but to the surprise of all he saw the nine hundred and raised another thousand.

"You-all are on the grade at last," Harnish remarked, as he saw the fifteen hundred and raised a thousand in turn. "Helen Breakfast's sure on top this divide, and you-all had best look out for bustin' harness."

"Me for that same lady," accompanied MacDonald's markers for two thousand and for an additional thousand-dollar raise.

"I ain't got no more markers," Kearns remarked plaintively. "We'd best begin I. O. U.'s."

"Glad you're going to stay," was MacDonald's cordial response.

"I ain't stayed yet. I've got a thousand in already. How's it stand now?"

"It'll cost you three thousand for a look in, but nobody will stop you from raising."

"Raise—h—l. You must think I got a pat like yourself." Kearns looked at his hand. "But I'll tell you what I'll do, Mac. I've got a hunch, and I'll just see that three thousand."

He wrote the sum on a slip of paper, signed his name, and consigned it to the center of the table.

French Louis became the focus of all eyes. He fingered his cards nervously for a pace. Then, with a "By Gar! Ah got not one leetle beet hunch," he regretfully tossed his hand into the discards.

The next moment the hundred and odd pairs of eyes shifted to Campbell.

"I won't hump you, Jack," he said, contenting himself with calling the requisite two thousand.

The eyes shifted to Harnish, who scribbled on a piece of paper and shoved it forward.

"I'll just let you-all know this ain't no Sunday school society of philanthropy," he said. "I see you, Jack, and I raise you a thousand. Here's where you-all get action on your pat, Mac."

"Action's what I fatten on, and I lift another thousand," was MacDonald's rejoinder. "Still got that hunch, Jack?"

"I still got that hunch." Kearns fingered his cards a long time. "And I'll play it, but you've got to know how I stand. There's my steamer, the Bella—worth twenty thousand if she's worth an ounce. There's Sixty-Mile with five thousand in stock on the shelves. And you know I got a sawmill coming in. It's at Linderman now, and the scow is building. Am I good?"

"Dig in; you're sure good," was Daylight's answer. "And while we're about it, I may mention casual that I got twenty thousand in Mac's safe, there, and there's twenty thousand more in the ground on Moosehide. You know the ground, Campbell. Is they that-all in the dirt?"

"There sure is, Daylight."

"How much does it cost now?" Kearns asked.

"Two thousand to see."

"We'll sure hump you if you-all come in," Daylight warned him.

"It's an almighty good hunch," Kearns said, adding his slip to the growing heap. "I can feel her crawlin' up and down my back."

"We'll Dance Some More By and By. The Night's Young Yet."

"I ain't got a hunch, but I got a tolerable good hand," Campbell announced, as he slid in his slip; "but it's not a raising hand."

"Mine is," Daylight paused and wrote. "I see that thousand and raise her the same old thousand."

The Virgin, standing behind him, then did what a man's best friend was not privileged to do. Reaching over Daylight's shoulder, she picked up his hand and read it, at the same time shielding the faces of the cards close to his chest. What she saw were three queens and a pair of eights, but nobobdy guessed what she saw. Every player's eyes were on her face as she scanned the cards, but no sign did she give. She laid the hand face down again on the table and slowly the lingering eyes withdrew from her, having learned nothing.

MacDonald smiled benevolently. "I see you, Daylight, and I hump this time for two thousand. How's that hunch, Jack?"

"Still a-crawling, Mac. You got me now, but that hunch is a rip-snorter persuadin' sort of a critter, and it's my plain duty to ride it. I call for three thousand. And I got another hunch; Daylight's going to call, too."

"He sure is," Daylight agreed, after Campbell had thrown up his hand. "He knows when he's up against it, and he plays accordin'. I see that two thousand, and then I'll see the draw."

In a dead silence, save for the low voices of the three players, the draw was made. Thirty-four thousand dollars were already in the pot, and the play possibly not half over. To the Virgin's amazement, Daylight held up his three queens, discarding his eights and calling for two cards. And this time not even she dared look at what he had drawn. She knew her limit of control. Nor did he look. The two new cards lay face down on the table where they had been dealt to him.

"Got enough," was the reply.

"You can draw if you want to, you know," Kearns warned him.

"Nope; this'll do me."

Kearns himself drew two cards, but did not look at them. Still Harnish let his cards lie.

"I never bet in the teeth of a pat hand," he said slowly, looking at the saloon keeper. "You-all start her rolling, Mac."

MacDonald counted his cards carefully, to make doubly sure it was not a foul hand, wrote a sum on a paper slip, and slid it into the pot, with the simple utterance:

"Five thousand."

Kearns, with every eye upon him, looked at his two-card draw, counted the other three to dispel any doubt of holding more than five cards, and wrote on a betting slip.

"I see you, Mac," he said, "and I raise her a little thousand just so as to keep Daylight out."

The concentrated gaze shifted to Daylight. He likewise examined his draw and counted his five cards.

"I see that six thousand, and I raise her five thousand . . . just to try and keep you out, Jack."

"And I raise you five thousand just to lend a hand at keeping Jack out," MacDonald said in turn.

His voice was slightly husky and strained, and a nervous twitch in the corner of his mouth followed speech.

Kearns was pale, and those who looked on noted that his hand trembled as he wrote his slip. But his voice was unchanged.

MAY A ROOSTER CROW? ASK HERBERT BUXTON

J. M. Nicholson, whose business address is in Boston, being associated with the Westinghouse Machine Company, sent the following letter to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting last night:

"Gentlemen: An evening spent in the vicinity of Clinton avenue and West Third street will show the wisdom of the Quincy resolution. I live in that section about two nights a week and with the exception of dog noises its a good place to live."

Acompanying the letter was a clipping from a newspaper under the caption: "Dogs Can't Bark—Legally—in Quincy." The article reads:

"A dog can't bark in Quincy hereafter—not legally—though a rooster may crow. The Quincy City Council has passed an ordinance taking effect today, that no person shall keep a dog that howls, barks or bites, to the disturbance of neighbors, under penalty of a fine not to exceed $10."

The above correspondence caused considerable amusement among the members of the Council, and especially so when Mr. Holt called particular attention to the words "though a rooster may crow," and suggested that the matter be referred to Mr. Buxton.

INSTRUCT POSTMASTER ON P.O. SAVINGS BANK

Preparations for opening the postal bank at the local postoffice October 21 are fast nearing completion. One of the department inspectors was in town yesterday and gave Postmaster Bird and William B. Sharp, who will have charge of the banking branch, their final instructions about opening the accounts, filling in the different blanks and reports and filing the depositors identification slips.

Another window has been cut through the partition behind which the clerks work and the cashier's cage set in position. The filing cabinets are expected in a few days and then all will be in readiness for handling the new business. When opening an account the depositor must fill in answers to a number of questions and receives a card which in reality is a certificate of deposit. This is in an envelope on which the depositor's number is stamped. When making other deposits this envelope must always be presented, thus facilitating locating the proper amount through the number. Otherwise considerable time would be consumed going through the files alphabetically.

A rush is expected Saturday by those who want the distinction of opening the first account although no large amount in deposits is looked for.

TUESDAY, OCT. 24.

If you are not registered you cannot vote on Election Day. The last day to register will be next Tuesday. Personal registration is mandatory under the new law.

FIRST OPINION GIVEN BY NEW CITY COUNSEL

Corporation Counsel William M. Stillman sent his first communication to the Common Council, as a city official, at the adjourned meeting, last night, it being an opinion regarding the request of property-owners on West Third street to establish the building line between Spooner and Grant avenues. Mr. Holt reported back the petition from the property owners and presented the following communication from Mr. Stillman:

"I am of the opinion that the city has no authority to establish the building line and can find no law permitting it. The property owners should get together and by mutual agreement, by deed, establish the line they wish, but the city could not help them. It would be taking private property without compensation.

"The city could widen the street to the point of such building line and state that the walk be so wide and the curb line at such a point, but this course, if pursued must be done in the usual manner by ordinance, the appointment of commissioners, assessment of damages, benefits, etc."

WIN MIXED DOUBLES IN P.H.S. TOURNAMENT

Miss Jessie Stewart and Jack Zerega won the mixed doubles championship in the P. H. S. tennis tournament yesterday afternoon by defeating Miss Esther Phillips and Allen Doggett in the final round after a match of three sets. The match in boys' doubles and girls' singles are to be played this afternoon on the school court.

Miss Phillips and Allen Doggett took the first set by their strong net playing. The winners took a great many chances in this set and lost points by trying strong strokes and continual slamming which went outside or into the net. The set ended with a score of 4-6. The winners played a steady game in the second and third sets and kept their opponents on the jump by their careful placing. The sun was also in their favor in the second set and they took two short sets by scores of 6-2, 6-2.

PICK BLATZ CAPTAIN OF ELKS' PIN KNIGHTS

The first tryout of candidates to represent Plainfield Lodge, 885, B. P. O. E., in the Elks bowling league was held last night on Walters' alleys on Second street. There were not as many present as expected, especially as it was intended to elect a captain. Francis J. Blatz was the selection of those present although he accepted the honor reluctantly and may give way to the choice of a larger representation.

It is the purpose of the committee in charge of this feature of the order to select ten men. This will give a reserve of five aside from the team, thus making it possible at all times to place a full team for all games. The reserve can also be used in practice games with the regulars, it being intended to have the team practise at least one night a week. As the league does not open until November 7, the committee feels that there is plenty of time yet to complete its plans.

HINDUISM AND WOMEN MRS. RANDOLPH'S TOPIC

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church has selected as a textbook for the year's study, "The Light of the World," by Robert Speer, in which the Christian and ethnic religions are contrasted. The first paper of the season was presented by Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph on "Hinduism and Woman," at the meeting held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. A comparison of the occidental mind with the Oriental mind formed the preface of the paper. Mrs. Randolph said the western mind was formed and guided by reason; the eastern mind was addicted to contemplation. In India, she said, the far away, mystical contemplation of a Supreme Being had given birth to awe and fear, but not to love and trust. She described in an interesting manner the Brahman and Buddist faith, both religions marked by an absence of a true sense of human responsibility to a Divine Father. The caste distinctions were spoken of as the core and essence of the Hindu religion, holding Hindu society under irrevocable laws and customs through unknown ages.

A feature of this immutable condition, given by Mrs. Randolph was the part woman had been compelled to perform. Life to her has been a perpetual hardship. Her position has been not only one of dependence but servitude. In conclusion, she said: "The only hope for India and for the success of the Christian propaganda in India is the exemplification of such simplicity, purety, and high mindedness as characterized the life and teaching of our Lord when he walked among men."

A devotional service led by Mrs. Charles E. Nash, preceded the paper.

A telegram from the society in connection with the Woman's Home Missionary Society was sent Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss congratulating them on the anniversary of their golden wedding which they were celebrating on this date at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Caperton, Charleston, West Virginia.

A third speech will be given by the Executive at Mount Bethel at 10:55 and from there the party goes to Basking Ridge and Bernardsville. Somerville, Bound Brook and other places are to be visited during the day.

All-Day Missionary Meeting.

The women of the Park Avenue Baptist church will hold an all-day sewing and missionary meeting at the church tomorrow. At 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon there will be devotional exercises with interesting papers on missions. All of the women of the church and others interested are invited.

TENNIS CHAMPIONS

Miss Pauline Gates Wins Girls' Singles in High School Tournament.

RECEIVES A SILVER CUP.

Stanley Bellows and Philip VanDeventer Capture the Boys' Doubles—Bronze Medals for Victorious Team.

The Plainfield High School tennis tournament was concluded yesterday afternoon with the final matches in girls' singles and boys' doubles. Miss Pauline Gates won the girls' singles championship and will be presented with a silver cup. Philip Van Deventer and Stanley Bellows won the boys' doubles. Both will be awarded bronze medals. The runners-up in all matches received the tennis balls used in the final round.

Miss Pauline Gates won the deciding match in the girls' singles after a long match of true, evenly played sets. Miss Clara Newman, winner of the girls' singles' championship in last year's tournament, was her opponent. Miss Gates clinched the first set by her superior playing, keeping her opponent back from the net. The score was 6-4. Miss Neuman outplayed the winner by her better stroke in the second set, winning after fourteen hard games by a score of 8-6. The third set was merely a matter of endurance, going to the winner by a score of 6-4.

The result of the match in the boys' doubles was no surprise as Philip Van Deventer and Stanley Bellows were considered the fastest team in the school. They beat Dixon Phillips and Warren Butler in the first three sets out of the required five for a match. Van Deventer and Bellows reached the finals by defeating Allen Doggett and Inon White yesterday afternoon in the semi-finals by a score of 6-3, 8-6.

The winners in the final match easily took the first set by a score of 6-2. Both VanDeventer and Bellows have an assortment of strong strokes and a stinging cut serve. They lobbed continually in the second set, keeping their opponents in the back court and always on the jump. This set went to the winners by a score of 6-4. In the last set Butler and Phillips had the upper hand for a while, running up a score of 6-5, but the winners took the next three games in succession by their steady playing by a score of 8-6.

WAS KNOWN TO ALL

Death of Omer C. Moore Removes a Most Familiar Figure.

WAS A FAITHFUL FRIEND.

His Quaint Ways and Witty Sayings Led to Famous Association Stories—Funeral Tomorrow Night.

The death of Omer C. Moore, which occurred early yesterday afternoon at his home on Manning avenue, removes from the city one of its best known yet most unassuming personages. The end came after a two months' illness from a chronic stomach trouble and news of his demise was received with genuine expressions of sympathy. Those who knew him personally realized that a faithful old friend had gone to his reward, while others appreciated the fact through hearsay from the ones who counted themselves within his immediate circle.

Mr. Moore was born in New Hampshire sixty-seven years ago, the youngest in a family of several children. His father was a prosperous merchant who moved to Washington during the war. At his death soon after the close of the Rebillion, an older son took up his business but reverses came and the family suffered financial reverses. Some of the members returned to New Hampshire while others located elsewhere.

Omer Moore learned electrical engineering and for many years followed it successfully. At one time he was in charge of the power plant of the Grant Central station in New York. Failing health caused him to give up the work and in 1887 he removed to Plainfield. He entered the employ of Woolston & Buckle twenty years ago, remaining with the firm until his death. He was considered one of the most faithful workmen ever connected with the concern. In recent years he had been driver of one of its wagons and his method of urging the horse along was as familiar as the yellow-geared rig itself.

Probably the means by which Mr. Moore's name and personality became known throughout Plainfield and vicinity was a series of weekly stories written ten years ago on the "Omer C. Moore Association," and published in a local paper. Rev. Francis E. Whiteside, then a reporter, was the author. There really was no such organization but the humorous way in which its supposed meetings were described caused many a hearty laugh. Mr. Moore's own sayings and witty epigrams were embodied in the narrations, adding not a little to their breeziness. It was believed, and still is, by many that the association was a bona fide affair.

Mr. Moore did not figure in public affairs or belong to any fraternal orders. He is survived by his wife, one sister, Mrs. L. M. Frazier, of Washington, and a brother, Arthur Moore, of Bradford, N. H. The funeral will be held at his late home tomorrow night at 8 o'clock and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

EXPLOSION OF GAS; P.S.C. EMPLOYE HURT

While doing some repair work on the gas pipes in Robert Murray's store on West Front street this morning, B. D. Howell, an employe of the P. S. C., was badly burned about the face and hands by an explosion. The force of the combustion caused a loud report and the woodwork caught fire.

The injured man was taken into Nagle's drug store next door where his wounds were swathed in oil-soaked cotton, after which he was removed to his home on Watchung avenue in one of the company's wagons.

There were several customers in the store at the time the explosion happened and they assistd Mr. Murray in dousing the flames, thus preventing what might have resulted in a serious blaze.

PATRICK O'BRIEN GETS $200 FOR INJURIES.

A jury in the Circuit Court at Elizabeth yesterday gave Patrick O'Brien, of this city, a verdict for $200 against the F. L. C. Martin Auto Co., on a damage suit for $10,000. The action grew out of an accident to O'Brien, who, while riding a bicycle, was struck by one of the automobile firm's machines at Park avenue and West Eighth street in June, 1909. John Dorgan was driving the car and testified that the accident was unavoidable. Mayor G. W. V. Moy represented O'Brien.

PLANNING TAG DAY

Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis League Trustees Scheme to Raise Fund.

ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18.

President William S. Tyler to Appoint Committees Which Will Be Headed By H. M. Maxson and Joseph W. Gavett.

The trustees of the Anti-Tuberculosis League in special session last night decided to hold a tag day for the benefit of the league on Saturday, November 18. In view of the financial difficulty in which the society finds itself, this seems to be the only plan promising adequate and speedy assistance.

Plans are already on foot to make this the biggest, best-organized tag day ever seen in the State, the league officers say. The committee, which William S. Tyler, the president, will shortly appoint is to organize a regular army, under generals, lieutenants and captains down to privates, who will be children, children not too young, and of a perfectly reliable character, well known to the committeemen in charge. The personnel of this committee is already assured, through the acceptance to serve of two citizens who are perhaps well acquainted with the youth of the city. These are Henry M. Maxson and Joseph W. Gavett.

The league officers today issued this statement:

"It is hoped that everyone in Plainfield who has the good of the community at heart will help the league in this plan, for unless immediate financial support is secured, it seems impossible to carry on the two-fold work of the league. The relief work is very expensive, fully $350 a month. But the camp for eight patients has been such a success that no one who has watched the women and children there get well and strong, can face with equanimity the possibility of closing those doors to health and happiness. If the county sanatarium were underway, the feeling might be different, but in view of the fact that the county cannot be prepared to care for its tubercular poor this year, the league is determined to provide for the Plainfield quota, if this is humanly possible.

"The other feature of the league which is educational, also needs support, for it is the only hope of those who are in a position to contract tuberculosis but who, with the information which the league paper, 'The White Crusader' freely scatters, remain safe and happy.

"Remember November 18, the Anti-Tuberculosis Tag Day. Tag tuberculosis and put it out of Plainfield."

FANS FIGHT FOR PAPER, SMASH WINDOW GLASS

A struggle between Fred Young and Louis McDermott, last night, to secure an evening paper to see the baseball score, resulted in McDermott being pushed through a plate glass window of Stites' poolroom on Somerset street, in front of which place the scuffle occurred. The young men were arrested by Patrolman Vanderweg and Detective Sergeant Flynn along with William James and Percy Diehl who were present when the accident occurred.

When arraigned in the city court before Judge William G. DeMeza this morning, McDermott and Young said that the glass had been shattered by them and that they stood ready to have it replaced. There was such a difference between the value put on it, however, that Judge DeMeza put the case over until tomorrow morning to give the police time to ascertain the cost of another glass. The one broken had been cracked in several places and was held together by patent buttons. Elston M. French is the owner of the building.

RAYMOND MILLER WEDS MISS VAN HORNE

Miss Adah M. Van Horne, of Grove street, daughter of the late John and Sarah Van Horne, and Raymond E. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse S. Miller, of Almont place, were married last night at the home of the groom's parents. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by Rev. C. C. Caine, pastor of Grace M. E. church, and was of an informal nature. Forty relatives of the two families were in attendance, coming from New York, Brooklyn, Elizabeth, Hackettstown and Newark, as well as the city and borough.

Miss Van Horne was given away by her uncle, Edward Schooley, of Elizabeth. She wore a gown of navy blue satin with a touch of grass green trimmings, and carried white chrysanthemums. She was unattended. Benjamin Schenck, of North Plainfield, an intimate friend of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Lester Conklin, of Brooklyn, Floyd Miller, a brother of the groom, and Elliott Taylor, of Plainfield. The wedding march was played by Miss Edna Schooley, of Elizabeth. Decorations of autumnal foliage, chrysanthemums and dahlias were tastefully arranged in the parlor and dining room.

The ceremony was followed by a wedding supper and reception after which Mr. and Mrs. Miller took their departure for a wedding trip. At its conclusion they will make their home at 90 Grandview avenue. Both bride and groom have been active workers in Grace M. E. church and have a host of friends in both city and borough, a fact attested by a wealth of presents received. The assortment included silverware, cut glass, bric-a-brac and furniture. Mr. Miller is an auditor in the New York offices of a large insurance firm.

PLAINFIELD FANS SEE GIANTS BITE THE DUST.

There was a large crowd from this city at the Polo grounds in New York yesterday when the Giants were defeated by the Athletics and two of the fans, Edward Laing and Chauncey Stout, were in line with the home run drive by John Franklin Baker in the ninth which aside from tieing the score severely bruised the side of a woman's head. The woman occupied a seat a few feet away from those occupied by Mr. Laing and Mr. Stout and as the ball came soaring towards them they noticed that she did not appear to be watching it.

Everybody in the nearby seats began to dodge and the woman could have avoided being hit had she followed suit. The ball struck her on the side of the head, knocking off her hat and glasses. She did not entirely loose consciousness and several other women hurried to her side. In a few moments she was all right. She refused to give her name to those asking it.

Sale for Worthy Cause.

A sale of home-made cakes and candy, ice cream, aprons and fancy articles will be held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, 51 Westervelt avenue. It will commence at 2 o'clock and continue until evening. The affair will be under the auspices of ten local women who, for several years, have aided in the care of a blind woman. The proceeds will be used to supply various small needs that add greatly to her comfort and it is hoped there will be a large attendance. A general invitation is extended.

Sesame to Meet.

The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. LeRoy Gates, 826 First place.

MISS PIERSON WED

She Became Mrs. David Napier Mauger at a Home Wedding.

REV. G. W. GARDNER OFFICIATED

Miss Helen Pierson, Sister of Bride, Maid of Honor, and James Mauger Best Man—Beautiful Floral Decorations.

Miss Marion E. Pierson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pierson, of 1138 Myrtle avenue, and David Napier Mauger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Mauger, of West Seventh street, were married at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. George Willis Gardner, formerly pastor of Grace M. E. church but now of Jersey City, officiated, the ceremony taking place beneath a bower of chrysanthemums.

The bride wore a gown of crepe meteor, trimmed with rose point and duchess lace, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her only ornament was a lavalliere, a gift of the bridegroom. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Pierson, as maid of honor, who wore a gown of white marquisette over yellow messaline, and her bridemaids were Miss Ruth Hayward Mauger, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Raymond Smith, whose gowns were of yellow crepe. They wore beaded bands on their heads. Miss Mildred McCutcheon, of Summit, a cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

James Mauger, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and the ushers were Carleton Condit Perrine, of East Orange, and Prescott Wiske, of Paterson. Following the ceremony a reception was held and supper was served. The wedding march was rendered by Charles Suhr's Imperial Orchestra, which also furnished the music for the reception.

The bride is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, and is a favorite in a large circle of acquaintances. The bridegroom was graduated from Stevens Institute in the Class of '10 and was prominent in athletics and musical affairs while in college.

The decorations at the house were elaborate and were furnished by Stanley, Plainfield's florist. They consisted of a floral bower made of lattice work and arched with autumn foliage and Southern smilax heavily banked with palms, white and yellow chrysanthemums. The front of the lattice was trimmed with yellow and white chrysanthemums with electric lights interspersed with mantle of yellow and white chrysanthemums.

In the dining room and reception room there was smilax and pink and white roses. The piazza was enclosed and trimmed with autumn foliage and yellow and white flowers. The maid of honor carried an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums tied with yellow ribbon. The bridegroom wore a boutonniere of lilies-of-the-valley and the ushers wore white roses.

There were about 150 guests at the wedding and reception from all parts, including California, New York, Brooklyn, Newburg, Boston, Schnectady, Summit, East Orange and this city, and among them were Mrs. Pierson's mother, Mrs. Abram Baker and her sister, Miss Louise Baker, of Pasadena, Cal. After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Plainfield.

This is according to the rules governing the series which is to the effect that the teams will remain in the town where the postponement takes place, thus requiring the games to be played alternately between the two cities, as scheduled.

He was assisted to the office of Dr. Platt, where the injury was dressed. It is believed the toe can be saved unless complications develop.

Borough Collector Charles Sheelen found out several days ago that he is out about $40 worth of hay, which was stored in the barn on the Bellamy property. Mr. Sheelen has charge of the property and each year cuts the hay and stores it in the barn. Someone has been helping themselves to this year's crop by the wagon load. It is needless to say that they have got their last load.

REVELATION IN FRUIT PROMISED IN JERSEY.

Freehold, Oct. 18.—Horticulturists of the State plan to show the public that New Jersey can and does produce the best apples and other small fruits grown in America, when the State Horticultural Society holds is annual meeting in the convention hall here on December 12 and 13. An apple show will be held in connection with the business session, which, it is proclaimed, will open the eyes of Jerseymen themselves to what scientific cultivation and care has done for the orchardists.

The Horticultural Society will depart from a custom of holding its annual session in the State house at Trenton, because of lack of room for the proper display of fruit. The great floor area in the hall here will also permit the opening of a big orchard machinery exhibit.

Secretary Howard G. Taylor, of Riverton, who has sent out notices of the next meeting, laments the fact that the horticulturists were unable to get the use of the big State armory at Trenton.

"The armory at Trenton should be available for all such gatherings, free of charge," said Secretary Taylor. "The building certainly cost the taxpayers enough for it to be put to some other purposes than for use as a drillroom and social club."

WILL NOW GIVE CHURCH CHANCE TO RUN THINGS.

Asbury Park, Oct. 18.—Rev. Dr. Marshall V. McDuffie, who had a tilt with a section of the First Baptist church, of which he is pastor, left yesterday on his annual vacation. Before going away Dr. McDuffie issued a statement in which he called attention to the fact that at the close of five years' service as pastor he is filled with gratitude that the church is $20,000 better off than it was when he came here and that during his pastorate 110 additions have been made to the church membership. He says the church not only has a larger congregation, a new edifice, a $5,000 organ and a larger Sunday-school, but has more workers in all the departments. He says all this was procured and brought about by his having his own way and that hereafter he is going to let the congregation have their way and see if things will turn out better.

There will be no meeting of the advisory board until Dr. McDuffie's return and no call for a congregational meeting will issue. Dr. McDuffie claims the so-called dissension in the First Baptist church is confined to a few families and is practically dead.

NEED NOT GIVE AGE WHEN YOU REGISTER

That the section of the Geran election law which says that the persons who register are required to give their ages has caused a great falling off in the registration seems to be an established fact. It is also true that many voters will not register because of the nature of the questions which they believe are asked. As a matter of fact there are no questions on the registry blanks that are personal with the exception of that of the age and, in many cases, this one works hardship to the person who is to register. In the case of many railroad men, civil service employes and others, who are retired from their position when a certain age is reached, this provision is apt to bring hardship, for many men above the age limit are perfectly competent to hold their positions for many years to come.

The law states that the person registering shall give his age, but as far as can be learned from some of the most prominent attorneys in this city, there is nothing which can compel him to do so if he does not want to. All he is required to state, say these attorneys, is that he is over 21 years old and that he has lived in the State for at least one year and in the county for five months.

"If anybody has any objection to telling how old he is, I believe he is entitled to say that he is over 21 and that he has complied with the election law in regard to residence in the State and in the county," said one of these attorneys today. "As long as he is entitled by age and residence to vote, I do not see how he can be compelled to tell his age if he has any objections to doing so."

On the other hand there has been a great deal of joking about the number and kind of questions that are asked of the person registering and a wrong impression has sprung up which undoubtedly has kept many voters from registering. The questions are all put for the purpose of identification and to protect the interests of the voter himself against the fraudulent use of his name on Election Day.

There are fourteen columns on the registry books and they are divided as follows:

In the first column is entered a number opposite the name of each person enrolled; in the second is the surname of the person; in the third, the Christian name or names; in the fourth, the residence number or other designation; in the fifth, the name of the street or avenue of such residence or a brief description of the locality thereof; in the sixth, the number of the floor or room occupied by the voter at the residence given by him; in the seventh, the full name of the householder, tenant, sub-tenant or apartment lessee with whom the voter resides; in the eighth, his age; in the ninth, his length of residence by years in this State; in the tenth, the country of his nativity, which means the country, state or province of the voter's birth, irrespective of former political allegiance; in the eleventh, the name of the municipality from which the person last registered or voted; in the twelfth, the person's business or employment, and in the thirteenth, the street and number of business or employment. If the person is unemployed he must give the address and name of his last business or employment. The fourteenth column is for the signature of the voter.

This is a complete list of the questions asked by the registry board and it may be seen that they are for the purpose of identification solely.

It is doubtful if the person who registers can be compelled to state his age, but so far no judicial decision has been made on the question because it has not been raised in the courts. It is probable that this question will be modified during the coming session of the Legislature to make it read that a person is required to state only that he is 21 years or over and that his residence in the State and county entitles him to a vote. The Governor has power, granted at the time the Geran law was passed, to appoint a commission to codify and simplify the law and change any inconsistencies or other bad features that may be found and it is probable that this will be done at the coming legislative session.

GRAND JURY HEARS OF NEWPAPER BOYCOTT

In the matter of the alleged boycott of James B. Furber, publisher of the Rahway News Herald, by members of the Common Council, firemen and merchants, twenty-nine of Rahway's best known men appeared before the Grand Jury at Elizabeth Monday afternoon, in response to subpoenas served on Saturday. The alleged boycott is declared to be the result of an attack on the firemen in the columns of the News Herald, following the fire at the Royal Manufacturing Company's plant, on May 30, which attacks, it is asserted, have been kept up unceasingly to the present time. Mr. Furber declares that several merchants withdrew their advertisements from the News Herald under pressure brought by the firemen.

Business men assert that the results of their advertisements did not pay them and they withdrew purely on business principles. Nine of the councilmen are included because they voted to take the city printing away from the News Herald and made the New Jersey Advocate the city's official newspaper.

Of those summoned Monday only five were called into the jury room, Excise Commissioner Julius Adler, Freeholder Adolph Greuner, Councilman Charles W. Bostwick, James C. McCullen and Sidney Harris. The waiting twenty-four were excused. It is reported that the complaint was thrown out by the Grand Jury.

Those subpoenaed were Councilmen Stewart Moffett, George W. Manderville, Hugh Roarke, David Armstrong, Charles W. Ludlow, Charles W. Bostwick, Richard F. Cross, David H. Trembly and Robert Walker. Others were Freeholder Adolph H. Greuner, Excise Commissioner Julius Adler, James McCullen, William M. Davis, Sidney Harris, Albert Yorke, Taylor Hagerman, Samuel Miller, Barney Engelman, George McIntyre, S. A. Harned, J. Frank Way, A. T. Crane, Jr., H. Robinson, B. Wimmer, William Phillipp, F. H. Trussler, H. V. Meinzer and Nathan Pollack.

DOWNTOWN REPUBLICANS TO HEAR EX-GOVERNOR.

Former Governor J. Franklin Fort has accepted the invitation extended to him by the Downtown Republican Club, of Elizabeth, to speak at a meeting of the club, which is to be held either Monday or Tuesday of next week. The invitation was sent to him early last week but, owing to his absence he was unable to reply before today.

Other speakers at the meeting will be former Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, and candidates on the county and city ticket. It is expected the announcement that former Governor Fort will be the principal speaker of the evening will bring out a large attendance.

WHOLE CITY MOURNS FOR DEAD INSTRUCTOR.

Phillipsburg, Oct. 18.—This city paid a high tribute to the memory of Miss Emeline Lomason, the victim of an automobile accident, whose funeral was held yesterday afternoon. The public schools were closed for the afternoon and hundreds of pupils and teachers viewed the body of the former teacher at the residence of her cousin, John Eilenberg, and at the First Presbyterian church.

The flags on all of the school building were at half-mast, and the esteem in which the retired teacher was held was shown by the wealth of floral tributes which poured into the Eilenberg home.

Miss Lomason was an instructor in the public schools for nearly forty years, and her death soon after being retired on a pension cast a gloom over the entire community.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., October 18, 1911.

Governor Wilson will be here tomorrow night. He'll be in Princeton in 1913.

It's too bad for Johnny Baker that the Quaker City mayoralty primary was not postponed a week or two.

How the mighty have fallen. In order to obtain publicity, notice of Roosevelt's next speech is given in the amusement columns of the New York papers.

An Elizabeth paper devotes a column to James E. Martine's prediction that the Democrats will win the campaign. Our aeronautics editor says it's good stuff for his department.

SAY GUNNING SEASON SHOULD BE TIP-TOP

Hunters in Toms River are awaiting with interest the opening of the upland gunning season on November 1. This day will be Wednesday, and, accordingly, will be the first day of the deer hunting season, deer being hunted each Wednesday during the month. It is claimed that there are now more deer in South Jersey than there have been before in 75 years. Automobilists along the main shore road this summer have frequently seen them, and they would stand and watch the cars go past, and then bound off into the woods, they were so tame.

Rabbit and quail are also reported as plentiful. The past summer is said to have been particularly favorable for game of the smaller varieties. The Hungarian pheasants put out by the State last spring have bred well and largely increased in numbers, and have kept around the spots where they were released, differing in this from the ring nicked pheasant. The State spent a great deal of money stocking woods with the ring necks, which migrated no one knows where.

The wild water fowl are settling in clouds on Barnegat Bay. In the upper bay are huge flocks of crow ducks, redheads and broadbills. Around the inlet the brant are coming in, and the broadtails and redheads are also in big flocks along with the black ducks. The season is still closed, and they are undisturbed, except by the poachers, who go after them at night occasionally. The favorite method of the illegal ducker is to set gill nets where they feed, and when the birds dive deep after wild celery or other roots there will be a certain number of them get their heads caught in the meshes of the nets and drown.

Funeral of Miss Ford.

The funeral of Miss Caroline N. Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ford, was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of the mother, Mrs. Virginia Ford, on Richmond street, and was largely attended. Rev. E. E. Jackson, former pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, Rev. Dr. M. W. Vaughn, the present pastor, and Rev. F. D. Tildon, of Bethel chapel, conducted the service. There were many floral tributes. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Plan for Complete Registry.

The Union County Democartic Committee met at Elizabeth last night to discuss ways and means for securing a complete registration of Democratic voters in the county. It was decided to follow the plan adopted by the Republicans, that is, send out a copy of the list of questions which voteres are required to answer when registering.

Boys Form Athletic League.

The boys of the Westfield Methodist church have formed an athletic league, dividing the lads into two classes. As soon as the organization is completed they will be ready for dates with other church organizations.

High Ball Celebration.

While observing the victory of the Athletics over the Giants in New York yesterday afternoon, John Bishop, of Manson place, imbibed too freely and his celebration developed into what constituted a charge of drunk and disorderly conduct against him when ararigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. After hearing the cause of the fan's joy, which resutled in his downfall, Judge DeMeza suspended sentence after a kindly talk to the prisoner to control his feelings in the future.

Non-Attendant Pupils.

The Dunellen Board of Education held an adjourned meeting last night during which eight cases of none-attendance at school were considered. Sufficient reasons were advanced by parents in three cases to excuse children from further attendance and the others were held in abeyance. The failure to continue at school, as a rule, is due to the boys and girls arriving at an age where they can go to work.

Discuss Borough Matters.

Judge Isaac P. Runyon, of Washington avenue, and five other neighborhood Republicans, met at the home of the former last night to talk about the necessity of securing a complete registry of Republican voters on Tuesday. Afterward the rest of the evening was given up to a discussion of sewers, municipal water plant and other improvements for the borough, but no conclusion was reached.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

So accurately reproduced is the trial scene in the last act that "Madame X," which Henry W. Savage will offer here Saturday, October 21, matinee and night, is said to possess all the fascinating elements of a real French murder trial. The scenery employed in Henry W. Savage's production of "Madame X" Bisson's celebrated emotional drama soon to be seen here, is an exact copy of that used in Paris for the French version of the play. The artists who painted it were sent to Paris that they might catch the spirit of the original and George Marion, who staged the piece, visited Paris to study the original French production in detail.

The sale of seats will start today at the Plainfield theatre for Wm. G. Stewart's presentation of Chas. B. Dillingham's original production of "The Fair Co-ed," which will be the offering here on Friday night. The book is from the pen of George Ade and the music was written by Gustave Luders, a double guarantee that the performance will be fine, for George Ade's "The College Widow" is well remembered and also Gustave Luders is known as the author of "The Prince of Pilsen." Hattye Fox will be seen in the principal role of Cynthia Bright and William G. Stewart and Edgar Halstead give her ample support. The entire production is carried and the chorus of both sexes is large and possessed of vocal ability.

Will Holy Thirty Institutes.

The program of farmers' institutes for the year was announced yesterday by Franklin Dye, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture. More than thirty institutes will be held, covering all sections of the State. One will be held at South Branch, Somerset county, Decembmer 23, and another will be held at New Market, December 12. A large number of excellent speakers have been engaged for these meetings.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

COUNCIL THREATENS TO BUY ANOTHER AUTO

Chief T. O. Doane and the local public are soon to have another left-handed automobile foisted on them. The one that has been doing semi-active service in the fire department and giving the jokers a chance to get off popular-priced vaudeville stuff is soon to be relegated to the second-hand shop. The fire committee of the Common Council is now trying to decide which is the next worse kind to buy and has a lot of slung-togethers to look over. A one-lung affair that can be turned upside down and used as a horse clipping machine or hay chopper, seems likely to be selected.

The councilmen agree that the Chief needs some sort of a conveyance to get him to a fire in time to save the cellar, at least, but while the water investigation is on and the High School swimming pool is being built, economy must be considered. Accordingly, unless the city can save up enough trading stamps to get a good car, one of the toy contraptions will have to serve as a time-saver for the fire department head and building inspector.

Peeper May Be Demented.

William Cowell, who claims to live in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was arrested in Dunellen, last night for acting in a suspicious manner. He appeared to be slightly demented and on the advice of a physician was committed to jail for ten days by Recorder Campbell in order that his sanity might be determined. THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

To decide a bet please answer the following question in your column. We will say for instance that New York is playing with Marquard in the box. In the seventh inning the score is 2 to 1 against them and Marquard is taken out and replaced by another pitcher. The Giants win the game after the new pitcher goes into the box. Under these circumstances would Marquard be credited with a win or a lost game, or would he receive any attention in the percentage column.

A. L. M.

"According to the rules Marquard would not receive any credit for his work, neither would he be given any percentage. The pitcher that replaced him would get the credit for the victory."—Sporting Editor.

UPHOLDS HOUSE BREAKING.

Court Rules It Right When Done by Gas Collector.

Recorder Kehoe Monday night in Perht Amboy ruled that an employee of the Perth Amboy Gas Company has the right to break into a house in order to take the deposits from a slot meter.

John Obuch caused the arrest of Thomas Wand, who, he said, broke into his home. Wand is employed by the gas company. He said he entered the house to make his collections. The case was dismissed.

Can Now Start Paving Job.

Rahway, Oct. 18.—Mayor William Howard yesterday morning signed the contract for the paving of Main street with metropolitan brick. The contract had been given to the Jersey Paving Corporation of Newark, but had been held up by the Mayor for two months because he claimed no money was available for the job. A loan was then negotiated for $24,000. Monday night a finance and street committees met the Mayor and the latter agreed to sign the contract.

Up-to-date Clothing for Men and Boys

Thursday, Friday and Saturday

We are tremendously enthusiastic over this sale of Fall Clothing because we know there hasn't been a Clothing sale like it in years. We are enthisiastic because we believe the response to this announcement will be greater than any that has been made to any Clothing Sale in this vicinity undertaken with regular stocks. We are confident that the response will be larger because of the plainly apparent benefits that will come to the buying public and because we are offering this splendid Clothing right at the BEGINNING OF THE SEASON, when most merchants are looking for their best profits.

We haven't in any previous season presented such a satisfying stock of Men's and Boys' Clothing. We have never known Clothing so good to be priced as low as ours is marked regularly and now, without making a comparative price, we promise you positively the best values in dependable Clothing than any store in Newark has ever offered at the beginning of a season.

Our guarantee is back of every Suit and Overcoat at every price, and we will consider no sale closed unless you are fully satisfied with your purchase.

Your dollars will over-reach themselves—will buy more than at any other store in or near Newark.

EXTRA AT $10.00—All-wool Blue Serge Suits; good weight; acid-tested fabrics, in the most approved fall models; splendidly tailored; in full range of sizes; with each suit without extra charge—for only $10, mind you—we give an extra pair of trousers—the Suit with two pair of pants for $10

At $14.50 we will sell Suits and Overcoats of materials that you would not expect to find in garments costing less than $20 to $25—made by journeymen tailors; cut to fit the most critical; made of attractive all-wool cloths with enough hand tailoring to have them pass as custom made clothes. Overcoats, including some of those brand-new double texture coatings now so popular with the ultra-fashionable and not before shown to our knowledge for less than $25.

At $6.48 will sell Men's Suits in the most up-to-date styles, made of cloths of exclusive patterns; well tailored and trimmed, such as would satisfy men who wish to pay $10 for them.

At $10 we offer Suits and Overcoats cut in the best Fall 1911 models; made of strictly all-wool materials in the latest patterns and colorings; including the suitable blacks and blues; excellently tailored; handsomely trimmed; such as are usually left out of sales of this sort and these Suits and Overcoats all have the earmarks of Suits and Overcoats usually sold at $15 to $20.

At $19.50 we offer Suits and Overcoats of as fine materials as could be selected by the man who is accustomed to paying his tailor $35 and $40 and giving evidence of the most skilled workmanship; cut in the most fashionable models; so perfect in fit that scarcely a stitch need be taken to adapt them to you as accurately as the best custom tailor could fit them—think of it—these splendid Suits and Overcoats for only $19.50.

We want you to do yourself a real favor by coming in to see these Suits and Overcoats during the three days' sale. We don't want any of our friends to miss this opportunity and we cannot urge you too strongly to see the clothing—to know the quality and to try it on that you may appreciate the perfect fit that can be secured for so little money.

Don't judge this sale by the ordinary clothing proposition. It is vastly different and exceedingly better than the ordinary clothing sale. Business and professional men, office men and workingmen will be equally well served in this sale and all will profit by it.

A host of extra salesmen will be ready to wait upon you.

LAYS CLAIM TO OLD CEMETERY

Claim is made by Arthur E. Sandford, of Newark, that he is the owner of the Wesley Methodist Episcopal church burying ground in Belleville. To prove his ownership Mr. Sandford recently filed in the Essex county clerk's office a deed for the property executed in 1845.

The church trustees assert that they own the property, and, through their counsel, John De Graw, have filed a bill in the Court of Chancery to establish such ownership.

The burying ground is south of John street and north of New Bridge street. For the last sixty-six years it has been exempt from taxation because it was understood that the church had undisputed right to the land. This year, however, the Belleville officials levied a tax upon the land.

At one time there were numerous early inhabitants of the township buried there, but many remains have been removed.

A short time ago the officials of the church received a copy of a deed for the burying ground in the name of Mr. Sandford. It came as a great surprise. Soon afterward Assessor Eugene M. Gavey taxed the property in the name of Mr. Sandford.

The claim made by Mr. Sandford has caused considerable feeling among the trustees of the church. One of these officials, although at first loath to talk, denied that Mr. Sandford filed the original deed, declaring that the church had the document in its possession. The deed filed in the county clerk's office was declared to be a copy.

This official also asserted that Mr. Sandford's action is the result of his having followed up old papers. The grandfather of Mr. Sandford was a trustee of the church at the time the burying ground was purchased, according to the official, and was instrumental in effecting the purchase. From that time until the present day the ground has passed out of the possession of the Wesley church.

The ground in dispute, according to the deed filed by Mr. Sandford March 18 last has a frontage along John street of 125 feet and depth of 187½ feet on New Bridge street. The property was assessed at $1,200, the tax this year being $24.

STILL NO HEAD FOR PRINCETON.

Princeton, Oct. 18.—Possible action by Princeton University on the selection of a president to fill the place left vacant by Woodrow Wilson when he became candidate for Governor is to be delayed another week. The meeting of the board of trustees which was to have taken place Thursday of this week has been postponed until Thursday of next week.

Governor Wilson will be unable to attend the meeting next week, his political engagements carrying him to Texas. As Governor the former president of the university is ex-officio at the head of the board of trustees.

Not the slightest information has been given to the public by the committee appointed to recommend a candidate as to their probable choice. There is reason to believe, however, that the recommendation of the committee may be overruled by the board.

The committee is dominated by men who believe in the Woodrow Wilson policy of conducting the university. This is the policy that calls for the subordination of the social and athletic elements of university life to the intellectual and educational element. As expressed by Governor Wilson himself while he was at the head of Princeton, his policy is to prevent the "sideshows being more important than the show itself."

Although the ecommittee is controlled by this element, the board of trustee is dominated by the antagonists of the Woodrow Wilson policy. The majority consists of about two votes. If the Governor should vote the majority would be reduced to one.

PINNED UNDER UPSET AUTO.

Three Women Have Thrilling Experience When Car Capsizes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Willett, Miss Bertha Willett and Miss Mabel Willett, of the North Avenue Hotel, Westfield, Raymond Edwards, also of Westfield, and Theodore Monkseller, of East Orange, had a narrow escape from being killed when a large car in which they were riding turned turtle at Whitehouse Sunday night.

The car was being driven by Harry Darby, of Westfield. While passing through Whitehouse the automobile skidded. Young Darby tried to right the car when one of the rear wheels broke and the automobile turned over. The occupants were pinned under the car.

TUESDAY, OCT. 24.

By JACK LONDON

Author of "The Call of the Wild," "White Fang," "Martin Eden," etc.

"I lift her along for five thousand," he said.

Daylight was now in the center. The kerosene lamps above flung high lights from the rash of sweat on his forehead. The bronze of his cheeks was darkened by the accession of blood. His black eyes glittered and his nostrils were distended and eager. They were large nostrils, tokening his descent from savage ancestors who had survived by virtue of deep lungs and generous air-passages. Yet, unlike MacDonald, his voice was firm and customary, and, unlike Kearns his hand did not tremble when he wrote.

"I call, for ten thousand," he said. "Not that I'm afraid of you-all, Mac. It's that hunch of Jack's."

"I hump his hunch for five thousand just the same," said MacDonald. "I had the best hand before the draw, and I still guess I got it."

"Mebbe this is a case where a hunch after the draw is better'n the hunch before," Kearns remarked; wherefore duty says, 'Lift her, Jack, lift her,' and so I lift her another five thousaid."

Daylight leaned back in his chair and gazed up at the kerosene lamps while he computed aloud:

"I was in nine thousand before the draw, and I saw and raised eleven thousand—that makes thirty. I'm only good for ten more." He leaned forward and looked at Kearns. "So I call er five thousand."

"You can raise if you want," Kearns answered. "Your dogs are good for five thousaid in this game."

"Nary dawg. You-all can win my dust and dirt, but nary one of my dawgs. I just call."

The saloon keeper finally spoke: "If anybody else wins, they'll have to take a mortgage on the Tivoli."

The two other players nodded.

"So I call, too."

MacDonald added his slip for five thousand. Not one of them claimed the pot, and not one of them called the size of his hand. Simultaneously and in silence they faced their cards on the table, while a general tiptoeing and craning of necks took place among the onlookers. Daylight showed four queens and an ace; MacDonald four jacks and an ace, and Kearns four kings and a trey. Kearns reached forward with an encircling movement of his arm and drew the pot in to him, his arm shaking as he did so. Daylight picked the ace from his hand and tossed it over alongside MacDonald's ace, saying:

"That's what cheered me along, Mac. I knowed it was only kings that could beat me, and he had them.

"What did you-all have?" he asked, all interest, turning to Campbell.

"Straight flush of four, open at both ends—a good drawing hand."

"You bet! You could a' made a straight, a straight flush or a flush out of it."

"That's what I thought," Campbell said, sadly. "It cost me six thousand before I quit."

"I wisht you-all'd drawn," Daylight laughed. "Then I wouldn't a' caught that fourth queen. Now I've got to take Billy Rawlins' mail contract and mush for Dyea. What's the size of the killing, Jack?"

Kearns attempted to count the pot, but was too excited. Daylight drew it across to him, with firm fingers separating and stacking the markers and I. O. U.'s and with clear brain adding the sum.

"One hundred and twenty-seven thousand," he announced. "You-all can sell out now, Jack, and head for home."

The winner smiled and nodded, but seemed incapable of speech.

"Name your snake-juice, you-all—the winner pays!" Daylight called out loudly to all about him, at the same time rising from his chair and catching the Virgin by the arm. "Come on for a reel, you-all dancers. The night's young yet, and it's Helen Breakfast and the mail contract for me in the morning. Here, you-all Rawlins, you—I hereby do take over that same contract, and I start for salt water at nine a. m.—savvee? Come on, you-all! Where's that fiddler?"

CHAPTER II.

It was Daylight's night. He was the center and the head of the revel, unquenchably joyous, a contagion of fun. In between dances he paid over to Kearns the twenty thousand in dust and transferred to him his Moosehide claim. Likewise he arranged the taking over of Billy Rawlins' mail contract, and made his preparations for the start. He dispatched a messenger to rout out Kama, his dog-driver—a Tananaw Indian, far-wandered from his tribal home in the service of the invading whites. Kama entered the Tivoli, tall, lean, muscular, and furclad, the pick of his barbaric race and barbaric still, unshaken and unabashed by the revelers that rioted about him while Daylight gave his orders.

"Um," said Kama, tabbing his instructions on his fingers. "Get um letters from Rawlins. Load um on sled. Grub for Selkirk—you think um plenty dog-grub stop Selkirk?"

"Plenty dog-grub, Kama."

"Um. Bring sled this place nine um clock. Bring um snowshoes. No bring um tent. Mebbe bring um fly? um little fly?"

"No fly," Daylight answered decisively. We travel light—savvee? We carry plenty letters out, plenty letters back. You are strong man. Plenty cold, plenty travel, all right."

"Sure all right," Kama muttered, with resignation. "Much cold, no care. Um ready nine um clock."

He turned on his moccasined heel and walked out, imperturbable, sphinx-like, neither giving nor receiving greetings nor looking to right or left. The Virgin led Daylight away into a corner.

"Look here, Daylight," she said in a low voice, "you're busted."

"Higher'n a kite."

"I've eight thousand in Mac's safe—" she began.

But Daylight interrupted. The apron-string loomed near and he shied like an unbroken colt.

"It don't matter," he said. "Busted I came into the world, busted I go out, and I've been busted most of the time since I arrived. Come on; let's waltz."

"But, listen," she urged. "My money's doing nothing. I could lend it to you—a grub-stake," she added, hurriedly, at sight of the alarm in his face.

"Nobody grub-stakes me," was the answer. "I stake myself, and when I make a killing it's sure all mine. No thank you, old girl. Much obliged. I'll get my stake by running the mail out and in." With a sudden well-assumed ebullition of spirits he drew her toward the dancing-floor, and as they swung around and around in a waltz she pondered on the iron heart of the man who held her in his arms and resisted all her wiles.

At six the next morning, scorching with whisky, yet ever himself, he stood at the bar putting every man's hand down. The way of it was that two men faced each other across a corner, their right elbows resting on the bar, their right hands gripped together, while each stove to press the other's hand down. Man after man came against him, but no man put his hand down, even Olaf Henderson and French Louis failing despite their hugeness.

"The winner pays!" Daylight cried. "Surge along you-all! This way to the snake-room!"

"I'm busted higher'n a kite, and I'm hittin' the trail for Dyea—"

"Goin' out?" some one called.

A spasm of anger wrought on his face for a flashing instant, but in the next good humor was back again.

"I konw you-all are only pokin' fun asking such a question," he said with a smile. "Of course I ain't going out."

"Take the oath again, Daylight," the same voice cried.

"I sure will. I first come over Chilcoot in '83. I went out over the Pass in a fall blizzard, with a rag of a shirt and a cup of raw flour. I got my grub-stake in Juneau that winter, and in the spring I went out over the Pass once more. And once more the famine drew me out. Next spring I went in again, and I swore then that I'd never come out till I made my stake. Well, I ain't made it, and here I am. And I ain't going out now. I get the mail and I come right back. I won't stop the night at Dyea. I'll hit up Chilcoot soon as I change the dogs and get the mail and grub. And so I swear once more. I'll never hit for the Outside till I make my pile. And I tell you-all, here and now, it's got to be an almighty big pile. I'll be real conservative, and put the bottom notch at a million. And for not an ounce less'n that will I go out of the country. I tell you-all I got a hunch. There's a big strike coming on the Yukon, and it's just about due. I don't mean no ornery Moosehide, Birch creek kind of a strike. I mean a real rip-snorter hair-raiser. Nothing can stop her, and she'll come up river. There's where you-all'll track my moccasins in the near future if you-all want to find me—somewhere in the country around Stewart river, Indian river and Klondike river. When I get back with the mail, I'll head that way so fast you-all won't see my trail for smoke. She's a-coming, fellows, gold from the grass roots down, a hundred dollars to the pan, and a stampede in from the Outside fifty thousand s—"

HEED THE WARNING.

Many Plainfield People Have Done So.

When the kidneys are sick they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disoder, many days of suffering may be saved. Sick kidneys expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brickdust" sediment and painful in passage. Sluggish kidneys cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequent rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only; they help sick kidneys, and rid the blood of uric poison. If you suffer from any of the above symptoms you can use no better remedy.

Plainfield people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

Albert Naylor, musician, 256 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I suffered from an ache in the small of my back and sharp pains when stooping or lifting. I took Doan's Kidney Pills, as I was told that they were good for such troubles and by the time I had finished the contents of two boxes, I was feeling better in every way. I have often recommended this remedy to people I have heard complaining of kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BEFRIENDS YOUTHFUL 'FAN' STRANDED HERE

John Stout, aged 17 years, giving his address as 2435 North College street, Philadelphia, was found by Superintendent Harrison of Muhlenberg Hospital, lying at the corner of Park avenue and Randolph road, last night in a helpless condition by reason of a badly sprained knee. Questioning on the part of Mr. Harrison brought forth the information that the lad while walking and beating his way from New York to his home, was run down by a wagon at Elizabeth, but he was unable to explain how he had reached Plainfield.

Stout said that last Saturday he went to New York to see the world's championship ball game between the Giants and Athletics. He had his week's wages, about $10, in his pocket, but when he reached the Polo Grounds he was unable to get inside. He then decided to bet what money he had on the Athletics to win but as they lost, the lad dropped his hard-earned money and found himself broke in a large city. He then started back for his home, walking part the way and stealing a ride when possible.

He could not tell Mr. Harrison how he happened to be near the hospital, neither could he explain why he did not seek assistance at a hospital in Elizabeth. Taking compassion on the lad, Mr. Harrison took him to the hospital and kept him for the night. This morning he provided him with sufficient cash to return to Philadelphia and he departed bright and early profuse in his thanks for the kindness shown. Stout said that he was employed in the Quaker City as a plumbers' helper.

VOTE DRUMMERS GET ON THEIR JOB

Reports of committees on campaign work were received Monday night at the meeting of the Republican County Committee at headquarters in the Dix building, Elizabeth. Plans for the work of getting out the vote were discussed, and it was announced that the canvassers who had been chosen at a former meeting to get out the voters for registration had met with a great deal of success.

Most of the meeting was taken up with a discussion of the new Geran election law with its manifest defects and good points. Many of the sections of this law which have been misinterpreted and misunderstood were explained, and it was the general opinion of the members of the committee that, once the law was made plain to the voting public, there would be little objection to the provisions.

The most important work that has been done in the past week has been that done by the canvassers who had been selected to get out the voters for registration. They reported that they have met with unqualified success, and that they have been able to convince the voters that the so-called "inquisitorial method" of the registry board is not all that it is painted, and no voter shoulld fear the questions that are asked. There have been many old residents of the different wards and election districts of the city who have refrained from registering because they thought that the questions asked by the registry board were too personal, but with the full explanation of the new law, it is pointed out that the questions are for the protection of the person who registers and not for personal information. The Republican canvassers have been working in the different wards and election districts of the city for the past two weeks, and it is expected that their efforts will have the effect of bringing out a complete registration.

The meeting was one of the largest that has been held during this campaign. It is the intention of the Republican party to offset the Democratic victory of last year when the county was swayed by the Gubernatorial vote for Woodrow Wilson, and from all that can be learned, the plans that have been made for a successful campaign will be carried through without a hitch.

Plans for meetings throughout the county were made at the meeting but no definite dates were set.

MISS WYATT WEDS

She Came From Guernsey, England, to be the Wife of George Heaume.

REV. MR. KEMBLE OFFICIATES.

Culmination of a Romance Which Began Before London University Graduate Left For America to Seek His Fortune.

George Heaume, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Heaume, of 1156 Myrtle avenue, and Miss Mabel Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt, of Guernsey, England, were married at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bridegroom's parents in the presence of the near relatives. Rev. C. S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, performed the ceremony.

The bride's gown was of white marquisette over white satin and she carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Hazel Heaume, sister of the bridegroom, was the bridemaid and she wore a gown of blue chiffon, with embroidery and her bouquet was of pink carnations. The best man was Cecil Priaulx, of New York. Miss Bessie Best, of East Orange, played the wedding march. A reception followed the ceremony.

The bride and bridegrrom are both natives of Guernsey, England, and have known each other since childhood days. The couple were engaged when Mr. Heaume came to this country with his parents six years ago and since that time they kept up a correspondence. Recently, the date was set for the wedding and the bride engaged passage here on the Steamship Olympic. When the big liner was hit by the British cruiser, she was transferred to the Steamship St. Louis, arriving here on September 30.

Mr. Heaume is a graduate of London University, and at present is engaged with his father in the grocery business at Dunellen. He has also gained considerable prominence as a soccer football player, being a member of the Plainfield Association Football Club, being considered one of the strongest members of the team.

Following the wedding and reception last night the couple left on a trip, the destination being unknown. They will reside here upon their return. Mrs. Heaume was the recipient of a large number of handsome and costly gifts, including a number sent here by her friends in Guernsey, where she was very popular.

MICHAEL COLUCCI GETS BACK THAT CHINESE HAIR.

The Chinese hair confiscated by the city police one day last week on suspicion of being a part of that stolen from Brooklyn dealers, was returned this morning to Michael Colucci, of Johnson avenue, from whom it was taken. The dealers who had suffered loss by thefts were invited to examine the hair for the purpose of identification but said that it was not any of the goods they had lost.

Colucci said that the hair had been given him to sell by his brother, who is a seaman on a vessel plying between American and Chinese ports. The last time he came to this country he brought the stuff with him and had to sail with his ship before finding a market. As he is at present on the sea, his confirmation of his brother's story is impossible and the case has been discontinued until his return.

SUSPENDS SENTENCE ON FOUR YOUNG MEN.

The four young men who figured in the smashing of a window in Biles' poolroom on Somerset street, Tuesday evening, received suspended sentences in the city court this morning when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza. The police yesterday learned that the window had been cracked some time ago, the broken pieces being held in place by rivets in a somewhat insecure manner, and that the owner of the building carried plate glass insurance. In suspending sentence the court told the young men to be more careful when up to their pranks in the future and to select a place free from breakable articles.

LEAVES STOP UP SEWERS; MANY STREETS FLOODED.

As a result of the recent heavy rains, which carried great quantities of leaves off the trees, the street department men have been kept busy clearing the intakes to the storm sewers. At Kensington and Watchung avenues the leaves choked up the sewers to such extent that the neighboring streets this morning were badly flooded. In other sections of the city similar conditions prevailed until the men had cleared the intakes in the gutters.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF TABERNACLE'S C.E

The first anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society of the West End Tabernacle was obeserved at that edifice last night. The stormy weather affected the attendance, but the society was well represented. The feature of the program was an address by Miss Nellie K. Foote, of Elizabeth, who spoke on the subject of "Beginnings." She referred to the Book of Genesis and also to the beginning of the great movements in the world along business and religious lines, telling what had been accomplished. Miss Foote urged the society to be loyal to Jesus Christ and His church.

Following the above address, Robert Love, superintendent of the tabernacle, expressed his appreciation of such a society being formed and of the valuable aid it has rendered to the work during the past year. During the evening there were vocal selections by William Smith, of Elizabeth. The tabernacle was attractively decorated for the occasion with autumn leaves and dahlias, the colors being red and yellow. During a social hour, chocolate and cake were served by the social committee.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, was elected president of the Classis of Newark, at the Fall session held in Trinity Reformed church, Newark, yesterday, succeeding his brother, Rev. Albertus T. Broek, who is pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed church, Newark. The honor is appreciated very much by Mr. Broek as well as the members of his congregation. Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, was the choice for temporary clerk of the session.

The classis also heard the report of the retiring executive, Rev. Albertus T. Broek, in which the matter of the pastorate of the North Reformed church, Newark, was referred to. He said that the members of the North Reformed church still feel grieved at the loss of Rev. Dr. James I. Vance, their former pastor. As the situation in that church stands now, he reported, the selection of a successor to Dr. Vance is still as distant as ever.

The advisement of establishing a church in Summit was taken under consideration and referred to the extension committee. Mr. Broek indicated strongly in his remarks that a church in that place is necessary, because many people who formerly lived in Newark, and the Oranges have removed to Summit.

Rev. Frank Eckerson, who has been appointed by the Clinton Avenue Reformed church as missionary to Amoy, China, delivered a short address, speaking of the difficulty experienced by the Board of Missions in raising funds in some of the churches.

The standing committees appointed and the chairman are as follows: Constitutional minutes, the Rev. A. T. Broek; state of religion, the Rev. W. W. Giles, East Orange; overtures, the Rev. H. M. Mellen, Newark; finances, F. E. Smith, elder of Trinity Reformed church, Plainfield; supplies, the Rev. J. Y. Broek, Plainfield; doctrine, the Rev. George H. Bishop, East Orange; benevolent institutions, Mr. Giles; education, Mr. Mellen, Newark; systematic benevolence, the Rev. E. E. Davis, Newark; president's report, the Rev. George H. Huist, Montclair Heights.

GOVERNOR CUTS TOUR IN WARREN COUNTY.

Governor Woodrow Wilson arrived at Hackettstown yesterday from Newton. His physical condition did not warrant him to make the tour mapped out through Warren county. He was suffering from a cold and his voice was very husky, and to travel by automobile in the heavy downpour of rain was not considered advisable by Dr. Wilson or his friends. He spent several hours in his room at the American House, Hackettstown, leaving late in the afternoon for Washington and Phillipsburg, where he made addresses in the evening in the opera houses.

United States Senator James E. Martine, of Plainfield, accompanied by Representative Tuttle, of Westfield, and other political friends, made the tour through the upper part of the county which Governor Wilson had expected to cover, and gave short talks to the voters at the villages in the interest of the county candidates for Senator and Assemblymen.

WED BROOKLYNITE

Miss Susan L. Lowrie Becomes the Bride of Charles Henry Bishop.

AT HER DUNELLEN HOME.

Rev. Frank Fletcher Officiates—Miss Sara Brouwer Maid of Honor—George E. Lowrie, Jr., Best Man.

In the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends numbering 150, Miss Susan Louise Lowrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Elston Lowrie, of Dunellen, was united in marriage, last night, to Charles Henry Bishop, of Brooklyn. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock at the bride's home on North avenue, Rev. Frank Fletcher, of this city, a former pastor of the New Market Baptist church, was the officiating clergyman.

Miss Lowrie wore a becoming gown of white satin, princess effect, trimmed with lace. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies-of-the-valley. She was attended by Miss Sara Brouwer, of Dunellen, at present a student at Smith College, as maid of honor. She wore a costume of crepe meteor with gold trimmings and carried an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums tied with yellow chiffon. George Elston Lowrie, Jr., was best man and Helen Walton, of Dunellen, a tiny miss of four years, was flower girl. She wore a white empire dress of batiste trimmed with valenciennes lace. She carried a basket filled with rose petals and white and yellow chrysanthemums tied with yellow chigon. As the bridal party entered the parlor, the wedding march was played by Miss Irene Day, of New Market. The bride was leaning on the arm of her brother, Robert Lowrie, who gave her in marriage.

The home was handsomely decorated for the occasion, an autumnal effect predominating. The arrangement was designed by Stanley, of this city. It consisted of a floral bower with a huge canopy of southern smilax and white chrysanthemums, the young couple standing before a white altar rail. The library was resplendent in autumn foliage and southern smilax with pink roses and cosmos interspersed. White and yellow chrysanthemums predominated in the dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishop took their departure for a week's wedding trip following a wedding supper and reception. They will reside in Brooklyn, where they will be at home to their friends after November 1. The groom is a resident of New York and buyer for a Washington, D. C., dry goods house. Mrs. Bishop is a granddaughter of Robert Lowrie, of Dunellen, who is now in his ninety-ninth year. She is popular with a large circle of friends in Plainfield as well as her home town. The bride and groom were the recipients of a generous collection of beautiful gifts. It comprised silverware, furniture, cut glass, china, bric-a-brac and numerous checks.

AUTO HITS A WAGON MILK TAKES A DROP.

An automobile owned by Edward T. Wilson, of Sycamore avenue, the borough and driven by his chauffeur, William Caldwell, who was taking Mr. Wilson's children to school, collided with J. A. Herbermann's milk wagon at West Fourth street and Central avenue at 8:45 o'clock this morning. The auto was not damaged, neither was anyone injured, but the milk wagon was completely wrecked and there was considerable loss of milk.

August Paviland, of Warrenville, was in charge of the milk wagon. He was driving through Fourth street and just as he reached the corner of Central avenue, the automobile came along and struck the wagon broadside, throwing Paviland into the roadway. He escaped with a few scratches. The blame for the accident has not been fixed, both Caldwell and Paviland claiming to be in the right. The roadway was muddy and slippery at the time and it is said that Caldwell was unable to stop quick enough to prevent a collision.

E. church, officiated.

TOO INTOXICATED TO REMEMBER THE ASSAULT.

After bidding adieu in New York to a number of friends who left for their native land yesterday, John Dingsdale, of West Second street, this city, felt lonely and took to the flowing bowl for solace. After returning home he went after more "comfort" by "putting a polish" on George Watts, colored, also of West Second street. Neither man had never seen the other before and the only explanation Watts could give for the attack was that Dingsdale said he did not like the colored man's complexion.

Patrolman Flynn escorted the intoxicated and belligerent Britisher to headquarters and when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning the prisoner said that he did not remember the incident. When told that he had broken Watts' glasses he said he would pay for them and was allowed to go under a suspended sentence of $10 or 30 days after promising to leave liquor alone in the future.

Efforts will be made to transact the business as quickly as possible to give the members an opportunity to hear Govenor Wilson at the Plainfield theatre.

McMAHON ROBBER

Found Guilty on Charge of Having Entered George Coriell's Home at New Market.

DEFENDANT'S QUEER TESTIMONY

Miss Margaret Coriell Tells How She Recognized the Prisoner—He Will Be Sentenced Tomorrow by Judge Daly.

Starting out at 4 o'clock in the morning to be on hand when the New Market saloons opened got James McMahon, of Dunellen, charged with burglary, according to the story he told a justice at New Brunswick yesterday. McMahon's trial started Monday before Judge Daly. The State charged him with attempting to break into the house of George Coriell, of New Market. Coriell and his son, George, Jr., testified to finding McMahon at their place, and Miss Margaret Coriell declared she saw him looking in at the window.

McMahon declared that he got to his home about 1 o'clock on the night in question, July 28, and laid down on the grass under a tree, to sleep. He said he always did that on hot nights. About 4 o'clock in the morning he woke up and declared he wanted a drink. So he started for New Market.

"Why did you start for New Market?" asked Counsellor Charles E. Tindell, counsel for the defense.

"Because my credit was good with the hotels there, and not in Dunellen," replied McMahon.

The defendant said that he walked as far as the Coriell place, where there was a pear tree growing along the road. He reached up and picked a couple of pears, but found they were hard. Then he looked along the ground to see if any ripe ones had fallen. Just then he heard a scream in the house. He was about to resume his journey when the two Coriells, father and son, came running out. After a few words they went back and he went on his way. He went back home then, he said, instead of continuing after his drink. He said the Coriells told him nothing about any burglary.

The next day, he said, he heard that he was charged with burglary. He slept the next night in the woods, then made a freight trip to various places. He was arrested a month later. He declared that he had been in Dunellen a number of times during that month.

Tindell, who defended McMahon, wanted to know how Miss Coriell had learned his name. She said that one day he came along the street in front of their home in New Market while she was sweeping off the porch.

"Great Scott," he had exclaimed, "you are making enough dust to choke a man."

Then he yelled in the yard to her father a hearty "hello" and her father had yelled back "Hello Jim."

She was interested enough to ask her father who that man was and he had told her it was Jim McMahon.

One time after that she had gone to a dance in Dunellen, with some New Market friends, she said, and McMahon had followed her up all night and had persisted in getting a dance.

"He was all the time coming up and asking me and I didn't want to dance with him, and I finally told him so. He was pretty persistent and I was just as persistent in refusing him. He was not in a very nice condition to ask a girl to dance with him.

So when she was awakened at 3:30 o'clock on the night of July 28 and saw a man getting into her room she was sure it was Jim McMahon. He had raised the window screen, but when she moved he backed out. Then she saw him again, on the roof of the porch.

"Papa, papa," she had cried to her father, George Coriell, "there's a man on the roof."

Papa Coriell swore that he got right up. He didn't see any man, but his wife heard someone run along the yard and he and his twenty-year-old son, George went out.

"We searched around. We found a ladder put up against the side of the house," said Mr. Coriell. "It belonged to Runyon B. Klausen, who lives next door. When we went into the house and I was about to make a cup of coffee, I looked out the door and exclaimed: 'My God a man is out there now.' I was frightened. With my son I went out. I had seen the man in Klausen's yard, but he had gone when we went out. We went out on the street and saw a man going down the street. 'Hey there,' I called pretty sharp at him. He kept on going and we after him. Then he suddenly turned around and came back toward us. Can't a fellow eat an apple if he wants to? asked Jim, for it was Jim McMahon who confronted us and he was as scared as we were."

It's the sure remedy, you know, for everything that gets the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for sweaty, bad-smelling feet, and for corns, callouses and bunions, too.

"For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pains. Have had the assistance of physicians without relief. I bought a box of TIZ, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All it requires is to be known to be universally used." A. F. Dreutzer, Chicago.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other fot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

CATHOLICS ARE URGED TO HELP ILL PONTIFF

A letter from Bishop O'Connor was read in the Catholic churches of the Newark diocese Sunday urging liberal contributions to the "Peter's Pence" collections which will be taken for the support of Pope Pius. The bishop calls the clergy's attention to the recommendation that they make a personal and special offering. Rectors and their assistants have been requested to forward their offerings to the bishop.

"The Catholics are asked but once a year to contribute to the support of the chief pastor of all the faithful," reads Bishop O'Connor's letter, "and it should be a pleasure to all Catholics to be given this opportunity to show their loyalty. Another reason why the offering this year should be the largest in the history of the church is that we may express our sympathy with the holy father on account of the illness he has suffered." The collection in the churches will be taken up next Sunday.

PASSAIC COMMISSION IN SPAT OVER OFFICES.

Passaic, Oct. 19.—An attempt to secure the appointment of Harry J. Ketcham as city treasurer caused a wrangle in the meeting of the new city commission Tuesday afternoon, to which about 300 persons listened. The appointment was opposed as premature. Mr. Ketcham at present is acting treasurer. Mayor Seger settled the debate by telling the commissioners to prepare for Friday a complete list of officials desired.

Commissioner Sullivan opposed the appointment of a treasurer before the first of the year, at which time he said he would vote for Ketcham. Mr. Osborn explained his resolution by saying that bond requirements made immediate action on the treasurer at least advisable.

Commissioner Kehoe announced that he had two appointments ready. He wished to continue Judge Thomas P. Costello in the police judgeship and to make George Rice, court clerk, permanent clerk of the court. Mr. Osborn then proposed the retaining of A. C. Van Houten as city comptroller. The mayor stopped the inflow of names at this time by proposing Friday for final adjustment.

CHURCH 34 YEARS OLD.

Elizabeth, Oct. 19.—The Central Baptist church last night celebrated its thirty-fourth anniversary at the regular prayer meeting. Rev. Dr. Thomas Vasser, who thirty-four years ago was pastor of the South Baptist church, Newark, and came to Elizabeth to preach the first sermon, presided and preached the sermon. There was an address by Edward K. Drake, a founder of the Central church, whose grandfather was founder, in 1842, of the Baptist denomination in Elizabeth.

The church has had but two pastors since its organization, Rev. John McKinney, deceased, and Rev. Dr. Everett Tomlinson, who resigned last Easter Sunday.

SYNOD SPEAKER SCORES ROOSEVELT

The Rev. William Dager, of the Presbytery of Crisco, Africa, was Tuesday elected moderator of the synod of New Jersey by acclamation. He has been in this country only three weeks, after an absence of twelve years spent in the mission fields of Africa. His only excuse for being in America at this time was poor health. Had he not been obliged to return to the States he would have remained in Africa, where he has been wonderfully successful.

The Rev. Dr. Halsey, in a conference on "Christian Relationship and Universal Peace" gave former President Roosevelt a jolt. He said he did not like Mr. Roosevelt's recent utterance: "You stab me, I'll stab you." He said that was not an indication of Christian spirit which taught patience and long suffering. He at the same time took occasion to praise President Taft and Andrew Carnegie for their efforts toward establishing universal peace.

SLOW PROGRESS IN TRIAL OF M'NAMARA.

Los Angeles, Oct. 19.—When the first week of the McNamara trial ended Tuesday afternoon but slight progress had been made toward obtaining a jury. Beyond the challenging of three veniremen and the selection of three others to take their places in the jury box for examination no indications of substantial advancement were shown.

Attorney Clarence Darrow, for the defense, made the statement during the afternoon that a strong point for its side would be the attempt to prove that the Times building was blown up by gas instead of by dynamite. Veniremen, who were questioned by the defense, were asked as to their knowledge of explosives, including gas.

H. Y. Quackenbush was challenged by the defense on the ground that his memory was defective. The challenge was resisted by the prosecution, and Judge Bordwell said he was not inclined to allow the challenge, and, after questioning Quackenbush further, passed him temporarily.

Z. J. Hiatt, one of the veniremen, was dismissed after it had been brought out that he was a Quaker and would not vote for a conviction entailing the death penalty even if he was convinced the defendant was guilty. A. V. McIntosh, formerly a baker, and at one time a member of the baker's union, was passed temporarily.

S. R. McCreery said he had a fixed opinion and was dismissed for cause. Edwin Johnson also had a fixed opinion and was allowed to go. T. W. Adams, who said he read the Appeal to Reason, was passed temporarily. George W. McKee was being questioned by Attorney Darrow when court adjourned for the day.

INJURY BLASTS LIFE PURPOSE.

His ambition to enter the priesthood blasted, Patrick Monaghan, of 284 Ninth street, Jersey City, a junior at Seton Hall College, South Orange, is in the Orange Memorial Hospital with his right arm amputated above the elbow. Only a man without physical defect can be a priest, and Monaghan's hopes were shattered Monday afternoon, when he fell under a train at the South Orange station. He lost his balance as he was about to board a Lackawanna train. He fell under the train and his right arm was crushed. He is in a critical condition at the hospital.

Leaving college earlier than usual to keep a promise matie to his mother that he would get home about 4 o'clock to assist her in some work, Monaghan hurried down South Orange avenue, and he was at Valley street when the 3:05 o'clock train pulled into the station. He ran the block to the station, and with his books in his left hand grabbed the guard rail of the second car from the rear.

The train was then going at such speed that Monaghan could not maintain his balance after landing on the platform steps. He made an effort to spring back to the station platform clear of the train, but slipped and fell parallel with the tracks, his right arm falling under the wheels.

RESIGNS OFFICE; DIES.

The funeral of Augustus M. Layat, who died suddenly at his home in Plainfield avenue, Saturday afternoon, was held at his late residence at Berkeley Heights Tuesday, the interment being made in the Methodist Cemtery at that place.

Mr. Layat had been collector for New Providence Township for over eleven years and had only resigned his position recently. The resignation was accepted by the Borough Council at a special meeting, October 9, and the decedent had not yet completed the transfer of his accounts to his successor, Frank C. Shaffer. He had been in apparently good health just previous to his death.

Mr. Layat was a native of France, coming to this country when a young man. He first lived in Jersey City, moving to Stony Hill, where he purchased a farm twenty-two years ago. He was the American representative of a French zinc company. He is survived by a widow, two daughters and a son.

MR. FAY SHOULD EXPLAIN.

The Westfield Leader puts it squarely up to Logan Fay, who got out of the saloon business to become the Democratic candidate for sheriff when it says he "refused to vote to pay the detectives ordered to investigate excise conditions in this county. This investigation was ordered by a Grand Jury and the bills were approved by the jury, Judge and Prosecutor. This action on his part would tend to show that his interests are in sympathy with the liquor interest, which are under fire at the present time. Unless Candidate Fay can explain his attitude to the voters of Union county and show that the Grand Jury, Judge and Prosecutor are all wrong—which, by the way, will be a stupendous undertaking for him—the citizens of Union county should elect his opponent, Candidate Wright. When two men, of different parties, are both good men, the Leader has no criticism to make but leaves the matter of choice to the voters. In this case we would like to hear first a good reason from Mr. Fay, who has been identified with the liquor trade for twenty-five years up to a few weeks ago. We want to know why Mr. Fay wanted that bill held up when the Board of Freeholders had no alternative than to order it passed. There is no objection here to Mr. Fay because of his association with the liquor interests, but it is the coincidence that looks queer when he is defending a condition against which a Grand Jury brought a presentment."

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

When the Special Agent of the local S. P. C. A. advertised recently for a good home for a cat, there were twenty-two responses; twenty-two brave householders willing and glad to have pussy, with all the germs microbes and bacteria (according to professed scientists) hidden in the fur. It may not be generally known that the United States Government has on its pay roll hundreds of cats for the protection of the mail service from rats and mice, and so far as any one knows none of the thousands of postoffice employes have ever suffered because of their contact with mail matter, protected by these useful and much abused animals. It is plainly to be seen that Uncle Sam has a mind of his own, and is not worrying about all these terrible things, blamed on poor pussy. One of the New York papers has for a slogan—drive out the cats and the dogs, but he does not say where they are to be driven to or what is to become of them afterward, but some people, even newspaper men, get unduly excited at times and other people who are not afflicted that way ought to make allowance for them.

The ladder had been taken from Klausen's yard, Mr. Klausen testified. And then came the Sherlock Holmes touch. Klausen had found a pipe, a short stem briar. He had picked it up in his yard near where the spot from which the ladder had been taken. The man who took the ladder must have dropped the pipe, all New Market thought. Even that would be clear to old Doc Katson.

Joseph P. Kelly was called to connect McMahon with the pipe. Yes, Kelly had seen McMahon smoke, and McMahon had a pipe like the one found, but how could Kelly say that this was McMahon's pipe? He simply couldn't. So his testimony was thrown out and the touch of Sherlock Holmes went for naught.

Then came the officers, James Benson and W. J. Davenport. Of course they had heard about the finger of suspicion pointing to McMahon and they had been sleuthing a month for Jimmie. But he couldn't be found.

It was 3:30 a. m. about a month after Miss Coriell's rude awakening, that the officers, shadowing the McMahon house, saw a form at a window. Then the window opened and a man climbed out and dropped to the ground. He got over a high board fence and the officers had a hard time getting him, but they landed him. He carried a bundle, containing some underclothes, two hard boiled eggs and a Vienna loaf of bread. "You've got me with the goods," hissed McMahon, according to the officers.

Assistant Prosecutor Watson was willing to let the case go to the jury with this presentation and as it was then time for adjournment, Lawyer Tindell didn't get an opportunity to open for the defense until this morning.

McMahon was the first witness for the defence. He is 26 years old. He comes of a respectable family in Dunellen. His brother, John, is a hard working man. His sister, Annie, keeps house for them. He is of the type who will jump a freight train and remain away for days at a time.

Mr. Coriell, the complaining witness, is tax assessor of Piscataway township and a prominent man of the county.

Peter Schneiderwind, the Dunellen man who had advised McMahon to give himself up, was the only other witness for the defense.

The jury found McMahon guilty. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

TUESDAY, OCT. 24.

TO TALK TO MOTHERS ON 'SOUL OF THE BOY'

"What a Father Could Do for His Boy, or the Place of the Man in the Moral and Religious Training of the Home," will be the subject of the Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews' next lecture in his series of talks to mothers on "The Soul of a Boy—Its Culture and Care." The lecture will be given tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. It was thought that this lecture might be given in the evening but conflicting apointments necessitates carrying out the original plan of holding it in the afternoon.(A synopsis of the lecture follows:

Introduction: The business of being a father; train fathers to be guides rather than governors; the confessions of a father; business efficiency tests applied to the home; the "profession of fatherhood" no forlorn hope—neither the business pursuing father nor the pleasure loving mother typical parents.

1. The place of the man in the moral and religious training of the home; both father and mother needed for the best training of the boy; the relation of each to the other; when the father influences the boy most and the mother least; the influence of the "gang" versus the influence of the parents; when the boy most needs his father-mother's moral suasion strengthened by father's exercise of authority.

2. What a Father Could do for His Boy: Set him a good example—personal habits, church attendance; exercise to the full his citizenship—the perils of the street that need to be suppressed, the good influences outside the home that call for support; train him in good habits—the habits of order, system, thrift, industry; equip him with some first class convictions concerning rational standards of living; make the boy his comrade—the moral meaning of play and work; keep his confidence, instructing his boy concerning the laws of sex; intelligently guide him in the choice of a vocation—the "blind alleys" of business.

There will be a conference at the close when the best books for fathers will be suggested and the books to best interest boys in Bible reading will be exhibited. All the mothers of Plainfield are cordially invited to be present.

Plan for Mass Meeting.

The Circles on the Square of Warren township has arranged for a mass meeting to be held at Mt. Bethel Tuesday night, at which time the Somerset county candidates will speak. A meeting was held at Mt. Bethel Tuesday night, when the voters were addressed by George LaMont, of Bound Brook, candidate for State Senator, and Azariah Beekman, of Somerville, candidate for the Assembly.

FOR CO-OPERATION IN STATE DEPARTMENTS

As a result of what he heard at the National Conservation Congress in Kansas City, Col. Edwin A. Stevens, State Road Commissioner, who attended the meeting as a New Jersey representative, will report to Governor Wilson in hope of obtaining more concerted action among the various State departments and institutions. Colonel Stevens says this idea was strongly emphasized at the meeting for the reason that it would mean better service and greater economy.

Speaking of the matter, he showed the need of the Jersey departments moving in closer touch with each other for the general good of the State. He referred to the sentiment in favor of the elimination of grade crossings and declared that the State Utility Commission and the Road Department could co-operate in the work in many ways, but present laws will not permit it. He thought that in engineering problems, as well as in the road construction necessary, his department could aid the Utility Board, but as the law stands the boards cannot work for each others interest and the good of the State.

M'COY'S EIGHTH WIFE.

New York, Oct. 19.—Already married and freed seven times, Norman Selby, better known as Kid McCoy, is to undertake to sail the marital ship an eighth time. His wife-to-be is Mrs. Edna Valentine Hein, the daughter of the head of the Central American firm of Valentine Brothers.

McCoy was named as a co-respondent in the cross bill that Mr. Hein put in in answer to his wife's suit for divorce in April of last year. He named five co-respondents, while his wife specified six. Later he withdrew his allegations and Mrs. Hein obtained the divorce.

"Mailed" Letter; Firemen Come.

Standing in front of a fire alarm box on Central avenue, Westfield, Tuesday, an Italian woman waited until a small boy appeared. To the youth the woman explained that she desired to mail a letter, but was uncertain of the method of getting it in the box. The boy offered his assistance and unlocked the device. The fire department responded.

Manager Sanderson, of the Plainfield theatre, announces that the seats for the Grace LaRue engagement, Tuesday evening, will go on sale this afternoon. Miss LaRue's appearances are always important and her production of "Betsy" is said to be the most ambitious of her undertakings. An odd feature of the supporting company is that four of the principals are prominent Australians fulfilling their first American engagements—Cecil Jarvis Ryan, the leading man, and a singer of note in his native land, having come here on the advice and with the endorsement of John Philip Sousa.

At the Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, William G. Stewart will offer Charles B. Dillingham's original production, "The Fair Co-ed," with Hattye Fox, William G. Stewart, Edgar Halstead and other principals, also a large chorus. This attraction is a college play, that is, the scenes and characters are those of the campus and class room of one of those midwestern institutions of learning colloquially dubbed a "fresh water college" by the under-graduate boy of the venerable institutions of learning along the Atlantic coast. The title of the play indicates its chief comedy complication. Gustave Luders has written a tuneful score for "The Faid Co-ed" in which the choir work of an extraordinary male chorus is said to be wonderfully utilized. The demand for seats will unquestionably be large.

Upon winsome Miss Helene Luttrell, who plays the ingenue role in "Madame X," which Henry W. Savage will offer at the Plainfield theatre Saturday, October 21, matinee and night, the dramatic critics on many of the metropolitan papers have conferred the title of the "most beautiful blonde on the stage." Although but nineteen years old and a newcomer to the land beyond the footlights, Miss Luttrell has been much sought after by artists and photographers who quite agree with the critics that this young woman's loveliness is of a rare and distinctive type. Miss Luttrell is a Canadian girl, hailing from Toronto, and she left one of the fashionable finishing schools in that city to enter upon a professional career. During her final term at school she was awarded the gold medal annually given by the governor-general to the young woman of the Dominion demonstrating the highest proficiency in instrumental music.

NO GAME TODAY.

The fourth game in the world's championship series between the Giants and the Athletics was called off today on account of wet grounds. The National Commission ordered another postponement at 10 o'clock after the umpires had inspected Shibe Park and found that conditions would not permit the playing of the game.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

MISS KITTY WHELAN WINS TRIP CONTEST

Miss Kitty Whelan, of Brook avenue, was announced last night as the winner of the free trip to Ireland contest, conducted last week at the fair of Division No. 4, A. O. H. There were over 1,000 contestants and when the name of the lucky young woman was proclaimed by President Thomas Farrell before the large crowd which had assembled in T. A. B. hall, there was a prolonged and enthusiastic cheer. Miss Whelan is popular with a host of friends on both sides of the brook and the result could not have been more pleasing to the assemblage as a whole.

The provision of the contest stipulated if the winner did not care to take the trip the equivalent in cash would be given. This figures to about $200. Miss Whelan, who is a stenographer in the employ of the law firm of Van Winkle & Son, said today she would probably accept the money as it is impossible for her to make the trip at this time.

An informal dance was held in the hall last night in connection with the close of the contest. The attendance was very large and the affair proved a great success.

PROCTOR WINS THE FIFTH AVENUE SUIT.

Manager H. S. Sanderson, of the local playhouse, received a telegram at noon today announcing the fact that F. F. Proctor had won the legal fight for possession of the Fifth Avenue theatre, New York. The judge in Portland, Me., before whom the proceedings have been conducted, ruled against B. F. Keith in all the counts governing the lease of the property. Mr. Proctor now assumes absolute control of the theatre and will continue the style of high class vaudeville he inaugurated there before the Keith & Proctor alliance.

The suit has held the attention of the theatrical world since last spring and the decision has been awaited with much expectancy. Popular opinion decreed that Mr. Proctor should be the rightful tenant when the split came and today's ruling corroborates this belief.

If you are not registered you cannot vote on Election Day. The last day to register will be next Tuesday. Personal registration is mandatory under the new law.

Settle Brick Bill.

The suit brought by Albert Rajotte, of Dunellen, against George Weigand to recover a bill of $17 for bricks delivered to the latter at a house he was building on East Second street a year ago, was settled in the district court this morning for $11. Mr. Weigand testified that he did not use the brick, having been forbidden doing so by Building Inspector T. O. Doane. Mr. Rajotte said he had never been told of the condemnation and denied having been told to come and remove the bricks from the property.

Lectured On Mexico.

The illustrated lecture on Mexico by Howard Williams, of Philadelphia, in the High School auditorium last night, was the first of the series arranged for the winter and was attended by a good sized audience, considering the weather. The lecture was of an interesting nature and was delivered in a manner that made apparent to his hearers that Mr. Williams was speaking on a subject with which he was perfectly familiar. The slides he used as illustrations were excellent.

Colored Knights in Session.

Mayor Edwin W. Packer welcomed the delegates to the colored grand lodge of Knights of Pythias at Trinity A. M. E. church Long Branch, yesterday. The grand lodge of Pythians and grand court of Colanthe, the woman's auxiliary, will be in session until today, when there will be a parade of the uniform rank. The grand lodge has a membership of 1,800 in forty-four lodges.

Office Boy Gets Funny.

Our head office boy says that Herzog and Devore, of the Giants, were in Elizabeth last night. Of course, we "bit." They were sent to the National Biscuit Co. factory to make "Bakers" of them, he explained.

The Avondale Club.

The Avondale Club was organized last night at the home of Miss Helen Johnson, of Spooner avenue. It has twelve members and will meet fortnightly on Wednesdays to engage in the play of 500. Barton Davis is president and E. B. Hill treasurer.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The mid-week prayer meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church last night was in charge of the Sunday-school, led by the superintendent, George E. Hall, who planned the program in such a way as to make the service interesting and helpful. He selected the Beatitude as the subject of the meeting, and distributed programs containing the Beatitudes and other details. Remarks were made on the subject by the leader and those in the meeting and the large number who came out in spite of the unpleasant weather felt amply repaid. A selected choir of thirty voices led the congregation in the singing, and the features were a solo, "Not Half Has Ever Been Told," by Mrs. Ada Cuming; duet, "Saved By Grace," Mrs. Ada Cuming and Miss Adelia Runyon, and "I Shall Be Satisfied," "I Love to Tell the Story" and "What a Friend Thou Art to Me," by a quartet comprising Mrs. Ada Cuming, Miss Adelia Runyon, Wheaton S. Lowry and David M. Runyon.

PLAINFIELD'S ELKS AT BRUNSWICK TONIGHT.

Members of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks who are going to attend the presentation of the bowling trophy to the New Brunswick lodge at that place, tonight, will make the trip by special trolley instead of by auto as arranged yesterday. The special car will leave the clubhouse on Watchung avenue at 7 o'clock and will be large enough to accommodate all who wish to make the trip. After the presentation ceremonies, the visitors will be entertained with an amateur vaudeville show and dinner in the New Brunswick Elks home.

TUESDAY, OCT. 24.

If you are not registered you cannot vote on Election Day. The last day to register will be next Tuesday. Personal registration is mandatory under the new law.

Sell Martinsville Farm.

The farm, machinery, stock and household furniture of the late George W. and Mary T. VanNess, of Martinsville, was sold to James Williamson, yesterday, under the provisions of their joint will. The farm contains 111 acres and is the third Mr. Williamson has purchased recently. It completes a crescent he now owns. The price paid was $7,000. William K. Hope was the auctioneer and Walter L. Long, of Park avenue, was the administrator.

Miss Pangborn's Fifth Birthday.

Miss Sarah Louise Pangborn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A W. Pangborn, of Chatham street, entertained fifty of her little friends yesterday afternoon in honor of her fifth birthday. The young folks enjoyed themselves for several hours playing various games and in conclusion were served with supper. A birthday cake with five candles occupied the center of the prettily decorated table.

P. H. S. vs. Holy Cross.

The Holy Cross eleven will play the Plainfield High School football team on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. The game will be called at 3:15 o'clock and should be a spirited contest as the rivalry between the teams is only second to that between the high schools of the borough and city.

Notable Production Coming.

Grace LaRue will appear at the Plainfield theatre Tuesday night in a new comic opera called "Betsy." The production will be a notable one, there being a large cast and an orchestra of twenty-four pieces.

—Miss Clara Runyon, of the borough, has taken the position of stenographer in the office of W. L. Hetfield, Jr., assistant prosecutor, recently vacated by Miss Adah VanHorne, whose marriage to Raymond E. Miller took place Tuesday night.

NAIL FAMILY IN HOME POSTMASTER FLEES FATE

Emerson, Oct. 19.—Fastening his family within by nailing boards across the doors and windows of his home, and serving the postoffice in the same way, Herman Keystone, postmaster, dry goods dealer, confectioner, and one of the leading citizens of this place, disappeared Tuesday. He left a note saying that he had fled to escape the stings and arrows of outrageous fortune which had pursued him for years, and was going to try to make a living elsewhere. He promised to send for his wife and children when he was established.

Mrs. Keystone discovered when she awoke that her husband had not been home. Endeavoring to go out, she found that the door was barred by boards. She had to pry a plank from a window before she was able to secure help.

Squire Angell, who is surety for Keystone as postmaster, responded. He hurried to the postoffice and found that it, too, was boarded up. It took twenty minutes' labor with a hammer to effect an entrance. Then the letter from the vanished man was found. Efforts to locate Keystone have as yet proved unavailing. Mrs. Keystone was not inclined to blame her husband very much, and granted the forgiveness he asked in the letter.

"My husband has veen pursued by misfortune," she said. "First he failed in the feed business; then, last summer, the postoffice was robbed of $275 and he had to make that good. Last July one of his horses was killed by a train, and a month later a store at Hillsdale, in which he had an interest, was burned. I only wish he had told me he was going."

BRANCHVILLE IS IN FLOOD'S GRIP.

Wickham Dam In Danger of Being Carried Away Unless Rain Stops Soon.

Branchville, Oct. 19.—The heavy rainfall has weakened Wickham's dam, just above this place, and it is in great danger of being carried away. It is owned by Ross Wickham, of Bloomfield, and is along the outlet of Culver's Lake.

A grist mill was formerly located by the dam, but this was abandoned years ago. Unless the rain stops falling soon it is expected that the dam will not stand the strain of rushing water.

Waters from the brook which runs through the town have resulted in the drowning of fourteen hogs belonging to Martin Reed, whose pens were along the stream.

The stream is higher than it has been for years and many cellars are under several feet of water. Occupants of houses in some sections are practically marooned. They cannot get away from their homes on account of the large amount of water surrounding them.

DENIES GOVERNOR'S CHARGE.

Camden, Oct. 19.—In a statement issued by Chairman Harry Reeves, of the Camden County Republican executive committee in Camden, he takes to task Governor Wilson for the latter's declaration at Morristown last Saturday night that Camden County Republican leaders had for several years been in the habit of holding back the returns until it was ascertained how much majority was needed to elect the Republican ticket in the State.

"The matter is so absurd that it is hardly worth talking about, except that it comes from such a source," said Mr. Reeves. "The trouble is that some intelligent people, ignorant of matters political, may believe such a thing coming from one supposedly of the high character of Governor Wilson. However, as chairman of the Republican county executive committee, I challenge Governor Wilson to prove his mendacious and misleading charge, and I will join the chairman of the Democratic county executive committee in prosecuting any election officer, whether Republican or Democrat, who has been guilty of falsifying the returns."

In the statement Mr. Reeves cited a number of elections in the past years when, he declared, it would have been impossible to carry out such a scheme as the Governor charged.

WOULD END ITS CONTRACT.

Company Seeks to Sever Its Dealings With Elizabeth.

A communication was received by the Board of Fire Commissioners of Elizabeth Tuesday night from the New Jersey Telephone and Telegraph Company asking that the company be relieved from its contract at the date of its expiration, January 29, 1912. The matter will be taken up by the fire alarm committee with the Common Council.

The contract for replacing the doors of Engine Company No. 1 was given to Daniel Dippel for $328. The M. Byrnes Building Co. was the only other bidder, for the sum of $300.

Last night was set for the opening of the bids for the new fire alarm system, but as the only bid presented was that of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Company the matter was laid over until the next meeting.

STATE ACTS TO CURB TRAFFIC IN BAD CATTLE

Open defiance of the law directing the killing of tubercular cattle imported from other States, with the majority of the violations in this section, was reported to the State Commission on Tuberculosis Among Cattle at Trenton yesterday.

Chief Inspector McNabb, who made the report of violations, was directed to have eleven cows, which have reacted under the tuberculosis test, slaughtered immediately. Eight of these cows are reported to belong to Newark and Irvington dealers.

After McNabb had declared that there had been threats of physical resistance if he and his men attempted to execute the law and confiscate the cows, the board directed him to invoke the aid of sheriff's deputies if found necessary.

The board laid it down that hereafter the law must be enforced at all hazards. Every means legally available will be utilized in putting an end to the traffic.

The work of the commission is distinct from that of the State Board of Health. The commission has exclusive jurisdiction to deal with imported cattle. Under the present code, the State Board of Health cannot exercise authority over cattle shipped from outside the State into the State. The State Health board's power is limited even over domestic cattle.—Newark News.

NEW $1,250,000 MASONIC TEMPLE AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, Oct. 19.—In the presence of a great assemblage of distinguished Mason, representing all sections of the country, the cornerstone of the new temple of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Free Masonry for the Southern jurisdiction of the United States, was laid yesterday. The grand lodge of the District of Columbia conducted the ceremonies.

Addresses were made by James D. Richardson, sovereign grand commander of the Scottish Rite in the Southern jurisdiction. Rabbi Samon and Rev. Earle Ellfley took part in the ceremonies. The new temple, it is asserted, will be the finest of its kind in the world and will cost $1,250,000.

MAN LOSES HIS MEMORY.

Knows His Name, But Has Forgotten His Address.

Paterson, Oct. 19.—Physicians at the General Hospital are puzzled over the identity of a man who has been at the institution over a week suffering from what is believed to be a form of amnesia. The man says he is James Brown, but cannot give any information that would lead to the location of his family or relatives.

The man applied for treatment, saying he had taken carbolic acid on a street car. He said he had wandered about Newark and, unable to secure employment, decided to commit suicide. The physicians, however, could find no trace of acid.

"Brown" has grown well and healthy and appears very much at home. The physicians believe that "Brown" was probably affected by recent illness. He is about fifty-five years of age, weighs 130 pounds, is five feet seven inches in height, has a slightly gray moustache, unusually heavy eyebrows, blue eyes and wears nose glasses.

PRESENTS INDICTMENTS.

Union County Jury Hands Up Batch to Court.

Nineteen indictments, mostly on cases sent up from the lower courts of the county, were handed in by the Grand Jury to Judge Edward S. Atwater Tuesday afternoon at Elizabeth.

It is understood that none of the indictments had to do with the excise situation in Elizabeth, but it is expected that the jury will soon take up the situation in that city.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 22, 1911.

Topic.—Lessons I have learned from things.—Jer. xiii, 1-10; Matt. xxii, 15-22. (An object meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Teaching by objects is a very common method of instruction today. It is the underlying principle of the kindergarten and is being used more and more in the instruction and education of adults both along academic and religious lines. On the lecture platform, in the classroom and in the pulpit sight as well as hearing is being utilized in imparting knowledge as never before, and it needs no demonstration to convince us that truth in the concrete is more interesting and impressive than truth in the abstract. Nor need we reason upon the fact that everything in life is capable of teaching useful and important lessons. The poet has well said that there are—

Sermons in stones,
Books in running brooks
And good in everything.

We cannot therefore spend too much time in cultivating the powers of observation and deduction that we may learn lessons from things.

The Bible is particularly apt in using object lessons as a method of instruction. In the Old Testament we have many illustrations of the striking presentation of truth through objects, and Christ, "who spake as never man spake," fully recognized the usefulness of objects in presenting moral and spiritual truth. The book of nature was frequently used by Him as a textbook on ethics and practical theology. In the flowers, the trees, the fields, He saw many useful lessons, and we may do well to hear God speaking to us in all things that He has made.

1. The lesson from the linen girdle. In the type of a linen girdle God taught His ancient people that He would punish them for their unfaithfulness and unprofitableness. As the girdle was to cleave to the loins of a man, so Israel was to cleave unto God, but they were faithless; hence God instructed Jeremiah to hide a linen girdle in the Euphrates river. Afterward the prophet found that it was marred and unprofitable, and God declared that He would thus mar "the pride of Judah and the great pride of Jerusalem." The nation had been sinful and faithless, and by this object lesson God taught that it would be punished. Sin always mars the human life and makes it unprofitable to God and brings forth His disapproval and punishment. Let us learn the lesson that we should cling to God and not to sin, lest we, too, should be the objects of His displeasure and punishment.

2. The lesson from the Roman coin. By this object Christ teaches that supreme allegiance and obedience are due to God. Trying to entangle Christ in His talk, His enemies asked Him whether it were lawful to render tribute to Caesar. If He had said "no" they would have charged Him with disloyalty to the Roman government, and had He said "yes" without qualification they would have declared that He was disloyal to His own nation. Making them say that the image on a coin for which He had asked was Caesar's, He discomfited them by saying, "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." The coin bore Caesar's image and superscription. It was his and should be rendered unto him. There could be no disloyalty to any one else in giving unto Caesar what belonged to him. But this was not all. They bore the image of God and should therefore consecrate their life to Him. Supreme loyalty in life is due to God. All duties of life are to be faithfully performed both over all and above all. We belong to God and should faithfully serve Him. Love to God is the first and greatest commandment, and it is impossible to rightfully perform the duties of citizenship and other duties without first being obedient to Him.

BIBLE READINGS.

Prov. iii, 11-18; vi, 6-11; xxx, 24-33; Eccl. xii, 1-6; Matt. xiii, 1-9; xxxi, 33; Mal. xi, 12-14, with 20-23; Luke xv, 1-10; John x, 9; xv, 1-8; Rom. xi, 12-27; I Cor. xi, 23-26.

Proud of Christian Endeavor.

We all have a right to be proud of what Christian Endeavor has accomplished during its thirty years.

It has filled young people as never before with a zeal for religion.

It has opened their lips in testimony.
It has opened their eyes to the Bible.
It has opened their purses to give.
It has opened their hands to serve.
It has opened their hearts to love.
It has opened their lives to missions.

We are proud of all this because it is not our work, but the work of God's Holy Spirit moving among His children.

If we were not proud of Christian Endeavor we should be ashamed of ourselves.

PLAN LARGE.

Dare a great task. Christian Endeavorer! Thy pledge says, "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength" and since Christ is might and trust is absorbent thou oughtest to be willing to venture on broadest undertakings for the kingdom of Thy King. —John R. Clements.

BAR ON ELIZABETH '400' BRIDGE WHIST

Consternation reigns today among Elizabeth's "four hundred," and men prominent in county and city affairs who are not averse to playing a little game of "penny ante" after business hours are trembling in their shoes over an order issued Tuesday by C. Addison Swift, prosecutor of the pleas of Union county. Under the direction of the Grand Jury, which is now in session, the prosecutor has ordered the police to prevent the holding of bridge whist parties and prize euchres, as well as all private card games for stakes.

The Young Men's Catholic League of St. Patrick's church had advertised a prize euchre for Tuesday, but the members were notified by the police that the prize giving would have to be eliminated.

ANSWERS ARE FILED IN DENTISTS' CASE

Five of the so-called "regular" officers of the New Jersey State Dental Society have filed answers in the Court of Chancery to the proceedings instituted by the "insurgent" faction which is seeking to gain control of the affairs of the society. The "insurgents" failed in their efforts to obtain a mandatory injunction from Vice Chancellor Walker compelling the officers of the "old guard" to surrender the property of the society in their possession and the filing of the answers is anticipatory of the final hearing to which the case will now go.

The avowed purpose of the suit brought in the name of the society was to determine the viladity of the rival officers chosen at Asbury Park last July. The defendants, however, deny the right of the insurgents to bring the proceedings on behalf of the association, and, therefore, challenge the jurisdiction of the court to pass upon the question involved.

The defendants filing answers are Dr. Charles A. Meeker, of Newark, for many years secretary of the association; Dr. Herbert S. Sutphen, assistant secretary; Dr. Henry A. Hull, treasurer; Dr. Ella M. Hind, assistant treasurer, and Moore Stevens, chairman of the committee on membership.

JOURNEYS FAR TO MARRY.

Cranford Man Weds Virginian Divorcee and Evades Laws.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19.—Percival Walker Miller, a wealthy manufacturer of Cranford, N. J., and Mrs. Mary Yarbrough McClung, a pretty divorcee from Abbeville, S. C., were married here Tuesday by the Rev. Dr. J. Calvin Stewart, one of the leading Presbyterian ministers of Richmond, to whom the bride brought a letter of introduction from the Rev. Harry Pratt, her pastor, of Abbeville.

Mrs. McClung arrived Monday, accompanied by her two sisters and a brother. Mr. Miller also arrived from the North about the same time. Tuesday the license was procured. The marriage was performed soon afterward at the home of Dr. Stewart. Mr. Miller is a native of Charleston, S. C. This is his second venture on the sea of matrimony. Mrs. Miller No. 2 comes from one of the best families in South Carolina. The fact that the laws of South Carolina do not recognize divorce is said to be the reason she journeyed far from home to wed a second time.

Mr. Stark was for the past few years foreman of the tap department at the Singer Manufacturing Company, but before that for twenty-two years had conducted a liquor establishment at First street and Elizabeth avenue.

Mr. Stark was a member of Arthur Kull Conclave, Heptasophs; Harmony Lodge, No. 99, K. of P.; Liederkrantz, Kranken unt Verein der Deutschen Machinists, of New York, and the Deutschen Machinists, Verein, of Elizabeth. Besides his widow Mr. Stark is survived by a daughter, Mrs. John Utsinger, and a son, August Stark. One grandchild also survives. The funeral was held from his late home this afternoon at 2 o'clock and the body will later be incinerated at Rose Hill Crematory.

By JACK LONDON

Author of "The Call of the Wild," "White Fang," "Martin Eden," etc.

(Copyright, 1910, by the MacMillan Company.)

"If I was you, Daylight, I wouldn't mush today," Joe Hines counseled, coming in from consulting the spirit thermometer outside the door. "We're in for a good cold snap. It's sixty-two below now, and still goin' down. Better wait till she breaks."

Daylight laughed, and the old sourdoughs around him laughed.

"It's a thousand miles to Dyea," Bettles announced, climbing on the chair and supporting his swaying body by an arm passed around Daylight's neck. "It's a thousand miles, I'm saying, an' most of the train unbroke, but I bet any chechaquo—anything he wants—that Daylight makes Dyea in thirty days."

"That's an average of over thirty-three miles a day," Doc Watson warned, "and I've traveled some my self. A blizzard on Chilcoot would tie him up for a week."

"Yep," Bettles retorted, "but Daylight'll do the second thousand back again on end in thirty days, sure. I got five thousand dollars that says he, and clean the blizzard."

To emphasize his remarks, he pulled out a gold sack the size of a bologna sausage and thumped it down on the bar. Doc Watson thumped his own sack alongside.

"Hold on!" Daylight cried. "Bettles' right, and I want in on this. "I bet five hundred that sixty days from now I pull up at the Tivoli door with the Dyea mail."

A skeptical roar went up, and a dozen men pulled out their sacks.

"Of course he'll make it," Kearns whispered in Bettles' ear. "And there's five hundred Daylight's back in sixty days," he added aloud.

Billy Rawlins closed with the wager, and Bettles hugged Kearns ecstatically.

"By Yupiter, I ban take that bet," Olaf Henderson said, dragging Daylight away from Bettles and Kearns.

"Winner pays!" Daylight shouted, closing the wager. "And I'm sure going to win, and sixty days is a long time between drinks, so I pay now. Name your brand, you hochinoos! Name your brand!"

Somebody opened the outer door. A vague gray light filtered in.

"Burning Daylight, Burning Daylight," some one called warningly.

Daylight paused for nothing, heading for the door and pulling down his ear-flaps. Kama stood outside by the sled, a long, narrow affair, sixteen inches wide and seven and a half feet in length, its slatted bottom raised six inches above the steel-shod runners. On it, lashed with thongs of moose hide, were the light canvas bags that contained the mail, and the food and gear for dogs and men. In front of it, in a single line, lay curled five frost-rimmed dogs. They were huskies, matched in size and color, all unusually large and all gray. From their cruel jaws to their bushy tails they were as like as peas in their likeness to timber wolves. Wolves they were, domesticated, it was true, but wolves in appearance and in all their characteristics. On top the sled load, thrust under the lashings and ready for immediate use, were two pairs of snowshoes. Daylight was saying good-by to those who clustered around him. The Virgin wanted to kiss him, and, addled slightly though he was with the whisky, he saw his way out without compromising with the apron-string. He kissed the Virgin, but he kissed the other three women with equal partiality. He pulled on his long mittens, roused the dogs to their feet, and took his place at the gee-pole.

"Mush, you beauties!" he cried.

The animals threw their weights against their breastbands on the instant, crouching low to the snow and digging in their claws. They whined eagerly, and before the sled had gone half a dozen lengths both Daylight and Kama (in the rear) were running to keep up. And so, running, man and dogs dipped over the bank and down to the frozen bed of the Yukon, and in the gray light were gone. On the river, where was a packed trail and where snowshoes were unnecessary, the dogs averaged six miles an hour. To keep up with them, the two men were compelled to run. Daylight and Kama relieved each other regularly at the gee-pole, for here was the hard work of steering the flying sled and of keeping in advance of it. The man relieved dropped behind the sled, occasionally leaping upon it and resting. As if through a wall, Daylight had passed from the hum and roar of the Tivoli into another world—a world of silence and immobility. Nothing stirred. The Yukon slept under a coat of ice three feet thick.

The cold snap continued. Only men of iron kept the trail at such low temperatures, and Kama and Daylight were picked men of their races. But Kama knew the other was the better man, and thus, at the start, he was himself foredoomed to defeat. Not that he slackened his effort or willingness by the slightest degree, but that he was beaten by the burden he carried in his mind. His attitude toward Daylight was worshipful. Stoical, taciturn, proud of his physical prowess, he found all these qualities incarnated in his white companion.

CHAPTER III.

At Sixty Mile they restocked provisions, added a few pounds of letters to their load, and held steadily on. From Forty Mile they had unbroken trail, and they could look forward only to unbroken trail clear to Dyea. Daylight stood it magnificently, but the killing pace was beginning to tell on Kama. His pride kept his mouth shut, but the result of the chilling of his lungs in the cold snap could not be concealed. They traveled till ten o'clock the night they reached Selkirk, and at six next morning they plunged ahead into the next stretch of wilderness of nearly five hundred miles that lay between Selkirk and Dyea. There was no let-up in his pace. Twelve hours a day, six in the twilight and six in the dark, they toiled on the trail. Three hours were consumed in cooking, repairing harnesses, and making and breaking camp, and the remaining nine hours dogs and men slept as if dead.

The time came when Kama was unable to go in the lead and break trail, and it was proof that he was far gone when he permitted Daylight to toil all day at the heavy snowshoe work. Lake by lake they crossed the string of lakes from Marsh to Linderman, and began the ascent of Chilcoot. By all rights Daylight should have camped below the last pitch of the pass at the dim end of day; but he kept on and over and down to Sheep Camp, while behind him raged a snow storm that would have delayed him twenty-four hours. This last excessive strain broke Kama completely. In the morning he could not travel. At five, when called, he sat up after a struggle, groaned, and sank back again. Daylight did the camp work of both, harnessed the dogs, and, when ready for the start, rolled the helpless Indian in all three sleeping robes and lashed him on top of the sled. The going was good; they were on their last lap; and he raced the dogs down through Dyea canyon and along the hard-packed trail that led to Dyea post. And running still, Kama groaning on top the load, and Daylight leaping at the gee-pole to avoid going under the runners of the flying sled, they arrived at Dyea by the sea. True to his promise, Daylight did not stop. An hour's time saw the sled loaded with the ingoing mail and grub, fresh dogs harnessed and a fresh Indian engaged. Kama never spoke from the time of his arrival till the moment Daylight, ready to depart, stood beside him to say good-by. They shook hands.

"You kill um dat damn Indian," Kama said. "Savvee, Daylight? You kill um."

"He'll sure last as far as Pelly," Daylight grinned.

Kama shook his head doubtfully, and rolled over on his side, turning his back in token of farewell.

A crowd filled the Tivoli—the old crowd that had seen Daylight depart two months before; for this was the night of the sixtieth day, and opinion was divided as ever as to whether or not he would compass the achievement. At ten o'clock bets were still being made, though the odds rose, bet by bet, against his success. Down in her heart the Virgin believed he had failed, yet she made a bet of twenty ounces with Charley Bates, against forty ounces, that Daylight would arrive before midnight.

She it was who heard the first yelps of the dogs.

"Listen!" she cried. "It's Daylight!"

There was a general stampede for the door; but when the double storm-doors were thrown wide open, the crowd fell back. They heard the eager whining of dogs, the snap of a dog-whip and the voice of Daylight crying encouragement as the weary animals capped all they had done by dragging the sled in over the wooden floor. They came in with a rush, and with them rushed in the frost, a visible vapor of smoking white, through which their heads and backs showed, as they strained in the harness, till they had all the seeming of swimming in a river. Behind them, at the gee-pole, came Daylight, hidden to the knees by the swirling frost through which he appeared to wade. He was the same old Daylight, withal lean and tired-looking, and his black eyes were sparkling and flashing brighter than ever. His parka of cotton drill hooded him like a monk, and fell in straight lines to his knees. Grimed and scorched by camp-smoke and fire, the garment in itself told the story of his trip. A two-months' beard covered his face; and the beard, in turn, was matted with the ice of his breathing through the long seventy-mile run.

He experienced a thrill of surprise as the roar of welcome went up and as every familiar detail of the Tivoli greeted his vision—the long bar and the array of bottles, the gambling games, the big stove, the weigher at the gold-scales, the musicians, the men and women, the Virgin, Celia, and Nellie, Dan MacDonald, Bettles, Billy Rawlins, Olaf Henderson, Doc Watson—all of them. It was just as he had left it, and in all seeming it might well be the very day he had left The sixty days of incessant travel through the white wilderness suddenly telescoped, and had no existence in time. They were a moment, an incident. He had plunged out and into them through the wall of silence, and back through the wall of silence he had plunged, apparently the next instant, and into the roar and turmoil of the Tivoli.

He drew a deep breath and cried: "The winner pays, and I'm the winner, ain't I? Surge up, you-all Malemutes and Siwashes, and name your poison! There's your Dyea mail, straight from Salt Water, and no horn-swogglin about it! Cast the lashings adrift, you-all, and wade into it!"

A dozen pairs of hands were at the sled-lashings, when the young Le Barge Indian, bending at the same task, suddenly and limply straightened up. In his eyes was a great surprise. He stared about him wildly, for the thing he was undergoing was new to him. He was profoundly struck by an unguessed limitation. He shook as with a palsy, and he gave at the knees, slowly sinking down to fall suddenly across the sled and to know the smashing blow of darkness across his consciousness.

"Exhaustion," said Daylight. "Take him off and put him to bed, some of you-all. He's sure a good Indian."

A few minutes later, Daylight was whirling around the dance-floor, waltzing with the Virgin. And small wonder it was that the Virgin yielded herself to his arms, as they danced dance after dance, and sick at heart at the knowledge that he found nothing in her more than a good friend and an excellent dancer. Small consolation it was to know that he never loved any woman. She was sick with love of him, and he danced with her as he would dance with any woman, as he would dance with a man who was a good dancer and upon whose arm was tied a handkerchief to conventionalize him into a woman.

At one in the morning he saw Elijah Davis herding Henry Finn and Joe Hines, the lumber-jack, toward the door. Daylight interfered.

"Where are you-all going?" he demanded, attempting to draw them to the bar.

"Bed," Elijah Davis answered.

"Got to," Joe Hines added apologetically. "We're mushing out in the mornin'."

Daylight still detained them.

"Where to? What's the excitement?"

"No excitement," Elijah explained. "We're just a-goin' to play your hunch, an' tackle the Upper Country. Don't you want to come along?"

"I sure do," Daylight affirmed.

But the question had been put in fun, and Elijah ignored the acceptance.

"We're tacklin' the Stewart," he went on. "Al Mayo told me he seen some likely lookin' bars first time he come down the Stewart, and we're goin' to sample 'em while the river's froze. You listen, Daylight, an' mark my words, the time's comin' when winter diggin's 'll be all the go. There'll be men in them days that'll laugh at our summer scratchin' an' ground-wallerin'."

Elijah laughed, gathered his two partners up, and was making a second attempt to reach the door.

"Hold on," Daylight called. "I sure mean it."

The three men turned back suddenly upon him, in their faces surprise, delight, and incredulity.

"G'wan, you're foolin'," said Finn, the other lumber-jack, a quiet, steady, Wisconsin man.

"There's my dawgs and sled," Daylight answered. "That'll make two teams and halve the loads; though we-all 'll have to travel easy for a spell, for them dawgs is sure tired."

The three men were overjoyed, but still a trifle incredulous.

"Now look here," Joe Hines blurted out, "none of your foolin', Daylight. We mean business. Will you come?" Daylight extended his hand and shook.

CHAPTER IV.

This time the trail was easier. It was better packed, and they were not carrying mail against time. At Forty Mile they laid over two days for the sake of the dogs, and at Sixty Mile Daylight's team was left with the trader. Unlike Daylight, after the terrible run from Selkirk to Circle City, they had been unable to recuperate on the back trail. So the four men pulled on from Sixty Mile with a fresh team of dogs on Daylight's sled. The following night they camped in the cluster of islands at the mouth of the Stewart. Daylight talked town sites, and, though the others laughed at him, he staked the whole maze of high, wooded island.

"Just supposing the big strike does come on the Stewart," he argued. "Mebbe you-all 'll be in on it, and then again mebbe you-all won't. But I sure will. You-all 'd better reconsider and go in with me on it."

But they were stubborn.

"You're as bad as Harper and Joe Ladue," said Joe Hines. "They're always at that game, too, and that big flat jest below the Klondike and under Moosehide Mountain? Well, the recorder at Forty Mile was tellin' me they staked that not a month ago—The Harper & Ladue Town Site. Ha! Ha! Ha!"

Elijah and Finn joined in his laughter; but Daylight was gravely in earnest.

"There she is!" he cried. "The hunch is working! It's in the air, I tell you-all! What'd they-all stake the big flat for if they-all didn't get the hunch? Wish I'd staked it."

The regret in his voice was provocative of a second burst of laughter.

"Laugh, dang you, laugh! Why your eyes ain't open yet. You-all are a bunch of little mewing kittens. I tell you-all if that strikes come on Klondike, Harper and Ladue will be millionaires. And if it comes on Stewart, you-all watch the Elam Harnish town site boom. In them days, when you-all come around makin' poor mouths . . ." He heaved a sigh of resignation. "Well, I suppose I'll have to give you-all a grub-stake or soup, or something or other."

In the meantime there was naught to show for it but hunch. But it was coming. As he would stake his last ounce on a good poker hand, so he staked his life and effort on the hunch that the future held in store a big strike on the Upper River. So he and his three companions, with dogs, and sleds, and snowshoes, toiled up the frozen breast of the Stewart, toiled on and on through the white wilderness where the unending stillness was never broken by the voices of men, the stroke of an ax, or the distant crack of a rifle. Gold they found on the bars, but not in paying quantities, and in the following May they returned to Sixty Mile.

Ten days later, Harper and Joe Ladue arrived at Sixty Mile, and Daylight, strong to obey the hunch that had come to him, traded a third interest in his Stewart town site for a third interest in theirs on the Klondike. They had faith in the Upper Country, and Harper left down-stream, with a raft-load of supplies, to start a small post at the mouth of the Klondike.

"Why don't you tackle Indian River, Daylight?" Harper advised, at parting. "There's whole slathers of creeks and draws draining in up there, and somewhere gold just crying to be found. That's my hunch. There's a big strike coming, and Indian River ain't going to be a million miles away."

"And the place is swarming with moose," Joe Ladue added. "Bob Henderson's up there somewhere, been there three years now, swearing something big is going to happen, living off'n straight moose and prospecting around like a crazy man."

TELLS OF STRUGGLES WITH HER RAZOR-ARMED WOOER.

Elizabeth, Oct. 19.—Josephine Grundo, who lives at 614 Cameron place, informed the police late Tuesday afternoon that Pasquale Merto, of 821 Pearl street, came to her house and commanded her to marry him. When she refused, she says, he drew a razor and attempted to slash her. She grabbed the weapon, and in the struggle the blade was broken. The man then went away.

THIEVES MAKE HAUL AT SOMERVILLE HOTEL

The city police were asked this morning by the Somerville authorities to be on the lookout for two men who registered at the Annex Hotel in that town under the names of John Jacobs and H. H. Goodman. During the night the pair, the Somerville police say, ransacked a number of rooms including that of the proprietor and made off with a gold watch and chain, several pieces of valuable jewelry and small articles including three razors.

This morning they were found to be missing and it is thought that they might come to this city. A good description of the men was obtained making their escape more difficult.

MUSEUM COMMISSION HEAD'S GIFT DISPLAYED

The vacancy in the presidency of the New Jersey State Museum Commission has been filled by the election of Dr. Calvin N. Kendall, the new State Commissioner of Education. The vacancy was caused by the legislating out of office of Professor Charles J. Baxter, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. By virtue of this office Professor Baxter was a member of the Museum commission and had been president some time. Dr. Kendall, as the new head of the educational board, succeeded Mr. Baxter on this commission and was unanimously elected president.

It was reported at the meeting that the new case for the display of the rare collection of continental currency presented to the museum a few months ago by President Ernest R. Ackerman, of the State Senate, will be ready in a week or so. As soon as the case is delivered to the museum S. R. Morse, the curator, will have the display prepared. The case will be an elegant one, showing the rare old money to fine advantage. It is one of the finest collections in the country and will be an exceedingly valuable addition to the museum. The case is of a special pattern designed by Curator Morse and the money will be so displayed that a small inscription will describe each bill. Thus the exhibit will be of great historical interest.

Mr. Morse has recently secured about 100 new birds for the museum, some of them very rare. All the specimens represent species that formerly made their habitat in New Jersey. The museum is greatly over crowded and the commission considered the question of asking the Legislature for an appropriation to enlarge it. It is one of the places always visited by sight seers in the city as well as a place of historical value to students.

The Museum Commission is composed of President Ackerman, Speaker Kenny, of the Assembly; Dr. Kendall, State Geologist Henry Kummel, and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, president of the State Board of Agriculture. All were present at the meeting.

CRUSADE AGAINST FALSE WEIGHTS.

William L. Waldron, the newly appointed State Superintendent of Weights and Measures, is to make a Statewide crusade against the users of false weights and measures. Mr. Waldron is to have three assistants to help him in his work and they will be appointed early next month after the Civil Service examinations for the places have been held. The new superintendent says:

"Every merchant can rest assured that he will be treated fairly, but no consideration will be given to any one who seeks deliberately to violate the law. Any dealer who, after receiving proper notification, has in his possession any defective weight or measuring apparatus need expect no second warning."

Rev. Thomas Francis, of Jersey City, will conduct his series of Bible lessons tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the church at Duer street and Craig place. The subject of the study will be the first chapter of the Book of Revelations. All Bible students are cordially invited to be present.

WOMAN COMMISSION OF STATE EDUCATION

With the idea of suggesting to Dr. Calvin N. Kendall, the State Superintendent of Education, that he appoint a woman as one of the four assistant commissioners of the department, a delegation of representative women of New Jersey waited on Dr. Kendall at Trenton yesterday afternoon. This assistant, if a woman is appointed, will have charge of the division of elementary schools.

The delegation was headed by Mrs. C. B. Alexander, of Castle Point, Hoboken, and the women pointed out to Dr. Kendall their reasons for believing that the supervisor of elementary schools should be one of their sex. They said that a woman would represent more effectively than a man the problems which are so near to the school and home life. She would be the medium of reaching the mother and the child, and according to the speakers of the delegation thousands of women throughout New Jersey were in favor of one of their number being selected.

Mrs. Joseph M. Middleton, of Trenton, represented the Federation of Women's Clubs, of which she is secretary, and she said that the members of the Federation were unanimous for the idea. While the suffrage clubs of the State have strongly endorsed the movement, the women say it can not in any sense be considered a suffrage movement.

The Daughters of the Revolution, the W. C. T. U. organizations of the State, the Federation of Women's Clubs and all female organizations have sent petitions to Dr. Kendall asking that a women be appointed. The conference of yesterday was at the request of Dr. Kendall, who invited the women to call. No names were suggested for the place.

FOR SMALL BOARD

Comparisons as an Argument Against a Change in Union County.

HOW PLAN WORKS ELSEWHERE.

Figures Of Cost In Passaic and Middlesex, Where There Are Small Boards As Compared With Union County.

Comparisons may be odious as one William Shakespeare once observed but when it comes to a discussion of the relative merits of a large or small board of freeholders for a county they are valuable to the voter. In Union county the voters will be called on to decide at the general election on November 7 whether they want the present board abolished and a small one, such as is to be found in Middlesex and Passaic counties, substituted. Here is some food for thought served up in "comparison" form:

CHILDREN MUST KEEP OFF STREETS AT NIGHT

The city police have been instructed by Mayor Moy to send home all small children found on the streets after 8 o'clock at night. When asked regarding the instructions and the reason for issuing them his Honor said: "When passing through the city streets at night, I have frequently noticed many children whose size and age make it unwise for them to be about at such late hours as I have seen them, and this order is merely to prevent them being exposed to the many dangers, physically and mentally, to be encountered in the city streets late at night.

"It is a matter of regret," said the Mayor, "that parents are so indifferent regarding the welfare of these little ones that they do not keep them at home, but we can keep them off the streets and thereby possibly prevent the forming of habits that in later years would act to the child's detriment. It is not a curfew law but only one of common sense for the little ones' good.

TALKS ON HINDUISM HEARD BY BAPTISTS.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held yesterday following an all day sewing meeting. Mrs. A. E. Vail, president, was in the chair. After the reading of the treasurer's report, which showed a gratifying condition, it was decided to support a Bible woman in China and also in India in addition to the extensive work the society is doing in Africa.

Interesting papers were read on Hinduism by Mrs. Tennant and Mrs. Charles VanWinkle. Mrs. Manley sang a solo and read a paper, "Call From the Homeland." A paper on current events was given by Mrs. A. E. Hellyer. The meeting was brought to a close by prayer offered by Mrs. St. John Fitch.

From Police Blotter.

William Seary and Charles Williams, both colored, were arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. They were arrested separaately by Patrolman Nolan, down and out from the effects of drink. Sentence in each case was suspended with a reprimand.

CRASHES INTO WAGON ON WAY TO A FIRE.

An idea of what could easily happen, owing to the congested condition of East Second street, when the fire apparatus is being rushed to a blaze, was given shortly before noon today when the hook and ladder, responding to an alarm from box 47, collided with a grocery wagon, the rear wheels of which stood well out in the roadway. The driver of the wagon had merely pulled his horse's head towards the gutter, leaving the wagon standing at a sharp angle from the curb. The driver of the apparatus saw that the result of the collision was not serious and continued on his way. The grocery wagon had disappeared when the truck came back to quarters, and no one could be found who could tell to whom it belonged.

The fire was as trifling as was the collision, but like the latter could easily have had serious results. It is supposed that the children of Frank Newman, of Prescott place, while at play at home set fire to a chair. Before it was discovered the flames had spread, making it impossible to carry the chair outdoors. One tank of chemicals put out the blaze after the firemen's arrival.

GET BOWLERS' CUP

Presentation of Elks League Prize Made to New Brunswick Lodge Team

GREAT CROWD WAS ON HAND.

Former Governor Stokes, Judge Daly and Others Speak—All the League Teams Attend the Celebration.

Interest in the Elks Bowling League was manifested last night at New Brunswick where pinners from all the lodges on the circuit had gathered to assist at the presentation of last year's trophy to New Brunswick Lodge, No. 324, B. P. O. E., its team having captured the prize, a silver loving cup, by winning the largest number of games.

The Plainfield delegation, nearly 100 strong, went by special trolley and in automobiles. Other lodges represented were Jersey City, Hoboken, Elizabeth, Rahway, New York, Paterson, Newark and Somerville.

The presentation speech was made by Miron Ernst, of Jersey City lodge, and the trophy was accepted on behalf of the victors by Past Exalted Ruler Edward Burt, president of the New Brunswick Board of Aldermen. Following the speech of acceptance the team was called forward and each of the eight men whose efforts had brought the cup to New Brunswick was presented with a handsome watch fob in original design indicating its significance. On the reverse side was an inscription chronicling the event and giving the man's name. The men comprising the team are Walter Burton, John V. Harkins, Charles Greenwald, William E. Hart, J. C. Hirsch, M. A. Hogarty, J. L. Carberry and J. A. McClosky Past Exalted Ruler William Everson made the presentation.

Following this formality an entertainment was provided. In the musical features the home talent was assisted by the Plainfield lodge quartette composed of John V. Todd, Elmer D. Cutting, Harry Blimm and William G. Smith. Others giving their talents to the success of the affair were John Campbell, Charles Ward, Joseph Denny and James Stewart. Judge Peter F. Daly, of the Middlesex County Circuit Court; former Governor Edward C. Stokes, Mayor John J. Morrison and Edward Radel made informal speeches. Exalted Ruler Edward Space, of the New Brunswick lodge, presided.

After presenting the cup, Mr. Ernst announced that the league trophy for this year would be offered by Joseph Perlmutter, of Jersey City lodge. Judge Daly was authorized to announce that Edward Radel, of New Brunswick lodge, would also offer a prize to the individual bowler making the highest average. It is expected that a high average team prize will also be offered before the tournament gets under way November 14, when a game is scheduled between Plainfield and New Brunswick pinners on Walter's alleys.

GEORGE ADE'S "FAIR CO-ED" AT THE THEATRE TONIGHT.

William G. Stewart will offer Chas. B. Dillingham's original production, "The Fair Co-ed," at the Plainfield theatre tonight, and the company will be sure of a most cordial greeting. George Ade is responsible for the book of "The Fair Co-ed" and long ago pleaded guilty to the authorship of "The College Widow," while Gustave Luders wrote the music for this play and also for "The Prince of Pilsen."

Hattye Fox will play the principal part of Cynthia Bright and in the cast is William G. Stewart and Edgar Halstead. The entire company includes some sixty people and all of the scenery and accessories are carried by the company. Fun, music, dancing and bits from college life predominate throughout the three acts and possibly no better entertainment will be offered this season than "The Fair Co-ed."

WILSON DRAWS CROWD IN NORTH PLAINFIELD

A crowd of fully 300 people waited patiently at Somerset and Chatham streets, this morning, for the purpose of hearing Governor Wilson make an address. He was scheduled to arrive by auto at 10 o'clock, but it was thirty-five minutes later before his car hove in sight. The executive was given a hearty cheer as he stepped to the porch of the Chatham hotel and immediately began a brief address.

The remarks of the Governor, as a whole, were akin to the main points of his address at the Plainfield theatre last night. He opened with a few pleasantries and then asked the voters point blank if they wanted the Democratic party to continue the good work it had commenced, or not.

"We have given you a law that brings honest votes to the polls," he said, "and it is up to you to either aid us in building the framework to the foundation we have started or let it be for naught. The Democrats have a new party and new leaders, but you will notice that the Republicans have the same old crowd, the crowd that fooled you and fooled you until they made fools of you. I don't care if a voter is Republican or Democrat, if he thinks he will vote the Democratic ticket this fall."

As the Governor finished speaking he was presented with a huge bunch of beautiful chrysanthemums by Mrs. Guy H. Peck, of Park place. They were accepted with a smile and word of thanks, after which handshaking was in order for several minutes. There were a score of women in the crowd who received special recognition by the State head. A baby held up by its fond mother received a handshake and a pat on the head that it will be proudly told about in years to come.

The Governor's party, which included several of the Somerset county candidates, continued on to Watchung after the borough address and another halt was made in front of the schoolhouse at that place. Through the courtesy of E. M. French, the Governor used his car in touring Somerset county.

EXCHANGE CAUSES FUN AT PASTOR'S RECEPTION

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey held their first "at home," at Warren chapel, last night, the affair being in the nature of an "exchange social" and entertainment. Perhaps the feature was the "exchange" idea carried out in the distribution of a large number of packages. Each person brought something of unknown value and the packages were placed on a table. Later each person was given a package by Charles Montfort, and this caused no end of fun for no one knew what the package contained and the scramble to "exchange" was mirth-provoking.

During the evening there was a fine program, including piano solos by Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, who rendered "Polonaise No. 1," Chopin; "Murmuring Zephyrs," Adolph Jensen and "Fire-Fly;" also soprano solos by Mrs. Elizabeth Boyd Edgar, who has an exceptionally sweet voice. She sang "Dawn," Leconi; "The Day Is Gone," Margaret Lang; "In a Garden," Hawley, and "A Bowl of Roses," Clarke. Mrs. George H. Campbell then entertained with a number of amusing stories of the Southern dialect type, that convulsed the audience with laughter. This concluded the program and then all marched to the parlors for the distribution of packages.

Mr. and Mrs. McKelvey were assisted in receiving by Mrs. J. W. Gavett, Mrs. R. O. Stewart, Mrs. Henry Bishop, Mrs. John Higgins and Mrs. John Schenck. The refreshment committee comprised Mrs. William Demarest, Mrs. George Hoagland, Mrs. William Newmiller, Mrs. Andrew Stiglitz and Mrs. Gibson Smith.

Tea For Miss Serrell.

An afternoon tea was given in honor of Miss Minnie B. Serrell, of Union street, by Mrs. J. E. Briggs at Riverdale-on-the-Hudson, yesterday afternoon, during which Miss Serrell exhibited her leather, velvet and tapestry work, also handbags, card cases and table mats. It was a most successful affair. Miss Serrell will give an exhibition at her home, October 27-28.

Special Army Meeting.

There will be a meeting of special importance at the Salvation Army tomorrow night, conducted by Major and Mrs. Caslet, divisional officers for New York city and a large part of New Jersey. The indoor meeting will be preceded by an open-air service at Madison avenue and West Front street. Both services will be conducted by the major and his wife. The public is invited.

HITS COUNCILMEN

Democratic City Chairman Calls City Fathers Treatment of Mayor Scandal.

MR. ELLIS WAS "TURNED DOWN"

The City's Executive Had Appointed Him For Position But the Common Council Refused a Confirmation.

LeRoy J. Ellis, as president of the Plainfield Democratic Club, opened the mass meeting at The Plainfield theatre last night and in the course of his brief remarks accepted the opportunity to ask the voters to support him in his candidacy for member of the Board of Education. At the same time he severely criticized the Common Council for its treatment of Mayor G. W. V. Moy, which he declared to be "almost a scandal."

"We elected a man of high ideals and a sense of honor to the Mayoralty, and he has been confronted with a Council that has practiced peanut politics. That body was hostile from the start and Mr. Moy has received no suport. It is almost a scandal the way he has been treated. Many Republicans have resented this, which has been shown in many ways."

Mr. Ellis was appointed by Mayor Moy as a member of the Board of Health some months ago. The Common Council refused to confirm the appointment.

Mr. Ellis recalled the efforts to abolish the voting machine here through a petition to the Council bearing 600 signatures, but he added that it was not until the Plainfield Democratic Club took the matter up and threatened to take the Council into the courts that any attention was paid to the petitioners. He made a plea to the voters to elect two or three Democrats to the Council in order that the Mayor might have their support.

In conclusion Mr. Ellis made an appeal for new members to the club and increased contributions, adding that it cost money to hold such meetings and the club would appreciate the help.

MISS MARY CONOVER NOW MRS. H. S. CASTNER.

Miss Mary Conover, of West Dunellen, became the bride of Harvy Smith Castner, of Changewater, N. J., at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Conover, Wednesday night. Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the New Market Baptist church, performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Emma J. Conover, as maid of honor. Ralph E. Ley, of Bayonne, was best man. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Louis V. Powlson, of Dunellen.

Guests were present from Brooklyn, Washington, Bayonne, Plainfield, Dunellen and New Market. A reception followed the wedding ceremony after which the bride and bridegroom departed on a tour to Niagara Falls and Chicago. They will be at home at Changewater after November 10.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF OMER C. MOORE HELD.

The funeral service of Omer C. Moore, who died on Wednesday after a short illness, was held at 8 o'clock last night at the late home on Manning avenue. It was largely attended by many of the old friends of Mr. Moore, including all the employes of Woolston & Buckle, by whom Mr. Moore was employed for twenty years. There were many beautiful tributes from relatives and friends; also from fellow-employes of Mr. Moore.

Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of the Unitarian church, conducted the service, reading Scripture and making a few remarks. Arrangements were made for holding the service last night so that the employes of Woolston & Buckle might be able to attend. The burial took place this morning at 10 o'clock in Hillside cemetery.

Card Party for Guests.

Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, of Duer street, gave a card party at her home last night in honor of Miss Grace Nevius, formerly of this city, but now of New York, and who has been her guest for several days. The company comprised about eighteen. The evening was spent in playing cards and at the conclusion honors were awarded. Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff and Miss Lillian A. Force received the first and second honors for the women and Edward Petrie and Howard Martin those for the men. During a social hour, refreshments were served by the hostess. Miss Nevius will return to her home tomorrow.

BOROUGHITE JAILED ON MORRIS CO. CHARGE

Fred Emmons, of North Plainfield, was arrested in the city by Patrolman Saffron, yesterday afternoon, on a bench warrant issued by the Morris county authorities. He was turned over to Chief Weiss and is being held in the borough pending the arrival of an officer from Morristown.

The arrest of Emmons is the result of an affair in which he figured at Stirling early in the past summer. A dog belonging to James Havey, of that place, by whom he was employed, was picked up by Constable Walter Swenson for running at large. The owner and Emmons were in the South at the time and when they returned the latter asked Swenson what had become of the animal. He was told it had been killed as no claimant had appeared at the expiration of the holding limit, whereat Emmons struck the constable in the face, knocking him down and inflicting injuries.

Swenson caused the arrest of his assailant and he furnished bail for appearance later.

He was indicted by the Morris county grand jury for assault and battery but ignored the summons to appear for trial. The bench warrant was accordingly issued by order of the court.

CLUB HOUSE BUILDING AT 'PLAINS IS BEGUN

The work of remodeling the old schoolhouse at Scotch Plains into a clubhouse to be conducted along the lines of a Y. M. C. A. has been started. Dr. J. Ackerman Coles will present the building, when completed, to the young people of the village. It will be modern in every respect, equipped with steam heat and will contain a gymnasium, shower bath and swimming pool, a meeting room and retiring room.. In all about $11,000 will be expended on the improvements. The structure will be colonial in design with four large columns in front.

The young women as well as young men of the village will have the use of the building, and the whole will be controlled by the direction of the Baptist church, but will be nonsectarian. The old building was formerly used as an Italian mission and in the old days school was held there. Dr. Coles said that it seemed right and fitting that the children and grandchildren of the fathers and mothers who attended the school and were taught the three Rs should be allowed to enjoy social privileges in a modern building.

BARACA-PHILATHEA 21ST ANNIVERSARY

The Baraca-Philathea Classes of the Temple Baptist church in connection with others throughout the country will observe the twenty-first birthday anniversary of the movement Sunday night. The undertaking is world-wide and has more than 8,000 classes. At the last convention held in Kansas City, more than 900,000 were reported in charatered classes, and the Temple Baptist church is proud of the fact that it is a member. There are two flourishing classes here, Baraca taught by the pastor, Rev. E. C. Conover and Philathea taught by U. B. Crane. Mr. Conover is secretary of the movement in New Jersey.

The program for Sunday night's service will be as follows:

Opening song service, leader, president of the Baraca class; prayer; five minute Scripture quotation "shower," teacher of Baraca class; blessing, teacher of Philathea class; bringing, president of Philathea class; from cradle to maturity, history of movement; "The Man Who Wants a Million," class secretary, including a brief life sketch of Father Hudson; address, "The Class for Christ," the superintendent; address, Rev. E. C. Conover; benediction.

Gave a Masquerade.

CHEERED WILSON

Governor Arouses Enthusiasm of Big Crowd He Addresses at the Theatre

MAKES PLEA FOR SUPPORT.

Reviews His Achievements and Makes More Promises—Robert H. McAdams Among the Other Speakers.

Governor Woodrow Wilson ended his tour of Union county yesterday with a short speech at The Plainfield theatre last night, and judging by the enthusiasm of the crowd that thronged the playhouse and the reception accorded the former head of Princeton University appears to be as popular here now as was shown when was was running for office. He was announced to speak here at 9 o'clock, but it was nearer 10 o'clock, and the crowd waited patiently for nearly two hours the county candidates addressing them. Assemblyman Calvin E. Brodhead was chairman of the meeting and a number of citizens of more or less prominence served as vice-presidents.

Governor Woodrow Wilson.

When the Governor arrived, the audience arose to its feet and for several minutes cheered. Some enthusiast shouted "He will be our next President," and the applause grew stronger. The Governor spoke less than a half-hour, and he held the close attention of his hearers, being interrupted frequently by applause and laughter.

"The normal Republican majority of this city is about 1,300 and I have not forgotten that last year you gave me a majority of 300," he said. "To my mind this indicated that the independent Republicans hoped that I would be elected and that something would happen. Something has happened, but I shall not know until November 7 in what spirit you gave me that vote.

"We promised to serve the real people and we have tried to do that. The Geran bill was designed to see that real people vote. You must say where you live and tell how old you are, not from curoisity, but because we believe that when a man votes certain things should correspond. In the past a lot of voters were brought from graveyards to vote."

Robert H. McAdams,
Democratic Candidate for State Senator.

The Governor touched on the Corrut Practices Act which he said he believed to be a good thing. Referring to past campaigns he said that the funds came from men who had large interests at stake. "It was said that the Pennsylvania Railroad owned the State, but becoming an unnecessary asset it gave it up. If it was true that the Public Service Corporation governed the State, it is only fair now that the State should

NOBEL AWARD, PHYSICS, TO GO TO T. A. EDISON

Stockholm, Oct. 20.—It is stated here that the Nobel prize for physics this year will be awarded to Thomas A. Edison, the American inventor.

The Nobel prizes were founded by Alfred Nobel, of Sweden, who made a great fortune through the manufacture of explosives. He was the discoverer of dynamite. In his will he created a large fund, the interest from which should be divided into five equal amounts annually and awarded as prizes to persons who shall have made the most important discoveries along various lines. The yearly income from the Nobel fund permits the five prizes to amount to approximately $50,000 each. The first awards were made in 1901.

DRESS REFORM URGED BY N. J. WOMAN LEADER.

Detroit, Oct. 20.—Reforms involving uniform of dress for women, the abolition of men dressmakers and exploiters of fashion, were recommended by Mrs. Catherine Carter Warren, wife of Professor Howard Warren, of Princeton, and president of the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs, in an address before the Michigan Federation here Wednesday.

"Women' clubs of New Jersey seek a saner fashion in dress, the abolition of false hair and puffs, a curtailment in the length of the hatpin, and above all a saner Christmas.

"We want a uniform plan of dress and we strenuously object to the sweeping changes of fashion that say you must wear one kind of a dress one year and another the next. Last season's dress is no good this season and we want reforms that will enable a woman to wear the same dress next summer that she did this summer and not always be a constant drain on her husband's finances. Woman should by this time be in a state of revolution against the outrageous fashions dictated to them. The monstrous hats that are worn should be ruled out of style for good.

"We clubwomen do not object to domestic feathers in our hats, but when it comes to killing birds to supply feathers we want it stopped. Ostrich feathers are all right, but it is a disgrace to wear those large willow plumes. They are made in New York sweatshops by women and small children, who work ten and twelve hours a day for a small pittance.

"Women should be educated in the art of spending their husbands' money wisely. Why not establish schools to teach women how to manage their household in an economical manner?"

False hair and puffs were also objected strongly to by Mrs. Warren on the ground that these articles were exploited by men fashion dictators for the sole purpose of making women spend money where there is no need for it.

GROWTH OF 120 YEARS IN ORIGINAL STATES.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Commenting upon the extraordinary growth of the thirteen original States since the adoption of the Constitution, Director Durand, of the census bureau, said yesterday:

"Between 1790 and 1910 the population of the thirteen original States increased from 3,820,000 to 37,315,000, or almost tenfold. The value of their manufactured products increased from $20,000,000 to $11,121,000,000, or nearly 600 fold. Their exports to foreign countries increased from $20,000,000 to $1,-$18,000,000, or over fifty fold, and their imports increased by about the same proportion.

"They comprise only one-eighth of the area of the United States, but contain two-fifths of the entire population and produce fifty-three per cent. of the total value of manufactured products."

RAHWAY POLICE CHIEF DEAD.

Rahway, Oct. 20.—Chief of Police George Wright, who was seventy-three years old, died yesterday morning at his home on Elm avenue, following an illness of one year. He had been chief continuously for the past seventeen years and had served several terms previously. His first important arrest during his last term was the murderer of Officer Jewell.

Chief Wright was father of Deputy Sheriff W. H. Wright, candidate for sheriff. His strong wish expressed was that he might live to see his son elected sheriff.

COURT REJECTS GUILTY PLEA IN MURDER CASE.

New Brunswick, Oct. 20.—Admitting his guilt, Marinia Bellim was not permitted to plead guilty to two charges of murder for killing Augustus Menna and Augustus Pascarelli at Perth Amboy on September 7, when arraigned before Justice Willard P. Voorhees, sitting for Justice James J. Bergen, in the Middlesex county Supreme Court yesterday. The court directed the clerk to enter pleas of "not guilty" and set the trial for October 24. Theodore Strong was assigned to defend Bellim. The defendant did the killing in satisfaction of a grude that originated in their native village in Italy. He entered the boardinghouse at night and shot Menna and Pascarelli while they were asleep. A brother of one of the victims was also marked for killing, but escaped death, though wounded.

At the preliminary hearing, soon after his capture, Mellim, through an interpreter, admitted the killing. When asked as to the reason he shrugged his shoulders and refused to speak. He has maintained an air of solid indifference since.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Jupiter Pluvius won today's game.

At Plymouth, Mass., yesterday, Thomas G. Lawson was acquitted on a charge of gambling. Now, wasn't that an absurd accusation against a stock broker?

William Randolph Hearst has changed his politics again. Now he says hes a Democrat. It won't be long before he will catch up to George L. Record.

The Plainfield theater when Woodrow Wilson spoke last night was filled principally by Republicans. That was the case when William Jennings Bryan was here some years ago. Draw your own conclusion.

It is believed that if Plainfield gives a Democratic majority this year the entire county will go Democratic —News dispatch in the Newark Morning Star.

If James Smith, Jr., had gotten the votes he would have been elected United States Senator.

When Mr. Ellis made an appeal at the Wilson meeting last night for funds to pay for the use of the hall, he should have asked the Republican city committee to chip in. It was worth a good deal to the G. O. P. committee to have an opportunity afforded the voters to size up Fay, the Democratic shrievalty nominee.

DEFERRED DUNELLEN SEWER BED PROTEST

The special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last night to hear a committee of the Dunellen Board of Health state its objections to the proposed enlargement of the Plainfield sewer beds, and also a committee from the Dunellen Board of Trade register that body's reasons for opposing the improvement, was so slimly attended that it was decided to put the formal discussion of the subject over until the next regular meeting on November 2. It was explained to those forming the visiting committees that the presence of Governor Wilson had no doubt proven a stronger attraction to the members than the special meeting of the chamber.

The committee on the Industrial Exposition informally discussed its report and while it is in readiness, it was deemed good judgment to withhold making it public until after the committee has made its final report to the Chamber. In the mean time a committee on ways and means is at work and what it accomplishes along this line will be included in Exposition committee's report.

WINS AMERICAN FLAG IN STATE S.S. CONTEST!

Arrangements are being actively pushed for the New Jersey State Sunday School Association convention to be held in the First Baptist church here November 14-16. A systematic canvass has been made of all the Sunday School superintendents in the State, three notices already having been sent to them announcing the event, the last one, designated as the third, having attached to it a return postal card. Each superintendent was advised that the school first replying to the committee acknowledging the receipt of No.3, would receive at the convention for his school an American and Conquest bunting flag about 4x5 feet.

The replies began to come in on Wednesday, and the superintendent whose reply card was first received was William N.Emmons, of the Methodist Episcopal church, South Amboy. The second card received half an hour later was also from a Methodist school located at Newark.

Many of the delegates must be entertained over night and the entertainment committee with Joseph W. Gavett as chairman, expect to receive a generous and free response to their invitation for assignments. Cards are to be distributed in some of the churches on Sunday, asking for the addresses of those who are willing to entertain the delegates.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

THIRTEEN LOSE LIVES IN FLOOD AT HIBERNIA

Thirteen persons are reported to have been swept to death today by a flood in the iron mine of the Wharton Steel Company at Hibernia, twelve being foreigners and the thirteenth, the foreman, an American.

The men were swept through the cross cut and then into the main shaft by a flood that engulfed them. The water had gathered in an old working and finally increased in volume until the timbers that had acted as a dam gave way. Every effort was made to save the men, but fellow-workmen could do but little. By starting all the pumps of the mine the water was kept back until the rest of the miners were rescued.

TWINS ARE BAPTIZED IN A PRIZED DRESS.

In the same hand embroidered dress their mother, and her mother, were Christened, the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Foster, Chatham street, were baptized last night at their parents home by Rev. Charles Beach Condit, of Liberty Corner, who had officiated at Mr. and Mrs. Foster's wedding eight years ago. The infants were named Lillian May and Lola Rosina. The dress they wore has been in Mrs. Foster's family more than half a century.

Friends were present from Liberty Corner, the borough and this city. They showered the newly named daughters with all sorts of handsome, useful and ornamental gifts and congratulations, to none of which the young women were able to reply, but showed their appreciation and thankfulness in their own expressive way.

Commander Andrews, though born in New York was appointed from New Jersey. He entered the service in 1882.

CHEERS FOR WILSON

govern it. No harm is intended from such legislation, in fact it will enhance the value of the securities in the stock market.

"Justice is different from benevolence. I don't believe that there is a voter who wants to do an injustice to any corporation. Our party platform is as definite as it is possible to make it, but under the Republican platform you can do anything you please. They promise to abolish all grade crossings without any expense to the State. This cannot be done all at once. Our platform can be carried out. We favor a plan whereby the Public Utilities Commission shall have the right to abolish at once every grade crossing that is a menace to life. That can be done."

Referring to the Republican party he asked his audience whether it had noticed any changes in the G. O. P., where it could see any contrast between the old and present day party. But he declared that there is a difference between the old Democracy and the new.

"If you vote the Republican ticket this fall," said the Governor, "how can you justify your action of last year. If you don't vote the Democratic ticket this year I take it to be an indication that you were not sincere before, that you just wanted to see us perform and are willing that we should have a trial only. If you want amusement you can have it by voting the Republican ticket for with a hostile majority I would be called upon to make things interesting. This might please you but maybe it would not be so funny to others.

"You must decide on November 7 whether you want the present program continued. The hopes of the world for popular government is centered in America and I am covetous for New Jersey that the hope of America shall be justified."

Upon the conclusion of his speech, the Governor held an informal reception back of the stage and later was taken to the home of Congressman W. E. Tuttle, Jr., at Westfield, where he spent the night, returning to North Plainfield today, from which point he toured Somerset county.

Prior to the arrival of the Governor the audience listened to short addresses by the Democratic candidates, including Robert H. McAdams, candidate for State Senator; Assemblyman Hugh J. McLoughlin, candidate for re-election; J. F. Connolly and James F. Lowden, candidates for the Assembly; J. Logan Fay, candidate for sheriff, and then former Judge Charles F. Moore, of Summit, filled in the gay until Governor Wilson arrived. Dudley F. Malone, of New York, assistant district attorney, followed the Governor and was the last speaker.

Robert H. McAdams, of Elizabeth, who is the candidate for State Senator, was the first speaker of the evening, and he made a favorable impression on the large audience. He devoted most of his remarks in support of what he termed the admirable administration of Governor Wilson and he said he could see no reason for making a change. He declared that Governor Wilson, like Paul, had "kept the faith," and if permitted "would finish the good fight."

Mr. McAdams said that after a vigorous primary fight he had been chosen as the party's candidate for State Senator and here he paid a fine compliment to his opponent, former Judge W. A. Coddington who he said conducted a clean and honorable campaign.

AWARD TUBERCULOSIS BUILDING CONTRACT.

The contract for erecting Bonnie Burn Sanatorium, the Union county new tuberculosis pavilion back of Scotch Plains, was awarded yesterday to M. Byrnes, of Elizabeth, whose bid was $72,814.00. The next lowest bidder was the Metzgar, Wells Co., of Philadelphia, $73,300.000. The figure at which the contract was made is a reduction of more than $42,000.00 from the estimates submitted on the original plans which included a right wing, separate dining room and quarters for attendants. These latter features were eliminated from the plans to bring the cost within the appropriation.

GIFT OF WRECK VICTIM STOLEN FROM EX-JUDGE

Far Hills, Oct. 20.—The anxiety of former United States District Court Judge John F. Dillon to recover the watch marked "To my husband on his fortieth birthday," which was stolen from the Dillon country home here Sunday night, has been explained by the former jurist.

Mrs. Dillon and a daughter, Mrs. Oliver, were drowned when the French liner, La Bourgogne, was sunk at sea with 509 lives lost, in July, 1898. When the news of the disaster came Judge Dillon, although suffering from a broken leg, directed that he be taken at once to Halifax, where he chartered a steamer and for days searched in vain about the scene of the wreck for the bodies of wife and daughter.

The stolen watch was a token of remembrance of Mrs. Dillon, and the aged husband hopes that even a burglar will understand and return it.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Tonight at the Plainfield theatre, Wm. G. Stewart will offer Chas. B. Dillingham's original production, "The Fair Co-ed" with Hattye Fox in the principal role of Cynthia Bright. Viewed as an entertainment "The Fair Co-ed" is full of brightness joy, music, plenty of fun and humor, pretty girls, picturesque scenery, fine stage trappings, gorgeous ensembles and all that sort of thing, and viewed as a play even though it is a comedy by George Ade and with music by Gustave Luders, it cannot prove otherwise than delightful. But with Hattye Fox in the cast as Cynthia Bright, it is much more interesting in both respects. The attraction is a college play, that is, the scenes and characters are those of the campus and class room of one of those mid-western institutions of learning colloquially dubbed a "fresh water college" by the under-graduate body of the venerable institutions of learning along the Atlantic Coast.

Henry W. Savage, to whom the theatre-going public is grateful for the presentation in America of "The Merry Widow," will provide one of the season's important events in the near future with his production of "Madame X," the famous drama of mother-love, that thrilled all of Europe and is now establishing new records of popularity in the United States, following its sensational runs in New York and Chicago. "Madame X" is regarded as the most appealing play of the present generation and its local engagement will surely be remarkable for the largest outpouring of theatregoers in many months. Mr. Savage will offer "Madame X" here with a uniformly competent cast and a production exactly similar, even to the smallest detail, to the one employed in Paris, where "Madame X" was first publicly performed. "Madame X" comes here for tomorrow afternoon and night.

Miss Grace LaRue's latest success, the comedy-operetta "Betsy," in which she will be seen at the Plainfield theatre Tuesday night has the novelty of including among its notable singers and players, four Australians who are fulfilling their first American engagements: Cecil Jarvis Ryan, known abroad as the Adonis of musical comedy; Alfred Deery, a favorite impersonator of English fops; Lucie Carter, leading soprano of J. C. Williamson's famous opera companies, and Donald Buchanan, tenor of the same organization. And "Betsy" is the first American organization to number so many as four Australians in principal roles.

Discovered!

Harry Sanderson, one of the regular oldtimers, is now situated in Plainfield, N. J., with an opera house and a vaudeville house.—The Bill Board.

LITERARY.

The new country church, the church of tomorrow, will be the social as well as the religious centre of the community. The pastor will be more than preacher. He will be a leader, living not in the city but in the country. His home will be a rural home, and he will love the land. While admonishing men to save their souls, he will also seek to impress upon them the importance of saving the soil. He will help them appreciate the beauties, of the world about them—their own and God's.—W. L. Nelson, World's Work for November.

Every number of St. Nicholas, from November to April, it is announced, is to have the beginning of a new serial, or series of articles. In the November issue will be the first chapters of "Crofton Chums," the new serial by that favorite writer, Ralph Henry Barbour. These first chapters promise a serial along rather new lines for Mr. Barbour; but a narrative full of the fresh and wholesome interest which characterizes all his stories. Another beginning of good things in this number is the first of a story, "The Knights of the Golden Spur," by Rupert Sargent Hughes, author of "Historic Boyhoods," "Historic Girlhoods," etc.

The November Strand contains a very striking article entitled "A Vision of Gold" by the well-known English statistician, John Holt Schooling. Mr. Schooling bases his article on a single cent placed out at five per centum compound interest, A. D. 1. The sum which this single cent would amount to at the close of the year 1910 is almost inconceivable. One illustration alone will suffice to show the collossal growth of an American cent in 1,910 years. The value if turned into specie would be sufficient to make 26,000 millions of spheres of solid gold, each one being equal to the planet Earth in volume! Another article of interest is contributed by Charles Frohman on "Play Writing."

The Wide World Magazine for November contains a number of interesting articles and stories dealing with different parts of the world. There is a fully illustrated paper on "The Troglodytes of Dieppe," another on "Wild Boar Hunting in New Zealand" and a third dealing with "The Romance of Opium-Smuggling." Captain G. D. Haigh, late of the Matabeleland Relief Force, relates a gruesome story of a friend of his who was "Buried Alive by a Lion."

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Not for years has the famous Casino, New York, housed such a success as is the case with "The Kiss Waltz," the present attraction. The play has been called "the dancingest and dandiest" show in New York, and certainly the crowds which are flocking to the Casino would bear out this statement. There are two acts crowded with interest and fun. The chief character is Guido Spini, a composer who has written a new waltz. He dedicates a copy to every pretty woman he meets and finally gets himself into a lot of trouble. He is really in love wth Nella, Baroness von Barnau, but it takes any amount of explaining to convince her that he is really sincere. The comedy falls to Charles Bigelow and Eva Davenport. Bigelow's role is that of a coachman who has suddenly become enriched. Miss Davenport is his wife. With their daughter they visit the Riviera never suspecting that the pretty little girl will marry a count.

Julian Eltinge, at the Liberty theatre, represents a junior at a co-educational institution, resorts to the subterfuge of impersonating "The Fascinating Widow" after he has incurred the displeasure of his sweetheart's mother and punched the head of Oswald Wentworth, a freshman, who is the mother's choice for the girl. He does this in order to be near Margaret Leffingwell, who loves him, but doesn't tell him so until he becomes "the widow." As "the widow" the young man creates all sorts of havoc in the hotel where the folks are temporarily stopping, and later on at the college. He fools his own friends at first, who are helping him carry out his plot to make love to Oswald, throw him over and then win his girl, in all of which he eventually succeeds. He nearly fails when their sweethearts, in the belief that he is "a fascinating widow" kiss him and make him a sharer of their confidences. The book is by Otto Hauerbach.

Alan Dale, the famous critic of the New York American, received the shock of his journalistic life recently when dainty Julia Sanderson, who is suporting Donald Brian in "The Siren" at the Knickerbocker Theatre, confided to him that she never expected to be starred and never wanted to be starred. Before the interviewer had recovered from the shock Miss Sanderson added that the dream of her life was to spend three or four years playing "The Siren" in every one night stand in the United States. "I like getting up early in the morning, boarding a train and setting out for new scenes," said Miss Sanderson. And when the dainty young girl who has entranced so many thousands of theatregoers by her grace and her singing, confessed that she had always been "too busy" to take a single vocal or dancing lesson, the blase critic admitted that he had found something really new in the line of interviews.

GIRL WEIGHS 825 POUNDS.

Sleeps in Iron Bed—Squeezes Through Doors Sideways.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 20.—Miss Gertrude Burk, of Chicago, said to be the largest woman in the world, weighing two and one-half times as much as President Taft, is visiting at the home of Mrs. H. W. Hayes, in Alton, Ill.

Miss Burk is 22 years old, weighs 825 pounds, stands 5 feet 7 inches, and some of her measurements are: Arm, 28 inches; waist, 54; bust 75. She wears No. 4½ shoes and No. 7 gloves.

When she was born Miss Burk weighed 15 pounds and at 8 years old she weighed 250. At the Hayes home she sits on two chairs placed facing each other.

Miss Burk goes through doors by turning sideways, and even then it is a pretty hard squeeze. The Hayses have an iron bed which Miss Burk occupies.

REJECTS COMMISSION RULE.

Salem Refuses to Adopt Provisions of Walsh Act.

Salem, Oct. 20.—This city Tuesday rejected the commission form of government by a majority of fifty-one votes at the special election held to adopt or reject the provisions of the Walsh act.

The supporters of rule by commission were busy for several weeks and were confident they would be victorious. While the vote was close those who opposed the Walsh act provisions were at no time in doubt as to the outcome of the election. This city is only one of half a dozen throughout the State to reject commission rule.

TRIBUTE TO JERSEY JURIST.

Memorial to Vice-Chancellor Ordered Spread on Minutes.

Trenton, Oct. 20.—The Court of Chancery at the October term Tuesday afternoon paid tribute to the late former Vice-Chancellor John T. Bird, of this city, by unanimously adopting a minute referring to his death and giving a brief sketch of his life.

In appreciation of the services of the late Mr. Bird rendered as a member of the court, Chancellor Pitney directed that the memorial be spread upon the minutes and printed in the equity records.

HARVARD ESSAY PRIZES FROM WESTFIELD MAN

Through the generosity of William G. Peckham, a graduate, of Westfield, a prize essay contest has been opened to students and graduates of Harvard University. Four prizes, aggregating $500, are offered—to undergraduates a first prize of $200, and a second prize of $50; to graduates a first prize of $200, and a second prize of $50—for essays discussing problems that confront Harvard University as those problems appear to Harvard men themselves.

Mr. Peckham, in offering these prizes, hopes to stimulate in the minds of the men who have studied and who are studying at Cambridge, an earnest consideration of Harvard's needs, and some thoughtful suggestions how these needs are to be met and remedied. The purpose is not merely to provide a prize contest, but to promote an enterprise that, it is hoped, will be fruitful in encouraging Harvard men to consider the future of Harvard.

In a letter to The Harvard Advocate, Mr. Peckham suggested these questions: "Can Harvard do better service to the country by reducing the price of education by adopting the German system of compensating professors, by favoring the leadership of the intellectual student, rather than that of the convivial student, or by any other change?"

The manuscripts will be received between November 1, 1911, and April 1, 1912. They are limited to 6,000 words, and should not be less than 2,000 words in length. Mr. Peckham has designated the president of The Advocate, G. W. Gray; Thomas Tileston Baldwin, of the board of graduate trustees of The Advocate, and W. R. Thayer, of The Harvard Graduates' Magazine, as a committee to have charge of the contest.

HERE AND THERE.

Nelson Y. Dungan, formerly Colonel of the Second regiment, who has been holding court in Essex county for several weeks, has lost none of his military bearing, although he resigned from the National Guard last spring immediately after he had been appointed as a judge by Governor Wilson. Judge Dungan considers that the training he had in the National Guard was of value to him in many ways. He has often remarked that among other things he was taught the value of obedience and discipline, and in his experience on the bench he finds that his wide knowledge of the National Guard has been of value to him at times. Judge Dungan has made many friends among the Essex county lawyers by his universal fairness, and the consideration he always shows for all, and particularly for the younger practitioners. He is destined to make a splendid reputation for himself on the bench, just as he did as a commanding officer of a regiment in the National Guard. Judge Dungan is an enthusiastic Mason of high degree, and was the grand marshal of the parade of Knights Templar at Asbury Park last month.—Newark Call.

TO MOVE TOWN SIX MILES.

Will Roll Buildings Away—to Strike New Railroad.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 20.—To move a town bodily a distance of six miles will be the bold attempt of the residents of Santa Fe in Haskell county, in order that it will be along the Aachison, Topeka and Santa Fe extension which is to be built from Dodge City to Colmor, N. M.

The extension will miss the town by six miles, but already the residents are planning to transport their houses and other buildings to the railroad site along the railroad. The houses will be jacked up and put on wheels and hauled to the new location.

This new town will also become a railway junction, if the gossip in the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe circles is correct. The rumor is that a branch will be built west from this new town through Grant and Stanton counties, which are now without railroads.

What Constitutes Value in Our All-Wool Suits at

"MADE IN NEWARK"

AS MANUFACTURING RETAILERS we never cut up into garments any fabrics that are not absolutely all wool.

But the mere fact that OUR $15.00 SUITS ARE ALL WOOL would not alone constitute worthiness nor wholly account for their unusual value.

VALUE, in Our Guaranteed All-Wool $15.00 Suits, means all-wool fabrics, plus correct modeling, skilled tailoring and permanent shapeliness.

Any garment that doesn't keep its shape loses is value. Our $15.00 Suits KEEP their shape, because shapeliness in all M. & B. Garments is built in. The inner side—the interlining, wiggin, canvas, haircloth, padding, tapes and stays, are so thoroughly shrunken and tailored as to assure an unbreakable front and permanent shapeliness.

A comparison of OUR GUARANTEED ALL-WOOL $15.00 SUITS, as you see them ready to wear, with any other $15.00 suits you may choose, will result in our favor. Could the inner construction be included in the comparison their superiority would be still more convincing.

The choice of patterns is wide enough for all—over forty, including cheviots and worsteds, in brown, gray and gray-blue effects, many exclusive, also plain blue and black.

Other All-Wool Suits for Men and Young Men ranging in price from $12.00 to $35.00.

You need an overcoat these chilly evenings, and ours is the most satisfying gathering of distinctive overgarments in town, including the newest pattern effects in the popular browns and grays, many of them exclusive. Big roomy Greatcoats, soft full-back coats, as well as the conventional Chesterfields, in the smooth fabrics. "Made in Newark" in our own workshop.

FOR ABOLISHING TERMS OF COURT OF CHANCERY

Trenton, Oct. 20.—Lawyers about the State house have discussed a proposition to abolish the regular terms of the Court of Chancery and there is considerable speculation as to whether the special committee of the State Bar Association, appointed to draft a plan for more simple legal procedure, will make such a recommendation. Those favoring the proposition assert the terms of the court are no longer necessary. The change would practically mean that the Chancery Court will be continuously in session.

There are three regular term openings each year, in October, February and May, and the opening of the present term this week served to emphasize the discussion. The Chancery terms have existed in this State for more than a century, following the English custom.

In former years the opening of the term was much more of an event than at present, as all Chancery litigation practically was listed on the court calendar and was taken up at the opening. Originally, the court was composed of only the chancellor, and at one time the Governor of the State was the chancellor. In those days, of course, Chancery litigation was very small in quantity.

As the State grew and court business increased the appointment of vice chancellors became necessary. In recent years the Chancery business has increased enormously, so that the chancellor and seven vice chancellors find difficulty in handling it. The Chancery Court records show that about 7,000 suits are started each year.

This growth in business has resulted in the practise of assigning suits to the various vice chancellors for hearing without waiting for the opening of the regular term. This assignment is done by the chancellor, who signs an "order of reference" in each case of this character.

On this assignment system is based the proposition to abolish the terms altogether and handle every case by an order of reference. As showing what a small proportion of the cases get on the calendar for the opening of the term, the present October term list contained only fifty-one, and it was an unusually large one.

WHAT DRYDEN AND KUSER ARE DOING FOR THE BIRDS.

Ex-Senator Dryden owns 8,000 acres and Colonel A. R. Kuser 3,000 acres adjoining, in Sussex county, including High Point. They have notified the public through advertisement and placard that no shooting will be permitted on their lands. This is not uncommon, but the additional statement is—for they also announce that this prohibition applies to the owners, tenants and employes, as well as to the outsiders. Thus, says the Newark Call, a vast area of wooded land, field and pond is to be made a refuge for all wild creatures, more especially birds. In addition to this, the owners are stocking the estate with birds from other localities, mostly native, but also including some foreign varieties which easily become acclimated.

One of the charms of all nature study is the quick appreciation of wild-life for man's friendship. By what means of communication, by what subtale instinct animals learn to know their friends and ascertain where safety is found, we cannot tell, but the fact has been repeatedly shown, the national parks, where hunting is forbidden, being a well known example. Birdlife is even more responsive than the animal, and, indeed, seeks human companionship when it is not murderous. But the human desire for slaughter, the survival of the old savage instinct which would kill, kill, kill, regardless of food needs or future supply, has driven these friends and natural companions of man to the wilds, or destroyed them completely. We want them back again. They are a constant delight alive, their study is full of pleasure, and they are a blessing to the farmer and the woodsman. Much, indeed, might be said of the practical benefits from a plentiful bird life, but we prefer to consider the influence upon mind and heart, and the effect upon human nature. Just as we see men learn to control their fellows wisely and kindly by learning to care for a horse, so the better side of man's nature is developed by consideration for and study of all animal life, and especially that of birds.

It is hoped that the example set in Sussex county will be followed by owners of large estates elsewhere, but there is also an opportunity for public endeavor along the same lines. The State owns large tracts of wild land which should be preserved in the same way. No shooting should be permitted on any public property, and this rule should apply to municipalities like Newark holding tracts for water supply—although we believe trespassing is already forbidden by Newark. By establishing these preserves and inspiring the people to become interested in the bird life, there will soon be such a friendly horde of birds that every woodland and every field will echo to their song, and everywhere the lonely wayfarer will find a charming companionship in God's creatures if not in his own kind.

By JACK LONDON

Author of "The Call of the Wild," "White Fang," "Martin Eden," etc.

Illustrations by Dearborn Melvill

Daylight decided to go Indian River a flutter, as he expressed it; and lingered a few days longer arranging his meager outfit. He planned to go in light, carrying a pack of seventy-five pounds and making his five dogs pack as well, Indian fashion, loading them with thirty pounds each. Depending on the report of Ladue, he intended to follow Bob Henderson's example and live practically on straight meat. When Jack Kearns' scow, laden with the sawmill from Lake Linderman, tied up at Sixty Mile, Daylight bundled his outfit and dogs on board, turned his town-site application over to Elijah to be filed, and the same day was landed at the mouth of Indian River. He continued down Hunker to the Klondike, and on to the summer fishing camp of the Indians on the Yukon.

Here for a day he camped with Carmack, a squaw-man, and his Indian brother-in-law, Skookum Jim, bought a boat, and, with his dogs on board, drifted down the Yukon to Forty Mile. Then it was that Carmack, his brother-in-law, Skookum Jim, and Cultus Charlie, another Indian, arrived in a canoe at Forty Mile, went straight to the gold commissioner, and recorded three claims and a discovery claim on Bonanza Creek. After that, in the Sourdough Saloon, that night, they exhibited coarse gold to the skeptical crowd. Daylight, too, was skeptical, and this despite his faith in the Upper Country. Had he not, only a few days before, seen Carmack loafing with his Indians and with never a thought of prospecting? But at eleven that night, sitting on the edge of his bunk and unlacing his moccasins, a thought came to him. He put on his coat and hat and went back to the Sourdough. Carmack was still there, flashing his coarse gold in the eyes of an unbelieving generation. Daylight ranged alongside of him and emptied Carmacks sack into a blower. This he studied for a long time. Then, from his own sack, into another blower, he emptied several ounces of Circle City and Forty Mile gold. Again, for a long time, he studied and compared. Finally, he pocketed his own gold, returned Carmacks, and held up his hand for silence.

"Boys, I want to tell you-all something," he said. "She's sure come—the up-river strike. And I tell you-all, clear and forcible, this is it. There ain't never been gold like that in a blower in this country before. It's new gold. It's got more silver in it.

"Who-all's Got Faith to Come Along With Me?"

You-all can see it by the color. Carmack's sure made a strike. Who-all's got faith to come along with me?"

No one volunteered.

"Then who-all 'll take a job from me, cash wages in advance, to-pole up a thousand pounds of grub?"

Curly Parsons and another, Pat Monahan, accepted, and, with his customary speed, Daylight paid them their wages in advance and arranged the purchase of the supplies, though he emptied his sack in doing so. He was leaving the Sourdough, when he suddenly turned back to the bar from the door.

"Got another hunch?" was the query.

"I sure have," he answered. "Flour's sure going to be worth what a man will pay for it this winter up on the Klondike. Who'll lend me some money?"

On the instant a score of the men who had declined to accompany him on the wild-goose chase were crowding about him with proffered gold-sacks.

"How much flour do you want?" asked the Alaska Commercial Company's storekeeper.

"About two ton."

The proffered gold-sacks were not withdrawn, though their owners were guilty of an outrageous burst of merriment.

"What are you going to do with two tons?" the storekeeper demanded.

"I'll tell you-all in simple A, B, C and one, two, three." Daylight held up one finger and began checking off. "Hunch number one: a big strike coming in Upper Country. Hunch number two: Carmack's made it. Hunch number three: ain't no hunch at all. It's a cinch. If one and two is right, then flour just has to go sky-high. If I'm riding hunches one and two, I just got to ride this cinch, which is number three. If I'm right, flour 'll balance gold on the scales this winter."

CHAPTER V.

Still men were without faith in the strike. When Daylight, with his heavy outfit of flour, arrived at the mouth of the Klondike, he found the big flat as desolate and tenantless as ever. Down close by the river, Chief Isaac and his Indians were camped beside the frames on which they were drying salmon. Several old-times were also in camp there. Having finished their summer work on Ten Mile Creek, they had come down the Yukon, bound for Circle City. But at Sixty Mile they had learned of the strike, and stopped off to look over the ground. They had just returned to their boat when Daylight landed his flour, and their report was pessimistic. But an hour later, at his own camp, Joe Ladue strode in from Bonanza Creek. He led Daylight away from the camp and men and told him things in confidence.

"She's sure there," he said in conclusion. "I didn't sluice it, or cradle it. I panned it, all in that sack, yesterday, on the rim-rock. I tell you you can shake it out of the grass-roots. And what's on the bed-rock down in the bottom of the creek they ain't no way of tellin'. But she's big, I tell you, big. Keep it quiet, and locate all you can. It's in spots, but I wouldn't be none surprised if some of them claims yielded as high as fifty thousand. The only trouble is that it's spotted."

We scraped the labels from twenty cans of our Bridal Tomato Soup; did the same with twenty cans of another tomato soup. The cans looked alike—same height, same width.

We marked ours A, the other B; sent a can of each to twenty chief cooks; asked them which they liked the better. Nineteen cooks said they liked A (our soup) better. The other cook said B.

Costs you just 10 cents to buy a can of Bridal Tomato Soup and find out why nineteen out of twenty cooks thought it better.

BUDDHIST CREMATION.

The Funeral Pyre and the Disposition of the Ashes.

A Buddhist cremation is a strange and uncanny event, and it is not often that a foreigner is given to witness one. I saw some of the preliminary ceremonies at a temple in south China, but found myself apparently becoming persona non grata as the time for the cremation proper approached and did not care enough about seeing it to intrude. I have since heard and read several descriptions of the grewsome ceremony.

The priests are dressed in white sackcloth, similar to that worn by the mourners at the funerals of the laymen, and their brows are bound with white bandages. The corpse, dressed in a cowl and with the hands fixed in an attitude of prayer, is placed in a sitting position in a bamboo chair and carried to the funeral pyre by some of his fellow monks, all the other monks of the monastery following in a double line. As the procession advances the walls of the monastery echo with the chanting of prayers and the tinkling of cymbals.

When the pyre is reached the bearers place the corpse upon it, and the fagots are kindled by the head priest, and while the flames are mounting the others prostrate themselves in obeisance to the ashes of their departed brother. When the fire is burned out the attendants collect the charred bones and place them in a cinerary urn, which is often deposited in a small shrine within the precincts of the monastery, to remain there until the ninth day of the ninth month, when the ashes are sewed up in a bag of red cloth and thrown into a sort of ossuary or monastery mausoleum.—Lewis R. Freeman in Los Angeles Times.

THE FIRST SOAP.

According to Pliny, It Was In Use Among the Gauls.

Who invented soap? According to Pliny, soap was an invention of the Gauls, who used it for giving a bright hue to the hair. He also states that it was employed by the Germans both as a medicinal and as a cleansing agent, two kinds being used—hard and soft. There is reason to believe that it was introduced into Germany by the Romans, though on this point there is some difference of opinion.

Homer tells us in the "Odyssey" that Nausicaa, daughter of Alcinous, king of the Phaecians, and her attendants washed clothes by treading upon them with their feet in pits of water, so that apparently she and her servants were unacquainted with the use of soap.

The fact that soap was obtainable by boiling together oily or fatty substances and alkalis was known at an early period of history, but it must be borne in mind that the substance referred to in the Old Testament and translated "soap" (Jeremiah ii. 22, "For though thou wash thee with niter—properly, natron—soda—and take thee much soap," and Malachi iv. 2, "For he is like a refiner's fire and like fuller's soap") refer to the alkali itself and not to the substances prepared from oily bodies and these alkaline matters.

The French word for soap (savon) is supposed to have been derived from the fact of its having been manufactured at Savona, near Genoa.

The manufacture of soap began in London in 1524, before which time it was supplied by Bristol at a penny per pound. A duty was imposed on soap in 1711, but after several reductions was totally repealed in 1853.—London Journal.

Washington Monument Bent by Heat.

The towering Washington monument, solid as it is, cannot resist the heat of the sun poured on its southern side on a midsummer's day without a slight bending of the gigantic shaft, which is rendered perceptible by means of a copper wire 174 feet long hanging in the center of the structure and carrying a plummet suspended in a vessel of water. At noon in summer the apex of the monument, 550 feet above the ground, is shifted by expansion of the stone a few hundredths of an inch toward the north. High winds cause perceptible motions of the plummet, and in still weather delicate vibrations of the crust of the earth otherwise unperceived are registered by it.

Blood Thicker Than Some Water.

"Blood is thicker than water"—though not much thicker—and not so thick as sea water. The water of the ocean contains thirty-five parts of saline material a thousand, while the vital fluid of the human body contains but seven parts a thousand or one-fifth as much. In the human body each of its myriads of cells is bathed with this seven-tenths per cent saline fluid.—Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

The Comeback.

"You used to say," she complained, "that you counted that day lost when you did not hear the sound of my voice."

"Yes, I know," he replied, "and I shall never cease to long for those dear lost days."—London Answers.

Identification.

"I shall try to leave footprints on the sands of time," said the man who is earnest, but not original.

"Very good," replied the absentminded criminologist, "but thumb prints are now considered more reliable."—Exchange.

WRECKED THE PIANO.

Rubinstein Proved His Ability and Secured His Pass.

When Rubinstein, the composer, was a youth he left Russia, his native country, to study music in France and Germany. He finished his studies when he was twenty years old and then returned to St. Petersburg. But before he could begin to give public recitals it was necessary that he should have a pass from the police authorities. It was true he was a Russian subject and a very inoffensive young man, but then he had been absent from his native land some time. He might have imbibed revolutionary ideas when abroad, and it was best not to take any risks, but have him registered and kept under surveillance.

Rubinstein applied to the police for a pass, but, probably because he was shy and mild mannered every official bullied him and gruffly passed him to another official equally rude and overbearing. Finally he became so tired of the indignities that he went to see the governor general. He had just begun to tell his story when that dignitary roared:

"You a musician? Pah! I'll put you in irons and send you to Siberia! That's the only fit place for such as you!"

Rubinstein nearly fainted from fright, but he got away as best he could. The days went by, and still no pass came to him. Some of his friends, however, knew of the treatment he had received. One day Rubinstein was summoned to appear beore the chief of police, General Galichoff. He had to wait three hours. At last he was called into the great man's presence and addressed as follows:

"Well, young man, I have been spoken to about you. I am told that you are some sort of musician, but I don't believe anything of the kind. Go to my chief secretary, Schesnok, and play for him, so that we can tell if you really are a musician—that is, a man who understands music."

All this was said in a contemptuous tone. Rubinstein was taken to the secretary, who was the possessor of the most wretched piano Rubinstein ever had heard, much less played on. He was angry and disgusted, and a thought flashed across him. Here was an opportunity to be revenged for the insults heaped upon him. He would vent his indignation on the piano. And so he did. He pounded and hammered the poor instrument until it seemed to shriek. The discordant notes which came from it, falling upon his delicate ear, served but to increase his rage and frenzy. It was as if a cyclone was at work. String after string snapped, and the unhappy secretary stood by, expecting every minute that his beloved instrument would fly into splinters. At last Rubinstein stopped from sheer exhaustion.

"Come with me," said the secretary.

And the pianist followed him into the presence of the chief of police.

"It is true, your excellency," he said. "Rubinstein is a great musician."

"Then give him a pass," replied the general.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Australia's Flame Flower.

Waratah is the name of the national flower of Australia. The traveler who passes through the Australian bush sometimes comes suddenly on a burned out ridge, the undergrowth of which has been destroyed by fire. Among the charred trees tongues of fire still seem to rise. These are the waratahs, each stem of which is about six feet high and bears a flame red flower, heart shaped and the size of a man's closed hand. This flower is difficult to cultivate in a garden, but some people have succeeded in growing plants from seed that has first been roasted.

Jump right in an' try it; but, remember, whatever ye do, don't jibe!

Deepest Lake In the World.

The Great Sunken lake in the Cascade mountains, about seventy-five miles northeast of Jacksonville, Ore., is thought to be the deepest lake in the world. Its shores slope abruptly down an average of 200 feet on all sides before the water is reached. The depth of the water is unknown, and its surface is always smooth and unruffled, being so far below the mountain rim that winds cannot reach it.

MISS HUSE TO SPEAK ON ROYAL CHATEAUX.

The talk to be given by Miss Carolyn Evans Huse on Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of Mrs. Stuart Hoyt Patterson 1006 Park avenue, treats on a subject full of interest both to the stay at home students and to the present day tourist. Miss Huse, who not long ago returned from a long sojourn in the heart of the chateaux country, where royal domains are many, will draw a brief outline of the castle region and of the condition of society in the middle ages and will then center her remarks upon the feudal chateaux which while less beautiful than those of the Renaissance are replete with interest. The talk will be fully illustrated with stereopticon views which will include pictures of Chinon, the cradle of the Plantagnet kings, and Langeais of Louis XI. fame, and Ambois teeming with memories of Francis I. and Mary Stuart. There will be musical selections during the afternoon.

It is Mrs. Patterson's intention to divide the proceeds between Muhlenberg Hospital and the Loyal Daughters Circle of King's Daughters.

MRS. SWENSON DIES AT HOME IN STIRLING

Mrs. Sophia Swenson, widow of David Swenson, died yesterday afternoon at her home in Stirling. She had been confined to her bed only since Tuesday, but had been ailing for a year of more from a general breakdown.

Mrs. Swenson was a native of Sweden, where she was born in 1853, but had resided in Stirling for the past thirty-five years. She was widely known in that section and also had many friends in this city. Her husband, who died in February, 1908, was one of the most popular farmers in the Passaic valley. He established a large milk business in Plainfield that is still conducted by his sons. Mrs. Swenson was an active worker in the Stirling Presbyterian church and one of the organizers of its Ladies' Aid Society. She was a woman of steadfast Christian character, liked by all who had occasion to perceive her many estimable qualities. She is survived by six sons and four daughters, all of whom reside at the parental home. They are Edwin, Walter, Arthur, Donald, Adolph and Alvin, and the Misses Minnie, Clara and Dorothy.

The funeral will be held in the Stirling Presbyterian church, Monday afternoon at 2:30 and will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. P. J. Emrick. Burial will be in the Stirling cemetery.

MERCY OF COURT

"Biggest Loafer in Dunellen" is to be Given Another Chance to Reform.

SENT TO THE REFORMATORY.

James McMahon Convicted of Entering Home of George Coriell Will Not Be Sent to State's Prison.

Classified by Judge Daly as "probably the biggest loafer in the town of Dunellen," James McMahon, convicted in the Middlesex court at New Brunswick on Wednesday of breaking and entering the home of George Coriell, at New Market, was arraigned for sentence by Assistant Prosecutor Watson yesterday morning.

"The inevitable consequences of your course of action is to be seen in your presence here today," declared the Court. "It is an awful thing to contemplate that a man of your physical get-up, able apparently to make an honest living by your own labor, should face a State prison sentence."

Drawing attention to the able defence the prisoner had been given by his lawyer, Charles E. Tindell, Judge Daly said that, despite the little hope there seemed of McMahon making a man of himself, he had determined to save him the stain of a prison sentence and would give him an opportunitly to reform by committing him to the Rahway Reformatory. Mr. Tindell, beside defending McMahon at his trial, spoke in his behalf yesterday.

Anton Eik who had been convicted of assault and battery on Frank Baluski, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs of prosecution. Judge Daly said that Eik's past record was a clean one and the Court was glad to know that even while yielding to his passions, the prisoner had refrained from the use of gun or knife. Ex-Senator Theodore Strong made an eloquent plea for mercy in the man's behalf.

At the suggestion of Assistant Prosecutor Watson, the Court ordered the discharge of John Dulnosky, a prisoner at the county jail, charged with assault and battery and against whom no bill had been returned by the Grand Jury.

FAMOUS FRENCH PLAY AT THEATRE TONIGHT.

"The drama that thrilled all Paris" is the way "Madame X" is spoken of. And this is literally true, just as it is literally true that "Madame X" has thrilled and moved to tears all New York. "Madame X" is an adaptation from the famous French success "La Memme X," by Alexandre Bisson, the marvelous piece of dramatic craftsmanship that created such a furore last year in the French capital, and then over night became the sensation of the American stage.

Henry W. Savage is the manager fortunate and keen-sighted enough to secure this triumph for America. With a splendid company and a production exactly like that which has been used in New York, "Madame X" will appear at the Plainfield theatre this afternoon and night.

COURTS' RIGHTS

Justice Swayze Renders Important Descision Covering Civil Cases.

BASED ON A LOCAL SUIT.

Declares District Court Can Hear Causes Involving Realty—Affirms Judge Newcorn's Ruling.

A decision handed down today by Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze in the matter of Tapscott Brothers against Mrs. Lucy McVey, appealed from the Plainfield district court, affirms the decision in favor of the plaintiff, and decides a matter that has frequently been disputed in legal circles. It was contended by counsel for the defence that the district court is not entitled to hear a case in which the title of property is concerned, but the justice rules to the contrary. In his decision today he asserts that the district court has jurisdiction over all civil suits for sums of $500 or under whether property is involved or not. The ruling has been awaited with much expectancy in legal circles and is a victory for Judge William A. Newcorn, who presided at the hearing, and W. W. Nash, Jr., counsel for the plaintiffs.

The suit in question was brought by Howard and Clarence Tapscott, a real estate firm, to recover $434 from Mrs. Lucy McVey on a property deal. The latter had entered into an agreement with Emauel Kapelsohn to trade her hotel building on West Front street near Clinton avenue, valued at $17,000 for houses and lots on Moffett avenue, totalling a similar figure. No written agreement was given the Tapscotts that they were to receive the customary two and a half per cent. for conducting the deal, but the statement was set forth in correspondence passed between the two owners.

The real estate firm completed all the preliminary work and the various property deeds were brought to its offices. When it came to the point of signing over Mrs. McVey halted proceedings by declaring Kapelsohn could not give a clear title to his properties as there were liens against them. The trade was accordingly declared off and the commission was refused.

V. W. Nash, Jr., acting for the Tapscotts, brought suit in the district court against Mrs. McVey for $434 and costs. Judge Newcorn rendered an affirmative verdict and Robert Newton Crane, acting for the defendant, filed an appeal in which he raised the point of the district court exceeding its prerogatives in considering causes involving rights to property. The decision of Judge Swayze sets aside the objection and confirms Judge Newcorn's ruling in all its vital points.

TAFT'S CABINET OFFICERS SCORED BY N. J. SYNOD.

Members of President Taft's Cabinet were criticised for their apparent support of liquor interests by the delegates at the final session of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey at Atlantic City Thursday afternoon.

A resolution was adopted by the Synod "deploring" the action of Secretaries Knox and Wilson in connection with the National Breweries Congress and declaring that "The Synod blushed with shame for the influence such actions would have over other nations."

The set, consisting of twenty-four fully illustrated volumes, is entitled "The Book of Knowledge," edited by Arthur Mee, Temple Chambers, London, and Holland Thompson, of the College of the City of New York. POSTAL BANK OPEN

Captain Samuel C. Peck is the First to Make a Deposit.

WM. B. SHARPE CUSTODIAN.

Roger F. Murray Second Depositor—Little Business Done the first Day on Account of the Bad Weather.

Captain S. C. Peck has the distinction of being first depositor in the Postoffice savings bank which was opened at the local postoffice this morning. Rober F. Murray received certificate of deopsit No. 2. At 2 o'clock this afternoon Postmaster E. H. Bird said that there had been no greater rush to open acounts than was anticipated and that the system is working smoothly. William B. Sharpe has been placed in charge of the new department and if the business increases sufficiently to warrant doing so, more clerks will be engaged to handle the accounts.

From indications during the few hours that the banking department had been opened, the amount of money received in deposits at the local office gives promise of favorably comparing with that received in other cities in the same period of time, where this feature has been inaugurated in connection with postoffices. The class of depositors so far differs somewhat from the first ones applying for certificates elsewhere, but as the fact becomes known that the government has a banking branch here it is expected that foreign born residents will be quick to take advantage and place their savings in the custody of Uncle Sam.

It is also expected that the accounts of minors will be numerous. Children under age can open accounts just the same as a grown person and the method of accumulating a sufficient amount, $1, to open an account is simplicity itself. A card can be purchased for ten cents. This is marked off in squares and other stamps can be procured at ten cents each until the card is filled. Then all that is required is a visit in person at the office to open the account which once opened can be added to at any time thereafter in the same manner, but no deposits for less than a dollar will be taken. Neither will fractions of a dollar be received. All deposits must be for even amounts. No deposit for more than $500 will be taken.

'THE SOUL OF A BOY' VIEWED BY MINISTER

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews delivered the third of the series of lectures on "The Soul of a Boy" in the Y. M. C. A., yesterday afternoon. Owing to the inclement weather, there was not as many present as there otherwise would have been, but at the conclusion of the lecture the audience joined in making a request that it be repeated. Rev. Mr. Mathiews has arranged to deliver the same lecture on the evening of November 3 and both fathers and mothers are invited to be present.

The subject of the address was "What a Father Could Do For His Boy, or the Place of the Man in the Moral and Religious Training of the Home." These lectures were primarily intended for the mothers, but owing to the significance of this subject in its relation to the head of the family, the fathers are also invited to be present when the talk is repeated.

Vacancy In Adj.-General's Office.

The election of Frank Thompson as city clerk of Trenton by the new city commission, displacing a politician who had held the office several years, will create a vacancy in the office of the adjutant-general of the State December 1, when Mr. Thompson will assume his new duties. The place to be made vacant is that of compiler of the records of the New Jersey soldiers in the various wars. The records are being compiled with the expectation eventually of publishing them if the Legislature will provide the money.

Boys' Gym Exhibition.

The opening exhibition of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. took place this morning. The program consisted of marching, calesthenics, gymnastics and games and concluded with a game of basketball between two picked teams. Before and after the exhibition and games the boys visited the boys' room to watch and play the various games.

MORE TALK OF A N. J. MAN TO U. S. SUPREME COURT.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Attorney-General Wickersham will not be appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Harlan, according to the best advices here. Mr. Wickersham would undoubtedly be considered, it was said, for the place if he would accept, and it may be offered to him as a compliment by the President, but in that case it is believed to be reasonably certain that the offer will be courteously declined.

The latest trustworthy information on the subject of the succession to Justice Harlan is that the place is likely to go to the State of New Jersey. That Federal circuit, which embraces Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey, is not represented on the Supreme bench and has not been for some time.

Had His Son Arrested.

Red Bank, Oct. 21.—Because he reprimanded his son Charles for not getting employment Charles W. Iford, of Little Silver, has complained that the young man went into his room Thursday night and beat him about the face and body. He had a warrant issued for the arrest of his son, who is twenty-three years old, and he was held by Justice of the Peace Wise under $20 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

D. FOSTER UPDIKE'S New Amusement!

EXPERIENCE.

My experience in starting business, less than six months ago, against great odds with four dollars only. Rented the only place available on North Avenue, $75.00 per month, spent nearly $400.00 on the building and bought $500.00 worth of furniture on your good looks, making my expenses for help and all about $700.00 per month.

First Experience: Ordered six searches at one time for my clients, got sued jointly with a lady for ten dollars. Oh! I love one-half of our lawyers.

Party agreed to put up the money for Uptodate; some one howled after a small first payment was made, I went through with it all myself, only owe $75.00 on the deal and no notes out.

Another party agreed to put up about $18,000.00 to buy a tract for development near Plainfield; made first payment, some one howled, I made good, and no notes out.

Accummulated $1,100.00 in good notes, tried all the banks to have some of them cashed, all good, but refused; in the meantime had three suits threatening me and one went on without notice.

The notes would have paid all I owed twice over. I love our Banks; and I shall vote for Gov. Wilson; he said something about Wall Street, however, I made good without giving my note.

Then the heat and plumbing question came up, and I moved to 211 North Avenue. Don't have much cash, but this is what I do have to show for my work, (and only owe $300.00), 2 apartment houses at Paterson, equity from $8,000.00 to $10,000.00, the McLaughlin house on Somerset Street, the Rev. Francis house at Dunellen, about 200 lots in Plainfield, about 400 at Uptodate, and still have my notes.

Have sold property in the following places: Asbury Park, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Middlebush, Millstone, Cranford, Paterson, Riverside, Clinton, Pattenburg, High Bridge, Lebanon, Newark, Brooklyn, New York and, of course, Plainfield. My 'phone bill is more than all the rest of the agents put together.

GOVERNOR ORDERS PROBE OF STATE'S COAL MIXUP.

That an investigation of the charges that were made by General E. Burd Grubb in connection with the coal supply for the Kearny Home for Disabled Soldiers is soon to be instituted by Governor Wilson was made known yesterday.

In a letter which was received by the Fairlie & Wilson Coal Co., of Newark, which was one of the two concerns that had contracts to furnish coal to the home, it is stated by Joseph P. Tumulty, the Governor's secretary, that the Chief Executive has given consideration to the firm's letter asking for a speedy and a searching investigation of the charges made by the superintendent of the institution.

It is also stated in Mr. Tumulty's letter that the Governor is about to order an investigation of the entire matter and that when the inquiry is instituted the coal firm will be given opportunity to be heard.

Mr. Tumulty explains that the Governor is now on a campaign tour of the State and that he will probably return to Trenton next Monday "at which time the investigation will be ordered."

At the time that the coal firm wrote to the Governor asking for a prompt investigation of the charges it also sent a similar letter to Justice Swayze, of the Hudson county courts, who had charged the grand jury to probe the coal charges.

In both appeals for an inquiry into the matter President William Fairlie, of the coal company, volunteered to put at the disposal of the investigators all the firm's books, vouchers and receipts and to have sworn every one of its employes who was in any way connected with the sale of coal to the home.

It was alleged, in effect, by General Grubb that the home paid for coal that was never delivered at the institution. That allegation is met by the Fairlie & Wilson concern with the statement that it has receipts for every pound of coal for which it charged the institution. The same claim is made by the other coal dealer, William T. Wilkinson, of Kearny.

ASSERT GOV'T "HELD OUT" PLATINUM BY-PRODUCT.

New York, Oct. 21.—Because of the constantly mounting price of platinum, there is an increasing incentive for the reported determination of mining and smelting interests to seek to recover from the government the value of platinum separated from their gold bullion by the United States assay office. A suit which will test the soundness of the miners' and smelters' claims has been brought in the United States Circuit Court here by the Raritan Copper Works, of Perth Amboy. The company handles also gold and silver ores. Some of the ores contain minute percentages of platinum, but the government's processes, it is alleged, recover the platinum. The size of the company's business, it is asserted, makes the platinum thus recovered a valuable by-product of the assaying, but the government has made no return to the company for the platinum.

The government is named as defendant in an action involving a sum "between $1,000 and $10,000. The process whereby the platinum has been recovered has been in use in the assay office since 1907.

The law firm representing the Raritan company has been retained also by the Guggenheims and other large mining interests. The present minor suit was brought as a test case, it is said, because, under the law, an action involving the recovery of a sum in excess of $10,000 could only be made before the United States Court of Claims. The sum is made indeterminate because, the complainant asserts, the exact amount could not be ascertained without an examination of the government's books.

NO CASH IN P. M.'S SAFE.

Hackensack, Oct. 21.—Federal Inspector Duryea, of Paterson, visited the postoffice at Emerson Thursday to investigate the accounts of Postmaster Herman Keystone, who disapeared Monday, leaving a wife and three children. The safe was broken open because no one could open it with the combination Keystone left in an envelope for his bondsman, M. H. Angell. Not a cent of money was found, but there were a number of stamps in an envelope.

Duryea said that from the brief investigation he made the postmaster's accounts do not look encouraging, but much will depend upon the bank account. Mrs. Keystone says her husband visited the bank in Westwood on Monday afternoon, but whether he drew all the money out she could not say.

LET AMBERGRIS WASH AWAY.

Ocean City, Oct. 21.—This city's far-famed whale is rapidly disappearing from the beach, and before the end of this week it will have been all cut up and shipped away.

It is said that nearly $3,000 worth of ambergris has been taken from the mammal, but that thousands of dollars worth of this valuable substance were lost by reason of the fact that those at work on the whale at the beginning did not recognize it and it was washed away into the sea.

Plainfield, N. J., October 21, 1911.

We're not worrying how Maine really did go, nor are we concerned over the ultimate fate of reciprocity, but we do long to hear the result of the World's series. Our office boy is killing off a grandmother every day and every member of the staff from that important personage down is reporting some mishap to get the afternoons off.

Robert H. McAdams has been pitted by the Democrats against Carlton B. Pierce, the Republican nominee, for the State Senator. Both are lawyers, both are gentlemen, but there is a big difference between the two. Mr. Pierce is highly cultured and is a deep student of economics. Moreover, he has had experience in the New Jersey Legislature and if we can judge the future by past peformances he will be a most worthy successor to the distinguished line of Senators which has represented Union county in the upper house at Trenton during the last two decades.

The Republican voters at their primaries called upon William H. Wright, of Rahway, to be their candidate for the shrievalty and they made a wise selection. Mr. Wright is a clean and able man who has gained valuable experience as the deputy to Sheriff Kirkland. He is splendidly equipped for the position for which he is named. But how about his opponent, J. Logan Fay, the Democratic candidate? Those who know this man the best will endorse every word the Elizabeth Journal, the leading paper of his home town has to say of his. Here is the Journal's estimate:

The Democratic party in Union county has put forward as its candidate for Sheriff J. Logan Fay, a well-known resident of Elizabeth, who has within a few weeks retired from the liquor business. Mr. Fay has been connected with the liquor trade in the downtown section of Elizabeth for years; it is, in fact, his large acquaintance among the employes of one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the country, to whom he has sold liquor at noon and after the shutdown at night for a long period, that has encouraged his friends to urge his candidacy for the very important office of sheriff. The "boys" know Fay, it is declared, and will vote for him on Election Day.

It is not believed that Union county is in danger of electing a liquor dealer, or a man who has just retired from the liquor business, after years of connection with it, to the high and honorable office of sheriff. This is one of the conservative counties in New Jersey. No other county of its class in the whole State has a larger percentage of thoughtful voters—men who are fully capable of considering intelligently and seriously the many important aspects of such a candidacy as Mr. Fay's. All that it is necessary to do, under the circumstances, is to recall to the voters the tremendous moral responsibility resting at all times on the sheriff's office and to emphasize the call for maintaining the high standard of administration now existing.

Particularly at this time is it necessary for the citizens of Union county, regardless of whether they are Democrats or Republicans, to see to it that the hand of the liquor people is kept out of the sheriff's office. Only within a week or two, for example the people of Elizabeth have had presented to them most sensational and disquieting facts concerning the business of selling intoxicating liquor in their midst. Nearly every evil which menaces the individual and the home in connection with the saloon business has been impressively presented for the consideration of the people following the Grand Jury's investigation. Before the courts today are cases of the widest interest which have arisen directly from the present disturbing excise situation. The sheriff of Union county not only selected the grand jurors who have attempted to awaken the people to the danger with which they are menaced, but presented the petit jury lists to be used in the court trials.

It is not believed that Union county will ever choose a man closely connected with the liquor trade for sheriff. The risk would be too great to ask any community to run. But it seems almost like an effrontery for a man of Mr. Fay's recent business connections to conduct a campaign for the shrievalty just at this time.

Police chiefs from all over the State were present at the funeral of Chief George Wright, of the Rahway police, this afternoon, nearly every city being represented. The service was held at the First M. E. church and was attended by a large number of mourners.

Chief Wright was seventy-four years old and was the oldest acting police chief in this State. He had been head of the Rahway department for seventeen years and had served on the force a number of years prior to being placed in charge. Surviving are two sons, William H. Wright and David M. Wright, of Syracuse, N. Y., and two daughters, Mrs. John Durand and Miss Jennie Wright both of Rahway.

Major and Mrs. Casler, of New York, will have charge of the meeting at the Salvation Army this evening at 8 o'clock. The usual services will be held tomorrow.

Miss Lena Bohan has been appointed superintendent of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, and Miss Edna Berg has been selected as her assistant.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will preach tomorrow morning on "God's Jewels." At the evening service at 7:45 "The Six Steps to the Throne" will be the subject. The ordinance of baptism will be administered at the close of the morning service.

Great rejoicing was occasioned among parishioners of Holy Rosary church, Elizabeth, yesterday when they learned that the Rev. James J. Smith was on the road to recovery.

Miss Grace LaRue, in the New Comedy-operetta, "Betsy," at Plainfield Theatre Next Tuesday Night.

Father Smith was so far recovered last night that he was able to talk, and it is a matter of only a few days, it is said, when he will be able to sit up. Among his visitors yesterday was Bishop O'Connor, of Newark, who called to cheer the sufferer. Yesterday was the first that Father Smith has received visitors.

BODY IS FOUND IN SWAMP.

Little Girl Makes Gruesome Discovery at Roosevelt.

The body of Stephen Conpos, a laborer, of Roosevelt, was found in a swamp near Armour & Co.,'s plant at Roosevelt by a little girl. Drowning was the cause of his death. Joseph Pank, a native of the borough, yesterday told Coroner Fred Garretson that Conpos had accosted him near the scene of the fatality while picking mushrooms and had asked him for a piece of paper. The man then continued on his journey toward the swamp, Pank says, where he was later found dead and the paper that he borrowed contained a note to his sister, whose address was not given. The body is at Engel's morgue in Roosevelt.

WATER AS A BEAUTIFIER.

The person who wishes to keep well and look well should cultivate a belief in water.

Every woman who values her digestion and her complexion should drink six glasses of cold water a day. If desired, the glass taken before retiring and the first thing in the morning may be hot, with a pinch of salt in it.

Have regular hours for taking the water. The periods may be divided in the following manner: In the morning as soon as you rise and the last thing before retiring at night, a half hour before luncheon and dinner and in the middle of the morning and afternoon.

Equally important as water drinking is the habit of taking the daily bath. Each individual must determine whether the warm or cold bath is best for her.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

GOVERNOR RECEIVES A BOUQUET BY MISTAKE

Back of the presentation to Governor Wilson of a huge bouquet of chrysanthemums as he concluded speaking in the borough, yesterday morning, there is a large three-cornered joke. Whether it is on the executive, Mrs. Guy D. Peck, who placed the floral tribute in the gubernatorial hands or Lydia Chapter Order of the Eastern Star, is a much-mooted question at present. The Governor knows nothing of the humorous side of the affair but those who do are growing corpulent from uncontrolled chuckling. This is the why and wherefore thereof:

Lydia Chapter gave an entertainment and bazaar, last night, and Mrs. Peck was one of the committee delegated to fresco the bare walls of Sebrings' auditorium with something beside the over-worked National colors and lodge emblems. She spent the early hours of yesterday morning gathering the pick of the chrysanthemum crops in the vicinity of her home, harvesting a magnificent armful. She was wending her way down Somerset street with the white and yellow beauties when she noticed a large crowd at the Chatham street corner. Woman-like she was curious to know what it was all about, a bystander answering her query with the information that New Jersey's first gentleman was due to expound Democracy as soon as he arrived on the scene. Mrs. Peck lingered for a glimpse of Senator Martine's champion and it so happened that when the Governor reached the scene, he took up a position directly near her. An enthusiastic Democrat naturally concluded the flowers were intended for the Executive and when his address was concluded, gave Mrs. Peck a clear path, at the same time pushing her forward.

"I thank you, madam," said Mr. Wilson with a bow and a broad smile, and he took the bunch of flowers from her arms. Mrs. Peck said something, for the life of her she can't remember what, but it passed for some kind of a presentation speech. When she recovered her wits, the Sebring auditorium decorations were held tightly by the Governor's palms, nodding their fluffy white and yellow heads in an auto run to Mount Bethel.

It is understood that Lydia Chapter's decorating committee has ordered Mrs. Peck to appear before it next week and answer charges of misappropriation of supplies.

HERE AND THERE.

Christy Mathewson, the star twirler of the New York Giants, who is a brother-in-law of Dr. P. B. Cregar, is not much of a story-teller, but he did unreel this one not long ago at a fan fest at McGraw's billiard room, in New York:

"The teacher of the English class at one of the local high schools had demanded that the pupils write for their daily exercise a short account of a ball game. One lad sat all through the exercise time apparently wrapped in deep thought, but had no exercise paper to turn in when the teacher demanded it.

"He was told to remain after school and again ordered to write the exercise, being given a time limit of five minutes by the teacher in which to complete the essay. The failure to do so meant a whipping.

"When the time was within a minute of being up the lad's face beamed into a smile as he scratched this on his tablet and handed it to the teacher: 'Rain. No game.' He did not get the licking."

How full of inconsistency is mankind. Within the United States the rate of postage on fourth-class matter is 16 cents a pound, with a limit of 4 pounds. The United States is party to a treaty under which residents of 29 foreign countries may send fourth-class matter through the United States mails at 12 cents a pound, with a limit of 11 pounds. In other words, a man may send an 11-pound package from San Francisco to Rome, Italy, at 12 cents a pound, but if he wishes to send the same articles to New York he must divide them into packages of not to exceed four pounds each and pay 16 cents a pound. A Japanese residing in New York can send an 11-pound package to his friends in Tokio at 12 cents, but an American in New York can send only a 4-pound package from New York to Washington and must pay 16 cents a pound. It really looks as though there was something wrong and the American citizen was getting the worst of it.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

So far sixty bishops of the Episcopal Church have signified their intention of attending the meeting of the House of Bishops in the Church Missions House, in Newark, next Thursday. They assemble to elect four missionary bishops, two for this country and two for the Orient. One will be a bishop of Central America, with Panama as the See city. The English Church has signified its willingness to transfer its missions there to the American Church. Another will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Bishop Hare, of South Dakota. There are so many Indians in this district that there has been talk of choosing an Indian for a bishop.

STAMP COLLECTORS NUMBERING 10,000

From the time when postage stamps came into general use in 1840, stamp collecting has been a world-wide hobby. Today it claims among its followers thousands of people of every nationality. It is estimated that there are more than 100,000 active collectors in the United States alone, and about 100 periodicals are being published in their interest. New Jersey contains thousands of enthusiastic stamp chasers, and among them are some of the most prominent residents of the State.

Senator Ackerman, of this city, owns a stamp collection which is valued at thousands of dollars. Charles Lathrop Pack, of Lakewood, owns a collection, the value of which cannot be estimated. Benedict Prieth, of Newark, publisher of the Frei Beitung, one of the largest German newspapers in the State, is a stamp collector. There are three societies in the State composed of stamp chasers, not counting the many small boys' stamp clubs. The Trenton Stamp Club, Boonton Collectors' Association and the more recently organized Newark Stamp Club are all acting for the broadening of stamp collecting.

Many of the uninitiated into stamp lore believe that the hobby is dying out, when in fact it was never more firmly established than at the present time, and its popularity is growing constantly. "Once a stamp collector, always a stamp collector," is the claim of followers of the interesting pursuit, and in a large measure it is true.

"Philately" is the technical name for stamp collecting. It is derived from the Greek and translated roughly means "being fond of stamps." A philatelist is only another name for stamp collector, and philaletic is an adjective meaning pertaining to stamps.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS

George Beban in his own play, "The Sign of the Rose," which has been produced by Klaw & Erlanger, will open the season at the Garrick Theatre on Wednesday evening. In Mr. Beban's company will be Frankling Ritchie, George Proberg, Carl Anthony, James A. Marcus, Del de Louis, Phillip Perry, A. S. Byron, Marie Pavey, Edith MacBride, Lillian Hathaway, Mary Johnstone and Edna May Hamel.

Rehearsals have commenced of Klak & Erlanger's London production of "The Pink Lady," which will open at the Globe Theatre, London, January 3 with Frank Daniels in the role of Dondidier. The cast and chorus will be recruited in New York. Several performances will be given in this country before sailing day. "The Pink Lady" on tour broke all records in Baltimore for receipts except for Klaw & Erlanger's other production, "Ben-Hur." This company will open the new and beautiful Theatre in Columbus Nov. 13th.

The first New York performance of "Bunty Pulls the Strings" on Tuesday evening, October 10, 1911, at William Collier's Comedy Theatre, was an event that will long be remembered. The modest advance announcements, merely stating that the comedy dealt with Scottish life and had met with success in London at the Haymarket Theatre, had not led either the public or the critics to expect any such overwhelming "hit." For this little three-act comedy, in which the characters are more important than the story but in which both characters and story are singularly humorous and realistic, veritably took the great busy metropolis by storm. This production had the extreme honor of receiving favorable criticisms from all the New York reviewers, without a single exception.

"TY" COBB TO APPEAR HERE IN NEW ROLE.

A champion in all lines he has attempted in the baseball world, is some record for a youngster who has not yet reached the age of 25 years, but such is the record of Ty Cobb, the Southern lad, who has astounded the entire world by his feats on the diamond during the last five years. Joining Detroit before he was 21 years old Cobb was the champion hitter of the American League before the close of the first season and since that time he has achieved every record of the diamond, except in the pitching department, and it would not be a surprise to see him attempt that some of these fine days.

He does not seem to know what the word failure means in anything that he undertakes and now that he has taken to the stage as a winter recreation his efforts in this line will be watched with interest.

After months of persuasion Vaughan Glaser, the well known actor manager, succeeded in getting "Ty" to sign a contract for the role of "Billy Boltan" the great half back, in George Ade's charming comedy, "The College Widow," which comes to the Painfield theatre on November 1.

Cobb as an actor is going to be a great surprise to those who have followed his diamond career as he has shown a conception of what is expected of him which is far above the average. Naturally a good looking man and known for years as the Apollo of the athletic world he has shown he possesses a histronic ability, and in the dramatic world as well as the athletic world he promises to be the surprise of the year.

WOMAN CHASES BOARDER IN FLIGHT WITH TRUNK.

Bayonne, Oct. 21.—Excitement was created in Broadway yesterday when Mrs. Mary Simon of 426 Broadway, pursued a man carrying a heavy trunk. He dropped the burden and fled.

It developed that the man was Michael Beneil, a boarder of Mrs. Simon. He had decided to go to Europe, and, it is alleged, tried to get away from the house without paying a board bill of $50. The trunk was taken in charge by the police.

Upon receipt of any such report, it shall be the duty of the Mayor to give written notice to the company affected thereby, requiring it forthwith to repair such defect or defects, which notice may be served by the Mayor or Chief of Police or any regular police officer upon any officer or agent of said company, and a copy thereof shall on the same day be sent by registered mail, postage prepaid, to said company at its principal office in this State. Sec. 3. No car shall be used or operated upon any of the streets of said City as a street railway car, the wheels of which shall be flattened either in one or more places, so as to cause in the ordinary operation of the car either loud and unnecessary noise or unnecessary jar on account of such flattening, and the Mayor having first caused such car to be examined by a person competent to pass upon the same, may order such car off the tracks forthwith until the needed repairs shall be made.

Sec. 4. Sec. 5. Every order given by the Mayor under sections 3 or 4 of this ordinance shall be in writing directed to the company operating such car, and shall specify the number of the car and the character of the defects to be remedied. Said order may be served by the Mayor or Chief of Police or any regular policeman upon any officer or agent of said company, and a copy of said order shall on the same day be sent by registered mail, postage prepaid, addressed to said company at its principal office in this State.

A month passed by, and Bonanza Creek remained quiet. A sprinkling of men had staked; but most of them, after staking, had gone on down to Forty Mile and Circle City. The few that possessed sufficient faith to remain were busy building log cabins against the coming of winter. Carmack and his Indian relatives were occupied in building a sluice box and getting a head of water. The work was slow, for they had to saw their lumber by hand from the standing forest. But farther down Bonanza were four men who had drifted in from up river, Dan McGillvary, Dave McKay, Dave Edwards, and Harry Waugh. They were a quiet party, neither asking nor giving confidences, and they herded by themselves. But Daylight, who had panned the spotted rim of Carmack's claim and shaken coarse gold from the grass-roots, and who had panned the rim at a hundred other places up and down the length of the creek and found nothing, was curious to know what lay on bed-rock. He had noted the four quiet men sinking a shaft close by the stream, and he had heard their whip-saw going as they made lumber for the sluice boxes. He did not wait for an invitation, but he was present the first day they sluiced. And at the end of five hours' shoveling for one man, he saw them take out thirteen ounces and a half of gold. It was coarse gold, running from pinheads to a twelve-dollar nugget, and it had come from off bed-rock. The first fall snow was flying that day, and the Arctic winter was closing down; but Daylight had no eyes for the bleak-gray sadness of the dying, short-lived summer. He saw his vision coming true, and on the big flat was upreared anew his golden city of the snows. Gold had been found on bed-rock. That was the big thing. Carmack's strike was assured. Daylight staked a claim in his own name adjoining three he had purchased with plug tobacco. This gave him a block two thousand feet long and extending in width from rim-rock to rim-rock.

Returning that night to his camp at the mouth of Klondike, he found in it Kama, the Indian chief he had left at Dyea. Kama was traveling by canoe, bringing in the last mail of the year. In his possession was some two hundred dollars in gold-dust, which Daylight immediately borrowed. In return, he arranged to stake a claim for him, which he was to record when he passed through Forty Mile. When Kama departed next morning, he carried a number of letters for Daylight, addressed to all the old-timers down river, in which they were urged to come up immediately and stake. Also Kama carried letters of similar import, given him by the other men on Bonanza.

"It will sure be the gosh-dangdest stampede that ever was," Daylight chuckled, as he tried to vision the excited populations of Forty Mile and Circle City tumbling into poling-boats and racing the hundreds of miles up the Yukon; for he knew that his word would be unquestioningly accepted.

One day in December Daylight filled a pan from bed-rock on his own claim and carried it into his cabin. Here a fire burned and enabled him to keep water unfrozen in a canvas tank. He squatted over the tank and began to wash. Earth and gravel seemed to fill the pan. As he imparted to it a circular movement, the lighter, coarser particles washed out over the edge. At times he combed the surface with his fingers, raking out handfuls of gravel. The contents of the pan diminished. As is drew near to the bottom, for the purpose of fleeting and tentative examination, he gave the pan a sudden sloshing movement emptying it of water. And the whole bottom showed as if covered with butter. Thus the [illegible] as the muddy water was poured away. It was gold—gold-built, coarse gold, nuggets, large nuggets. He was all alone. He set the pan down for a moment and thought long thoughts. Then he finished the washing, and weighed the result in his scales. At the rate of sixteen dollars to the ounce the pan had contained seven hundred and odd dollars. It was beyond anything that even he had dreamed. His loudest anticipations had gone no farther than twenty or thirty thousand dollars to a claim; but here were claims worth half a million each at the least, even if they were spotted.

He did not go back to work in the shaft that day, nor the next, nor the next. Instead, capped and mittened, a light stampeding outfit, including his rabbit skin robe, strapped on his back, he was out and away on a many-days' tramp over creeks and divides, inspecting the whole neighboring territory. On each creek he was entitled to locate one claim, but he was chary in thus surrendering up his chances. On Hunker Creek only did he stake a claim. Bonanza Creek he found staked from mouth to source, while every little draw and pup and gulch that drained into it was likewise staked. Little faith was had in these side-streams. They had been staked by the hundreds of men who had failed to get in on Bonanza. The most popular of these creeks was Adams. The one least fancied was Eldorado, which flowed into Bonanza, just above Carmack's Discovery claim. Even Daylight disliked the looks of Eldorado; but, still riding his hunch, he bought a half share in one claim on it for half a sack of flour. A month later he paid eight hundred dollars for the adjoining claim. Three months later, enlarging this block of property, he paid forty thousand for a third claim, and, though it was concealed in the future, he was destined, not long after, to pay one hundred and fifty thousand for a fourth claim on the creek that had been the least liked of all the creeks.

The Whole Bottom Showed as if Covered With Butter.

In the meantime, and from the day he washed seven hundred dollars from a single pan, and squatted over it and thought a long thought, he never again touched hand to pick and shovel. As he said to Joe Ladue the night of that wonderful washing:

"Joe, I ain't never going to work hard again. Here's where I begin to use my brains. I'm going to farm gold. Gold will grow gold if you-all have the savvee and can get hold of some for seed. When I seen them seven hundred dollars in the bottom of the pan, I knew I had seed at last.'

The hero of the Yukon in the younger days before the Carmack strike, Burning Daylight now became the hero of the strike. The story of his hunch and how he rode it was told up and down the land. Certainly he had ridden it far and away beyond the boldest, for no five of the luckiest held the value in claims that he held. And, furthermore, he was still riding the hunch, and with no diminution of daring.

Back in Dawson, though he remained true to his word and never touched hand to pick and shovel, he worked as hard as ever in his life. He had a thousand irons in the fire, and they kept him busy. Heavy as were his exponses, he won more heavily. He took lays, bought half shares, shared with the men he grub-staked, and made personal locations. Day and night his dogs were ready, and he owned the fastest teams; so that when a stampede to a new discovery was on, it was Burning Daylight to the fore through the longest, coldest nights till he blazed his stakes next to Discovery. In one way or another (to say nothing of the many worthless creeks) he came into possession of properties on the good creeks, such as Sulphur, Dominion, Excelsis, Siwash, Cristo, Alhambra, and Doolittle. The thousands he poured out flowed back in tens of thousands.

Dawson grew rapidly that winter of 1896. Money poured in on Daylight from the sale of town lots. He promptly invested it where it would gather more. In fact, he played the dangerous game of pyramiding, and no more perilous pyramiding than in a placer camp could be imagined. But he played with his eyes wide open.

Corner lots in desirable locations sold that winter for from ten to thirty thousand dollars. Daylight sent word out over the trails and passes for the newcomers to bring down log-rafts, and, as a result, the summer of 1897 saw his saw mills working day and night, on three shifts, and still he had logs left over with which to build cabins. These cabins, land included, sold at from one to several thousand dollars. Two-story log buildings, in the business part of town, brought him from forty to fifty thousand dollars apiece. These fresh accretions of capital were immediately invested in other ventures. He turned gold over and over, until everything that he touched seemed to turn to gold.

With the summer rush from the Outside came special correspondents for the big newspapers and magazines, and one and all, using unlimited space, they wrote Daylight up; so that, so far as the world was concerned, Daylight loomed the largest figure in Alaska. Of course, after several months, the world became interested in the Spanish War, and forgot all about him; but in the Klondike itself Daylight still remained the most prominent figure.

CHAPTER VI.

It was held by the thousands of hero-worshipping chechaquos that Daylight was a man absolutely without fear. But Bettles and Dan MacDonald and other sourdoughs shook their heads and laughed as they mentioned women. And they were right. He had always been afraid of them from the time, himself a lad of seventeen, when Queen Anne, of Juneau, made open and ridiculous love to him. For that matter, he never had known women. Born in a mining-camp where they were rare and mysterious, having no sisters, his mother dying while he was an infant, he had never been in contact with them.

But it was left to the Virgin to give him his final fright. She was found one morning dead in her cabin. A shot through the head had done it, and she had left no message, no explanation. Then came the talk. Some wit, voicing public opinion, called it a case of too much Daylight. She had killed herself because of him. Everybody knew this, and said so. The correspondents wrote it up, and once more Burning Daylight, King of the Klondike, was sensationally featured in the Sunday supplements of the United States. The Virgin had straightened up, so the feature-stories ran, and correctly so. Never had she entered a Dawson City dance-hall. When she first arrived from Circle City, she had earned her living by washing clothes. Next, she had bought a sewing-machine and made men's drill parkas, fur caps, and moosehide mittens. Then she had gone as a clerk into the First Yukon Bank. All this, and more, was known and told, though one and all were agreed that Daylight, while the cause, had been the innocent cause of her untimely end.

And the worst of it was that Daylight knew it was true. Always would he remember that last night he had seen her. He had thought nothing of it at the time; but, looking back, he was haunted by every little thing that had happened. In the light of the tragic event, he could understand everything—her quietness, that calm certitude as if all vexing questions of living had been smoothed out and were gone, and that certain ethereal sweetness about all that she had said and done that had been almost maternal. He remembered the way she had looked at him, how she had laughed when he narrated Mickey Dolan's mistake in staking the fraction on Skookum Gulch. Her laughter had been lightly joyous, while at the same time it had lacked its old-time robustness. Not that she had been grave or subdued. On the contrary, she had been so patently content, so filled with peace. She had fooled him, fool that he was. He had even thought that night that her feeling for him had passed, and he had taken delight in the thought, and caught visions of the satisfying future friendship that would be theirs with this perturbing love out of the way.

And then, when he stood at the door, cap in hand, and said good night. It had struck him at the time as a funny and embarrassing thing, her bending over his hand and kissing it. He had felt like a fool, but he shivered now when he looked back on it and felt again the touch of her lips on his hand. She was saying good-by, an eternal good-by, and he had never guessed. At that very moment, and for all the moments of the evening, coolly and deliberately, as he well knew her way, she had been resolved to die. If he had only known it! Untouched by the contagious malady himself, nevertheless he would have married her if he had had the slightest inkling of what she contemplated. And yet he knew, furthermore, that hers was a certain stiff-kneed pride that would not have permitted her to accept marriage as an act of philanthropy. There had really been no saving her, after all. The love-disease had fastened upon her, and she had been doomed from the first to perish of it.

Six thousand spent the winter of 1897 in Dawson, work on the creeks went on apace, while beyond the passes it was reported that one hundred thousand more were waiting for the spring. Late one brief afternoon, Daylight, on the benches between French Hill and Shookum Hill, caught a wider vision of things. Beneath him lay the richest part of Eldorado Creek, while up and down Bonanza he could see for miles. It was a scene of a vast devastation. The hills, to their tops, had been shorn of trees, and their naked sides showed signs of goring and perforating that even the mantle of snow could not hide. Beneath him, in every direction, were the cabins of men. But not many men were visible. A blanket of smoke filled the valleys and turned the gray day to melancholy twilight. Smoke arose from a thousand holes in the snow, where, deep down on bed-rock, in the frozen muck and gravel, men crept and scratched and dug, and ever built more fires to break the grip of the frost.

Organization was what was needed, he decided; and his quick imagination sketched Eldorado Creek, from mouth to source, and from mountain top to mountain top, in the hands of one capable management. Even steam-thawing, as yet untried, but bound to come, he saw would be a makeshift. What should be done was to hydraulic the valley sides and benches, and then, on the creek bottom, to use gold-dredges. There was the very chance for another big killing. He had wondered just what was precisely the reason for the Guggenhammers and the big English concerns sending in their high-salaried experts. That was their scheme. That was why they had approached him for the sale of worked-out claims and tailings. They were content to let the small mine-owners gopher out what they could, for there would be millions in the leavings.

And, gazing down on the smoky inferno of crude effort, Daylight outlined the new game he would play; a game in which the Guggenhammers and the rest would have to reckon with him. But along with the delight in the new conception came a weariness. He was tired of the long Arctic years, and he was curious about the Outside—the great world of which he had heard other men talk and of which he was as ignorant as a child. There were games out there to play. It was a larger table, and there was no reason why he with his millions should not sit in and take a hand. So it was, that afternoon on Skookum Hill, that he resolved to play this last best Klondike hand and pull for the Outside. It took time, however. He put trusted agents to work on the heels of great experts, and on the creeks where they began to buy he likewise bought. Wherever they tried to corner a worked-out creek, they found him standing in the way, owning blocks of claims or artfully scattered claims that put all their plans to naught.

Followed wars, truces, compromises, victories, and defeats. By 1898, sixty thousand men were on the Klondike, and all their fortunes and affairs rocked back and forth and were affected by the battles Daylight fought. And more and more the taste for the larger game urged in Daylight's mouth. Here he was already locked in grapples with the great Guggenhammers, and winning, fiercely winning. Possibly the severest struggle was waged on Ophir, the veriest of moose-pastures, whose low-grade dirt was valuable only because of its vastness. The ownership of a block of seven claims in the heart of it gave Daylight his grip, and they could not come to terms. The Guggenhammer experts concluded that it was too big for him to handle, and when they gave him an ultimatum to that effect he accepted and bought them out. The plan was his own, but he sent down to the States for competent engineers to carry it out. In the Rinkabilly watershed, eighty miles away, he built his reservoir, and for eighty miles the huge wooden conduit carried the water across country to Ophir. Estimated at three millions, the reservoir and conduit cost nearer four. Nor did he stop with this. Electric power plants were installed, and his workings were lighted as well as run by electricity. Other sourdoughs, who had struck it rich in excess of all their dreams, shook their heads gloomily, warned him that he would go broke, and declined to invest in so extravagant a venture. But Daylight smiled, and sold out the remainder of his town-site holdings. He sold at the right time, at the height of the placer boom. When he prophesied to his old cronies, in the Moosehorn Saloon, that within five years town lots in Dawson could not be given away, while the cabins would be chopped up for firewood, he was laughed at roundly, and assured that the mother-lode would be found ere that time. But he went ahead, when his need for lumber was finished, selling out his sawmills as well. Likewise, he began to get rid of his scattered holdings on the various creeks, and without thanks to any one he finished his conduit, built his dredges, imported his machinery, and made the gold of Ophir immediately accessible. And he, who five years before had crossed over the divide from Indian River and threaded the silent wilderness, his dogs packing Indian fashion, himself living Indian fashion on straight moose meat, now heard the hoarse whistles calling his hundreds of laborers to work, and watched them toil under the white glare of the arc-lamps.

But having done the thing, he was ready to depart. And when he let the word go out, the Guggenhammers vied with the English concerns and with a new French company in bidding for Ophir and all its plant. The Guggenhammers bid highest, and the price they paid netted Daylight a clean million. It was current rumor that he was worth anywhere from twenty to thirty millions. But he alone knew just how he stood, and that, with his last claim sold and the table swept clean of his winnings, he had ridden his hunch to the tune of just a trifle over eleven millions.

LIBRARIANS OF STATE DISCUSS ADVERTISING.

A discussion on "Advertising a Library" was the feature of the morning session of the New Jersey Library Association, held in the Public Library Wednesday. The discussion was informal.

A report read by Miss Mary G. Peters, of Bayonne, showed that the membership had increased by fifty-four members since last year. The present membership of the association is said to be 251.

Election of officers was the closing business of the morning session, resulting as follows: President, Miss Elizabeth Wesson, Orange; first vice president, Adam Strohm, Trenton; second vice president, H. O. Clemens, Princeton; secretary, Miss Edna P. Pratt, Trenton; treasurer, Miss Mary G. Peters, Bayonne.

It was voted that the newly elected officers shall appoint an advisory committee to act with them in the transaction of the business of the association.

The session adjourned at 1 o'clock. After luncheon the members were shown through the library building by John C. Dana, librarian, who presided at the morning session.

At the evening session the program consisted of a discussion on "Know Your Own Town." The subject was placed under three heads. The first was "Municipal Reference Work," the second "Civic and Social Organization" and the third "Local History."

HE COMPILES LIST OF REVOLUTION SOLDIERS

Under the caption "Over-the-Brook Patriotism," Oliver B. Leonard, the local historian, has compiled a list of soldiers enlisting in the War of 1812 from Somerset county, a majority of whom were from North Plainfield. The list is an interesting one and will no doubt attract considerable attention on the part of those who are descendants of the men who fought in the war. The list follows:

David Allen, Gideon Allen, Dugal Ayers, Archibald Barth, John Cary, Parkhurst Cary, Benj. Cremmoor, John Curtis, Andrew Drake, Jonathan Drake, Reuben Dunn, David French, William Harris, Elias Kirkpatrick, Benj. Littell, Isaac Manning, James Marshall, Moses Miller, Daniel Maxwell, Benj. Moore, Revier Mosher, Isaac Moore, Samuel Pope, Samuel Pangborn, Jacob Smalley, David Smalley, David Stewart, Daniel Southlon, Isaac Smalley, Joseph Tingley, John Taynor, Jacob Tingley, Ephraim Tucker, George Townly, Ezra Wooden, Samuel Yard.

STAMLER LIBEL SUIT HALTED BY SICKNESS.

Elizabeth, Oct. 21.—The trial of the $25,000 libel suit brought by Excise Commissioner Thomas Y. Bye against John J. Stamler, a lawyer, began yesterday in the Union County Court before Judge Vail. Little trouble was experienced in selecting a jury.

The paintiff was the only witness called by his counsel, Alan H. Strong, of New Brunswick. Commissioner Bye's testimony was brief. It consisted of a general denial of the charges made by the defendant, together with further evidence in the shape of a clipping of the letter written by Stamler to an Elizabeth newspaper, which forms the basis for the alleged libel.

At this point Judge Vail declared that owing to a request made by John K. English, of counsel for the defense, he would adjourn the trial until Monday. The reason for the request was the critical illness of Theodore C. English, uncle of Mr. English, who is believed to be dying at his home, 567 Walnut street, from acute pneumonia.

Theodore English is one of the oldest lawyers in Elizabeth and one of the founders of the Union County Bar Association. For many years he has been a Republican member of the Elizabeth Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

—Terry Bros., painters and decorators, have just completed the decorating of City Judge W. G. DeMeza's home on Sandford avenue.

—The ambulance was called yesterday to remove Mrs. Rilling from her home on Wilson avenue to the hopsital where an operation was performed. Her condition today is reported to be favorable.

FROM JERSEY TEACHER TO PRIME MINISTER

From teaching school in New Jersey to the Prime Ministership of Canada—that is the experience of Robert Laird Borden, who assumed the leadership of his party a few days ago. Mr. Borden was at one time a teacher in Glenwood Institute, Matawan, and is well remembered by those who sat under his teachings back in the seventies.

At that time Professor James Hamilton was in charge of the institute. The school was very much run down, but the new principal set to work instilling into it new life. He was an educator of the higher grade and surrounded himself with instructors who he hoped would bring the institute up to his ideal. He sent to Grand Pre, Nova Scotia, for Mr. Borden, whom he desired to teach mathematics, and he is remembered by some of the students as an unaffected young Englishman of slight build, light hair, keen, sharp eyes, firm teeth, which showed through protruding lips. He was not considered particularly striking as to looks.

Mr. Borden was a most excellent teacher, and had the full confidence of his class. While there he indulged to a degree in the usual sports of the Episcopal church, but beyond this mingled little with the town folk.

Miss Annie Johnson cherishes the autograph album of her girlhood days, in which Mr. Borden recorded his signature, at her request.

Mr. Borden was desirous of taking up law while teaching, and was about to do so when he decided to return to his home in Nova Scotia. There he began the study of law, graduating in 1878. He associated himself with Sir Charles Tupper, Canada's Prime Minister, in 1896.

It is said by some who have continued their acquaintance with him formed while at Matawan that from his long connection with the Tuppers, Mr. Borden possesses many of their strong characteristics. Mrs. Borden was Miss Laura Bond, of Halifax.

The will of Sherrerd Depue, of Newark, was filed yesterday by his widow, Mrs. Mabel N. Depue. Mrs. Depue is the sole beneficiary under the will, and is also executrix. No mention is made of the extent of the estate.

The will, which was drawn April 3, 1893, and witnessed by Chauncey G. Parker and Henry B. Taylor, contains a clause continuing the will, whatever children might be born. There are four children, all born since 1893. They are David A. Depue, sixteen years old; Sherrerd Depue, Jr., twelve years old; Robert N. Depue, nine years old, and Mabel R. Depue, seven years old.

EARTH'S POPULATION ABOUT 1,800 MILLION

Wagner and Sufan, the German statisticians, estimated in the year 1891 the population of the world at 1,480 millions persons. More than one-half of this estimated number was based upon the results of actual censuses, and the remainder was carefully estimated. We shall probably not be far away from the truth if we say that there are now (in A. D. 1911) 1,800 million persons on the earth.

If in Anno Domini 1 a man had then desired to be hailed in a later century Universal Benefactor of the World, he could have achieved his desire by then investing the equivalent of a modern American cent at 5 per centum compound interest per annum, the interest to accumulate year by year for the benefit of future generations.

At the end of the first century of investment—namely, in A. D. 100—the original cent would have grown to 1 dollar 31 cents. At the end of 1,910 years after Anno Domini 1—namely, at the end of the year 1910 (last year)—the original cent would have grown to the stupendous value of $296,180,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 dollars ($29,618 followed by 34 0's.)

This accummulation resulting in A. D. 1910, from the original investment of one cent in Anno Domini 1 is so vast that no brain can realize what is the meaning of the enormous quantity of dollars just stated. We are wholly unable to realize the stupendous golden growth of this original cent unless we press into our service various aids to imaginative conception, such as those I have dreamed and here illustrated.

Imagine the earth transformed into a huge flat slab one mile thick, floating in space. Let every man, woman, and child now living in the world—approximately 1,800 million persons—continually discharge a quick-firing gun loaded with American gold eagles in place of bullets for 1,000 years. Each gun fires into space one thousand Gold Eagles per minute, which drop over the edges of the earth.

The result is that at the end of one thousand years' continuous discharge of gold eagles from 1,800 millions of quick-firing guns at the rate of one thousand gold eagles per minute from each gun, only an infinitesimal fraction of the money would have thus been got rid of. The amount to be thus drawn upon being the $29,618 followed by thirty-four 0's, this amount being the accumulated result of one cent invested in Anno Domini 1 at 5 per centum compound interest until the end of the year 1910. All this firing away of Gold Eagles would have to continue for more than 31,000,000,000,000,000 years, in place of for merely one thousand years, in order to exhaust the money accumulated in A. D. 191.

This incredible result is no freak of fancy, but a solid fact.—John Holt Schooling in the Strand.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

A debate was held by the senior class of North Plainfield High School on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. The resolution was: The Right to Vote Should Be Given to Women. Professor Albert Early, teacher of mathematics, was the official judge, and Professor Paul A. Mertz, the English teacher was chairman. Many excellent arguments were brought out by each side during the first two days. Louis Bennett and Edmund J. Kenney were appointed to conduct the rebuttals for the affirmative side and Guy D. Peck, Jr., and Lawrence H. French for the negative side. Thursday rebuttals were heard from Peck and Bennett and Kenney and French were to speak on Friday, but they were more interested in hearing a political speech by Governor Wilson and left the remainder of the rebuttal to Peck and Bennett. Mr. Sarley, after the final rebuttals were heard, announced that the contest was close but the decision was in favor of the negative side.

The debate was so great a success that Mr. Mertz suggested that in the near future a public debate between the seniors and juniors be held in the High School.

Those on the affrmative side were the Misses Ella Miller, Margaret Darby, Elsie Schmidt, Florence Daly and Messrs. Louis N. Bennett, Edmund Kenney, Carroll Taylor and George Spencer.

Those who comprised the negative side were the Misses Dougherty, Rose Andrews, Edith Wheeler, Madeline Uhrhahn, Helen Hummel, and Messrs. Guy D. Peck, Jr., Lawrence H. French, Henry Kinney and William Taylor.

INSTRUCTOR QUESTIONS SCHOOL BOARD'S ACTION

The question whether Miss Elsie Nicholson was entitled to retain her position as supervising principal of the school of Swedesboro, after she had resigned and her resignation had been first rejected and then accepted, was argued before Assistant Commissioner of Education J. Brognard Betts, of this city, yesterday at Trenton.

Miss Nicholson tendered her resignation last February, to take effect when her work for the school year had been completed. She received no reply from the local board until April 1, when she was informed by a letter from the clerk that at a meeting the day before the board had decided not to accept her resignation.

A new board came into office that day and on April 4 held a meeting, at which the resignation was accepted. In the interim Miss Nicholson had notified Principal James M. Green, of the State Normal School, in Trenton, that she could not accept a position at the Farnum Preparatory School for which Dr. Green had suggested that she make application.

Miss Nicholson testified that she had believed she could not give up her place at Swedsboro unless released from her contract by the local board. When that body declined to accept her resignation she thought that her only course was to continue as supervisor.

LUCY ISABELLE MARSH TO SING FOR M'INTYRE

Occasionally from the ranks of candidates for concert honors comes a personality, a voice and a mental equipment insisting upon recognition which is cheerfully given. Such a singer is Lucy Isabelle Marsh, whose career indicates a future that insures for her name a place on the roster of America's principal sopranos. Miss Marsh has been before the public for only a few years, yet her record of accomplishment is one of uninterrupted successes. Immediately upon her return from Paris first rank engagements came to her, and so admirable was her disposition of each singing task that she found others of similar importance awaiting her services.

Miss Marsh has a voice of genuine charm, smooth, sympathetic, amply large and flexible. It is freely given and effective in all varieties of compositions.

Musically this young singer has gone far and her equipment, on this account, is one of gratifying security, both to audiences and herself. Miss Marsh affects no artificial poses nor does she resort to little "tricks" for the sake of a possible effect. Miss Marsh will be the assisting artist at the first McIntyre chamber music Concert at the High School auditorium next Tuesday evening.

Among her numbers will be the "Swallow," by Dell Agna, which she sings with a flexibility so perfect and a quality of voice so rare that to hear her is a delightful experience.

FINEST BRED DOGS AT BENCH SHOW

Although the weather conditions could not have been worse, the Plainfield Kennel Club bravely faced the great odds against which they had to work, and held its third annual bench show at the horse show grounds on Saturday. The grounds were a sea of mud and water, and from 10 o'clock in the morning until nightfall, exhibitors and interested spectators waded about disregarding all discomforts and watched intently the judging of the valuable dogs on exhibition.

The show attracted several hundred people, a majority of whom were properly dressed for the day. Not a few of the women wore rubber boots, and all sorts of heavy wraps were donned to provide protection from the rain. It was undoubtedly one of the most severe tests for lovers of the sport, and yet through it all not a murmur of discontent was heard and there was practically no criticism of the judging handicapped as it was by weather conditions.

Much to the delight of local owners their entries fared unusually well, carrying off many high honors. Second only to the honors won by Mrs. Tyler Morse with her matchless entries of Old English Sheep dogs was the clean sweep made by the fine collection of Scottish deerhounds from the Midlothian Kennels, of which Edmund L. Mackenzie is the owner. A brace from these kennels, Champion Mistress of Midlothian, which won the blue for the bitches class, and Champion Matchless of Midlothian, which secured the blue for dogs, were awarded the second highest honors by winning the vice-president's trophy for the best sporting brace of any breed.

There were many other pleasing awards for owner of local dogs. Mrs. James D. Anderson won points with her entries of cocker spaniels and toy poodles, securing a first in each class for bitches. Mrs. Ralph L. Morrow's entry, "Snowball," won a blue in the class for Maltese Terriers, novice, dogs; also a blue in the limit class for dogs, but Mrs. M. Koerlins' "Folly Boy" finally secured the winners' prize. Councilman Herbert Buxton's French bulldog "Yvonne," was disqualified because of its mouse color, but won on points.

Harry B. MacDonald won two blues with his fine entry, "Dutchess," in the class for Boston Terriers, and Charles S. Woolston won two blues with "Duke," in the class for Boston Terriers, while Mr. and Mrs. George H. Parker won a number of ribbons with their fine Alerdales, including two blues, three reds and four specials. Mrs. F. S. Moore with her toy poodles, "Sonney Lad" and "Little Elk," made a fine showing, getting first, reserve and special with the latter and a second and a $2.50 gold piece with the former. Mrs. C. Auerbach also won ribbons with her Yorkshire Terriers, and George R. Vanderhoef won a fourth prize with his fine collie "Teddy." There were many other Plainfield entries and the honors were awarded in a way that left little room for criticism.

Meadowview Kennels, of which Abram G. Hooley is the owner, cleaned up everything in the English Setter classes, winning a bronze medal and numerous ribbons for the best team in the show, the best in the puppy class and the judge's trophy for the best brace of setters. In the novice class E. H. Hobbie's Scottish terrier won two first and a second in the novice class. Ruppert Anderson's Russian Wolfhounds were prominent as usual, winning honors, but according to fanciers did not receive full recognition.

The Queen City Hotel cup for the best pointer in Union and Somerset counties, was won by Dr. A. F. Carpenter of this city. A C. Wilmerding's fine entry of cocker spaniels also made a clean sweep, winning honors for the best sporting brace, the best brace and other first prizes.

The Watchung Hunt Club made a clean sweep with its entry of hounds. Vernona Jarbeau's Aimee, reserve.

Miss Margaret Buttfield's fine string of Scottish deerhounds, about fourteen dogs, arrived too late to be judged much to the disappointment of the owner, but she will undoubtedly win high honors at the Madison Square Show. The awards follow:

W. M. MAXIM WEDS

Miss Marjorie Brown, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Brown, His Bride.

REV. MR. MAGUIRE OFFICIATES.

Only Attendant, Miss Arline Brown as Bridesmaid—Fifty Friends Present—Couple to Reside on East Seventh St.

Miss Marjorie Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Brown, of East Sixth street, and Willard M. Maxim, of Belvidere avenue, were married at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of about fifty relatives and friends from New York, Westfield and this city. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white satin with bead trimming, and she carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Arline Brown, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and only attendant. Her gown was of light pink satin draped with white flowered marquisette, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. The wedding march was played on the piano by Harold Welch, of Westfield, a cousin of the bride, and during the reception he played violin selections, accompanied on the piano by Miss Arline Brown.

The house was elaborately decorated for the wedding, there being an attractive arrangement of autumnal foliage, and in the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, the bridal party stood beneath a large floral bower and received congratulations, after which a wedding supper was served.

The bride received a large collection of costly gifts which was greatly admired by the guests. The couple left Saturday night on a short wedding trip. They will reside on East Seventh street upon their return. Mr. Maxim has been a resident of this city for some years. He is engaged in business in New York as a soap and perfumery merchant. He is prominent in Masonry.

MRS. HELEN FOLEY DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Mrs. Helen Foley, wife of John Foley, of Lee place, died at her home last night, following a month's illness. Her death came as a great shock to her family and friends as previously she had been in the best of health. She was only twenty-three years old and married but a short time ago.

Mrs. Foley was a native of New York city and since coming to Plainfield had made many acquaintances. Beside her husband, she is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Keough, and two brothers, John and James Keough, of Lee place; also a sister, Miss Frances Keough of New York.

The funeral will be held at her late home Wednesday morning at 8:30 and in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

COMEDY-OPERETTA AT THEATRE TOMORROW NIGHT.

In the comedy-operetta "Betsy" in which Miss Grace LaRue will be seen at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. This popular comedienne has the somewhat unusual role of a fascinating widow who marries one man to gain another and thereby entangles so many interests that it takes seventeen musical numbers and three acts of humorous surprises and situations to bring about a happy ending. "Betsy" is a musical novelty whose scenes are set in New York city, and Magnolia Springs. In the title role, Miss LaRue is most happily cast and she is surrounded by such well-known players and singers as Cecil Jarvis Ryan, John Willard, George W. Callahan, Worthington L. Romaine, Alfred Deery, Donald Buchanan, Juliette Lange, Lavina Shannon, Myrtle Jersey and Lucie Carter. The production is by Byron Chandler. There are twenty-four in the orchestra.

YOUNG POLAK ATTEMPTS TO END HIS EXISTENCE

Despondent over his inability to secure steady employment, John Zuzzie, a Polak, twenty-two years old, attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver last night at the home of his brother-in-law, John Leach, with whom the young man lived on Maple avenue, South Plainfield, since coming to this country a year ago. Leach entered the room in time to see Zuzzie place the gun and with a bound reached the rash young man's side in time to knock the weapon aside so that when discharged it only inflicted a scalp wound.

Dr. N. W. Currie was summoned and found two lacerations, one near the right temple and one at the base of the brain. Dr. Currie said he thinks that when Zuzzie was bowled over by Leach these injuries were inflicted and that neither of them are of a serious nature. The wounded man seemed to be deranged and after his wounds were dressed he was taken to New Brunswick, where he is being detained under observation for the purpose of having him committed to the State hospital.

PARLOR SALE IN AID OF A BLIND WOMAN

A parlor sale at the home of Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, of Westervelt avenue, Friday afternoon, netted the gratifying sum of $80 for the aid of a dependent blind woman. A similar affair is held each year by twelve Plainfield women and last week's was the most successful of all. The home was filled all afternoon with eager buyers and the stock of home-made cake, candy and fancy articles was disposed of quickly. Enough orders were received for twice the number of cakes on hand. Mrs. Wilbur and her assistants were pleased with the result and through the medium of The Daily Press desire to thank their friends for donations and purchases.

Those who arranged and had charge of the sale were the following: Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, Mrs. J. M. Bettman, Mrs. James F. Buckle, Mrs. Fred Sandford, Mrs. Joseph A. Haynes, Mrs. Blake Brodhead Tatham, Mrs. H. K. Dumont, Mrs. Wilton Bennett, Mrs. R. O. Howell, Mrs. Annie Moore, Mrs. Mary Tatham, Miss Clara Buckle, Miss Lillian Chandler and Miss Julia Rainteau.

MASS MEETING TONIGHT OF ELIZABETH'S G.O.P.

What will probably be the largest Republican mass meeting of this campaign will be held tonight in Elizabeth at the headquarters of the Downtown Republican Club, Geo. L. Babcock, of this city, a candidate for member of the Assembly, will be one of the speakers. Former Governor J. Franklin Fort will deliver the chief address. Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, candidate for State Senator, and the other two candidates for the Assembly, William F. Groves and George C. Otto, both of Elizabeth, will also be heard.

This will be the annual rally of the club and heretofore they have always proven a noteworthy event in the political circles of the county and particularly Elizabeth. Mr. Fort has spoken but a few times in the recent campaign and this will be the first occasion this year that he has made an address in this vicinity.

FIRST BAPTISTS HEAR REV. DR. P. B. STRONG

Rev. Dr. Phillip B. Strong, of Kingston, N. Y., one of the best known preachers in the Baptist denomination, occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church, yesterday morning and evening. He was heard by large congregations, considering the weather. In the morning his subject was "God Is Love," and in the evening, "What Is Life?" from which he delivered two powerful sermons.

Dr. Strong recites the Scripture lessons entirely from memory, commenting on each verse, and he preaches without notes of any kind. At both services yesterday Dr. Strong gave a remarkable demonstration of memory. He was formerly paster of the First Baptist church at Kingston, N. Y., for thirteen years, but has been out of active pastorate for the past year. He will again occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church next Sunday.

'THE TRUE IDEAL'

Rev. Father Grady Tells the Knights of Columbus What It Is.

AT ANNUAL VESPER SERVICE.

St. Mary's Church Filled With Organization's Personnel and Friends—Musical Program a Feature.

The annual vesper service for Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, was given in St. Mary's church last night in the presence of a congregation that occupied every available seat. The membership of the organization, which occupied the forward part of the edifice, was swelled by visiting delegations from out of town, and families and friends made up the remainder of the gathering. The fourth degree Knights, clad in their regalia, led the way in entering and leaving.

Rev. Father J. J. Zimmer, of Raritan, was celebrant of the vesper service. Rev. Father C. J. Dunphy, of Dunellen, deacon; Rev. Father Richard Ryan, of Somerville, sub-deason, and Rev. Father John F. Baldwin, of Mount St. Mary's College, master of ceremonies. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Father William F. Grady, of Rutherford, his subject being, "The Values of an Ideal."

A special musical program was a feature of the service. The regular choir was augmented by a chancel choir of thirty boys. Their fresh, young voices blended in spirited harmony during the processional as they sang "Onward Christian Soldiers" and later in the recessional "O Holy God, We Praise Thy Name." The choir numbers added greatly to the beauty of the proceedings.

In his address Father Grady held to theme that the attainment of the Kingdom of God is the only true ideal and not to obtain riches or become the ruler of men. The tendency of the age is to lose sight of the former in the quest for earthly gain and despite so-called success in amassing riches or acquiring office the true ideal of all men has not been reached.

Father Grady's sermon was pointed in many respects, but its lesson was so clearly drawn, the import was fully apparent. The service as a whole was one of the best yet conducted by the Plainfield Knights.

EXPRESS CO. DEFENCE FAILS BEER DEALER

Though he put in what is known as the "express company" defense, Herman Moskovitz, of Fanwood, was convicted in the Recorder's Court at Westfield, Saturday, of selling beer in this place without a license. A fine of $100 was imposed which Moskovitz paid.

In a court decision on a South Jersey case, delivered more than a year ago, it was held that the delivery by an express company of liquors ordered and paid for elsewhere was not illegal.

Since that decision, many dealers who had been delivering liquor from their own wagons in places other than where their licenses were issued, formed "express companies" with a view of protecting themselves.

In his own defense Moskovitz claimed that the goods were delivered in Westfield by the Fanwood Express Company and that the express company took the orders. He admitted that his wife was secretary and treasurer of the express company and that its stables were on his property. Herman Kolb, president of the Fanwood Express Company, did not know how many horses and wagons the company had, did not know the employes of the company and could not say that the express company ever carried merchandise for any one else except for Moskovitz.

Ruthenian Pastor to Speak.

The session of the Crescent Avenue church has invited Rev. Valdimir Pyndykowksi, pastor of the Ruthenian Presbyterian church, of Newark, to speak at the local church, Wednesday night. The building of the Ruthenian church in Newark is a large venture in Synodical Home Missions.

Wanderlust.

Marion Smith, colored, fourteen years old, who ran away from her home on South Second street last Thursday, was arrested Saturday night in Somerville. Her parents were notified and brought the wanderer home today.

The Rasores will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. W. B. Miller, of East Seventh street. Subject, St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo.

CALL FOR VOTERS

Those Not Personally Registered Cannot Vote Unless They Go to Polls Tomorrow.

LAST DAY FOR REGISTRATION.

Geran Law Provides that No Man's Name Can be Sworn on List—The Polling Places in the City and Borough.

Rough estimates made by former Assemblyman Roger F. Murray show that probably but sixty per cent. of the Republicans of Plainfield are registered. This means that unless the other forty per cent. personally appear at the district polls tomorrow and register they will not be able to vote at the general election on Tuesday, November 7. The estimate is the result of a canvass made throughout the city and the voters visited should bear in mind that the canvasser himself is now robbed of the power to attend to the registration by affidavit. The voter himself must personally register. The polls will be open from 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon until 9 o'clock tomorrow night and here is the list of polling places:

The pastors will be assisted by Rev. John MacMurray and Rev. George Mooney, former pastors of the church, who will preach on different nights. Thus far the meetings have been the means of arousing much interest among the Methodists and others who have attended them and it is expected that new members will be received in each church.

CARVES DAUGHTER

Victim in Critical Condition and Mother, Mrs. Lomax, Held a Prisoner.

RAZOR AS THE WEAPON.

Assailant Begged Son-in-Law to Shoot Her After the Attack—She Wanted Young Couple to Live With Her.

Mrs. Harry Brooks, colored, of West Third street, is in a critical condition in Muhlenberg Hospital with her throat and neck so terribly gashed with a razor that little hope is held out for her recovery. Her mother Mrs. Mary P. Lomax, of Jersey City, is being held at police headquarters, self confessed to having inflicted the injury. She will be arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court tomorrow morning unless there is a decided change in the victim's condition during today.

Locating her seventeen-year-old daughter, Lustenia, here where she had come to live after eloping with Brooks seven weeks ago, Mrs. Lomax called on her yesterday. She forgave the daughter for running away and tried to induce the young married couple to come and reside with her in Jersey City. The mother's entreaties lasted all day and were rewarded with a promise by the young couple that when the spring came they would do as she requested. This was not at all satisfactory to the mother and in the heat of passion she picked up a razor and slashed her daughter's throat.

The gash was inflicted with a sweeping slash and extends from near the spinal cord at the base of the neck along the side of the neck and ends under the point of the chin. Only quick action by the police in removing the victim to Muhlenberg Hospital saved her life emporarily, at least. This afternoon her condition was still critical and litte hope is entertained for her recovery.

The prisoner is about forty years of age and is a widow. The victim is about seventeen years old.

When asked how the razor came to be so handy, Mrs. Lomax told a story which the police are investigating. She said that at one part of the conversation, her son-in-law went to a trunk, and as she thought, took out a revolver which he put in his pocket. As there had been some rather sharp things on both sides said prior to that time, Mrs. Lomax had her suspicions aroused and when a few moments later her daughter and husband left the room, the prisoner went to the trunk which was left unlocked. Seeing a razor in it she took it out and placed it handy in case Brooks became ugly or threatened her.

A short time later the daughter came back alone and the talk about moving was renewed. Tempers were badly strained by this time and one remark by her daughter angered Mrs. Lomax so that she seized the razor and without realizing her action, she says, struck at her daughter. The wounded woman's shrieks attracted her husband who upon entering the room was met with a plea by his mother-in-law to blow her brains out with the revolver he had in his pocket. She admits having made the request, but Brooks denied that he had a gun.

Alfred Wilson, colored, who occupies a part of the same house with the Brooks, came in at this time and seeing what had occurred notified the police. Patrolman McGinley was in the vicinity and called the ambulance after putting Mrs. Lomax under arrest. The room looked like a slaughter pen and at first the husband could not be found but was later located in a clothes closet where he says he had locked himself to prevent his mother-in-law slashing him as she had her daughter. Doctors Currie and B. vanD. Hedges worked a long time over the victim and they say that chances for her recovery are about even.

An Evening With the Davids.

An evening with Mr. and Mrs. Walter David, under the auspices of the oung Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church, is announced for Friday evening at the church. Mrs. David possesses unusual talent as a harpist, while Mr. David as a reader is considered second to none. They will doubtless be greeted by a large audience.

Coal, the Furnace —and Heat

The first two are necessities—the latter is often an unknown quality with the old-style, ash-clogged furnaces. The round fire-pot prevents perfect combustion and it cramps the radiating area. The new, patented eliminates all of the usual furnace disadvantages. It increases the radiating area—it makes clinkers and ash-clogging impossible—it disposes of all labor and care. Your dealer will be glad to tell you a great deal more of Square Pot Furnaces.

CLAIRVOYANT IN POLICE HANDS

Phillipsburg, Oct. 23.—When City Detective George Grube, of Easton, saw Clyde McClure on the streets of this city the other day he thought he recognized in the man one who was wanted by the authorities of Terre Haute Ind., on four charges of grand larceny. In consequence McClure was lodged in jail Friday night.

Grube had seen a photograph of McClure, which had been sent to the police of Easton in connection with the latter's disappearance. He was described as being a fugitive from justice. The man posed as a clairvoyant, and it is said that in this capacity he wormed thousands of dollars out of patrons. The grand larceny charges are based on this allegation.

McClure, who refuses to say anything about himself, is said to have several aliases, among them being "Dr. George McGee," "George Kurtz" and "John Judson." He came to this city early this month and opened an office anouncing himself as "Clyde McClure, clairvoyant, positive master of occult science and adept medium." He did a good business from the start. After meeting McClure on the street Grube returned to Easton and looked over the pictures on file in the office of the chief of police. He found a circular from Terre Haute, giving a likeness of McClure, with the announcement that he was wanted as being a fugitive from justice.

The detective communicated with the authorities of Terre Haute, and Detective H. V. Jones and Prosecuting Attorney Albert R. Owens, of that city, came to Phillipsburg Saturday. McClure was readily located at the Lee House, and he was taken in custody, protesting that he was not the man wanted. A warrant had been previously issued by Justice of the Peace J. S. Barnes.

McClure asked if he might have the privilege of telephoning his lawyer, and the request was granted. He went into a telephone booth alone, and it is said that he called up the wife of a "Professor Hall," the latter being a clairvoyant. McClure is alleged to have told the woman on the other end of the wire that it "would be well for Morris to blow out of town." He said that he (McClure) had been arrested.

The local police tried to find out from the telephone company the number called by McClure, but all information was refused. "Hall" is said to have gone under the aliases of "A. J. Morris," "E. H. Holt" and "J. Stanley." He was committed to jail to await extradition papers.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS.

The attacks upon Governor Wilson's views and policies by ex-Governor Stokes and other Republicans are quite legitimate, in our opinion. The Governor does not mince words and there is no reason why the responses should be less candid. Men who have been assailed as severely as the former Governors of New Jersey have been by the present Chief Executive would be less or more than human if they did not return the compliments in kind.—Newark Call.

RAHWAY ASSESSORS' SUIT THROWN OUT.

Trenton, Oct. 23.—Defects in the proceedings have resulted in the Supreme Court throwing out the suit instituted to determine which of two rival sets of officers are entitled to constitute the Board of Assessors of Rahway. The action, in the nature of a quo warranto, was brought by Robert D. Gibby, Lawrence Baumgartner, Alonzo Crane and William H. Clarkson against Nathan V. Compton, Charles A. Grove and Peter Tillman.

The court, finding the questions of fact had not been properly determined, decided that the case was improperly on the list and should not have been argued. New proceedings may be instituted.

No other service can compare with it. A FIDELITY GUARANTY is not the product of one man and his clerk, but of the most exhaustive examination by many experts, based not only upon the records, but also upon much history, not shown in the records, but gathered by the Fidelity after many years of searching.

ALL THIS IS AT YOUR SERVICE.

Come in and talk it over.

A TRUST COMPANY TO A CERTAINTY WILL OUTLIVE THE INDIVIDUAL, and in representing you in your real estate transactions will save you the vexatious and ofttime costly delays coincident with the administration of the individual representative's estate after death.

Are you exercising the utmost precaution for the protection of your money loaned upon bond and mortgage by using the antiquated method of a "search of title" by the individual when the facilities of title insurance ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEEING your title are offered you at no greater expense by a home company WITH OVER $9,500,000 OF CAPITAL AND SURPLUS TO PROTECT ITS GUARANTY?

Fidelity Trust Co.,

Commenting on the campaign for Assembly, Chairman William Barnes, Jr., said conditions were favorable for recovering lost ground in New York.

Borough President McAneny, of New York, said $7,000,000 should be expended in Manhattan in replacing pavements that were beyond economical repair.

President Taft passed a quiet day in Pierre, S. D., and spoke on peace to a large audience; he was the guest of Governor Vessey and Representative Burke.

Two hundred students from the University of Montreal, after being stranded on a steamer in the St. Lawrence River all night, landed at Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Fighting between Italians and Turks was reported throughout Friday last at Benghazi; both sides were said to have lost heavily, the Italians killed numbering one hundred.

Dr. Harvey M. Wiley addressed the national American woman suffrage convention at Louisville and was introduced as "the man who is trying to give us a chance to live."

A fire similar to that which destroyed the French battleship Liberte broke out aboard the German armored cruiser Von der Tann at Kiel, but was extinguished before it reached the magazines.

The campaign committee of the New York Republican Club said that through the acts of Governor Dix and Tammany Hall legislators the cause of civil service reform had received "the worst setback for many years."

The Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, accused of the murder of Miss Avis Linnell, did not resign as pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, Cambridge, Mass., as many supposed he would do; his counsel denied that he would resign or issue a statement.

C. P. Rodgers, the coast to coast aviator, reached San Antonio, Tex., after a fifty-mile flight from San Marcos. The Portland, Me., health officer said he would complain to the United States Attorney about conditions aboard the Holy Ghost and Us Society's yacht Coronet; the leader, Sandford, told of privations on the trip just ended.

A defeat of the main Chinese imperial army at Kwang-Shui was reported; fifteen thousand rebels, opposing twenty thousand loyalists, captured artillery, baggage train and ammunition, forcing the enemy to retreat to Sho-Got; the National Assembly was opened by Prince Shih-To, who read an edict, making no mention of the rebellion.

BOOTH TARKINGTON IS A DIVORCE DEFENDANT.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 23.—Mrs. Booth Tarkington, wife of the novelist and playwright, has filed suit for divorce in the Superior Court of this county. She charges the defendant with cruelty and asks for the custody of their five-year-old child.

"That she always has been a dutiful wife, but that the defendant has treated her with great cruelty" is the principal allegation in the complaint, which is very brief and does not relate any instances of the alleged cruel treatment. No mention of demand for alimony is made. It is set out that Mr. and Mrs. Tarkington have not lived together since last July.

Mr. Tarkington is in New York city, having returned recently from a trip to Europe. Prior to last July Mr. and Mrs. Tarkington maintained a house in a fashionable residence district of this city but they had spent a great deal of time at Paris, Capri and New York.

Mrs. Tarkington before her marriage was Miss Laurel Louisa Fletcher, daughter of Stoughton J. Fletcher, a millionarie banker and capitalist of this city. At his death he left her a large fortune. She is a writer of verse and has contributed it to magazines under the name of Louise Fletcher Tarkington.

SEWING ROOM SUPERSTITIONS.

Dressmakers and their apprentices indulge in many interesting superstitions, firmly believed in by all concerned. Here are a few of them:

If the scissors be dropped and the points stick in the floor, a mourning order will soon be received. This is bad luck for the workers as well as for the wearer, as an order of this sort must be attended to at once, even in the busiest season, when all hands are working overtime.

A black pin accidentally inserted with white ones, or green thread inadvertently used for basting, means the return of the garment for alteration. What happens when green thread is by reason of the shade of the fabric necessarily the order of the day is unknown. Think over your own green dresses and decide.

An upset tray of pins means a disappointment; but the spilling of only half or so of them means a surplus for the sewer.

A knot coming in the thread is a sign of a gift, and two threads stitched together so as to form a circle signifies a wedding within a year in the worker's family. Her own marriage is presaged surely by taking up two pins and sticking them in the fabric together. Of course, this must be done inadvertently!

Working a hair into the garment one is sewing shows that more work is coming from the customer, unless she discovers the hair first.

Finally, when a dress continually slips from the sewer's lap, it is an absolute sure sign that the garment is going to give satisfaction. If the garment be white and the floor dusty, one wonders.

FOILED ATTEMPT TO ABDUCT GIRL IN AUTO.

Paterson, Oct. 23.—While hundreds of factory workers were on their way to their homes, Saturday evening, two men stepped from a waiting automobile threw Josephine Ricipero, twenty years old, of 77 Pine street, into the machine bodily and attempted to start off with her.

Mrs. Carmenella Ricipero, mother of the girl, threw herself on her daughter in the car, and struggled so fiercely with the abductors that they fled.

Meanwhile hundreds, awakening from their amazement, gave chase to one man, who ran down Oliver to Spruce street. The fugitive displayed a revolver and managed to keep the crowd well to the rear.

Half a mile away from the scene of the attempted abduction Patrolman McGuirk stopped a breathless Italian who was running in a bewildered fashion on Van Houten street. Discarding a revolver, the man tried to evade the officer, but was captured and locked up. He turned out to be a rejected admirer of Miss Ricipero.

The man gave the name of Frank Francessa, aged twenty-seven years. He said he was a longshoreman and that he lived in New York. He is held under the State charge entered by McGuirk.

UPHOLDS EXCISE BOARD.

Trenton, Oct. 23.—The Supreme Court has dismissed in a memorandum by Justice Swayze the certiorari proceedings by which Alexander P. Dunbar attacked the proceedings of the Elizabeth Excise Board in granting a liquor license to James Focorile. Two grounds of attack were involved, namely, that within a year the board had refused to grant a license for the same premises to Michael F. Focorile and that James Focorile did not subscribe to the required oath that he would keep a quiet and orderly house.

The court held that the first ground could not prevail, and that the section of the so-called "bishops" law" requiring an oath was not applicable to Elizabeth, since the section in question is only made applicable to such cities as have not laws in force regulating the liquor traffic.

Typhoid Fever at Peapack.

Peapack, N. J., Oct. 23.—Much dread is experienced by the residents of this section over the many new cases of typhoid fever that have broken out in Peapack and Gladstone during the past week. When the first case appeard about a month ago it was not believed to be due to local causes, but now there can be no doubt of it, as five or six new cases have developed within a radius of about an acre. So far the cases have been mild in form and the Bedminster Township Board of Health is making every effort to trace the disease to its source, so that it can be abated, but so far has met with little success. The State Board of Health will be appealed to soon, if the local authorities are not successful in coping with the situation.

D. FOSTER UPDIKE'S New Amusement!

EXPERIENCE.

My experience in starting business, less than six months ago, against great odds with four dollars only. Rented the only place available on North Avenue, $75.00 per month, spent nearly $400.00 on the building and bought $500.00 worth of furniture on your good looks, making my expenses for help and all about $700.00 per month.

First Experience: Ordered six searches at one time for my clients, got sued jointly with a lady for ten dollars. Oh! I love one-half of our lawyers.

Party agreed to put up the money for Uptodate; some one howled after a small first payment was made, I went through with it all myself, only owe $75.00 on the deal and no notes out.

Another party agreed to put up about $18,000.00 to buy a tract for development near Plainfield; made first payment, some one howled, I made good, and no notes out.

Accummulated $1,100.00 in good notes, tried all the banks to have some of them cashed, all good, but refused; in the meantime had three suits threatening me and one went on without notice.

The notes would have paid all I owed twice over. I love our Banks; and I shall vote for Gov. Wilson; he said something about Wall Street, however, I made good without giving my note.

Then the heat and plumbing question came up, and I moved to 211 North Avenue. Don't have much cash, but this is what I do have to show for my work, (and only owe $300.00), 2 apartment houses at Paterson, equity from $8,000.00 to $10,000.00, the McLaughlin house on Somerset Street, the Rev. Francis house at Dunellen, about 200 lots in Plainfield, about 400 at Uptodate, and still have my notes.

Have sold property in the following places: Asbury Park, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Middlebush, Millstone, Cranford, Paterson, Riverside, Clinton, Pattenburg, High Bridge, Lebanon, Newark, Brooklyn, New York and, of course, Plainfield. My 'phone bill is more than all the rest of the agents put together.

MICHAEL ARMSTRONG DEAD, AGED SIXTY YRS.

Telegrams were received in this city today announcing the death at Waterbury, Vt., of Michael Armstrong, a well known former local resident. His health had been failing for the past year and six months ago he left for Waterbury, his native home, in the hope that a change would prove beneficial. Bright's disease was the cause of death.

Mr. Armstrong was about sixty years old and came to Plainfield in 1896. He was engaged in the plumbing business, occupying a store in the Hand building at Watchung avenue and Second street, and residing in an apartment above it. He had shops in other places at various times. Mr. Armstrong was a member of Protective Conclave, Order of Heptasophs; Wetumpkah Tribe of Red Men and Howell Division, Sons of Temperance. He is survived by a wife and several brothers and sisters.

The telegrams received here do not give any details but it is believed the funeral and interment will be at Waterbury.

DEPOSIT LESS THAN $10 IN P.O. SAVINGS BANK

The amount of money deposited at the Postal Savings Bank at the local office on the day of opening, Saturday, did not give those in authority any uneasiness for its safety over Sunday, but both Postmaster Bird and William B. Sharp are unwilling to take the first days' business as a criterion for what will be handled in the near future. Less than $10.00 was received in deposits. As the fact becomes known that this department is open, much larger amounts are expected daily.

Interest at the rate of 2 per cent. is paid on all deposits, providing that the account is open a year. Interest will begin on the first of each month. As the government does not invest the money deposited, the only earning capacity it has is the interest paid by the bank in which the postal funds are kept. The local banks pay 4 per cent. on all savings accounts, but the government asks but 2½ per cent., it being estimated that the extra half per cent. received from the local banks over the rate paid out will be sufficient to defray running expenses.

It was erroneously stated Saturday that no amount more than $500 will be received on deposit. As a matter of fact no depositor can have more than that amount on deposit and cannot deposit more than $100 in a single month. Only even amounts are taken as deposits and if a customer wishes to make an uneven amount deposit, the dollars are taken and he is given the amount of the fraction in stamps on one of the regular depositor's cards.

SAYS STAHL'S NAME WILL BE ON THE TICKET.

Borough Clerk Fred A. Martin, of North Plainfield, this morning received a notification from County Clerk Anderson to the effect that the name of Jules J. Stahl, candidate for member of Council in North Plainfield, would be placed on the election tickets. The question regarding Mr. Stahl's eligibility as a candidate was caused because he had not filed his expenses in person. The facts of the case were presented to Assistant Attorney General Gaskill for his opinion. At the time Mr. Stahl should have filed his expenses as required by the Geran law, he was in California.

After an intermission, Mr. Parsons will speak at 11 o'clock on "Art, Industry and Education."

The afternoon session will begin at 1:45 o'clock with music. LOVE'S MAGIC

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

JOEL had fallen into a habit of slavish obedience to Diana's every whim since the day that his mother had brought the orphaned baby home to live at Burton House. Diana had never been an object of charity, but the small annuity left her needed careful management in order to make it suffice for all needs.

When Diana was a young schoolgirl it had been an easy matter to contribute an occasional frock or ribbon to her modest wardrobe, but as she grew older her dark eyes were quick to discover and quick to resent these kindly deceptions. She had early evinced a decided talent for the art which had been her father's profession, and her dreams of a future career were as rose colored as his had been when that promising career had ended so briefly—at its very beginning.

"Count it again, Joel," she said, "and see if we cannot economize in some way to pay for painting lessons."

Joel smiled in his patient way and went over the list again. "Can you do with a frock or two less?" he asked.

"No well regulated young person needs more than two dresses in summer," Diana answered promptly—"both white and one always fresh and clean." So she ran back to confer with Joel's crippled mother upon the subject of painting lessons.

Diana made remarkable progress in her art studies, and when school days became a thing of the past the girl started in with a determined purpose, on what she had termed "her life's work."

When Diana's first painting received its finishing stroke it was Joel who proudly took it into the city and who arranged to have it most advantageously exhibited. After what seemed an interminable time of waiting a telegram came for Joel. The painting had been sold—actually sold—and an order left for a second picture. The price paid was very small. "But," said Diana, "what has money to do with a wonderful, beautiful miracle like this?" So Joel hastened to town to settle the bargain, and Diana turned into a sunny being, who laughed and sang and painted many pictures, disposing of each one with unheard of success. Joel gave up his customary trip to Washington that year, to stay and rejoice with her. She came to him one evening as he sat smoking an after dinner cigar.

"I would like to talk to you, Mr. Sphinx," she said. Joel smiled. He was accustomed to Diana's teasing.

"I have been thinking, Joel," the girl continued, "that I waste much time traveling back and forth to the city to attend my art classes and could really accomplish more if my studio were there."

"You don't mean"—he began incredulously.

"Yes, I do," Diana interrupted. "Listen before you object. Old Nurse Lizzie could go along to take care of me, so no one would need to be anxious concerning my welfare. Then I could come up to Burton house often, you know, and stay days at a time. I am making enough money now to carry out my own plans, Joel," she added proudly, and, as Joel had formed a habit of obedience to Diana's every whim, she and old Nurse Lizzie were soon ensconced in a miniature apartment in the nearby city.

CROUCHED UPON THE FLOOR LAY THE LITTLE ARTIST.

True to her promise she spent much time at Burton house, and during one of these visits she confided to Joel the theme for her great 'masterpiece.'

"It shall be named 'Love's Magic,'" she said, leaning forward with eager parted lips and visionary eyes—"a youth and maiden starting up life's roughened pathway hand in hand, but the true beauty of the picture shall lie in a wonderful roseate hue, which will glow from the pink fringe of a cloud to the very stones of the roadside, transforming everything along their way into a path of glory."

Joel looked gravely into the girl's rapt face. "Child," he asked, "what do you know of love or its magic?"

Diana glanced at him startled, then threw out her hands in a pretty gesture. "Nothing," she answered laughing; "my art must carry me through."

Diana worked desperately at her masterpiece, and when at last it was completed Joel stood before the painting lost in awed admiration. The words of praise he longed to say refused to be spoken.

"Diana," he pleaded gently, "come home with me now and rest."

"Yes, Mr. Sphinx," she answered with unexpected meekness, and while Joel attended to the exhibiting of her painting Diana reveled among the flowers in the old homestead garden.

Joel's mother called to him from the veranda one afternoon. "Have you seen Diana?" she asked. "I have missed her for some time."

"No," he replied; "I have not seen her." A sudden presentiment paled his face beneath its coat of tan. With nervous haste he produced a key ring, though he knew instinctively that the key he sought would not be there. After all these months of watchfulness he had left it carelessly in an open door, and this open door would reveal to the girl he loved the futility of all her bright hopes. Hastily entering the house, he ascended a rear stairway and, reaching the second landing, passed on again to an attic floor. The boards resounded beneath his tread as he crossed to a door which led into a small gable room. Joel hesitated a moment as though to gain courage, then stepped inside. Upon the four walls finished to receive them hung many paintings in costly frames. They were all here—Diana's pictures—not one missing, from the first crude sketch to her latest triumph, and crouched upon the floor, her slight figure shaken by noiseless sobs, lay the little artist.

"Diana," the man whispered.

She turned upon him fiercely. "So this is what you have been doing all along," she cried, "buying my paintings and hiding them here in your garret, while I have been living upon your money. Why did you let me go on believing in myself—in my art—when I am but a hopeless failure?"

"It has all been a mistake, Diana," Joel said unsteadily—"just another one of my blundering ways of trying to make you happy, and you must know that every picture was given a fair chance before I finally—brought—it—here."

"Oh, I am sure of that!" Diana answered and laughed mockingly. "But you had no right to deceive me, Joel—no right to force upon me money which I did not earn."

"I have spent a great deal of money in my life for things which gave no pleasure," the man answered gently, "while each picture of yours, Diana, has been worth more than twice its price to me."

The girl sighed and motioned toward the pictures. "My career has begun and ended here," she said.

Joel took one step toward her, then paused. "Diana," he said tensely, "marry me and I will help you realize your ambition."

"No, Joel," she said wearily, "you must invent some other plan to help me out of my difficulty."

"A gentleman to see you, sir," called Lizzie from the threshold, and Joel put out his hand to receive a square white card.

"Strange," he muttered. "What business can Harold J. Fox, the millionaire, have with me?"

Diana made no response, and with one backward regretful glance Joel hurried away. When he returned a few moments later his voice was strangely brusque. "Mr. Fox came to see me concerning your painting, 'Love's Magic,' Diana. He wishes to purchase it."

"Joel!" the girl cried reproachfully.

"It is quite true," Joel repeated. "I would not deceive you further." Then his face darkened. "No one shall buy the picture," he said passionately. "It is mine."

Diana's eyes widened. Then, half laughing, half crying, she ran toward the door. "Don't you see what this means to me, Joel?" she said breathlessly. "I can paint pictures, I can." Before he could speak she had disappeared down the stairway.

When Joel entered the parlor the young millionaire stood looking down into Diana's glowing face. "I am an ardent art enthusiast," he was saying, "but no conception of the old masters has ever appealed to me as your beautiful fancy has done. I must have the picture, Miss Dale. You shall name your own price."

Diana turned with pretty dignity to Joel. "Mr. Burton manages my business affairs," she replied.

"I must refer to an authority before putting a price upon the picture," Joel said slowly. "I have not sufficient knowledge to speak on the subject of art. I—I can only feel its beauty."

Mr. Fox looked slightly amused.

"The painting, 'Love's Magic,' is not for sale," Diana said suddenly. "If you will give me a trial, Mr. Fox, I will paint another picture, which shall have my best effort, and you may judge of its merit."

So "Love's Magic" joined the array of paintings in the garret room, and ignoring Joel's humble gratitude, Diana returned to her city studio to labor in a fever of joyous inspiration, while to the faithful ones at Burton house came frequent scribbled notes.

"I am earning my living," she wrote to Joel. "It is necessary since a certain generous sphinx is no longer allowed to deceitfully provide me income. Mr Fox, whom you may know is responsible for the manufacture of various powders and lotions, has offered to me the illustrating of their advertisements in magazines."

As the days passed Joel felt vaguely troubled, for every note bore reference in some way to the young man whom Diana grew to regard as her benefactor.

"Joel," his mother said one day, looking up from a letter she had been reading, "this Mr. Fox has taken his mother and sister to call upon Diana in her studio. Does it not seem strange that this noted art devotee should thus interest himself in our little novice?"

"It would seem strange to me, mother," Joel answered sadly, "if Mr. Fox failed to be interested in—Diana."

The golden days of summer drew near an end, and still Diana remained in the city. She was very reticent during her hurried visits to the crippled mother, and a growing fear tugged at Joel's heartstrings. His mother voiced that fear.

"Diana is changed," she said. "Can it be possible, Joel, that she has fallen in love with that man?"

"He is young, rich and handsome," her son answered bitterly. "What more could one desire?"

"Perhaps this letter may enlighten us," his mother suggested. "It is addressed to you."

For a moment Diana's familiar handwriting danced in a misty blur, then Joel read the brief message. "I am coming home tomorrow," it said. "I have something to tell you which cannot be written."

Looking up, he met the unasked question in his mother's eyes. "We shall know tomorrow, mother," he said dully. Later he climbed wearily up to the attic room and sat long before the shadowy paintings. When Diana passed out of his life forever he would come no more to dream hopeful dreams of a happy future, and spiders might weave their webs across the gilded frames, as he must put a veil before his memory of her. So as the moon sailed high in the heavens Joel made his great renunciation.

A rustling sound in the doorway attracted his attention. Joel sprang to his feet; no one must enter here. Then he caught his breath sharply. "Diana!" he cried wonderingly.

She stood resting against the panel of the door, her slight figure outlined in the moonlight; a strangely shy Diana who laughed softly in embarrassment and who regarded him timidly from beneath her long lashes.

"I intended coming tomorrow, Joel," she said, "but it seemed foolish to waste a whole night before starting; my train arrived long ago, but I think it has taken me hours to walk from the station. Everything was so beautiful—the hush, the scent of flowers. I traveled down an enchanted lane which led me—home at last."

Joel remained silent.

"I stopped in to see the mother," the low voice continued, "then remembering what you had said of moonlit nights, Joel, I hoped to find you lonely, and I hoped to find you—here."

Still that strange dumbness seemed to bind him.

Diana laughed tremulously. "Please say that you have been lonely without me, Mr. Sphinx," she said.

Then, with a quick stride, Joel crossed the room and clasped the girl in a masterful embrace. "Diana," he cried, "tell me you do not care for that other fellow."

"He wanted me to care, Joel," she answered demurely, "but I could not. You see, I was foolish enough long ago to give my whole heart to a dear big stupid who has shown his love for me in many ways, though it never occurred to him to speak of it."

And the moon, looking boldly through the gabled windows, rested upon a man's fair head bent low above a little dusky one; then it crept slowly up the wall to shine with startling brightness upon Diana's masterpiece, where the girl of the painting looked with unbounded trust into the triumphant eyes of her lover.

"Look, Diana," the man whispered; "that has ever been my dream picture, even when there seemed no hope of fulfillment. You still were the maid and I was the man, who traveled love's way together."

"Dear," the girl answered, "it has always been just you and I since brush first touched the canvas."

Then hand in hand, like the children of her fancy, the two descended the stair.

"What has happened?" the mother asked eagerly as they appeared before her. "Your faces are fairly illuminated."

And Joel smiled his slow contented smile.

"That mother," he replied, "is the visible reflection of 'Love's Magic.'"

By JACK LONDON

Author of "The Call of the Wild," "White Fang," "Martin Eden," etc.

passed into the history of the Yukon along with his other deeds. All the Yukon was his guest, Dawson the seat of the festivity. On that one last night no man's dust save his own was good. Drinks were not to be purchased. Every saloon ran open, with extra relays of exhausted bartenders, and the drinks were given away. A man who refused this hospitality, and persisted in paying, found a dozen fights on his hands. The veriest chechaquos rose up to defend the name of Daylight from such insult. And through it all, on moccasined feet, moved Daylight, hell-roaring Burning Daylight, overspilling with good nature and camaraderie, howling his he-wolf howl and claiming the night as his, bending men's arms down on the bars, performing feats of strength, his bronzed face flushed with drink, his black eyes flashing, clad in overalls and blanket coat, his ear-flaps dangling and his gauntleted mittens swinging from the cord across the shoulders. But this time it was neither an ante nor a stake that he threw away, but a mere marker in the game that he who held so many markers would not miss.

CHAPTER VII.

In no blaze of glory did Burning Daylight descend upon San Francisco. Not only had he been forgotten, but the Klondike along with him. The world was interested in other things, and the Alaskan adventure, like the Spanish War, was an old story. He settled down in St. Francis Hotel, was interviewed by the cub-reporters on the hotel-run, and received brief paragraphs of notice for twenty-four hours.

Several months passed in San Francisco, during which time he studied the game and its rules, and prepared himself to take a hand.

Tiring of being merely an onlooker, he ran up to Nevada, where the new gold-mining boom was fairly started—"just to try a flutter," as he phrased it to himself. The flutter on the Tonopah Stock Exchange lasted just ten days, during which time his smashing, wild-bull game played ducks and drakes with the more stereotyped gamblers, and at the end of which time, having gambled Floridel into his fist, he let go for a net profit of half a million. Whereupon, smacking his lips, he departed for San Francisco and the St. Francis Hotel. It tasted good, and his hunger for the game became more acute.

And once more the papers sensationalized him. BURNING DAYLIGHT was a big-letter headline again. Interviewers flocked about him. Old files of magazines and newspapers were searched through, and the romantic and historic Elam Harnish, Adventurer of the Frost, King of the Klondike, and Father of the Sourdoughs, strode upon the breakfast table of a million homes along with the toast and breakfast foods. Even before his elected time, he was forcibly launched into the game. Financiers and promoters, and all the flotsam and jetsam of the sea of speculation surged upon the shores of his eleven millions. In self-defence he was compelled to open offices. He dabbled in little things at first—"stalling for time," as he explained it to Holdsworthy, a friend he had made at the Alta-Pacific Club. Daylight himself was a member of the club, and Holdsworthy had proposed him. And it was well that Daylight played closely at first, for he was astounded by the multitudes of sharks—"ground-sharks," he called them—that flocked about him. He saw through their schemes readily enough, and even marveled that such numbers of them could find sufficient prey to keep them going. Their rascality and general dubiousness was so transparent that he could not understand how any one could be taken in by them.

So it was that he resolved to leave the little men, the Holdsworthys, alone; and, while he met them in good fellowship, he chummed with none, and formed no deep friendships. He did not dislike the little men, the men of the Alta-Pacific, for instance. He merely did not elect to choose them for partners in the big game in which he intended to play. What this big game was, even he did not know. He was waiting to find it. And in the meantime he played small hands, investing in several arid-lands reclamation projects and keeping his eyes open for the big chance when it should come along.

And then he met John Dowsett, the great John Dowsett. It was the first big magnate Daylight had met face to face, and he was pleased and charmed. There was such a kindly humanness about the man, such a genial democraticness, that Daylight found it hard to realize that this was the John Dowsett, president of a string of banks, insurance manipulator, reputed ally of the lieutenants of Standard Oil, and known ally of the Guggenhammers. Nor did his looks belie his reputation and his manner. Physically, he guaranteed all that Daylight knew of him. Despite his sixty years and snow-white hair, his hand-shake was firmly hearty, and he showed no signs of decrepitude, walking with a quick, snappy step, making all movements definitely and decisively.

It was not long afterward that Daylight came on to New York. A letter from John Dowsett had been the cause—a simple little typewritten letter of several lines. But Daylight had thrilled as he read it. The bald sentences seemed gorged with mystery. "Our Mr. Howison will call upon you at your hotel. He is to be trusted. We must not be seen together. You will understand after we have had our talk." Daylight conned the words over and over. That was it. The big game had arrived, and it looked as if he were being invited to sit in and take a hand. Surely, for no other reason would one man so peremptorily invite another man to make a journey across the continent.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificent country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of

"I Must Say, Mr. Harnish, That You Whipped Us Roundly in That Affair."

Daratona. He, likewise, struck Daylight as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanness—a cleanness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibers of him—Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. Thin to emaciation, he seemed a cold flame of a man. Not more than fifty, thatched with a sparse growth of iron-gray hair, he looked several times the age of Dowsett.

They drank—that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served by the smoothly operating machine of a lackey who inhabited the place, while Dowsett took Scotch and soda and Daylight a cocktail. Leon Guggenhammer arrived in the midst of the drink, and ordered Scotch. Daylight studied him curiously. This was one of the great Guggenhammer family; a younger one, but nevertheless one of the crowd with which he had locked grapples in the North. Nor did Leon Guggenhammer fail to mention cognizance of that old affair. He complimented Daylight on his prowess—"The echoes of Ophir came down to us, you know. And I must say, Mr. Daylight—er, Mr. Harnish, that you whipped us roundly in that affair."

Leon Guggenhammer was young and fat. Not a day more than thirty, his face, save for the adumbated puff sacks under the eyes, was as smooth and lineless as a boy's. The talk soon centered down to business. Dowsett broached the plan, aided by an occasional remark from the other two, while Daylight asked questions. Whatever the proposition was, he was going into it with his eyes open. And they filled his eyes with the practical vision of what he had in mind.

"They will never dream you are with us," Guggenhammer interjected, as the outlining of the matter drew to a close, his handsome Jewish eyes flashing enthusiastically. "They'll think you are raiding on your own in proper buccaneer style."

"Of course, you understand, Mr. Harnish, the absolute need for keeping our alliance in the dark," Nathaniel Letton warned, gravely.

Daylight nodded his head.

"And you also understand," Letton went on, "that the result can only be productive of good. The thing is legitimate and right, and the only ones who may be hurt are the stock gamblers themselves. It is not an attempt to smash the market. As you see yourself, you are to bull the market. The honest investor will be the gainer."

"Yes, that's the very thing," Dowsett said. "The commercial need for copper is continually increasing. Ward Valley Copper, and all that it stands for—practically one-quarter of the world's supply, as I have shown you—is a big thing, how big, even we can scarcely estimate. Our arrangements are made. We have plenty of capital ourselves, and yet we want more. Also, there is too much Ward Valley out to suit our present plans. Thus we kill both birds with one stone. Not only will you bull Ward Valley but you will at the same time gather Ward Valley in. This will be of inestimable advantage to us, while you and all of us will profit by it as well. And as Mr. Letton has pointed out, the thing is legitimate and square. On the eighteenth the directors meet and, instead of the customary dividend, a double dividend will be declared."

"There will be all sorts of rumors on the street," Dowsett warned Daylight, "but do not let them frighten you. These rumors may even originate with us. You can see how and why clearly. But rumors are to be no concern of yours. You are on the inside. All you have to do is buy, buy, buy, and keep on buying to the last stroke, when the directors declare the double dividend. Ward Valley will jump so that it won't be feasible to buy after that."

"And one other thing, Mr. Harnish," Guggenhammer said, "if you exceed your available cash, or the amount you care to invest in the venture, don't fail immediately to call on us. Remember, we are behind you."

"Yes, we are behind you," Dowsett repeated.

Nathaniel Letton nodded his head in affirmation.

CHAPTER VIII.

Back at his hotel, though nearly two in the morning, he found the reporters waiting to interview him. Next morning there were more. And thus, with blare of paper trumpet, was he received by New York. Once more, with beating of tom-toms and wild hullaballoo, his picturesque figure strode across the printed sheet. The King of the Klondike, the hero of the Arctic, the thirty-million-dollar millionaire of the North, had come to New York. What had he come for? To trim the New Yorkers as he had trimmed the Tonopah crowd in Nevada?

They were prepared for him to play, and, when heavy buying of Ward Valleg began, it was quickly decided that he was the operator. Financial gossip buzzed and hummed. He was after the Guggenhammers once more. The story of Ophir was told over again and sensationalized until even Daylight scarcely recognized it. Still, it was all grist to his mill. The stock gamblers were clearly befooled. Each day he increased his buying, and so eager were the sellers that Ward Valley rose but slowly. A wildly exciting time was his during the week preceding Thursday the eighteenth. Not only was he gambling as he had never gambled before, but he was gambling at the biggest table in the world for stakes so large that even the case-hardened habitues of that table were compelled to sit up. In spite of the unlimited selling, his persistent buying compelled Ward Valley steadily to rise, and as Thursday approached, the situation became acute. Something had to smash. How much Ward Valley was this Klondike gambler going to buy? How much could he buy? What was the Ward Valley crowd doing all this time? Daylight appreciated interviews with them that appeared—interviews delightfully placid and non-committal. Leon Guggenhammer even hazarded the opinion that this Northland Croesus might possibly be making a mistake. But not that they cared, John Dowsett explained. "It is purely gambling from beginning to end," were Nathaniel Letton's words; "and we refuse to have anything to do with it or to take notice of it in any way."

During this time Daylight had several secret meetings with his partners—one with Leon Guggenhammer, one with John Dowsett, and two with Mr. Howison. Beyond congratulations, they really amounted to nothing; for, as he was informed, everything was going satisfactorily. But on Tuesday morning a rumor that was disconcerting came to Daylight's ears. It was also published in the Wall Street Journal, and it was to the effect, on apparently straight inside information, that on Thursday, when the directors of Ward Valley met, instead of the customary dividend being declared, an assessment would be levied. It was the first check Daylight had received. It came to him with a shock that if the thing were so he was a broken man. And it also came to him that all this colossal operating of his was being done on his own money. Dowsett, Guggenhammer and Letton were risking nothing. It was a panic, shortlived, it was true, but sharp enough while it lasted to make him remember Holdsworthy and the brick-yard, and to impel him to cancel all buying orders while he rushed to a telephone.

"Nothing in it—only a rumor," came Leon Guggenhammer's throaty voice in the receiver. "As you know," said Nathaniel Letton, "I am one of the directors, and I should certainly be aware of it were such action contemplated." And John Dowsett: "I warned you against just such rumors. There is not an iota of truth in it—certainly not. I tell you on my honor as a gentleman."

Heartily ashamed of himself for his temporary loss of nerve, Daylight returned to his task. The cessation of buying had turned the Stock Exchange into a bedlam, and down all the line of stocks the bears were smashing. Ward Valley, as the apex, received the brunt of the shock, and was already beginning to tumble. Daylight calmly doubled his buying orders. And all through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday morning, he went on buying, while Ward Valley rose triumphantly higher. Still they sold, and still he bought, exceeding his power to buy many times over when delivery was taken into account. What of that? On this day the double dividend would be declared, he assured himself. The pinch of delivery would be on the shorts. They would be making terms with him.

BY REGISTERING TOMORROW

You Will Have An Opportunity to Help Carry Out the Republican Legislative Program.

PLATFORM.

Abolish grade crossings at railroad expense.
Equalize tax assessments.
Revise the State statutes.
Substitute the indeterminate franchise, or tenure during good behavior, for the present limited franchise act.

As the Republican legislative candidates, we submit the foregoing platform to the voters of Union county, as the special matters we shall seek to accomplish if elected.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

Two reasons exist why the railroads should separate grades at their own expense:

1. Their charters so provide—and the acceptance of a charter constitutes an agreement with the State.

2. Aside from the charters, the United States Supreme Court has declared the principle that it is the duty of a railroad to conduct its business safely, and as an incident eliminate its crossings when a menace to public safety.

We favor legislation along the general lines of the Connecticut law, which has been declared constitutional, requiring the railroads to abolish a reasonable number of crossings each year.

DIFFERENCE IN PLATFORMS.

The Republican State platform provides:

"We favor the elimination of grade crossings at railroad expense, the work to be done gradually, in the order of necessity, and to proceed as rapidly as the expense involved will permit."

The Democratic State platform provides:

"We favor the elimination of grade crossings, and to that end the enactment of legislation giving the Public Utilities Commission power to compel the railroads to eliminate grade crossings where, in the judgment of the commission, such crossings are a menace to life."

The Newark Star of October 4, in its news columns, describes the making of the Democratic plank as follows:

"The grade crossing planks drawn favored the 'prompt and compulsory elimination' of grade crossings at railroad expense. After some parleying, in which R. H. McAdams, of Union, stood out for the principle just as it was originally stated, the plank was changed to the form in which it appeared in the platform, the Governor himself writing it."

Public interest will attach to two points:

1. The Republican platform stands expressly for elimination at railroad expense.

2. The Democratic leaders turned this down.

In a later letter we propose to discuss the equalization of tax assessments, revision of State statutes and the indeterminate franchise.

The judges and other recognized authorities on dogs who had come here from New York and distant points declared that the exhibition was the finest ever seen outside of Madison Square Garden, where the internationally famous Westminster Kennel Club holds its annual show. In some respects the local bench show, they admitted, surpassed the New York exhibition, and they gave A. C. Wilmerding credit for the success of the enterprise.

FORMER EDITOR DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

G. A. V. Hankinson, former proprietor of the Westfield Leader and one of the best known newspapermen in the county, died at his home in Westfield at 6:40 last night. He had been in failing health for a year or more and two weeks ago underwent an operation in a New York hospital, but it was of no avail. Cancer of the liver is ascribed as the primary cause of death.

Mr. Hankinson was born on his grandfather's farm in Warren county February 1, 1857. He came to Westfield twelve years ago and purchased the Leader, conducting it until last Spring when his physical condition caused him to retire. He sold the business to Walter Lee, the present proprietor.

Mr. Hankinson was a trustee of the Westfield Presbyterian church and a town committeeman. He is survived by his wife, two sisters and a brother. They are Mrs. Wallace S. Ayers, of Hazelton, Pa., Mrs. John W. Kerr, of Marksboro, and Frank H. Hankinson, principal of the public schools at Rosebank, S. I.

ANNIVERSARY BILL OF BIBLE ORGANIZATION

The twenty-first birthday anniversary of the Barca-Philathea movement was observed at the Temple Baptist church last night and the service was well attended. Edward Baker, Sr., as president, was in charge of the program, which began with a song service of Baraca and Philathea hymns. Rev. E. C. Conover offered prayer, and also gave a five-minute Scripture quotation "shower," with volunteer responses.

U. B. Crane, as teacher of the Philathea class, spoke and the class history was given by Frank Stewart. "The Man who Wants a Million," was the subject of a talk by Clarence B. LaRue, teacher of the Junior Baraca Class, the significance of which was that Father Hudson, who inaugurated the movement is striving for a million members.

"The Class for Christ," was the subject of an interesting talk by L. W. Randolph, after which Rev. E. C. Conover, pastor, made an address telling of the great progress made by the Baraca-Philathea movement which had its inception at Syracuse N. Y., the home of Father Hudson.

CORPORATION COUNSEL'S AUTO "GOT AMOVE ON."

An automobile belonging to Corporation Counsel William M. Stillman, which was left standing on West Front street opposite the postoffice this morning, created considerable excitement when it started to back up under its own power and with no one at the wheel. Postmaster Elias H. Bird was probably the first one to notice the machine and promptly called Mr. Stillman's attention to it. The latter started in pursuit.

The auto was making a straight line west on Front street, when a young man chanced to notice that it was empty. He jumped into the car and applied the brake just as Mr. Stillman appeared. The auto was then nearing Grove street. There was no damage.

—Neuman Bros. will have a fine display of all kinds of fruits for tomorrow's trade, from which a selection will be easy.

The musical service to be held at the Crescent Avenue church next Sunday night under the direction of the organist and choir, will consist of selections from Spohr's cantata, "The Last Judgment."

News and Notes

GLENNEY CHAMPION LOCAL GOLF PLAYER

William T. Klenney is the golf champion of the Plainfield Country Club, having won this high honor on Saturday by defeating Morris J. Dumont, by 2 up and 1 to play. The weather conditions were anything but favorable for the match, yet the two players went the full distance.

Mr. Glenney will receive the cup and a gold medal, while Mr. Dumont will receive a silver medal as runner-up. This was the only match played on the course Saturday. The matches for the defeated eights will be played this week.

AJAX FIVE DEFEATS GRACE CHURCH'S TEAM

The Ajax five took the basketball team representing Grace Episcopal church into camp Saturday night at the Y. M. C. A. by a score of 34 to 14. Bryniarski was a close second with five field goals and one foul. Manley was the tally getter for the Episcopalians, having found the basket three times from the floor and twice on foul casting. E. VanZandt also shot three from the field.

The line-up:

Ajax—McNamee and Peacock, forwards; Dunning, center; Bryniarski and Glover, guards.

Grace church—Manley and E. VanZandt, forwards; Sattels, center; Zerega and A. VanZandt, guards.

Anyone interested in national affairs will doubtless want to hear Mrs. Bishop, who has an extensive reputation in her work.

Music Was a Feature.

Charles Suhr's Imperial Band furnished the music at the third annual bench show of the Plainfield Kennel Club, Saturday, and despite wretched weather conditions which threatened to mar the pleasure of the patrons, the music was an enlivening feature.

IN THE OLDEN DAYS

Mrs. Edward F. Feickert Tells Equal Suffragists Early History of Plainfield.

HER ADDRESS INSTRUCTIVE.

Mrs. Abram VanWinkle, of Newark, Invites Local Association to Attend Meeting in Newark on Dec. 4.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield gave a tea yesterday afternoon in its rooms in the Babcock building, the affair being largely attended by members and friends of the league. The rooms were attractively decorated with flowers and the league color, yellow. Mrs. Abram VanWinkle, of Newark, gave a short address, calling the attention of the members especially to the suffrage meeting to be held in Newark, December 4, at which time Mrs. Pankhurst, of England, is to be the chief speaker.

Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, an officer of the league, read an interesting paper on "The Early History of Plainfield," recalling a number of incidents of especial importance during the early days of the place when it was a mere village. Following the reading of the paper tea was served the officers persiding, assisted by other members. The social hour was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Feickert's paper follows:

Sometime during the summer of 1797, Elizabeth Webster came as a bride from her father's home in New York city, to live on her husband's plantation, lying on the road which runs at the foot of the Blue Hills. The Indians originally called them the Watchung Mountains, but the pioneer planters who came over from Amboy in 1684,, and settled on the fertile plains around Cedar Brook and Green Brook, called them, not inappropriately, the Blue Hills. It was not until 1878 that the State Geological Department revived the name Watchung Mountains.

Elizabeth and her husband, John Webster, had begun their journey in a little sloop, which sailed from the lower end of New York City to Elizabethtown-Point(now called Elizabethport). There was always considerable uncertainty about the time of arrival of these boats, but as Elizabeth was travelling in summer, her sloop, the "Seahorse," made the trip in only five hours. The packet sloops were fifty to sixty feet long, and over twenty feet wide, and when the wind and tide were just right, these short, broad and shallow boats could make the trip in four or five hours; but with adverse winds and bad weather it sometimes took as much as two days. In winter, passengers were frequqently huddled together in a crowded boat for from twelve to twenty hours, battling against icy head tides, with nothing to eat but such cooked food as they had brought with them.

In Elizabethtown the travellers stayed overnight at the "Ship" Tavern on Broad stret, a large white house which had once been the home of Philip Carteret, the first Governor of the Province, and where he died in 1682. After dinner, which was at 2 o'clock, they strolled about the streets of the pleasant little city, which was the first English settlement in New Jersey, and which was named for Lady Elizabeth, the wife of Sir George Carteret, one of the two Lords Proprietors to whom the Duke of York granted the whole of New Jersey.

They noticed little clusters of people talking excitedly on the street corners, and every few minutes a group of three or four women came along, piloted by a man, who seemed to be urging and encouraging them to do something about which they rather hesitated. Mr. Donaldson, the landlord of their tavern, coming along, our travellers eagerly questioned him as to the meaning of the town's agitation. He told them that there was an election that day for members of the Legislature, and as there were several candidates, it was likely to be pretty close. The friends of one of the candidates, William Crane, had determined upon a bold stroke, and were going all over town, urging the females to come out and vote. It seemed that ever since New Jersey had adopted her own constitution, July 2, 1776, two days before the signing of the Declaration of Independence, all inhabitants of full age in this colony had been given the electoral franchise, provided they were worth fifty pounds, and had lived for twelve months in the county in which they desired to vote. However, there had been no instance of any venturesome women availing themselves of such a privilege. This very year, 1797, a new election law had been passed by the Legislature, conferring the right to vote upon "all free inhabitants of this State of full age," and stating specifically, "no person shall be entitled to vote

TESTIMONY IS TAKEN IN ST. OPENING CASE

Testimony was taken yesterday before Arthur Lovell, master, by agreement of the parties concerned, in the matter of the proposed opening of Kensington avenue on the argument in the Supreme Court of the certiorari which was taken upon the ordinance and subsequent resolution authorizing this improvement. W. S. Angleman and H. H. Williams represented the protesting property owners and Judge Gilbert. Collins represented the city.

Among those who gave testimony was Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett, George Sovereign and several real estate experts. The argument is set down for the November term of the Supreme Court. The city after many months, during which there were numerous protests on the part of property-owners, decided to extend and open up Kensington avenue, and then the property owners took the matter up on certiorari proceedings and secured an injunction preventing further steps.

SENATOR MARTINE'S TALK ON WASHINGTON

Speaking at the October meeting of the Dutch Arms of Trinity Reformed church last night on "Impressions of Washington," United States Senator James E. Martine went on record as being in favor of making it possible for local Boards of Education to send classes of school children to the Capitol City under proper chaperonage for the purpose of obtaining a better idea of the vastness of our country, its government, and the manner and method of conducting the affairs of the nation.

While it was not women's night at the Dutch Arms, they were invited because of the Senator's speech, which was intended to have been illustrated with lantern slides showing views in and about the city of Washington. At the last moment the lantern was found to be out of commission, so after speaking in the dark while an effort was made to repair the instrument, the plan was abandoned and Mr. Martine spoke without this feature.

The territorial extent of the country's executive and legislative city was first described after a brief historical review of how it came to be located on the banks of the Potomac. The general topographical and geological makeup were pictured and the government by three commissioners mentioned. There is no mayor nor council, the commissioners being appointed, two by the President and one by the War Department, instead. These appointments are confirmed by the Senate and a very good clean government Washington enjoys by this system.

Briefly outlining the city's government, tax rate, the fact that there has never been a vote cast within its borders and yet everything there is so vitally affected by the way elections go, the speaker lead his hearers, figuratively speaking, through the mammoth buildings in which are housed the executive offices and various departments of the government: along the wide, smoothly paved, well kept magnificent avenues; through the Botanical gardens, around the Washington monument and guided them with vivid descriptions and lucid explanations about the Smithsonian Institute, the Congressional Library, the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the Museum, the Municipal Building, the Postoffice Building, the White House, and then conducted them across the river to the Soldiers' Home, to Mt. Vernon and General Lee's old headquarters.

Coming back to the Senate chamber and House of Representatives he went over the exterior as well as the interior, telling about details that impressed him, many of which escape the casual visitor. In speaking of the Senate chamber he even defined the method employed for heating and ventilating and humorously referred to the quantities of hot air let off there at times under stress of argument.

At the conclusion of his address Senator Martine showed a collection of views he has made since going to Washington and which would have been thrown on the screen had the lantern not gone out of commission. These consisted of nearly all the places and objects he had mentioned.

Case Was Dismissed.

The charge brought by John Falconerro, father of Anna Falconerro, fifteen years old, against Tony Delvecco was dimissed in the city court this morning by Judge William G. DeMeza.

CHRISTAIN SCIENCE

Prof. H. S. Hering Declares That its Teaching is the Science of Salvation.

REFLECTION OF DIVINE MIND.

Deliverance From Evil a Mental Process Lecturer Declares in Address Delivered at Cranford.

Many members of the local Christian Science flock attended the lecture delivered last night at the First Church of Christ Scientist, Cranford, by Prof. Hermann S. Hering, C. S. R. His topic was "Christian Science; the Science of Salvation," and he said incidently:

"In working out our salvation we must first see that salvation or deliverance from evil is a mental process, takes place in mind; that it is a transformation through Mind and is both ethical and philosophical.

"The Bible declares that 'to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace.'

"Christian Science teaches that matter and material existence are phenomena of the mortal, material, finite mind, a concept of existence obtained through the physical senses, a misapprehension of reality held by human consciousness when uninstructed by Science, an appearance instead of an actuality. It is simply an imitation or counterfeit obtained from a finite, dimensional, mortal basis.

"Now it is not the appearance but only the original that has power, intelligence and substance. The manifestation of growth, action or being in matter is but a material concept of spiritual facts.

"The ordinary human concept of mind is that which thinks, feels or wills, the intellect, or the activity of the gray matter called brain. Christian Science reveals the fact that Mind is divine Principle, the infinite Life, Truth, Love, omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent, the all-inclusive, eternal, unchanging, all-wise being, the only cause and creator.

"The difference between the method of healing through mental suggestion, or hypnotism, and that of the divine Mind, the Christ healing, must be clearly seen.

"When the effort is made to heal by suggestion, the operator endeavors by means of mental manipulation to make the patient believe that he is not sick. He attempts to change the belief, but the cause of disease remains and in time manifests itself even in worse forms.

"The true Christian Scientist reflects the divine Mind, stands on the basis of God, man and the universe as Spirit and spiritual, as Love and its manifestation, as Mind and its ideas — perfect and harmonious. Hence he understands the unreality of matter and evil and knows that man is not sick but that the patient is simply suffering from a false mesmeric belief. From that standpoint he proceeds to correct the errors of belief with the Truth of being and thus establishes harmony on a spiritual, scientific basis.

"It is not to be wondered at, indeed it is inevitable, that Christian Scientists should love Mrs. Eddy for having brought to the world this Science of Salvation, the true knowledge of God and man, the spiritual understanding of the Holy Scriptures which enables them to know themselves and to demonstrate that 'saving faith' which alone leads to heaven."

"A VanDyke Evening."

The members of the Congregational church are anticipating an enjoyable mid-week service tomorrow night, when "A VanDyke Evening" will be the program. Selections from the writings of Prof. Henry VanDyke will be read. These will include: "America for Me." "Three Best Things," "The Tribe of the Helpers." "A Legend of Service," "The Toiling of Felix," "A Handful of Clay," and "The Mansion." A letter from the talented author, written for the meeting, will be read, and a hymn of his translation will be sung. A vocal duet will also be on the program.

Horses Killed on Track.

The westbound express on the New Jersey Central due in this city at 8:17 in the morning, was forty minutes late today, owing to an accident at Elizabethport. The express was waiting at Elizabethport for the Asbury Park train. Just as the latter arrived at the station, a team of horses, which had crashed through the gates at the crossing, were struck by the train and instantly killed. The horses had been fractious and the driver was unable to prevent them from going through the gates.

Miss Amy L. Moore, of West Fourth street, is spending a week with friends in Tarrytown, N. Y.

DRIVER INJURED WHEN TROLLEY HITS WAGON

George Cooper, a driver employed by the Plainfield Ice and Supply Co., was painfully injured at 7 o'clock last night when a Somerset street trolley struck the rear of his wagon as he was turning into the stables opposite Codington avenue. The force of the impact hurled Cooper against a pole, inflicting numerous bad contusions about his side and tearing the wall of the stomach. John Kearns a blacksmith, who was riding with him was also thrown to the roadway but escaped with a shaking up.

It was believed at first that Cooper's injuries were serious, indications pointing to broken ribs. It was not until he had been removed to his home at Grove and Howard streets and Dr. Pittis had conducted an examination that the extent was learned. As it is Cooper will be laid up for some time.

The accident was unavoidable so far as could be learned. The motorman was under the impression that the wagon would continue straight ahead and was unprepared for the sudden turn toward the stable. The rig was only slightly damaged.

HIGH SCHOOL MINSTREL TROUPE IS REHEARSING

The remaining ends will be chosen today.

The following will constitute the chorus: Donald Webb, Valentine Goldsmith, Egbert Fountain, Edson Woodhull, Raymond Manley, Seward Lyons, Kenneth Platt, Stanley Bellows, Felix Janke, Frederick Krom, Julian Linke, Esty Foster, John Cottrell, Walter Brower, Samuel Mann, Garret duBois, Ernest Higgins, Leslie Randolph, Rutgers Neilson, Leslie Allen, Frank Carey, Philip Moskovitz, Donald Opdike, Morris Mann, Fred Mygatt, Edward Parker and Gerald Linke.

REGISTER AND VOTE.

Are you one of those men who have fault to find
With the way that your city is run—
Who have often the governing powers maligned
For the things they've omitted, or done?
Are there wrongs you would right, are there laws you'd amend,
Or improvements that you would promote?
Then, say, have you registered yet, my friend?
And, say, are you going to vote?

Is there graft in your town? Would you ferret it out?
Mere talking will nothing avail.
You must enter the lists, you must storm the redoubt,
Not idly conditions bewail.
If a wreck you'd avoid all your strength you must lend,
From the shoals you must help guide the boat,
Then, say, have you registered yet, my friend?
And, say, are you going to vote?

You live in a free, broad and unfettered age,
Where franchise is every man's right.
Then do well your part, and with courage engage
In this worthy Good Government fight.
From your own eye the beam it's your duty to rend,
Ere you take from your brother's the mote.
Then, say, have you registered yet, my friend?
And, say, are you going to vote?

BAPTISTS' SESSION

George E. Hall Takes Prominent Part in the Denomination's Convention.

PIERCE "GOT AFTER HIM."

Sessions Being Held at Trenton to End Tomorrow Night With a Banquet at Which Mr. Hall Will Preside.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, Rev. F. St. John Fitch, Rev. Dr. W. W. Pratt and George E. Hall are among the members of the Park Avenue Baptist church, attending the New Jersey State Baptist convention at Trenton, which opened yesterday and in the afternoon, Mr. Maguire made an address. Tomorrow night the convention will close with a banquet at the Hotel Windsor. George E. Hall will preside at the feast.

Reports presented at yesterday's session showed that fifty-nine Baptist churches in the State had fallen behind in their regular apportionment for State work, but this was explained by the fact that during the year there has been an effort to raise $100,000 among the Baptist churches. At present $76,500 has been secured and those in charge have until December 1 to raise the balance.

The convention proper opened last night in the Central Baptist church, F. Wayland Ayers, of Camden, president, in the chair. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor Donnelly, followed by an address of welcome by Rev. Guy L. Brown, pastor of the convention church, who presented the program. "Wide One-Accord Work" was the topic of an address by the Rev. L. C. Barnes, while the Rev. James A. Francis spoke on "The Call of Christ to the Manhood of Today."

The sessions were resumed this morning at 9:15 with an address by Rev. James A. Francis on "The Kingdom as Reflected in the Temptation Story." Rev. E. O. Wilson made a report for the executive committee. Considerable time will be devoted today to a discussion of constitutional changes recommended by the board, to be followed by the obituary report by Rev. H. Quillin.

The program for tonight and tomorrow is as follows:

Tuesday Evening—7.45 O'clock.
Song service, scripture reading, Rev. James Bristow; prayer, Rev. A. S. Allyn; forward movement, D. G. Garabrant; "On the Firing Line," Rev. E. C. Murphy, Rev. J. A. White, Rev. C. Pila; address, Rev. Harry Emerson; prayer, Rev. H. W. Cholar; adjournment.

REPUBLICAN RALLY AT ELIZABETHPORT

The Downtown Republican Club, of Elizabethport, held a mass meeting and rally in German Parish hall, Elizabethport, last night. It was attended by 200 voters who were addressed by Former Governor J. Franklin Fort, former City Judge William N. Runyon and the county candidates. The speeches aroused great enthusiasm.

The county aspirants for office who spoke were Carlton F. Pierce, candidate for State Senate; George L. Babcock, William F. Groves and George C. Otto, for Assembly. Charles Wagner, president of the club, was in charge and introduced the speakers.

The Rahway Republicans will conduct a dollar dinner Thursday night, and the county candidates will be among its attendants. Former City Judge Runyon will make an address and is also slated to appear at a Republican rally in Union township Saturday night.

SLASHED DAUGHTER; FIXED BAIL AT $1,500

When arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning, on the charge of atrocious assault, Mrs. Mary Lomax, of Jersey City, pleaded not guilty and waived a hearing. Bail was fixed at $1,500 to await the action of the Union County Grand Jury, and Judge DeMeza notified the woman's counsel, former City Judge William N. Runyon, that a rule would be made whereby counsel could make application for a reduction in this amount, providing the victim's condition warranted it.

The victim of Mrs. Lomax's attack was her daughter, Mrs. Harry Brooks, of West Third street. The latter ran away from home in Jersey City seven weeks ago, married, and located in this city. In an argument at her home Sunday night, with her mother, who wanted Brooks and his wife, who had been forgiven for eloping, to make their home with her, Mrs. Lomax slashed her daughter's throat with a razor. The daughter is seventeen years old and it is due to her youth and good health that her life will be saved, although it is feared that her neck will be stiffened for life. The doctors at Muhlenberg Hospital announced today that she is practically out of danger and is recovering as rapidly as can be expected.

Mrs. Swenson's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Sophie Swenson, widow of Daniel Swenson, whose death occurred at her home in Stirling, Friday, was held in the Stirling Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. I. J. Imrick, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. A quartet composed of the Misses Monteith, Mrs. Imrick and Mrs. Freeman sang two selections, "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "I Love to Tell the Story." The floral tributes were numerous and included a set piece from the Presbyterian church Ladies' Aid Society and the Summit High School senior and junior classes attended by a son and daughter of Mrs. Swenson. Burial was made in the Stirling cemetery, the pall bearers being five sons and a nephew, Edwin, Walter, Donald, Adolph and Arthur Swenson, and Adolph Carlson, of Brooklyn.

Spoke On Pythianism.

Mayor-General Stobbart, of Minnesota, who is making a tour of the State in the interest of the Knights of Pythias, spoke at Somerville, last night. A district meeting was held under the auspices of Lodge of the Castle, No. 82, and delegations were sent by Perseverance and Unity lodges, of this city. Major-General Stobbart, who has made Pythianism his life work, made a lasting impression.

WILSON IN ERROR

Governor Admits He Misquoted Plank in Attacking G. O. P. Grade Crossing Issue

EFFORT TO RAISE $100,000.00.

State Executive in Replying to Republican Senatorial Nominee Confesses He Should Have Refreshed Memory.

Governor Woodrow Wilson has frankly admitted that he read into the Republican platform plank regarding grade crossings in his speech delivered in Proctor's theatre, Elizabeth, last Thursday night words that the party declaration did not contain.

In answer to a letter sent him by Carlton B. Pierce, Republican nominee for State Senator, regarding his attack on the grade crossing plank, Governor Wilson admits that he "made the mistake."

The Governor, furthermore, in fairness to Mr. Pierce, who is the author of the plank, states that he spoke from "an imperfect recollection of the language in the plank and should have refreshed his memory."

In his address in Elizabeth, Governor Wilson made the grade crossing question the feature. He attacked the Republican plank and declared that it was not feasible because it proposed to abolish all the grade crossings in the State and "at once" at the expense of the railways.

Governor Wilson read into the plank the words "at once" and, as will be seen from Mr. Pierce's letter, changed completely the meaning of the Republican plank.

Following are Mr. Pierce's letter and Governor Wilson's reply:

Mr. Pierce's Letter.

"Cranford, Oct. 21, 1911.

"Hon. Woodrow Wilson,
"Trenton, New Jersey.

"My Dear Governor—As the author of the grade crossing plank adopted by the Republican State convention, and one who recognizes you would not intentionally misstate an adversary's position, I beg to call your attention to the plank, and your Elizabeth speech of the 19th inst., and respectfully ask that you make the appropriate correction.

"The plank reads:

"'We favor the elimination of grade crossings at railroad expense, the work to be done gradually, in order of necessity, and to proceed as rapidly as the expense involved will permit.'

"Your speech as reported in the Elizabeth Journal, Times and Newark News, says:

"'The Republican platform pledges the party to abolish all grade crossings at the expense of the railways. I wonder if the men who drew up that paltform knew how many grade crossings there are in the State of New Jersey, all through the extended rural districts of this commonwealth.

"'And do they for one moment want you to believe that they are going to undertake to abolish all the grade crossings in this State, and at once, at the expense of the railways?

"'You know they are not; you know they cannot have intended to do so; you know their close alliance in the past with the railway companies, and you have reason to suspect that they made these big promises, these important promises, with the knowledge that they could not be carried out.

"'In the first place, it would not be fair to carry them out. We are supposed to be arrayed, as they are supposed to be arrayed, against corporate interests and if you undertake to abolish at once all the grade crossings in the State, you would propose something which was financially impossible for the railways, and therefore, if enforced, very unfair.

"'I do not hold any brief for the railways, but I do hold a brief for justice, I do hold a brief for what is fair, and I want to call your attention to the plank that corresponds with that in the Democratic platform. It proposes to do a perfectly feasible thing, to put into the hands of the Public Utilities Commission, the right to abolish every railway crossing which it is immediately imperative should be abolished for the safety of human life.

"'That is perfectly feasible; that is a workable plank, and the other is not.'

"Your speech reads the words 'at once' into the Republican plank, changing the meaning, and then proceeds to demolish the structure erected.

"The Republican plank was drawn with care, to provide a gradual elimination, with due regard to the expense involved.

"As the grade crossing issue is important in Elizabeth, and many have doubtless been misled as to the facts, by the speech, may I rely on your

LACKAWANNA'S ORDER AS TO CARD PLAYING.

Hoboken, Oct. 24.—Commuters on the Lackawanna Railroad, who for years have engaged in card playing on the trains, must hereafter furnish their cards and lapboards if they want to continue the practice. An order went out Saturday from the office of Superintendent C. J. Phillips that baggagemasters and trainmen who have provided the players with cards and lapboards will not be permitted to do so after November 1.

The railroad employes have in the past averaged from $18 to $20 a month furnishing cards and boards for the commuters.

SECOND SET OF TWINS, FATHER TAKES POISON.

Maysville, Ky., Oct. 24.—Because his wife had presented him with twins, the second set to be born in less than two years, Lee Hay, thirty years old, committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid Sunday. Hay had been out of work for some time and was presumably despondent over the fact that he would now be compelled to feed two additional mouths.

The last set of twins were born two days ago, and the mother's condition is critical as the result of the shock of her husband's act.

RELEASED FROM PRISON, CLAIMED BY DEATH.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—John R. Walsh, former banker, publisher and railroad owner, released on October 14 from the Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary, died yesterday of heart disease.

Mr. Walsh had been in bed most of the time since his arrival here from Leavenworth October 15. Intermittent reports of Mr. Walsh's failing health during his incarceration had been denied at the penitentiary. On his release, however, it was plain that he had aged.

WILSON AS PRESIDENT AND "SOMEWHERE" HYMN.

Trenton, Oct. 24.—"When Woodrow Wilson is president of the United States, he won't care how much we sing that song." That was Rev. Dr. W. H. Main's comment at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting her Sunday after the hymn, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" was sung. That was the hymn which the Governor recently criticised from a literary standpoint. Dr. Main, Sunday, said he was glad to hear the hymn and charted it as beginning her and extending into eternity.

ARNOLD FAMILY HOME; NO NEWS OF DOROTHY.

New York, Oct. 24.—Garbed in sombre black, the father and mother and sister of Dorothy Arnold arrived from Europe yesterday on the steamer Vaderland.

"I have no news. I have had no news since December," was all Mr. Arnold would say when asked about his missing daughter, whose disappearance last December caused an international but futile search.

SWEET BUTTER VERSUS SALT.

From Henry T. Finck's "Ungastronomic America" in the November Century.

Not only is much of our butter spoiled by careless and uncleanly making, and by mixing the old with the new and in other ways "renovating" it; but we permit its most delicate flavor to be spoiled by preparing it with sour cream and adding salt.

Until a few years ago it was almost impossible, even in New York, to get sweet (unsalted) butter. Today it is served in the most expensive hotels and restaurants, some of the wealthy folk use it at home, and the general consumer has a chance to buy it in a few places, at fancy prices. It is seldom as good as the same product in the humblest French, German, Austrian, or Italian inn, or on the table of many peasants, yet it is a vast improvement on the unpalatable lubricator placed on most American tables, which I should no more think of eating than I should axle-grease.

One of the summer excursion cars standing in the local yards near Washington avenue was broken into by a gang of rowdies. They were evidently bent on malicious destruction as the interior of the conveyance presented a sorry sight when discovered Sunday. The axes from the emergency cases were extracted and used to demolish seats and lamps. The matter has been reported to the proper authorities and it is understood that railroad detectives are conducting an investigation.

The library committee has planned to give another social in the library rooms on November 17. It will be held in the evening in order to allow the men interested to attend.

CAL AMUSEMENTS

"Dainty and charming with haunting melodies and a plot that fairly scintillates with laughable lines and ludicrous situations," was one critic's epitome of Miss Grace LeRue's latest success the comedy-operetta "Betsy" written by H. Kellett Chambers, with music by Alexander Johnstone, and lyrics by Will B. Johnstone. "Betsy" is a musical novelty, without a chorus but with an important singing role for every principal. The play depends on its plot, the song numbers, of which there are seventeen, forming a part of the spirited and very humorous story. Miss LaRue's role is that of a fascinating American widow with an ambition to become the wife of an English Earl. But in order to retain the fortune left her by her title-hating husband it is necessary that her second marriage be to an American. To outwit the will she marries a stranger with the stipulation of immediate divorce. And then ensues a tangle of hearts and affairs that continue in hopeless though laughable perplexity until the final curtain. The part of Betsy is one of rare opportunity for Miss LaRue's arts of comedy, splendid voice and graces as a dancer, and as Betsy her charming personality, beauty and sartorial accomplishments are most advantageously seen. The production, by Byron Chandler, has been conceded the most artistic that has gone out of New York this season. The supporting company, which is of unusual excellence, includes Cecil Jarvis Ryan, John Willard, George W. Callahan, Worthington L. Romaine, Alfred Deery, Donald Buchanan, Juliette Lange, Lavina Shannon, Myrtle Jessey and Lucie Carter. Miss LaRue's principal songs are "Dream Love," a waltz that is said to be more fascinating than that of the "Merry Widow;" "The First Gray Hair" and "My Fable."

When Ty Cobb comes to Plainfield on Wednesday, November 2, there is no doubt but what he will be greeted by a large number of ball fans who will embrace the first opportunity they have had to look this great star of the diamond over very closely as it will be his first visit here in any capacity either as an actor or as a ball player.

In his way Cobb is little short of a wonder. He has received a larger amount of publicity than any youngster of the same age ever received, perhaps, and yet he carries it all with a mien which is at all times pleasing. He has proven himself one of the greatest students of the game ever known and this with well applied ambition has placed him at the top rung of the ladder of fame. He has never failed at anything he has attempted on the ball field and this same promises to be true of his theatrical work, as he has already proved to be one of the finds of the present dramatic year.

By many it has been predicted that Cobb would retire from the ball field within another year, but this report the Southerner has always denied as well he might; he is now at an age where his opportunities in the athletic field are unlimited. He could retire and be independently rich as he has been conservative with the large salaries he has received since he first entered major league baseball and his investments would assure him a life of ease for the rest of the days, but the Georgia Peach has no intentions of putting a check to his active career when his vitality and ambition are at the highest point.

EXPERIENCE.

My experience in starting business, less than six months ago, against great odds with four dollars only. Rented the only place available on North Avenue, $75.00 per month, spent nearly $400.00 on the building and bought $500.00 worth of furniture on your good looks, making my expenses for help and all about $700.00 per month.

First Experience: Ordered six searches at one time for my clients, got sued jointly with a lady for ten dollars. Oh! I love one-half of our lawyers.

Party agreed to put up the money for Uptodate; some one howled after a small first payment was made, I went through with it all myself, only owe $75.00 on the deal and no notes out.

Another party agreed to put up about $18,000.00 to buy a tract for development near Plainfield; made first payment, some one howled, I made good, and no notes out.

Accummulated $1,100.00 in good notes, tried all the banks to have some of them cashed, all good, but refused; in the meantime had three suits threatening me and one went on without notice.

The notes would have paid all I owed twice over. I love our Banks; and I shall vote for Gov. Wilson; he said something about Wall Street, however, I made good without giving my note.

Then the heat and plumbing question came up, and I moved to 211 North Avenue. Don't have much cash, but this is what I do have to show for my work, (and only owe $300.00), 2 apartment houses at Paterson, equity from $8,000.00 to $10,000.00, the McLaughlin house on Somerset Street, the Rev. Francis house at Dunellen, about 200 lots in Plainfield, about 400 at Uptodate, and still have my notes.

Have sold property in the following places: Asbury Park, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Middlebush, Millstone, Cranford, Paterson, Riverside, Clinton, Pattenburg, High Bridge, Lebanon, Newark, Brooklyn, New York and, of course, Plainfield. My 'phone bill is more than all the rest of the agents put together.

FIVE CHURCHGOERS' AGES ARE 444 YEARS.

Ocean Grove, Oct. 24.—Five persons, whose combined ages total 444 years, attended old folks' service Sunday morning in St. Paul's M. E. church here. These were Mrs. Harriet S. Kidder, ninety-four; Rev. Dr. Aaron E. Ballard, ninety-one; Thos. Jackson, eighty-eight; Captain William DeHart, eighty-seven, and Rev. B. C. Lippincott, eight-four. Several other octogenarians attended, while septuagenarians were so plentiful as to escape individual notice.

There was also present one who had passed forty years of his life in India as a missionary, Rev. T. J. Scott, now a resident of Ocean Grove. The service was made up of old-fashioned hymns and addresses by Revs. Dr. Thomas O'Hanlon, Dr. Lippincott and Dr. Ballard.

MAN TERRIBLY BEATEN LAYS IT TO POLITICS.

Camden, Oct. 24.—Joseph Baker, 802 Walnut street, is in the Cooper Hospital in a critical condition, due to an attack made on him by several men. His skull was fractured and he received serious body and head bruises. Baker Sunday afternoon declared that he was attacked by Republican machine officeholders because he favored the election of Joseph E. Nowrey, the Democratic nominee for sheriff.

City Detectives Brothers and Scregier arrested Isaac Eberly on a charge of being one of Baker's assailants. Eberly is employed at the city stables.

Big Incorporation Figures.

Trenton, Oct. 24.—New Jersey's corporation business last week was larger than for any similar period in some time. Thirty-nine new corporations took out charters, their aggregate authorized capital stock being $3,735,000. In addition, there were two increases of capital stock, aggregating $3,170,000. The total capitalization, therefore, was $6,905,000, which will net the State treasury a round sum in corporation franchise taxes.

in any other precinct than the one in which he or she actually resides."

Elizabeth was very much interested, and looked curiously at the women going past. She wanted John to take her over to King street, where the polls were located, but he looked so surprised and displeased, saying something about not wishing her to be near such bold hussies, that she said no more about it.

So they walked to the other side of town, and John pointed out all the places of special interest, for he was very familiar with Elizabethtown, because he had been in the habit of coming there once or twice each month for the mail. Up to 1790 there had only been five postoffices in the State, Amboy, Woodbridge, Elizabethtown, Trenton and Burlington, though that was an improvement over 1750, when there were only three, Amboy, Trenton and Burlington. In the Philadelphia "Weekly Mercury" for December, 1733, there is an advertisement reading: "There are a number of letters in the postoffice at Perth Amboy for persons living in Somerset, Monmouth and Essex counties."

Elizabeth was very much interested in all she saw, the beautiful homes, the quaint churches and the pretty park, and they reached the Tavern only just in time for tea at six o'clock.

The next morning at eight, they clambered into a beautiful blue-and-buff stage coach, the pride of the "Swift-Sure Stage Line," which ran from Elizabethtown to Philadelphia. This line had been in existence since 1756. Two round trips a week were made. the fare was three dollars and a half, and baggage was carried at the passengers' risk.

In a short time they were passing through Springfield, where they saw the old burying ground the last resting place of many brave Revolutionary soldiers, also the new Presbyterian church, which had been built on the site of the one burned by British raiders from Staten Island in 1780. Both of these are in very much the same condition today as when Elizabeth saw them, except that the burying ground is much smaller.

The next town was Westfield, the western field of the borough of Elizabeth. On the outskirts of the town, the driver pointed out a rise in the road called "Morgan's Hill," because Morgan, the murderer of good Parson Caldwell, had been hung there. John then told Elizabeth something of this fighting Parson, who had been called the "Rebel High Priest" by the British, and he recited a verse about him which he had learned as a boy:

"Why, he had all the Jerseys aflame.
And they gave him the name
Of the 'Rebel High Priest.' He stuck in their gorge,
For he loved the Lord God, and he hated King George."

In Scotch Plains, so named because it was settled by Scotchmen, they saw the new home of Colonel Recompence Stanbery, and the stone parsonage of the Baptist church, which was then eleven years old. Both these houses, as well as the old tavern which stands on the corner where the road makes a sharp turn and becomes Front street, are still standing, looking very much as they did when Elizabeth saw them a hundred and fourteen years ago.

They only passed three or four houses on Front street, as it is now called, between Scotch Plains and Milltown, then the name of what is now Plainfield, or at least that part of it near John Webster's gristmill, on the bank of the brook, where it is crossed by Somerset street. This John Webster was our John's uncle, and he lived on what is now the Martine place, which is perhaps Plainfield's most interesting location, historically. It was originally the plantation of Thomas Gordon, one of the twenty-four proprietors who bought East Jersey from the heirs of Sir George Carteret. He came here from Pitlochie, Scotland, in 1684, with his wife Helen, foud children and seven stewards. His first cabin was located where Mr. Martine's barn now stands and the foundation can still be seen. He was very unfortunate, for in less than two years his wife and their six children died. Late in the eighteenth century the second house was built, buy John Webster, and the kitchen of Senator Martine's home was part of the original Webster house.

Plainfield is not rich in historical landmarks, for the reason that it was not developed until much later than Middlebrook (Bound Brook), Quibbletown (New Market), Tow Town (South Plainfield), and many others. Practically all of Plainfield belonged to Peter Sonmans, whose father, Arent Sonmans, was one of the twenty-four proprietors. Instead of selling his land, Peter was constantly acquiring more, until finally he owned one-sixth of all East Jersey. He held it for an advance in price, and did not sell an acre until 1732, when John Vail bought 619 acres, and built his house near the brook, about where Mrs. Mead lives on East Front street.

On the corner of Front and Somerset streets our travellers saw Plainfield's first department store, a little shop kept by John Fitz-Randolph, who sold dry-goods, groceries, boots and shoes, taking in exchange for them, "skins, furs, tallow, wax and honey."

Leaving the stage where the road which is now Clinton avenue, crossed the post road, it was only a short walk to John's home on the Quaker road (Greenbrook road now). They were eagerly welcomed by his mother, a sweet-faced Quakeress, dressed demurely in grey, with a snowy kerchief folded across her bosom.

The Webster home was typical of all the houses dotted along the Quaker road, from Somerset street to Sebring's Mills, a distance of four or five miles. Part of it two stories high, and the rest a one-story extension. The front of the house was painted white, but as white paint was expensive and not very durable, the sides and back were red. Inside, the house was divided by a wide hall, on one side of which was the parlor, furnished most stiffly, and always immaculately clean, but only opened on occasions of state, weddings, funerals, chirstenings and occasional important family anniversaries, also, of course, for the day of the year—Thanksgiving.

Across the hall was the dining-room, which was also the family sitting room. With its large fireplace, on the high mantel-shelf of which stood a tall oblong clock, supported on either side by a row of brass and pewter candlesticks; its corner-cupboard, with diamond-shaped panes of glass; its long heavy sideboard, plain mahogany "Pembroke" table, and row of rush-bottomed chairs against the side walks, it was, perhaps, the most interesting room in the house. On one side of the fireplace stood a high-backed settee, to keep off draughts in winter, while within the fireplace was a little bench, on which children might sit and roast apples and pore over their spelling books. In the opposite corner on a little hob a bright copper kettle sputtered merrily.

Back of the dining-room was the large square kitchen, with a Dutch oven and an huge fireplace, in which all the cooking was done, except the baking. In the fireplace swung an enormous crane, from which depended chains, hooks, pots and smoke-jacks. The kitchen floor was sanded, and the beams across the ceiling were black from the smoke of many cooking fires, and huge roasts which turned slowly on spits before the blazing fire, while their juice dripped into pans below. On the mantel-shelf stood two small mortars of wood, in which coffee and spices were powdered, a large tinder box, with its accompanying flint and steel, a Paul Revere lantern, and more pewter candlesticks.

Opening out of the kitchen was the "cool pantry," with its damp brick floor, where the milk and butter and cheese were kept, and the store-room filled with potatoes, turnips, carrots and pumpkins, with festoons of onions, and peppers, and dried apples, peaches and plums hanging from the ceiling. Here, too, was a row of hams and bacon, fresh from the smoke-house in the yard.

In the back of the house the roof descended nearly to the ground, making a sort of covered porch. Here the busy housewife did her spinning in warm, pleasant weather, and here was set up the loom on which was done all the family weaving. The women of that day were never idle; even when they went to "spelling bees" or literary societies," their hands busily plied the knitting needles which were constructing the family's hosiery. Besides spinning and weaving all the family table and bed linen, and most of the clothing of the household, the housewife wove blankets, knitted some quilts and patched others, made soap and candles, dried fruits and vegetables for winter use, and did many other things. No wonder our ancestors sat patiently through four-hour sermons. It was the one time in a week of almost an hundred waking hours when they could feel that it was right to sit with folded hands and do absolutely nothing.

Even their amusements combined business with pleasure, as their titles indicate—corn huskings, apple parings, quilting bees and killing frolics. The latter were in the fall, when the men met at each hours houses to do the hog killing. The women came over in the evening and prepared a supper, after which they all danced or played games. Spinning visits were somewhat similar, only here the women worked all day and the men came over in the evening to help them with the merrymaking.

Elizabeth was a Presbyterian, and she and John usually went to service in Bound Brook, as that was the nearest church until 1825, when the First Presbyterian church, of Plainfield, was built—on the site of the present church. The original building was afterwards removed to the farther end of East Fourth street, and made into two houses, which are still standing. It was not until 1844 that the Second Presbyterian church (now the Crescent Avenue church) was organized. Its first building was on the site of the City National Bank.

The First Baptist Meeting-house was built in 1818, just where the present church now stands. It was a small frame structure, which after several alterations was finally moved away and converted into a tenement, which still stands, on New street near West Front street. The erection of the present building was begun to 1868. Candidates for church membership were baptized in the brook back of the church, and this was considered so usual, that even when the present building was erected, no baptistry was planned. But a hat factory, located about where the Y. M. C. A. building now stands, began to do such a flourishing business, that the waters of the brook were constantly discolored by the logwood which was used to dye felt hats, and the Baptists reluctantly gave up their custom of out-of-doors baptizing. A second Baptist

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

church was built in 1842, but it was afterwards disbanded, and the building has been known for years as Reform Hall.

The most interesting church of all is the old Quaker Meeting House, which was built in 1788. The original meeting-house, located on what is now Woodland avenue, nearly opposite the main entrance to the Golf Club, was moved down to Peace street (Watchung avenue) in 1787. It was used to worship in until the new meeting-house was completed in 1788, when it was converted into a "horse stable," and used for many years in that capacity.

Some of John's cousins lived on what is now the Wilson place. The middle part of this house was the first frame house built in Plainfield. It was put up in 1735, and for some years the only other dwellings near it were Indian wigwams and log cabins. Such other frame houses near there as were built in the eighteenth century can be distinguished by the position in which they stand, for their builders paid no attention to the way in which the roads ran, but invariably put them up with one end to the rising and the other to the setting sun.

Among the friends of the Websters were the Vermeules, on the site of whose home Mr. Brunson's residence on Greenbrook road now stands. The brick wall of their family burying-ground can be plainly seen from the road, standing just back of Mr. Brunson's orchard.

One of John Webster's friends was Edward Fitz-Randolph, who guided Washington to the rock which bears his name. Edward loved to tell the story of how the General rode down from the camp at Middlebrook with some of his aides one day, on a reconnoitering expedition to discover, if possible the whereabouts of the troops of Lord Howe, which were supposed to be somewhere between (Spanktown (Rahway) and New Brunswick. Seeing some men in front of the Vail house on Quaker Road, he rode into the yard and asked if they could tell him of any prominent place on the mountain from which he could obtain a good view of the surrounding country. Young Fitz-Randolph said he knew of one, and Washington telling one of his aides to give his horse to Fitz-Randolph, they rode up the lane and along the top of the mountain to what is now called Washington Rock.

It would be interesting to follow Elizabeth through the varied experiences of her life, during which Plainfield grew to be a town of a thousand inhabitants. She was sixty years old in 1838 when the first trip was made by railroad and steamboat to New York, the train only going as far as Elizabethport, where it connected with a steamboat. It left town at seven o'clock, and the passengers were landed in New York a little after ten! Not until 1864 was the road extended to Jersey City across Newark Bay. The first rails used were flat strips of iron, two inches wide and half an inch thick, spiked down to long pieces of timber, which was laid upon occasional crossties.

In 1800 a postmaster was appointed for Plainfield. He lived near the corner of Front and Somerset streets, and kept the postoffice in his house. After this John no longer had to journey over to Elizabethtown for the mail.

Elizabeth's children went to school in little private schools until 1812, when an academy was built on the site of the present Leal's School. Here several teachers were employed at private expense to teach the village children, until 1835 when the roof burned off, and the school was closed. The building was moved across the street and is now Number 425 West Front street. It is interesting to note that in this building the First Baptist church was started in 1818 and the First Presbyterian church in 1825. In 1833 the old house near the First Presbyterian church, which stands so back from the street and has large Corinthian pillars running the heighth of the building, was built for a "Classical Academy." Its advertisement stated that "the course of instruction will be comprehensive in its object and thorough in its nature, embracing both English and classical learning, and practical training in the modern languages." At one time it was known as the "Green Brook Family School," and later as the "Plainfield Female Institute."

We have not time to go any more fully into the details of Elizabeth's long and happy life, but when she and John were laid to rest in the old cemetery on Chatham street (over the brook), they were mourned not only by several children and grandchildren, but all their friends and neighbors on the Quaker Road, but by everyone who lived in the town which was originally, derisively called "Pinchgut" by the people of Quibbletown, and Samptown and Spanktown; was now a flourishing borough, with well-kept streets and pretty houses—a prophecy of what it was to become—an ideal home city!

A.O.H. FAIR NETS $1,200 FOR ITS BUILDING FUND

The committee in charge of the recently conducted A. O. H. fair held a final meeting last night at the home of Samuel Flatley, on West Sixth street, and it was announced that when all receipts have come in more than $1,200 will have been realized by the venture. All bills, including the cost of the trip to Ireland, won by Miss K. E. Whelan, were settled. Miss Whelan was handed a check for $194, it being her request to be given the cash instead of the ticket, either of which the winner could demand. In return she made a $20 donation to the fund raised.

Among other awards made last night were a gold watch to Patrick Harrington for his services; a $10 gold piece to Miss Lyons who did creditable work in the diamond ring contest; Miss Harrington a $10 gold piece having won a close second in another contest; an A. O. H. badge to Mr. Corcoran and a gold bracelet to Margaret Ryan for their efficient work. The committee decided to hold a social and serve a dinner Hallowe'en for all who assisted at the fair. This will take place at Mr. Flatley's home.

Crap Shooters Fined.

Albert Green and Bert Rogers, colored, were arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning as two more of the crap shooters of the game broken up by the police Sunday afternoon on West Third street. In the general scuffle they escaped the clutches of the police, but were recognized in flight and picked up yesterday. They pleaded guilty to the charge and were fined $3 each.

Parent-Teacher Meeting.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin - Stillman - Whittier schools will meet on Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Stillman school assembly hall. Miss Jackson will give a talk on "The Physical Welfare of the Child." Tea will be served and all mothers are invited to bring their sewing and enjoy a social hour or two.

No Independent Ticket.

Although yesterday was the last day for filing additional petitions for the November election, no additional ones were filed with City Clerk J. T. MacMurray, which means that there will be no independent ticket in the field, as expected.

Fred J. Dixon, of West Fifth street, left yesterday for Milwaukee on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Callman, of West Third street, have gone to Lansing, Mich., for a month's stay with relatives.

—Neuman Bros. are making a specialty of pumpkins for Hallowe'en celebrations. While the firm has a large supply an early selection is urged before they are sold.

F. H. Andrews will have charge of the prayer meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow night.

MYSTERIOUS MEKRAN.

A Desolate Land, Desiccated by Nature and Shunned by Man.

"A mysterious veil has always hung over the land of Mekran," says the London Times. "Mekran is the name given to the long coastal region stretching almost from the Indus to the entrance to the Persian gulf. Sailors have coasted along its white shores from time immemorial, but few in modern days have ever penetrated the ranges of hills which lie beyond. The greater part of Mekran is desolate and forsaken, a land desiccated by nature and shunned by man. The few tribes which linger there are the jetsam of history, stray wreckage which has drifted into this obscure corner of the world in the backwash of great events. It is even believed that the Dravidians passed through Mekran on their way to southern India and left stragglers, whose descendants have dwelt there ever since. There are patches of Mongols from the days of Jenghiz Khan; colonels of half breed Arabs from the time when an Arab dynasty held Sind, unmistakable Rajputs, who were there before Alexander; African negroes, the offshoots of medieval slavery, and traces of still older peoples whose origins are lost in the mists of time.

"Yet Mekran cannot always have been either so dry or so deserted. Many of its hills are closely covered with little stone houses, mostly square at the base, narrowing upward like truncated pyramids, and with dome shaped interiors. They are tombs, and among the rubbish found within them are fragments of light green pottery of fine quality, which no one seems able to identify. Then there are vast masonry dams, obviously built to catch the water in the hills, just as engineers are making dams in the Indian ghauts to-day.

"Sometimes the hills are terraced for cultivation, after the fashion of hills in southern Japan and elsewhere, only in Mekran the terraces are dry and bare, and not even a blade of grass remains. The crumbling ruins of whole cities, the very names of which are forgotten, lie concealed between the serrated ridges."

FEATHERED POLICE.

Birds Do a Wonderful Amount of Work For the Farmer.

Birds work more in conjunction with man to help him than does any other form of outdoor life, according to an article in Success Magazine. They police the earth and air, and without their services the farmer would be helpless. Larks, wrens and thrushes search the ground for grubs and insects. The food of the meadow lark consists of 75 per cent of injurious insects and 12 per cent of weed seed, showing it to be a bird of great economic value. Sparrows, finches and quail eat a large amount of weed seed.

Practically all the food of the tree sparrow consists of seed. Examinations by Professor F. E. L. Beal of the biological survey of the department of agriculture show that a single tree sparrow will eat a quarter of an ounce of weed seed daily. In a state the size of Iowa tree sparrows alone will consume more than 800 tons of weed seed annually. This, with the work of other seed eating birds, saves the farmer an immense amount of work.

Nuthatches and chickadees scan every part of the trunks and limbs of trees for insect eggs. In a day's time a chickadee has been known to eat hundreds of insect eggs and worms that are very harmful to our trees and vegetables. Warblers and vireos hunt the leaves and buds for moths and millers. Flycatchers, swallows and night hawks are busy day and night catching flies that bother man and beast. Hawks and owls are working silently in daylight and darkness to catch moles, mice, gophers and squirrels.

Insulted.

A traveler relates a story illustrative of life in Spain. Alighting at the door of an inn, a man extended his hand, and, naturally supposing him to be a porter, the traveler offered him his valise.

The man stepped back, tossed his head and frowned scornfully.

"Do you take me for a porter?" he demanded. "I would have you understand that I am no porter."

"Indeed!" said the traveler apologetically. "Then may I ask, senor, what you are?"

"I am a beggar, sir, and asked you for alms!"

Making Sure.

An electric wire had fallen under its heavy weight of snow. The linemen found a crowd around the grounded copper and an inquisitive Irishman lifting one end from the ground.

"Man, alive, don't you know what a risk you're taking? That might be a live wire!" he ejaculated.

"Sure an' Oi thought of that meself, an' Oi filt of the wire good before Oi picked it up at all."—Everybody's.

Making Him Happy.

Marks—I know your wife didn't like it because you took me home unexpectedly to dinner last night. Parks—Nonsense! Why, you hadn't been gone two minutes before she remarked that she was glad it was no one else but you.—Boston Transcript.

A Gifted Barber.

"The barber told me a very interesting story as he shaved me."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, and also illustrated it with cuts."—Washington Herald.

Liszt Fooled Them.

Wrapped in his dressing gown and with feet incased in slippers, Franz Liszt was sitting comfortably one evening in his armchair ready for work and inviting inspiration. On the floor above, in the apartments of a banker, a noisy musical soiree was in progress. Polonaises had succeeded waltzes, and nocturnes had followed polonaises, when suddenly the door of the salon opened, and Liszt entered, still wrapped in his dressing gown. The astonishment of the company may be imagined. With slow steps Liszt walked toward the piano, and the young key pounder who was sitting at it quickly left his place. Liszt sat down at the instrument, carelessly swept his fingers over the keys as if to prelude, and then suddenly he shut down the cover and put the key in his pocket. And immediately, with the same tranquil air with which he had entered, he went out and returned to his room, where he could work at his ease.

Range of Rachel's Voice.

A Prussian prince, a cousin of the German Emperor William I., has left some curious notes upon Rachel, of whom he was a great admirer. These have been quoted in a lecture upon the famous actress. The prince studied her elocution from a musical standpoint and took down notes of her voice as she delivered some of her most effective speeches. He found, for instance, that in a passage of Racine's "Bajazet," she went down to F in the bass. In one of "Andromaque" and another of "Adrienne Lecouvreur" her voice spoke a word on the upper E and uttered a cry on upper F sharps. Her speaking voice thus had a compass of two octaves. But, as a rule, he observed that she used only seven notes, consisting of the first seven ascending notes from the bass of the scale of F sharp minor, but with the D sharpened.

Fruit and Old Age.

Physiologists claim that growth from infancy to old age is a process of gradual ossification and that the stiffness of age is caused by the deposits of calcareous matter or earthy salts. Therefore a diet containing a large proportion of these salts, food rich in nitrogen, such as the cereals, beans, peas and meat, increases the natural tendency to ossification, says Health. For this reason a diet made up largely of fruit, which contains a minimum amount of this calcareous matter, is scientifically best adapted to persons in advancing years. Large eaters add to the liability of ossific deposits from overworking the eliminating organs by an excess of nutritive material until their healthful activity is destroyed, and the whole system suffers in consequence. Old age indicates less food and a maximum amount of fruit as the diet.

Sunken Ships Mark His Grave.

There are many monuments to the "father of the British navy," Sir Francis Drake, throughout the world, but his "tomb" is in the great deep upon which he made his everlasting fame. He died Jan. 28, 1595, in his ship the Defiance, near the town of Mombru de Dies, West Indies, and in a leaden coffin his body was lowered into the waves some six miles from shore. As a last honor to him two of his ships, with all the prizes that were in the fleet at the time, were sunk beside his casket. At the time of his death the great admiral was in his fiftieth year and in the prime of his physical and intellectual powers. Since his death the British navy has never been without a ship bearing his name.—Exchange.

A Judge and an Egg.

Judges on the bench have been assaulted. A litigant once threw an egg at the late Vice Chancellor Malins in an English court. The judge had the presence of mind to duck his head, and at the same time he established a reputation as a humorist by remarking that the present must have been intended for his brother, Bacon, the vice chancellor, who was sitting in an adjoining court.

Lots of Talk.

"What we want," said the peace promoter, "is a system that will permit candid discussion to take the place of actual conflict."

"Don't you think," inquired the man who was reading the sporting page, "that our professional pugilists have come pretty near solving the problem?"—London Opinion.

Transparent Salt.

In the island of Santo Domingo there is a remarkable salt mountain—a mass of crystalline salt, nearly four miles long, estimated to contain nearly 90,000,000 tons, and the crystallized salt is said to be so clear that medium sized print can be read through a block a foot thick.

Sympathy.

Poet—All my life seemed to go into that poem. I was perfectly exhausted when I had finished writing it. Editor—I can sympathize with you. I was in exactly the same condition when I had finished reading it."

Cheaper.

"So you wish to marry an actress?"

"Yes. I fell in love with her voice after hearing it in a phonograph."

"Better go slow. You can buy the record for 50 cents."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Income and Outgo.

BURNING DAYLIGHT

And then the thunderbolt struck. True to the rumor, Ward Valley levied the assessment. Daylight threw up his arms. He verified the report and quit. Not alone Ward Valley, but all securities were being hammered down by the triumphant bears. As for Ward Valley, Daylight did not even trouble to learn if it had fetched bottom or was still tumbling. Not stunned, not even bewildered, while Wall Street went mad, Daylight withdrew from the field to think it over. After a short conference with his brokers, he proceeded to his hotel, on the way picking up the evening papers and glancing at the head-lines. BURNING DAYLIGHT CLEANED OUT, he read; DAYLIGHT GETS HIS; ANOTHER WESTERNER FAILS TO FIND EASY MONEY.

He passed up to his rooms, ordered a Martini cocktail, took off his shoes, and sat down to think. After half an hour he roused himself to take the drink, and as he felt the liquor pass warmingly through his body, his features relaxed into a slow, deliberate, yet genuine grin. He was laughing at himself.

"Buncoed, by gosh!" he muttered.

Then the grin died away, and his face grew bleak and serious. Leaving out his interests in the several Western reclamation projects (which were still assessing heavily), he was a ruined man. But harder hit than this was his pride. He had been so easy. They had gold-bricked him, and he had nothing to show for it. The simplest farmer would have had documents, while he had nothing but a gentleman's agreement, and a verbal one at that. Gentleman's agreement! He snorted over it. John Dowsett's voice, just as he had heard it in the telephone receiver, sounded in his ears the words, "On my honor as a gentleman." They were sneak-thieves and swindlers, that was what they were, and they had given him the double-cross. The newspapers were right. He had come to New York to be trimmed, and Messrs. Dowsett, Letton and Guggenhammer had done it. He was a little fish, and they had played with him ten days—ample time in which to swallow him, along with his eleven millions. Of course, they had been unloading on him all the time, and now they were buying Ward Valley back for a song ere the market righted itself.

And Daylight sat and consumed cocktails and saw back in his life to Alaska, and lived over the grim years in which he had battled for his eleven millions. For awhile murder ate at his heart, and wild ideas and sketchy plans of killing his betrayers flashed through his wind. Daylight unlocked his grip and took out his automatic pistol—a big Colt's .44. He released the safety catch with his thumb and, operating the sliding outer barrel, ran the contents of the clip through the mechanism. The eight cartridges slid out in a stream. He refilled the clip, threw a cartridge into the chamber, and with the trigger at full cock, thrust up the safety ratchet. He shoved the weapon into the side pocket of his coat, ordered another Martini, and resumed his seat.

At ten o'clock he arose and pored over the city directory. Then he put on his shoes, took a cab, and departed into the night. Twice he changed cabs and finally fetched up at the night office of a detective agency. He superintended the thing himself, laid down money in advance in profuse quantities, selected the six men he needed and gave them their instructions. Never, for so simple a task, had they been so well paid; for to each in addition to office charges, he gave a five hundred-dollar bill, with the promise of another if he succeeded. Some time next day, he was convinced, if not sooner, his three silent partners would come together. To each one two of his detectives were to be attached. Time and place was all he wanted to learn.

"Stop at nothing, boys," were his final instructions. "I must have this information. Whatever you do whatever happens, I'll see you through."

Returning to his hotel, he changed cabs as before, went up to his room and with one more cocktail for a night cap, went to bed and to sleep. In the morning he dressed and shaved, ordered breakfast and the newspapers sent up, and waited. But he did not drink. By nine o'clock his telephone began to ring and the reports to come in. Nathaniel Letton was taking the train at Tarrytown. John Dowsett was coming down by the subway. Leon Guggenhammer had not stirred out yet, though he was assuredly within. And in this fashion, with a map of the city spread out before him, Daylight followed the movements of his three men as they drew together. Nathaniel Letton was at his offices in the Mutual-Solander Building. Next arrived Guggenhammer. Dowsett was still in his own offices. But at eleven came the word that he also had arrived, and several minutes later Daylight was in a hired motor-car and speeding for the Mutual-Solander Building.

CHAPTER IX.

Nathaniel Letton was talking when the door opened; he ceased, and with his two companions gazed with controlled perturbation at Burning Daylight striding into the room. The free, swinging movements of the trail-traveler were unconsciously exaggerated in that stride of his. In truth, it seemed to him that he felt the trail beneath his feet.

"Howdy, gentlemen, howdy," he remarked, ignoring the unnatural calm with which they greeted his entrance. He shook hands with them in turn, striding from one to another and gripping their hands so heartily that Nathaniel Letton could not forbear to wince. Daylight flung himself into a massive chair and sprawled lazily, with an appearance of fatigue. The leather grip he had brought into the room he dropped carelessly beside him on the floor.

"I've sure been going some," he sighed. "We sure trimmed them beautifully. It was real slick. And the beauty of the play never dawned on me till the very end. It was pure and simple knock down and drag out. And the way they fell for it was amazin'."

Letton made a dry sound in his throat. Dowsett sat quietly and waited, while Leon Guggenhammer struggled into articulation.

"You certainly have raised Cain," he said.

Daylight's black eyes flashed in a pleasant way.

"Didn't I, though!" he proclaimed, jubilantly. "And didn't we fool 'em! I was teetotally surprised. I never dreamed they would be that easy.

"And now," he went on, not permitting the pause to grow awkward, "we-all might as well have an accounting. I'm pullin' West this afternoon on that blamed Twentieth Century." He tugged at his grip, got it open, and dipped into it with both his hands. "But don't forget, boys, when you-all want me to hornswoggle Wall Street another flutter, all you-all have to do is whisper the word. I'll sure be right there with the goods."

His hands emerged, clutching a great mass of stubs, check-books, and brokers' receipts. These he deposited in a heap on the big table, and dipping again, he fished out the stragglers and added them to the pile. He consulted a slip of paper, drawn from his coat pocket and read aloud:

"Ten million twenty-seven thousand and forty-two dollars and sixty-eight cents is my figurin' on my expense. Of course that-all's taken from the winnings before we-all get to figurin' on the whack-up. Where's your figures? It must a' been a mighty big clean-up."

The three men looked their bepuzzlement at one another. The man was a bigger fool than they had imagined, or else he was playing a game which they could not divine.

Nathaniel Letton moistened his lips and spoke up.

"It will take some hours yet, Mr. Harnish, before the full accounting can be made. Mr. Howison is at work upon it now. We—ah—as you say, it has been a gratifying clean-up. Suppose we have lunch together and talk it over. I'll have the clerks work through the noon hour so that you will have ample time to catch your train."

Dowsett and Guggenhammer manifested a relief that was almost obvious. The situation was clearing. It was disconcerting, under the circumstances, to be pent in the same room with this heavy-muscled, Indian-like man whom they had robbed. They remembered unpleasantly the many stories of his strength and recklessness. If Letton could only put him off long enough for them to escape into the policed world outside the office door, all would be well; and Daylight showed all the signs of being put off.

"I'm real glad to hear that," he said. "I don't want to miss that train, and you-all have done me proud, gentlemen, letting me in on this deal. I just do appreciate it without being able to express my feelings. But I am sure almighty curious, and I'd like terrible to know, Mr. Letton, what your figures of our winning is. Can you-all give me a rough estimate?"

Nathaniel Letton did not look appealingly at his two friends, but in the brief pause they felt that appeal pass out from him. Dowsett, of sterner mold than the others, began to divine that the Klondiker was playing. But the other two were still under the blandishment of his child-like innocence.

"It is extremely—er—difficult," Leon Guggenhammer began. "You see, Ward Valley has fluctuated so, er—"

"That no estimate can possibly be made in advance," Letton supplemented.

"Approximate it, approximate it," Daylight counselled, cheerfully. "It don't hurt if you-all are a million out one side or the other. The figures'll straighten that up. But I'm that curious I'm just itching all over. What d'ye say?"

"Why continue to play at cross purposes?" Dowsett demanded abruptly and coldly. "Let us have the explanation here and now. Mr. Harnish is laboring under a false impression, and he should be set straight.

By this time Letton was stiffened by the attitude Dowsett had taken, and his answer was prompt and definite.

"I fear you are under a misapprehension, Mr. Harnish. There are no winnings to be divided with you. Now don't get excited, I beg of you. I have but to press this button . . ."

Far from excited, Daylight had all the seeming of being stunned. He looked at Dowsett and murmured:

"It was your deal, all right, and you-all dole them right, too. Well, I ain't kicking. I'm like the player in that poker game. It was your deal, and you-all had a right to do your best. And you done it—cleaned me out slicker'n a whistle."

He gazed at the heap on the table with an air of stupefaction.

"And that-all ain't worth the paper it's written on. Gol dast it, you-all can sure deal 'em 'round when you get a chance. Oh, no, I ain't a-kicking. It was your deal, and you-all certainly done me, and a man ain't half a man that squeals on another man's deal. And now the hand is played out, and the cards are on the table, and the deal's over, but . . ."

His hand, dipping swiftly into his inside breast pocket, appeared with the big Colt's automatic.

"As I was saying, the old deal's finished. Now it's my deal, and I'm a-going to see if I can hold them four aces—

"Take your hand away, you whited sepulchre!" he cried sharply.

Nathaniel Letton's hand, creeping toward the push-button on the desk, was abruptly arrested.

"Change cars," Daylight commanded. "Take that chair over there, you gangrene-livered skunk. Jump, or I'll make you leak till folks'll think your father was a water hydrant and your mother a sprinkling-cart. You-all move your chair alongside, Guggenhammer; and you-all Dowsett, sit right there, while I just irrelevantly explain the virtues of this here automatic. She's loaded for big game and she goes off eight times. She's a sure hummer when she gets started.

"Preliminary remarks being over, I now proceed to deal. Remember, I ain't making no remarks about your deal. You done your darndest, and it was all right. But this is my deal, and it's up to me to do my darndest. In the first place, you-all know me. I'm Burning Daylight—savvee? Ain't afraid of God, devil, death, nor destruction. Them's my four aces, and they sure copper your bets. Look at that there living skeleton. Letton, you're sure afraid to die. Your bones is all rattling together you're that scared. And look at that fat Jew there. This little weapon's sure put the fear of God in his heart. He's yellow as a sick persimmon. Dowsett, you're a cool one. You-all ain't batted an eye nor turned a hair. That's because you're great on arithmetic. And that makes you-all dead easy in this deal of mine. You're sitting there and adding two and two together, and you-all know I sure got you skinned. You know me, and that I ain't afraid of nothing. And you-all adds up all your money and knows you ain't a-going to die if you can help it."

"Now It's My Deal, and I'm Going to See if I Can Hold Them Four Aces."

"I'll see you hanged," was Dowsett's retort.

"Not by a damned sight. When the fun starts, you're the first I plug. I'll hang all right, but you-all won't live to see it. You-all die here and now while I'll die subject to the law's delay—savvee? Being dead, with grass growing out of your carcasses, you won't know when I hang, but I'll sure have the pleasure a long time of knowing you-all beat me to it."

"You surely won't kill us?" Letton asked in a queer, thin voice.

Daylight shook his head.

"It's sure too expensive. You-all ain't worth it. I'd sooner have my chips back. And I guess you-all 'd sooner give my chips back than go to the dead-house."

A long silence followed.

"Well, I've done dealt. It's up to you-all to play. But while you're deliberating, I want to give you-all warning: if that door opens and any one of you cusses lets on there's anything unusual, right here and then I sure start plugging. They ain't a soul 'll get out of the room except feet first."

A long session of three hours followed. The deciding factor was not the big automatic pistol, but the certitude that Daylight would use it. Not alone were the three men convinced of this, but Daylight himself was convinced. He was firmly resolved to kill the men if his money was not forthcoming. It was not an easy matter, on the spur of the moment, to raise ten millions in paper currency, and there were vexatious delays. A dozen times Mr. Howison and the head clerk were summoned into the room. On these occasions the pistol lay on Daylight's lap, covered carelessly by a newspaper, while he was usually engaged in rolling or lighting his brown-paper cigarette. But in the end, the thing was accomplished. A suit-case was brought up by one of the clerks from the waiting motor-car, and Daylight snapped it shut on the last package of bills. He paused at the door to make his final remarks.

"There's three several things I sure want to tell you-all. When I get outside this door, you-all'll be set free to act, and I just want to warn you-all about what to do. In the first place, no warrants for my arrest—savvee? This money's mine, and I ain't robbed you of it. If it gets out how you gave me the double cross and how I done you back again, the laugh 'll be on you, and it'll be sure an almighty big laugh. You-all can't afford that laugh. Besides, having got back my stake that you-all robbed me of, if you arrest me and try to rob me a second time I'll go gunning for you-all, and I'll sure get you. No little fraidcat shrimps like you-all can skin Burning Daylight. If you win you lose, and there'll sure be some several unexpected funerals around this burg. Just look me in the eye, and you-all'll savvee I mean business. Them stubs and receipts on the table is all yourn. Good day."

As the door shut behind him, Nathaniel Letton sprang for the telephone, and Dowsett intercepted him.

"What are you going to do?" Dowsett demanded.

"The police. It's downright robbery. I won't stand it. I tell you I won't stand it."

Dowsett smiled grimly, but at the same time bore the slender financier back and down into his chair.

"We'll talk it over," he said; and in Leon Guggenhammer he found an anxious ally.

And nothing ever came of it. The thing remained a secret with the three men. Nor did Daylight ever give the secret away, though that afternoon, leaning back in his stateroom on the Twentieth Century, his shoes off, and feet on a chair, he chuckled long and heartily. New York remained forever puzzled over the affair; nor could it hit upon a rational explanation. By all rights, Burning Daylight should have gone broke, yet it was known that he immediately reappeared in San Francisco possessing an apparently unimpaired capital. This was evidenced by the magnitude of the enterprises he engaged in, such as, for instance, Panama Mail, by sheer weight of money and fighting power wrestling the control away from Sheffly and selling out in two months to the Harriman interests at a rumored enormous advance.

CHAPTER X.

Back in San Francisco, Daylight quickly added to his reputation. In ways it was not an enviable reputation. Men were afraid of him. He became known as a fighter, a fiend, a tiger. His play was a ripping and smashing one, and no one knew where or how his next blow would fall. The element of surprise was large. He balked on the unexpected, and, fresh from the wild North, his mind not operating in stereotyped channels, he was able in unusual degree to devise new tricks and stratagems. And once he won the advantage, he pressed it remorselessly. "As relentless as a Red Indian," was said of him, and it was said truly.

He was a free lance, and had no friendly business associations. Such alliances as were formed from time to time were purely affairs of expediency, and he regarded his allies as men who would give him the double-cross or ruin him if a profitable chance presented. In spite of this point of view, he was faithful to his allies. But he was faithful just as long as they were and no longer. The treason had to come from them, and then it was 'Ware Daylight.

The business men and financiers of the Pacific coast never forgot the lesson of Charles Klinkner and the California & Altamont Trust Company. Klinkner was the president. In partnership with Daylight, the pair raided the San Jose Interurban. The powerful Lake Power & Electric Lighting corporation came to the rescue, and Klinkner, seeing what he thought was the opportunity, went over to the enemy in the thick of the pitched battle. Daylight lost three millions before he was done with it, and before he was done with it he saw the California & Altamont Trust Company hopelessly wrecked, and Charles Klinkner a suiside in a felon's cell.

PLATFORM.

Abolish grade crossings at railroad expense.
Equalize tax assessments.
Revise the State statutes.
Substitute the indeterminate franchise, or tenure during good behavior, for the present limited franchise act.

As the Republican legislative candidates, we submit the foregoing platform to the voters of Union county, as the special matters we shall seek to accomplish if elected.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

Two reasons exist why the railroads should separate grades at their own expense:

1. Their charters so provide—and the acceptance of a charter constitutes an agreement with the State.

2. Aside from the charters, the United States Supreme Court has declared the principle that it is the duty of a railroad to conduct its business safely, and as an incident eliminate its crossings when a menace to public safety.

We favor legislation along the general lines of the Connecticut law, which has been declared constitutional, requiring the railroads to abolish a reasonable number of crossings each year.

DIFFERENCE IN PLATFORMS.

The Republican State platform provides:

"We favor the elimination of grade crossings at railroad expense, the work to be done gradually, in the order of necessity, and to proceed as rapidly as the expense involved will permit."

The Democratic State platform provides:

"We favor the elimination of grade crossings, and to that end the enactment of legislation giving the Public Utilities Commission power to compel the railroads to eliminate grade crossings where, in the judgment of the commission, such crossings are a menace to life."

The Newark Star of October 4, in its news columns, describes the making of the Democratic plank as follows:

"The grade crossing planks drawn favored the 'prompt and compulsory elimination' of grade crossings at railroad expense. After some parleying, in which R. H. McAdams, of Union, stood out for the principle just as it was originally stated, the plank was changed to the form in which it appeared in the platform, the Governor himself writing it."

Public interest will attach to two points:

1. The Republican platform stands expressly for elimination at railroad expense.

2. The Democratic leaders turned this down.

In a later letter we propose to discuss the equalization of tax assessments, revision of State statutes and the indeterminate franchise.

Governor's Reply.

"My Dear Mr. Pierce:

"I of course did not intend to read into the plank of your platform which concerns grade crossings any words it did not contain. I regret having made the mistake. I spoke from an imperfect recollection of the language and should have refreshed my memory.

"Very truly yours,
"WOODROW WILSON."

Following the Wilson rally in this city, Mr. Pierce made an effort to get in touch with the Governor regarding his attack upon the Republican grade crossing plank. Because of the latter being busily engaged in finishing up his stumping tour of the State Mr. Pierce found it impossible to get an opportunity to inform Governor Wilson of his mistake.

Yesterday a personal friend of Mr. Pierce took a copy of the letter published above to Governor Wilson at the latter's home in Princeton. The Governor saw that he had made a mistake in his address in this city last Thursday and immediately addressed the reply to Mr. Pierce regretting the fact.

LAST DAY TO REGISTER FOR GENERAL ELECTION

Today will be the last opportunity for registration for the November election, in cities, towns and townships having a population exceeding 5,000. It is said that not more than half of the Republican voters of Plainfield are registered, and unless unusual effort is put forth today, there will be a great falling off in the November vote.

Registration must be made by each voter in person. He must answer questions prescribed by the Geran act, and sign his name to the "Identification statements for registry day" book. Even with a competen and industrious registration board, this will require several minutes of time for each voter, and for this reason it is important that the unregistered should attend to the duty as early as possible. The polling places will be open until 9 o'clock tonight.

A list of the polling places was published yesterday.

BELLOWS CAPTAIN OF NETHERWOOD ELEVEN

The Netherwood Athletic Club's football eleven held its first practice yesterday on the Central street field. A number of players were out. The team held a meeting on the field and elected Stanley Bellows as captain; Edward Glenn as manager for the season. Manager Glenn is trying to arrange a game with the Stillman School eleven for Friday, to be played on Parker Field.

HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN'S SCHEDULE FOR SEASON

Dixon Phillips, manager of the Plainfield High School football team, has completed the schedule for the season. The games with Battin High and Holy Cross could not be played on account of rain and have been postponed indefinitely. The schedule is as follows:

October 12, Bound Brook High School at Plainfield; 18, Battin High at Elizabeth; 21, Holy Cross at Plainfield; 25, Westfield High at Plainfield; 28, Princeton High at Plainfield; November 2, Roselle High at Roselle; 7, P. H. S. Alumni at Plainfield; 11, New Brunswick High at Plainfield; 14, Wilson Military Academy at Finderne; 17, Somerville High at Somerville; 22, open; 25, Westfield High at Westfield; 30, open.

Clansmen Meet.

M'INTYRE CONCERT, ATTRACTION TONIGHT

Patrons of the McIntyre concerts the first of which will be given at the high school tonight, will have the pleasure of listening to three artists who are new to Plainfield. The 'cellist, Stanislas Bem, is a native of Poland, and has been in America for about one year, coming here from Brussells and Paris, where he has appeared in many prominent concerts and achieved a notable reputation as a fine artist. He will be heard in a brilliant Fantaisie by Servais.

The violinist, Mr. Grimson, while new to Plainfield, is a former member of the Trio, having played in concerts in New York and elsewhere in a former season. He is a very gifted violinist of the best schooling and will appear at some future concert as soloist.

Miss Lucy Marsh, who is the assisting artist on this occasion in an American singer trained by the foremost masters and possessing a soprano voice of rare beauty. She will be heard in two numbers, among which is the brilliant song, "The Swallow," by Dell' Aqua, the French composer, better known as Cecile Chaminade, her real name.

The program in full follows: Trio, opus 45, for piano, violin and 'cello, by Eduard Schuett in four movements. Three songs, Strauss' "Zueignung," Sydney Homer's "Dearest" and Ward Stevens' "The Nightengale;" 'cello solo, Fantaisie on theme by Schubert by Servais; soprano solo, "Autumn Flowers," by Popper, and "Serenade," by Drigo. Autos and carriages will use the side door to the school for entrance and exit.

Y.M.C.A. INTRODUCES MOTION PICTURE SHOW

Recognizing the vast possibilities for social uplift of the motion picture, when carefully supervised and adapted, the Y. M. C. A. will promote motion picture exhibitions in Y. M. C. A. hall every Saturday afternoon and evening, beginning next Saturday. The programs for these exhibitions will be planned with a view to supplementing in a most delightful way the work of the school, the home and the church. Pictures showing scientific discoveries, industrial processes, the most interesting scenery of our own and other lands, the customs, manners, environment of different peoples, pictures illustrating the masterpieces of literature and drama and pictures illustrative of every department of human life, agricultural business, industrial mining, military, naval, educational, religious, political, recreative, will be shown.

These exhibitions will supply a valuable adjunct to every instructive force at work in the life of both children and grown persons.

The lessons of the school, the message of the church and Sunday-school, the training of the home will all be enforced by them. This new undertaking has been made possible through the generous co-operation of Mrs. Pierre Mali, who has given to the association a new motion picture machine of the latest type, and of the Women's Auxiliary, who have paid for the erection of the fire booth in which the machine is housed. The association is also receiving the hearty co-operatfon of the educational department of the General Film Co.; of the New York Child Welfare Committee, of the editor of "Moving Picture News," and of the Plainfield Committee for the moral and religious training of the boys in the home.

In equipping Y. M. C. A. hall for these exhibitions the highest possible degree of comfort and safety for those who attend has been sought. Building Inspector T. O. Doane has approved of all arrangements.

Two exhibitions will be given Saturday afternoon, the first beginning at 2:30 o'clock, and two in the evening, the first beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The price of admission has been fixed at five cents for everyone.

Proctor's Clever Show.

Smith, Voelk & Cronin, a trio of original chaps in songs, burlesque and piano playing are the big hit at Proctor's this week. They are a riot. Edward Favor and Edith Sinclair & Co., in a sketch, "Regan's Luck," are delightful, the sketch being full of wit and pathos. They will be remembered by their wonderful work in "Madame Sherry," which played here last year. Joe Hardman is unusually good as a monologuist; Delphino & Delmora, in a German novelty musical act, will please young and old, while Elmore & Raymond, English singers and dancers, are clever.

Miss Caroline Olmstead, of Long Branch, is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Minton, of East Fifth street.

McINTYRE CONCERT

Gifted Artists Heard at First of His Annual Series of Musicales Here.

MISS LUCY MARSH SOPRANO.

Bonarios Grimson, Violinist, and Stanislas Bem, 'Cellist—Program Artistically Rendered.

An enthusiastic and keenly appreciative audience greeted the artists of the first McIntyre concert last evening at the High School auditorium. A delightful program was offered and most artistically rendered. The McIntyre Trio, now recognized as one of the best organizations of its kind in America, gave a finished and masterly interpretation of the Viennese composer's Eduard Schuetts' Trio opus 27.

Especially gratifying were the Scherzo and Andante movements, which showed the perfect ensemble and artistic insight of the performers. One great point of excellence in the trio is its well balanced ensemble which gives such a satisfaction to the listener not often vouchsafed in combinations of this character. Each artist seems imbued with the proper idea of restraining his own artistic personality to the good effect of the general performance. No higher praise can be given than this.

The artists comprising the trio, Joseph McIntyre, pianist; Bonarios Grimson, violinist, and Stanislas Bem, 'cellist, are among New York's finest artists and it is easy to understand the success the trio is meeting with throughout the country.

Mr. Bem was heard as soloist last evening in a Fantaisie for 'cello by Servais on a well known theme by Schubert, and established himself at once as one of the finest performers on this instrument ever heard in Plainfield. He has a wonderful technique and rare and beautiful tone. He was greeted by tumultuous applause and responded, after several recalls, by an encore, "Autumn," by Davidoff.

Miss Lucy Marsh, soprano, the assisting artist, carried away the audience completely with her delightful singing. She won her hearers from the opening number and was vociferously compelled to grant added numbers after each group. Her lovely voice was best heard to advantage in the "Swallow," by Dell' Aqua, the concluding number which gives an opportunity to show her perfect coloratura and delicacy of tone. Her response to this was a charming little song by Mrs. Bond called "I'm a Wearyin' For You."

The next concert of this series is on November 14. This was the complete program:

Schuett, opus 27, trio for piano, violin and 'cello, allegro maestoso, Scherzo, andante tranquillo, finale (allegro). Songs—Strauss, Zueignung; Homer, Dearest; Goring-Thomas, Les Baisers; Ward-Stevens, The Nightingale. 'Cello solo—Servais, Fantaisie on a Schubert theme. Songs—Spross, Yesterday and To-day; Dell' Aqua, The Swallow.

REPORTED AS DEAD; MISSIONARY LIVING

Mrs. Samuel M. Zwemer, wife of the famous missionary of the Reformed church in Arabia, who is so well known here among members of Trinity Reformed church, arrived in New York from the mission field on Saturday. She was greatly annoyed that her husband had died. This fact was published by mistake in a New York newspaper. It appears that it was Mr. Firman, the guardian of her two children, who died.

Dr. and Mrs. Zwemer returned to Arabia last spring after a furlough made necessary by Dr. Zwemer's health; they left their two older children in this country to be educated under the care of Mr. Firman, of Chicago. Mrs. Zwemer has returned with her two younger children to devote herself to the education of all four. She is now the guest of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Tymdall, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Dr. Zwemer is now in Bahrein, Arabia, in the best of health.

KENNEL CLUB 'GETS AFTER' A MAILING CO

The Plainfield Kennel Club is about to bring an action against a New York mailing concern for its alleged failure to send out, according to instructions, the entry blanks and premium lists for the third annual bench show. As a result of the alleged failure the show had to be postponed and the club was put to no end of inconvenience.

A. Clinton Wilmerding, an officer of the club, says that the entry blanks and premium lists were sent to the mailing concern, together with postage and when it was learned that they had not been received by those who they were addressed an investigation was started. It is alleged that the mailing concern, or someone in its employ took the postage and destroyed the blanks and premium lists. It is said that unless the mailing concern makes proper settlement, a suit will be started for damages.

BOYS' DELEGATION SELECT OFFICERS

Raymond Manley was elected president, and James McNamee, secretary, of the Plainfield delegation of young men from the boys' departmnt of the Y. M. C. A. that will attend the conference Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week at Trenton, where the relation of the older boy to the "Men and Religion Movement" will be considered. They were elected at a meeting of those who will attend at C. William Bingaman's home on West Fifth street, last night. Following the business meeting a social hour was spent.

Those present at the meeting and who will comprise the Plainfield delegation are Alvah Conant, C. William Bingeman, James McNamee, Harold Tomlinson, William Peacock, F. O. Dunning, Schuyler Line, Donald Ketcham, Joseph Sattels, Esty Foster, Harold McDowell, Raymond Manley. James J. McNamee will read a paper at the Saturday afternoon session on "Social Service," telling of the work that is carried on in the boys' club of the local association.

FALLS DOWN STAIRS: SUFFERS BLOOD POISONING.

Walter C. Lane, the North avenue butcher, is considerably crippled and suffering from a mild attack of blood poisoning as the result of a fall down a pair of stairs at his home on Leland avenue, Saturday night.

The accident happened in the dark and Mr. Lane missed his footing in descending the stairs. He fell almost the entire length, severely injuring his left leg, and the injury to his left hand was such that blood poisoning developed. Mr. Lane is able to attend to business, but suffers a great deal of pain.

Queen City to Celebrate.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., will at its meeting tonight observe its twentieth anniversary. There will be an informal program and a short history of Queen City will be read by one of the officers. Refreshments and cigars will also be a feature.

McCUTCHEN HEARD

Borough Democratic Mayoralty Nominee Declares He Will be His Own Boss.

TO BE "MAYOR IN FACT."

"I Propose to Conduct the Office On Absolutely Independent Lines," He Tells His Audience.

Delivering his maiden political speech at an open meeting of the North Plainfield Democratic Club in Debele Hall, last night, Samuel St. John McCutchen, the party candidate for mayor, expressed himself freely on the conduct of the office in the event of his succeeding the present incumbent. In this connection he declared that he and he alone, would hold the reins, notwithstanding sub-rosa assertions to the contrary.

S. St. John McCutchen.
Democratic Nominee for Mayor of North Plainfield.

"This is a matter that I do not like to talk about," said Mr. McCutchen, "but I wish it distinctly understood. If the people of North Plainfield see fit to elect me mayor, I don't propose to let any man tell me what I shall or shall not do. If I advocate any improvement or measure it will be because I think it is for the good of all and if I oppose any proposition it will be for the same reason. I propose to conduct the office on absolutely independent lines and be mayor in fact as well as in name."

At the beginning of his address, Mr. McCutchen said it was an absolutely new experience for him as never before had he made an out-and-out political speech. He first referred to the erasure of party lines in recent elections and emphasized the fact that the independent vote was the all-important factor. Former Governor Stokes acceded to the gubernatorial chair by a Republican majority of 42,000, yet last year the Democratic nominee received a majority of 60,000.

"It was the great independent vote that did it," the speaker continued, "and it illustrates the point in question. The people want the best men for the places and are casting their ballots for them, irrespective of party."

Referring to the borough, Mr. McCutchen said he did not recall its affairs having been mismanaged at any time and there was no need of any great reform. There were some things that were needed, he said, and a sewage system may head the list. He declared he would do his best to carry on the work of preliminary preparation in the hope of securing one and at all times keep the interests of the people in mind. He was accorded genuine applause as he concluded.

Mr. McCutchen was followed by the Democratic candidates for borough Council, Henry Nischwitz and Cormack McDonough, both of whom spoke briefly. They thanked the voters for honoring them at the primaries and stated that if elected they would discharge the duties of the office for the best interests of all. The closing address of the evening was made by Judge Delvan A. Holmes, a recent comer to the borough, whose remarks corroborated his initial statement that he had been a stump speaker years ago. He had been a Republican then, he said, but at the present time nobody knows the difference between a G. O. P. man and a Democrat. He still professed to be a Republican though, he continued, but as a resident of North Plainfield he believed Mr. McCutchen is the best man for mayor and he proposed to vote for him. Judge Holmes is a New York lawyer who has resided on Rockview avenue for the past eighteen months.

The meeting was called to order by W. J. Conroy, president of the club, who made the introductions.

M'CARTER INSPECTS P.S.C. PROPERTY HERE

Thomas N. McCarter, president of the P. S. C., and Harry P. Chandler, superintendent of the Central Division, were in Plainfield yesterday making the annual inspection of the corporation's property here, including the gas and electric light departments. While the officials declined to discuss in detail the result of their visit, they did in a general way speak words of praise for the excellent condition of the property here and were evidently much pleased with everything.

The officials did not state whether any improvements were contemplated in the city or vicinity. They remained here about an hour, during which time they had lunch at the Queen City Hotel.

P.H.S. TENNIS WINNERS RECEIVE THEIR MEDALS

The medals for the winners in boys' and girls' doubles and mixed doubles, and the cups for the championship in singles in the Plainfield High School tennis tournament, were presented at assembly this morning. The medals are bronze with the names of the winners engraved on the back.

The girls' singles championship was won by Miss Pauline Gates, who defeated Miss Clara Newman in the final round. She was presented with a silver cup. Philip VanDeventer won the finals in boys' singles by defeating Jack Zerega in a long match. He also received a silver cup.

Miss Esther Phillips and Miss Gertrude Butler both received medals as winners of the girls' doubles. The Misses Daisy Day and Marguerite Shotwell were the runners-up in the finals. Philip VanDeventer and Stanley Bellows received medals for the boys' doubles championship. Dixon Phillips and Warren Butler were their oponents in the deciding match. Medals were also presented to Miss Jessie Stewart and Jack Zerega, winners of the mixed doubles championship, who defeated Miss Helen Platt and Stanley Bellows in the final match.

CHURCH FAIR 'GAMBLING' ILLEGAL

Two presentments handed in by the Union county grand jury Monday afternoon dealt with the violations of the excise law and the practice of allowing "lotteries" at church fairs and euchre parties for charitable purposes. The jurors handed in eleven indictments, making thirty in all for the term, which is not yet completed.

The presentment regarding Sunday selling censured the chief of police of Elizabeth for not seeing that the excise laws were better enforced. It states that "the chief did not use good judgment in sending out well known detectives to catch Sunday violators, when much better results could have been obtained by using men for this purpose who were not known to the saloonkeepers. While some commendable work has been done toward enforcing the law, there has been carelessness on the part of the chief of police.

The board of excise had its attention called to a saloon on Elizabeth avenue formerly kept by William Kline, which is now being run by another man who had no transfer license. This place, the jury said it was informed, was of a disreputable character, and women frequently had been insulted while passing the place.

The excise board, the jurors declared, should at its next meeting take action on this matter, refuse the transfer and close the place, if upon investigation the charges made against it were proven.

The presentment condemning euchre parties for charitable purposes and also church fairs where drawings for prizes and "lotteries" were carried out, was as follows:

"While the motive is good, it is still a clear violation of the State law against gambling."

The persons against whom indictments have been found were arraigned to plead today.

Convention Choir Rehearsal.

PRAISE CANDIDATE

Rahway's Opinion of William H. Wright G. O. P. Nominee For Sheriff.

LAUDED BY A CLERGYMAN.

Rev. Dr. W. T. Stuchell Gives His Views of Fellow-Townsman—Rahway Daily Herald Pays Him a Tribute.

It is pretty well known what the people of Elizabeth think of their fellow-townsmen, J. Logan Fay, the saloonkeeper, who disposed of his business to become the Democratic nominee for the important office of sheriff of Union county. The published references to his candidacy have by no means been flattering to him or to the party that stands sponser for him. In marked contrast are the opinions being expressed in Rahway as to the Republican candidacy of William H. Wright, of that place, for the same office.

William H. Wright.
Republican Nominee for Sheriff.

Here is a sample of the many letters received during the last few days by Mr. Wright, this one being from Rev. Dr. William Torrence Stuchell, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Rahway:

"At this time I am sure it is not out of place for me to tell you that I am deeply interested in the campaign you are making for the shrievalty of our county. With our system of drawing the jurors upon whom so much depends for law and order, I feel that its unique and immediate connection with good government is not understood as it should be by the people at large.

"As I was in hopes in a former election that you might receive the nomination of your party for this office, so now, having received the nomination, I hope you will be elected. I felt then that you would bring to the office the efficiency demanded, and I feel more strongly now that having served as Deputy Sheriff for the past term, you will be able to bring a still higher grade of efficiency.

"From my experience as a member of the grand jury and from my observations as an interested citizen, I want to express my high regard for the service that has been given by the present incumbent of the office for which you are a candidate. I feel it has been honest and able, and I feel that the best interest of our county will be well served if his mantle may fall upon you.

"In our public life today the one thing that is demanded is efficiency, an efficiency that embraces honesty, ability and fearlessness.

"The fact that you are running on this ticket or that, is an incidental matter and in assuring you of my support, I do it with the idea of efficiency in mind, and without regard to party affiliation or predilection."

The Rahway Daily Record has this to say of its fellow townsman:

"For the first time one of Rahway's citizens is nominated for sheriff in this county. William H. Wright is known here and the citizens of Rahway have had many opportunities to become acquainted with his personality and his record. The dignified and capable administration of the office that he would undoubtedly give, would reflect credit on the city he comes from. He is a property owner, a man of clean life, free from any embarrassing political or business connections, and his work as under-sheriff has fitted him admirably for a succession to the higher rank in the same department. It would be a good thing for Rahway if such a man were sent from here to be the sheriff. We believe him better qualified on his personality and his record for the office than his

ONLY 65 PER CENT OF VOTE REGISTERED

Registration was not particularly heavy yesterday, the last day to get on the books, compared with the registration of other years. Election officers and party committeemen figured that 65 per cent. of the voters eligible to vote had taken the third degree prescribed by the Geran law in order to cast a ballot at the next general election.

Many of those who did register were notified that it was the last day and that registration in person was necessary. Most of those who went into the election booths to file their autobiography came without special notice, and many of them took a mental affidavit that it would be the last after the election officers had reeled off the red tape.

What per cent. of the registrations each party has enrolled is a question, and it will be until election day.

The returns must be filed today, and the clerk will then prepare copies for the police to verify.

HONOR FOR REFUSING TO SALUTE OUR FLAG

Miss Catherine Audsley, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice F. Audsley, formerly of this city, who gained almost world-wide notoriety by her refusal to salute the American flag and swear allegiance to the United States in a public school at Perth Amboy, has just been presented with a medal by the Over Seas Society of New York, and enrolled as a life member of the society. This action was in recognition of professed loyalty to the British Crown.

Miss Audsley's parents are British subjects, and acting upon the advice of her parents she refused to salute the American flag. Douglass Audsley, a small brother of Miss Audsley, has also been made a life member of the Over Seas Society for his similar action. The London, England, branch made the presentation, while the New York branch of Monroe Hall made the children members.

MISS KIRCH BECOMES MRS. WM. H. STRYKER

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends last night, Miss Flora May Kirch, of West Fourth street, was married to William H. Stryker, of West Front street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, at the home of the bride's parents in Garwood. While a resident here she has lived with her sister, Mrs. Peter Voorhees. The bridesmaids were Miss Adaline Louisa Stryker, a sister of the groom, and Miss Adaline Louisa Kirch, a sister of the bride. The bride was gowned in hand embroidered crep de chine trimmed with duchess lace and pearls. She wore a tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaids' gowns were of yellow silk trimmed with messaline and chiffon flowers. Their bouquets were of yellow chrysanthemums. James Stryker was best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The ceremony was performed under a floral arch in the parlor. Miss Viola Kirch played the Lohengrin march and Mendelssohn's recessional. An informal reception followed the ceremony and a wedding supper was served before the newly married couple departed on a tour of Pennsylvania. Upon their return they will reside in a furnished home on West Fourth street. The bride has been employed by William H. Olmstead, on Watchung avenue for some time. Mr. Stryker was formerly from South Branch, but has been living here for some time. Mrs. Charles A. Haring, of West Sixth street, is also a sister of the bride.

C. W. McCUTCHEN BUYS ANOTHER PRIZE-WINNER.

Charles W. McCutchen, who already has a number of prize-winning horses in his stable, added another one to the string yesterday, when he purchased "Henry of Navarre," from Lawrence Jones' stable at Louisville, Ky. The sale was held at Durland's Academy, New York. Mr. McCutchen paid $600 for the horse.

"Henry of Navarre" defeated "Vanity Fair," in the show ring last season and gives much promise for the future. Mr. McCutchen's valuable string includes "All Ablaze," "Piccadilly Sweetheart," "Piccaninny Sweetheart" and "Blaze Away," all of which have taken blue ribbons at various shows.

ARREST OLD CROOK

Gilbert Field, Who Has Served Terms For Thievery, a Prisoner Here.

REMANDED FOR A HEARING.

Chief Kiely Captures Offender—When Searched a Grip He Carries Contains Tools—Has Served Time.

Recognizing in Gilbert Field, alias Horrigan, alias Casey, an old time crook, whose particular thievery has been workmen's tools from houses in course of erection, Chief Kiely arrested him yesterday afternoon on West Seventh street. Field has served several long terms in States prisons and had just been released from Trenton prison, having been convicted for tool thefts here two years ago.

When arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning, Field was unable to tell a straight story about the files, chisels and other tools he was carrying in a grip when arrested and was remanded for further examination tomorrow. It is thought that the theft recently of a number of brass journals from Lehigh Valley cars at South Plainfield can be traced to him and one of the company's detectives will look the prisoner over during the day.

The neighborhood where Field was picked up has been a fertile field for sneak thieves during the summer and a close watch has been maintained on the streets in the vicinity for several weeks in the hope that the light fingered gentry would make a return visit. It was in this manner that Field was recognized and his past record aroused suspicion.

He is past middle age and was once married to a woman in Easton, where he successfully plied his trade for several years. In stature he is short and slight and his stooped shoulders do not betray a certain wiriness that in the past rendered him capable of cat-like action and made him a bad man in a tight place. His physical prowess combined with above the average intelligence in common crooks causes him to be a marked man in police circles.

LOCAL MUSIC LOVERS TO HEAR ALBERT SPAULDING.

In preparation for its concert on November 21, the executive committee of the Musical Club occupied a box at the concert of Albert Spaulding at Carnegie Hall on Saturday. Mr. Spaulding is one of the artists who will appear at the concert here and the committee wanted to hear some of his selections. The concert was well attended and brought high praise from the critics. The Evening Post speaks most warmly of "his purity of intonation and beauty of tone, as well as the expression of feeling."

The women of the committee were delighted with his playing and feel that his Plainfield audience will be equally pleased. He will render seven selections of which four will be repeated from the concert on Saturday.

Madame Morena, the soprano, who will appear here with Mr. Spaulding, will render fifteen songs, several old favorites among them. A Plainfield woman who was in Europe last summer said that she heard Mme. Morena at the opera in Munich and that she was received with the greatest enthusiasm by the audience and the highest praise by the critics in that great music center. Mme. Morena has a voice of exquisite sweetness and of great power, and her appearance here will be an event of great interest.

Owing to the demand for tickets it has been found necessary to provide for reserved seats and notice of the ararngements will be sent to subscribers. Those desiring tickets should write to Mrs. L. H. VanBuren, 115 East Sixth street.

Small Boy Run Over.

John Cody, ten years old, of East Front street, attempted to dart across Park avenue in front of a carriage, opposite the Queen City Hotel today. He miscalculated by about three seconds and the horse and rig passed over him. Patrolman McDonald found after he picked him up that he had escaped with a few bruises and the loss of some skin off his face. He was able to go home alone.

JR.O.U.A.M. CONVENE AT TRENTON TODAY

The thirty-second annual convention of the Junior Order United American Mechanics is being held in Association Hall, Trenton, today The session promises to be a lively one because of the three-cornered fight for the office of vice councilor. The members aspiring to the place are Theodore Buttonbaum, of Union Hill; William J. Wakefield, of Newark, and S. C. Clum, Elizabeth.

State Councilor William B. LaRue, of Bound Brook, opened the convention, and during the progress he will pass to the office of past State councilor, and the Rev. L. L. Hand, of New Egypt, will be elected as his successor.

"September 16, 1880, I was elected and installed secretary. At that time there were but twenty-eight small councils, with a total membership of 1,413. The total worth of these councils at that time was only $13,501.44 for the year ending June 30, 1880. UTILITY BOARD ORDER FOR U. S. EXPRESS CO.

Trenton, Oct. 25.—Deciding that the United States Express Company does not furnish safe, adequate and proper service at the Hopatcong Station of the Lackawanna Railroad in the delivery of express packages at the main station on the street level, the Board of Public Utility Commissioners has ordered the express company to post and maintain in a conspicuous place in the baggage-room at the Hopatcong Station a notice to the effect that on request by its patrons deliveries of express matter will be made at the station on the street level.

The railorad runs through a cut at Hopatcong and the station platform is some distance below the street level. The express company makes individual deliveries of express matter at the station on the street level when requests are made to its agent, but gives no notice to the public that deliveries will be so made. The company objected to posting a notice to this effect, in a communication to the board, but was not represented at the hearing given subsequently.

D. FOSTER UPDIKE'S New Amusement!

EXPERIENCE.

My experience in starting business, less than six months ago, against great odds with four dollars only. Rented the only place available on North Avenue, $75.00 per month, spent nearly $400.00 on the building and bought $500.00 worth of furniture on your good looks, making my expenses for help and all about $700.00 per month.

First Experience: Ordered six searches at one time for my clients, got sued jointly with a lady for ten dollars. Oh! I love one-half of our lawyers.

Party agreed to put up the money for Uptodate; some one howled after a small first payment was made, I went through with it all myself, only owe $75.00 on the deal and no notes out.

Another party agreed to put up about $18,000.00 to buy a tract for development near Plainfield; made first payment, some one howled, I made good, and no notes out.

Accummulated $1,100.00 in good notes, tried all the banks to have some of them cashed, all good, but refused; in the meantime had three suits threatening me and one went on without notice.

The notes would have paid all I owed twice over. I love our Banks; and I shall vote for Gov. Wilson; he said something about Wall Street, however, I made good without giving my note.

Then the heat and plumbing question came up, and I moved to 211 North Avenue. Don't have much cash, but this is what I do have to show for my work, (and only owe $300.00), 2 apartment houses at Paterson, equity from $8,000.00 to $10,000.00, the McLaughlin house on Somerset Street, the Rev. Francis house at Dunellen, about 200 lots in Plainfield, about 400 at Uptodate, and still have my notes.

Have sold property in the following places: Asbury Park, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Middlebush, Millstone, Cranford, Paterson, Riverside, Clinton, Pattenburg, High Bridge, Lebanon, Newark, Brooklyn, New York and, of course, Plainfield. My 'phone bill is more than all the rest of the agents put together.

MISSIONARY'S VIEWS ON CHINA'S UPRISING

Rev. Frank Eckerson, who has recently returned from eight year's labor on China's fields under the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church of America, is very much interested in the progress of the revolution in China. Mr. Eckerson says the Chinese fear the seizing of territory by Japan.

The young missionary, who is also chaplain of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity of America, is much attached to his field. He left there July 25th last for this country and is now at his home in Newark.

Mr. Eckerson's field is in the South Tubien province, his headquarters being at Amoy, which is the port of that province. The present field of the revolution is far removed from South Tukien, although Mr. Eckerson says the latter may be affected at any time according to his conception of the progress of the uprising.

"When I left China," Mr. Eckerson said, "the revolution was like a rumbling in the air. While there were those who expected an early uprising, few were of the opinion that the climax would be reached so soon. So much has happened in China since I came away that I do not feel qualified to speak with any authority on the present situation.

"While there is no doubt that this revolution is wonderfully organized, in the face of conditions in China, it is hard to believe that it can result in the overthrow of the government. The strength of the Chinese Government is enormous. This was never more strikingly evinced than in the putting down of the traffic in opium not long ago.

"Only one who has lived in China, among the natives, can realize what this means. The use of and trade in opium was one of the most deeply seated customs of the country. Yet the government with one blow practically put an end to it. This evidence of strength on the part of the ruling power renders it difficult to believe that it will not put down this revolution.

"I have found that the predominant fear among the natives is that Japan will step in, if the revolution proceeds far enough and seize a vast slice of Chinese territory. This fear overshadows the apprehensions regarding the conquest of Chinese territory by any other power."

Mr. Eckerson has a high admiration for the Chinese as a people. In their personal characteristics, he contrasts them in a favorable manner with the Japanese.

"A marked feature of the Chinese character," Mr. Eckerson said, "is fidelity. If a Chinaman is your friend he is your friend always. He is honest and his moral standard, compared with the Japanese, is high. This is particularly so in the matter of truthfulness and honesty. The Jap, on the other hand, is tricky, accomplishing his ends by subterfuge. The Chinese people, now that civilization is progressing in their country, have a wonderful future."

There will be a joint meeting of the senior and junior Endeavorers at the Congregational church, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to be addressed by Miss Mary Dunning, of Plainfield and Mexico.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

MOTHERS' CONGRESS OBJECTS ARE DEFINED

Progress in all departments was reported by the various committees at a meeting of the local general committee yesterday afternoon for the annual session of the New Jersey State Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations to be held here on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 10 and 11.

As the purposes of this organization are not clearly understood, Mrs. A. H. Reeve, the State president, has made this summary of its objects:

"To raise the standards of home life. To develop wiser, better trained parenthood.

"To give young people, ignorant of the proper care and training of children, opportunities to learn this, that they may better perform the duties of parenthood.

"To bring into closer relations the home and the school, that parent and teacher may co-operate intelligently in the education of the child.

"To surround the childhood of the whole world with that loving, wise care in the impressionable years of life, that will develop good citizens, instead of law-breakers and criminals.

"To use systematic, earnest effort to this end, through the formation of Mothers' clubs in every public school and elsewhere; the establishment of kindergartens and laws which will adequately care for neglected and dependent children, in the firm belief that united concerted work for little children will pay better than any other philanthropic work that can be done.

"To carry the mother-love and mother-thought into all that concerns or touches childhood in home, school, church, State or legislation.

"To interest men and women to co-operate in the work for purer, truer homes, in the belief that to accomplish the best results, men and women must work together.

"To secure such legislation as will insure that children of tender years may not be tried in ordinary courts, but that each town shall establish juvenile courts and special officers, whose business it shall be to look out for that care which will rescue, instead of confirm the child in evil ways.

"To work for such probationary care in individual homes rather than institutions.

"To rouse the whole community to a sense of its duty and responsibility to the blameless, dependent and neglected children, because there is no philanthropy which will so speedily reduce our taxes, reduce our prison expenses, reduce the expense of institutions for corrections and reform.

"The work of the Congress is civic work in its broadest and highest sense, and every man or woman, who is interested in the work of the Congress, is cordially invited to become a member and aid in the organized effort for a higher, nobler national life, which can only be attained through the individual homes.

These are the officers of the Congress: Honorary president, Mrs. Edwin C. Grice; president, Mrs. Augustus H. Reeve, Moorestown; first vice-president, Mrs. Alexander Marcy, Jr., Riverton; second vice-president, Mrs. Howard R. Sharp, Riverton; third vice-president, Mrs. Wellington Bechtel, Haddonfield; recording secretary, Mrs. Thos. J. Pancoast, Merchantville; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Linton Engle, Haddonfield; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur J. Collins, Moorestown; auditor, Mrs. Mary W. Bell, Haddonfield.

The Board of Managers consists of Mrs. I. Henry Welling, Trenton; Mrs. John G. Shreve, Atlantic City; Mrs. Sarah W. Leeds, Atlantic City; Mrs. Robert Hoe Dodd, Upper Montclair; Miss Anna M. Fell, Trenton; Miss Lillie A. Williams, Lambertville; Mrs. S. Dickson, Jersey City; Mrs. C. R. Stevenson, Haddonfield; Mrs. E. M. Thacher, Florence; Mrs. Wm. Downs, Orange; Mrs. Thos. J. Holmes, Trenton.

The Advisory Board is composed of Charles J. Baxter, Trenton; James L. Hayes, Newark; E. C. Stokes, Millville; Dr. James M. Green, Trenton; Edward Howard Griggs, Montclair; James S. Irwin, Jersey City; Hugh F. Fox, Plainfield; Ebenezer Mackey, Trenton; Philip Marvel, M. D., Atlantic City.

The chairmen of the chief committees are these: Legislation, Mrs. I. Henry Welling, Trenton; press, Mrs. C. R. Stevenson, Haddonfield; household economics, Mrs. E. M. Thatcher, Florence; educational, Miss Lillie A. Williams, Trenton; social purity, Mrs. Alex. Marcy, Jr., Riverton; literature, Miss Anna M. Fell, Trenton.

Plainfield, N. J., October 25, 1911.

It would be but scant praise to say that the management of the Plainfield Kennel Club's third annual bench show was creditable for it was more than that. If the judges and nationally known exhibitors in attendance are to be taken as authorities it was the best show ever given in this part of the country at least, excepting of course the Westminster Kennel Club's exhibition at Madison Square Garden. According to the New York Times' account even the latter in some respects has not surpassed the local show. To A. C. Wilmerding and his associates on the committee are due all the good that can be said of the undertaking and nothing but what is good can be said.

WOMAN'S EXCHANGE HOLD RECEPTION AND TEA.

Under the auspices of the Woman's Exchange a reception and tea is being held at the exchange on Park avenue, today, and throughout the morning and afternoon the place was thronged with members and friends of the exchange, who were greatly interested in the unusually fine display of fancy work and embroidery. There is a great display of woman's handiwork, and all the articles are suitable for holiday gifts.

The officers and other members of the exchange were present during the day to receive callers and explain the work of the exchange. There was a brisk demand for the articles on sale and a substantial sum was realized for the support of the exchange.

PET HORSE STOLEN WHILE FAMILY SLEEPS.

While it's owner, Henry B. Randolph, of New Market, and the other members of the family were asleep Monday night, a sorrel stallon was taken from the stable, hitched to a rubber tired runabout and from the farm along the path directly beneath the window of the owner's room. Mr. Randolph did not know of his loss until late next morning.

About noon on Tuesday the outfit was found tied and abandoned to a fence near Belle Meade. John Brokaw, a relative of Mr. Randolph, found the animal and was paid the $150 reward offered by the latter.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of Kingston, N. Y., who preached at the First Baptist church last Sunday and who will again occupy the pulpit next Sunday, has been the guest of his niece, Miss Lyndon, of the borough, who is a teacher in the borough schools.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Like the breath of real country air laden with the odor of new mown hay and suggesting blue skies and open stretches of country, "The Old Homestead" comes to the Plainfield theatre on Monday, October 30. Although this will be the twenty-sixth season of "The Old Homestead," it is still a potent magnet and bids fair to continue so for many years to come. The play itself is as familiar to the majority of theatregoers as a household word. For that reason no description of it is necessary and all that needs to be said is that there is no purer, sweeter or more wholesome play in existence, none which holds the mirror up to nature more truly, and none which has more real inspiration in its every line and feature, than "The Old Homestead." It is simple of plot, deals with homely interest and is replete with genuine humor.

An important theatrical event in the local season is the engagement of the new comedy, "Introduce Me," that will be seen at the Plainfield theatre on Tuesday, October 31. This comedy was written by Della Clarke, the well known young author actress, and she will be seen in the star role here with her original New York cast. Miss Clarke has evolved what is said to be a story of gripping interest from the theme of the wife who is a stronger mental vessel than her husband or yet the world estimated. She has drawn a novel story and has built a play that is said to abound in heart interest and to be rich in comedy.

STRIKERS TO BUY TWO AUTOMOBILES

Determined to continue their fight for the recognition of their union by the Trenton, Bristol and Philadelphia Street Railway Company to the end, and to combat the efforts of the company to maintain traffic on its lines by employing non-union carmen by every legitimate means in their power, the strikers have set about raising a fund with which to purchase two large automobiles.

By means of these machines the trolleymen propose to institute an automobile service between Morrisville and Torresdale, and they believe that their enterprise will be patronized by those who are at present riding in the trolley cars, as well as by the many who refuse to patronize them, because of the fact that they are being operated by strike-breakers.

The first step toward the raising of the automobile fund will be taken Saturday night, when a dance will be conducted by the strikers in No. 5 Hose House, Bristol. The hall is a spacious one, and it is expected that several hundred dollars will be realized from the affair. Many of the business men of Bristol have promised to contribute liberally to the fund, and it is not expected that any great difficulty will be experienced in raising the desired amount.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

DELIGHTFUL "BETSY" IS TRULY CAPTIVATING.

For a really delightful evening you should see "Betsy." She was at the Plainfield theatre last night and for a couple of hours she had her audience captivated for her charms are many. "Betsy" is Miss Grace LaRue, whose arts of comedy and whose voice were splendidly adapted to this superb comedy-operetta dependent as it is on plot with music as a major feature of the story. There were seventeen lyrical compositions and all of them were far above the usual standard. The stage settings were most elaborate, the gowns such as would make the Fair Lillian envious, but above all the voices of the members of the cast and the haunting and original melodies were what make the production a success it is and will prove to be.

Unlike Goldsmith, Alfred Deery, as an English fop, does not over-do his part. He and W. L. Romaine formed a combination that would keep the coldest audience supplied with laughter. Others in the cast who scored were Miss Juliette Lange, Miss Myrtle Jersey and Edwin Stanley. As a picture of real beauty and for genuine gracefulness, Miss Lucie Carter would get a first prize in any Broadway show.

LUCKY ESCAPE FOR TWO WHEN CARRIAGE UPSETS.

Summit, Oct. 25.—Thrown from the seat of a high trap in which they were riding, Allen G. Woodruff, of Short Hills, and Miss Annie Swain, of Russell place, East Summit, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured Monday night. Woodruff was driving down Morris avenue and when he attempted to turn into Glenside avenue the horse slipped on the oil road, upsetting the rig. Miss Swain struck on her head and was rendered unconscious. Her eyeglasses were shattered, pieces of the glass being imbedded in her face. Her face and head were also torn and cut by contact with the roadbed. Woodruff escaped with slight bruises.

Miss Swain was taken to her home by William I. Harrison.

Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, of West Front street, very unexpectedly became the owner of a horse on Saturday night, but he quickly disposed of it to the owner, Charles Beresford, of New Market. Dr. Lufburrow held ticket No. 17 in a contest which was started by Mr. Beresford, paying seventeen cents for it. Saturday night it was learned that the physician was entitled to the animal. Having no use for it he immediately sold the horse to the former owner.

OFFICIAL MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS.

Members present—Director Cady and Freeholders Acken, Bourdon, Crane, Darby, Fay, Gruener, Hall, Hennessy, Jones, Krouse, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Randolph, Swain, Teller and Wilbur.

Absent—Freeholders Doane and Smith.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur, the reading of the minutes of meeting of September 7, 1911, were dispensed with and they were approved as per printed copies on members' desks.

Communications.

Hon. Peter H. Meisel, Chosen Freeholder of the Township of Springfield, N. J.:

Dear Sir—At a meeting of the legal voters of the township, held in the assembly room of the public school on August 2, for the purpose of discussing matters pertaining to the good and welfare of the citizens, the question was raised as to the advisability and feasibility of eliminating the curve which now exists in the county road known as Westfield avenue, such elimination to be effected by abandoning the present road between Morris avenue and the point of curve and building a new road through to Morris avenue in direct line with the road beyond the point of curve.

As evidence of the necessity for this change it was cited that the road referred to, from Morris avenue to the curve, was so narrow as to be entirely inadequate to accommodate the automobile and team traffic that passed over it. It was also pointed out that the Springfield Public School opened onto this thoroughfare and there was constant danger owing to the density of traffic, of accidents resulting in serious injury to the children in passing over the road on their way to and from the school.

With regard to the dangerous condition of the curve, two specific cases of accidents, resulting in death, were cited, and many other accidents of a less serious character were mention as occurring at this point.

The result of the discussion was to appoint the undersigned as a committee to express to you the desire of your constituents that you place the matter of improving the conditions by changing the course of the road as mentioned above, before the Board of Chosen Freeholders for the County of Union, at their next regular meeting, requesting them to consider the matter of improving the road by effecting the changes suggested.

The committee waited on Mr. William Flemer, through whose property the road would be built, and ascertained from him that he would be quite willing to donate the property necessary for a roadway, provided he might be assured by the County Board of Assessors that such action on his part would not be used as a pretext for increasing the assessed valuation of his property, on the grounds of additional street frontage afforded. He stated that while the road would give him a frontage on Westfield avenue, it would pass through a portion of his property that would not be available for building purposes, and furthermore he had no idea of using the land for purposes other than that for which it is now utilized. We have no doubt that a suggestion made by your board to the Board of Assessors as to the inexpediency of any change in valuation of the property above referred to, on account of the opening of this road, will be kindly received and carefully considered.

With the above crude outline of the desires of your constituents, and your own full knowledge of the necessity for this improvement, we trust you will place the matter before your Honorable Board, and we sincerely hope it may receive favorable consideration.

We attach a rough sketch, showing the relative positions of the present road and the proposed relocation of the same.

Yours very respectfully,
R. B. FERGUSON,
JAMES FISTER,
RICHARD TRIVETT,
Committee.

September 7, 1911.

To the Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Bridge at Morse's Millsroad, Linden, N. J., would report that the site has been visited and examined.

The present bridge is about eighteen years old, and may still be suitable for some other road, as it is in good condition.

The location about this bridge has developed into a manufacturing district, and there is occasion for very heavy loads passing over the bridge. Because of the fact that the bridge is not of sufficient strength to take these heavy loads, the manufacturers have had to shore it up underneath with heavy timbers, and this shoring has been maintained by the factories for some three years.

Your committee is of the opinion that it is the duty of this board to maintain this bridge and to provide suitable passage for the traffic.

The committee would therefore recommend that a new steel superstructure be authorized for this bridge, of a heavy type of construction, at a cost not to exceed the sum of $4,000.

The bridge is about 50 feet span by 18 feet wide. The present abutments are in good order.

Respectfully submitted,
HENRY KROUSE,
THOS. J. PIERSON,
AARON D. CRANE.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener, this report was received and ordered placed on file and the recommendations contained therein were on roll call adopted unanimously.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Ty Cobb, the greatest baseball player the world has ever seen and perhaps ever will see, has become an actor and is now portraying one of the principal roles in George Ade's great satire of college life "The College Widow," the charming comedy which will be at the Plainfield theatre on Wednesday night, November 1. Cobb is little short of a marvel and a brief study of his wonderful life makes him all the more marvelous.

When the Georgia boy, as he is a Georgian, having been born in Royston in 1886, joined the Detroit Tigers he was not yet 21 years old and despite his youth and inexperience in major league baseball he was the champion hitter of the league before the end of his first season and now before he is 25 years old he is the champion of every line of the great national game except pitching and there are suspicions that perhaps he may some day attempt that.

The one great fact, which predominates in Cobb's career is the wonderful amount of ambition he possesses and this, to many minds, has been the secret of his success. He was ambitious to gain every possible record in baseball and succeeded. This fall he developed an ambition to become an actor but determined if he was to become one he would be a good one and as a result close study and application have made him one of the dramatic finds of the present season.

AGED MOTHER TO CROSS SEA.

Rahway, Oct. 25.—A desire to visit her son, whom she has not seen for forty years, has induced the mother of Peter von Twistern to cross the Atlantic in spite of her advanced age, eighty-four years. Mr. von Twistern received a letter from his mother Monday stating that she intended to sail for this country from Bremen.

The son left the Fatherland two score years ago. The visit of the mother will be her first to this country.

BURNING DAYLIGHT

By JACK LONDON

SO it was that Daylight became a successful financier. He did not go in for swindling the workers. Not only did he not have the heart for it, but it did not strike him as a sporting proposition. The workers were so easy, so stupid. It was more like slaughtering fat, hand-reared pheasants on the English preserves he had read about. The sport, to him, was in waylaying the successful robbers and taking their spoils from them. The grim Yukon life had failed to make Daylight hard. It required civilization to produce this result. In the fierce, savage game he now played, his habitual geniality imperceptibly slipped away from him, as did his lazy Western drawl.

He still had recrudescences of geniality, but they were largely periodical and forced, and they were usually due to the cocktails he took prior to mealtime. In the North he had drunk deeply and at irregular intervals; but now his drinking became systematic and disciplined. It was an unconscious development, but it was based upon physical and mental conditions. The cocktails served as an inhibition. Without reasoning or thinking about it, the strain of the office, which was essentially due to the daring and audacity of his ventures, required check or cessation; and he found, through the weeks and months, that the cocktails supplied this very thing. They constituted a stone wall. He never drank during the morning, nor in office hours; but the instant he left the office he proceeded to rear this wall of alcoholic inhibition athwart his consciousness. The office became immediately a closed affair. It ceased to exist. In the afternoon, after lunch, it lived again for one or two hours, when, leaving it, he rebuilt the wall of inhibition. Of course, there were exceptions to this; and, such was the rigor of his discipline, that if he had a dinner or a conference before him in which, in a business way, he encountered enemies or allies and planned or prosecuted campaigns, he abstained from drinking. But the instant the business was settled, his everlasting call went out for a Martini, and for a double-Martini at that, in a long glass so as not to excite comment.

Into Daylight's life came Dede Mason. She came rather imperceptibly. He had accepted her impersonally along with the office furnishing, the office boy, Morrison, the chief, confidential, and only clerk, and all the rest of the accessories of a superman's gambling place of business. Had he been asked any time during the first months she was in his employ, he would have been unable to tell the color of her eyes. From the fact that she was a demi-blonde, there resided dimly in his subconsciousness a conception that she was a brunette. Likewise he had an idea that she was not thin, while there was an absence in his mind of any idea that she was fat. And how she dressed, he had no idea at all. He had no trained eye in such matters, nor was he interested. He took it for granted, in the lack of any impression to the contrary, that she was dressed somehow. He knew her as "Miss Mason," and that was all, though he was aware that as a stenographer she was quick and accurate. He watched her leaving one afternoon, and was aware for the first time that she was well-formed, and that her manner of dress was satisfying. He knew none of the details of woman's dress, and he saw none of the details of her neat shirt waist and well-cut tailor suit. He saw only the effect in a general, sketchy way. She looked right. This was in the absence of anything wrong or out of the way.

"She's a trim little good-looker," was his verdict, when the outer office door closed on her.

The next morning, dictating, he concluded that he liked the way she did her hair, though for the life of him he could have given no description of it. The impression was pleasing, that was all. She sat between him and the window, and he noted that her hair was light brown, with hints of golden bronze. A pale sun, shining in, touched the golden bronze into smouldering fires that were very pleasing. He discovered that in the intervals, when she had nothing to do, she read books and magazines, or worked on some sort of feminine fancy work. Passing her desk, once, he picked up a volume of Kipling's poems and glanced bewildered through the pages.

"You like reading, Miss Mason?" he said, laying the book down.

"Oh, yes," was the answer; "very much."

Another time it was a book of Wells', "The Wheels of Chance."

"What's it all about?" Daylight asked.

"Oh, it's just a novel, a love-story."

She stopped, but he still stood waiting, and she felt it incumbent to go on.

"It's about a little Cockney draper's assistant, who takes a vacation on his bicycle, and falls in with a young girl very much above him. Her mother is a popular writer and all that. And the situation is very curious, and sad, too, and tragic. Would you care to read it?"

"Does he get her?" Daylight demanded.

"No; that's the point of it. He wasn't—"

"And he doesn't get her, and you've read all them pages, hundreds of them, to find that out?" Daylight muttered in amazement.

Miss Mason was nettled as well as amused.

"But you read the mining and financial news by the hour," she retorted.

"But I sure get something out of that. It's business, and it's different. I get money out of it. What do you get out of books?"

"Points of view, new ideas, life."

"Not worth a cent cash."

"But life's worth more than cash," she argued.

"Oh, well," he said, with easy masculine tolerance, "so long as you enjoy it. That's what counts, I suppose; and there's no accounting for taste."

Despite his own superior point of view, he had an idea that she knew a lot, and he experienced a fleeting feeling like that of a barbarian face to face with the evidence of some tremendous culture. To Daylight culture was a worthless thing, and yet somehow, he was vaguely troubled by a sense that there was more in culture than he imagined.

Again, on her desk, in passing, he noticed a book with which he was familiar. This time he did not stop, for he had recognized the cover. It was a magazine correspondent's book on the Klondike, and he knew that he and his photograph figured in it, and he knew, also, of a certain sensational chapter concerned with a woman's suicide, and with one "To Much Daylight." After that he did not talk with her again about books. He imagined what erroneous conclusions she had drawn from that particular chapter, and it stung him the more in that they were undeserved. He pumped Morrison, the clerk, who had first to vent his personal grievance against Miss Mason before he could tell what little he knew of her.

"She comes from Siskiyou County. She's very nice to work with in the office, of course, but she's rather stuck on herself—exclusive, you know."

"How do you make that out?" Daylight queried.

The Square Pot Boiler and Its Square Fire Pot

This boiler—by reason of its square fire pot—shown below—furnishes heat at absolutely the very lowest cost. Satisfactory heat, too—easily controllable—moderate or intense, as you like, from cellar to farthest radiator.

The square fire pot, originated and patented by us, gives perfect, hence economical, combustion. Being square cornered it clears of ashes instantly—no clogging.

The effective radiating surface is from 15% to 25% greater than in other pots of same diameter. No clinkers—a cutting bar smashes them.

Your dealer will tell you of many other vital features. Ask him about Square Pot Boilers and Furnaces and Newport Ranges.

CHAMPION OFFICEHOLDER OF NEW JERSEY QUITS.

Netcong, Oct. 25.—At one swoop, Alvin C. Smith, the "champion officeholder of New Jersey," was shorn of all his official wool Monday night, when the Borough Council accepted his resignation. Smith was chief of police, street commissioner, overseer-of-the-poor, janitor of the borough hall, water superintendent and collecter of water rents. He held so many offices, it was said, that he could not give them all the proper attention, and when complaints began pouring in to the authorities, Smith was asked for an explanation. He was frank enough to say that the official load was too much of a burden. His resignation followed.

I. Glass, who is employed as a policeman in Dover, was mentioned as a police officer for the borough, but no definite action was taken, the Mayor sating that he would take this appointment under consideration and receive applications up to the next meeting.

CLARK OR WILSON SURE TO WIN, SAYS VARDAMAN.

Greensboro, N. C., Oct. 25.—Senator-elect James K. Vardaman, of Mississippi, in an interview yesterday declared that Democracy's choice in 1912 would be Clark or Wilson and that with either at the helm victory would be easy.

Though an admirer of Senator La Follette, the Mississippian thinks there is no question but that President Taft will again be the nominee of the Republican party.

Deaf Mute Swore.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 25.—Pleading guilty to swearing at his wife in the sign language, August Carrado, a deaf mute, was fined $10 Monday in police court. He was charged with using "loud and profane" language, but when haled into court it was learned he could not hear or speak. The word "loud" was stricken from the information and he pleaded guilty in writing to the charge of using "profane language" toward his wife, who is also a mute. When he wrote the word "guilty" he wept.

opponent, J. Logan Fay, of Elizabeth. It would be fair for Rahwayians to vote for him regardless of partisan feelings, for the regular Democratic voters of this city should be in a position to compare him, his record and his connections with those of his opponent and know which would make the better sheriff.

"At any rate this is a poor time for apathy. With the problems this city has ahead, the voters should see that the best men are chosen from the local tickets to carry on the work that is to be done. Let us have a little more discussion at election time and a little less afterward."

David Bodine acted as secretary. Mr. Conroy announced at the close that another meeting would be held next Wednesday night at which the county candidates would be present and Judge Holmes would be accorded time for a speech on the independent vote. The meeting last night was attended by a fair sized crowd.

WILSON'S ENGAGEMENTS IN JERSEY NEXT WEEK.

Trenton, Oct. 25.—Governor Wilson's itinerary for the balance of the New Jersey campaign was announced Monday.

On Wednesday, November 1, he will speak at 2 o'clock p. m. in Glassboro. This address will be particularly in the interest of the candidacy of former Congressman Thomas M. Ferrell, who is seeking election to Congress again in the First district to succeed the late Henry C. Loudenslager, Republican. Governor Wilson will also make a plea on this occasion for the election of George B. Hurff, of Sewell, the Gloucester county candidate for State Senator.

The evening of November 1, the Governor will speak in Atlantic City. November 2 he will speak in Vineland in the afternoon and at Bridgeton in the evening. November 3 he will devote to Hudson county and Saturday, Nov. 4, he will speak in Burlington county. This will complete the campaign which will have taken him into every county in the State but Essex, where he refused to speak because the voters nominated a ticket opposed to his politics.

One of the incidents of the campaign has been the persistency of the Governor in keeping his engagements. For instance, in his trip through Somerset county it required eight automobiles to get him to all his speaking points. Tire punctures, stalled engines and other auto troubles interfered, but the Governor and his party got into other machines and so met every engagement.

REV. DR. ANDERSON SPEAKS AT METHODIST REVIVAL.

Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, occupied the pulpit at the Monroe Avenue church, last night, preaching a helpful sermon to a large congregation attending the revival service. This evening Rev. James MacMurray, former pastor at the Monroe Avenue church, will preach and tomorrow night the pulpit will be occupied by Dr. H. K. Carroll, of Westervelt avenue, who has just returned from the International Religious Conference held at Toronto. Chester Cox will also speak. Friday evening Rev. George Mooney, of Madison, another former pastor, will conduct the service.

GRADE CROSSINGS IN RAHWAY TO GO

Mayor William Howard, of Rahway, yesterday signed the contract with the Pennsylvania Railroad completing the compact for the elevation of its tracks through Rahway. This same contract, or ordinance, was vetoed by the Mayor and passed over the veto of the Common Council. Since its approval by the railroad it has been held up by the Mayor until last night. In the contract the railroad assumes all damages and pays the whole cost of elevation, amounting to nearly two million dollars.

The contract is generally approved by citizens, who are anxious for work to be commenced, the grade crossing through Rahway being considered among the most dangerous on the Pennsylvania road. The contract provides that work must be commenced within three months after filing of the contract with the City Clerk and must be completed within two and one-half years.

Football Club Shows Up Well.

The Netherwood Athletic Club held its second football practice yesterday afternoon on the Central street field. Captain Stanley Bellows divided the team, and put the backs and ends into rushing practice so as to give the line-men practice in tackling. The backs were very fast and good tackling was shown by both sides. The next practice will be held tomorrow at 3 o'clock on the same field. Those wishing to arrange games should communicate with Edward Glenn at the high school.

Rahway's Temporary Chief.

Rahway, Oct. 25.—Mayor William Howard has placed Detective-Sergeant George Conger in charge of the police force until the appointment of a chief to suceed the late George Wright.

Rev. Valdimir Pyndykowkski, pastor of the Ruthenian Presbyterian church, Newark, will speak at the Crescent Avenue church, tonight telling of the work at his church.

PROSECUTOR'S ACTION AWAITS MINE INQUEST.

Morristown, Oct. 25.—Before taking any official action in the matter of the Upper Hibernia mine disaster, Prosecutor Charles A. Rathbun will await the result of the coroner's inquest. As told, the disaster occurred in the mine of the Wharton Steel Company Thursday night, when a dozen miners were drowned as the result of water breaking through into the new shaft from abandoned, adjoining mains.

The inquest will be delayed until at least one body is found. When possible it will be decided whether or not the disaster was a preventable one.

Alexander Grau-Wandmeyer, of the Austro-Hungarian Consul-General's office in New York, visited the scene yesterday to safeguard the interests of the widows and orphans left as a result of the disaster.

MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS WARM TOWARD WILSON.

Trenton, Oct. 25.—Thomas J. Anketell, of Detroit, treasurer of the Woodrow Wilson Association of Michigan, was a visitor at the State House, Monday, in company with John J. Gifford, of Newark. Mr. Anketell spent an hour in conference with Governor Wilson, and told the latter a good deal about politics in the Wolverine State. Mr. Anketell obtained a promise from the Governor to go to Detroit some time in January as the guest of the club which bears his name.

After leaving the Governor Mr. Anketell said that the former was undoubtedly the choice of the great majority of Michigan Democrats for the Presidential nomination. "If Wilson is nominated for President he will carry the State of Michigan," he said.

7TH DAY BAPTIST C. E. GIVES ENTERTAINMENT.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held a successful social, entertainment and sale in the church parlors last night. The affair was largely attended by the members and their friends. Miss Ethel Titsworth was the general chairman, and those in charge of the candy table were Miss Evalois St. John and the Misses Maudella and Helen Ford. Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis and Miss Eva Rogers were in charge of the refreshments.

During the first part of the evening the audience was entertained with selections on a self-playing piano, after which H. Warren Rankin gave an interesting demonstration of sleight-of-hand work, mystifying everyone. Following the entertainment there was the sale and later refreshments were served.

William Suydam.

William Suydam, aged 48 years, of Glen Gardner, who has been at Muhlenberg Hospital since October 3 under treatment for a cancerous growth, died last night. He leaves one brother, who resides at Bound Brook, and is employed by the New Jersey Central.

Jailed For Disorderly Conduct.

THOMAS F. MURPHY MARRIED ON AUG. 30

Announcement was made today of the wedding of Miss Genevive F. Lacey, of Madison, and Thomas N. Murphy, formerly of Summit, and now of this city, which took place at St. Mary's church August 30. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Daniel F. Hogan, the groom's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lauritzen, of West Front street, acting as matron-of-honor and best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will start housekeeping at 1500 West Front street next week. He is at present employed as a clerk in one of the city's markets and has formed a large acquaintance with patrons since taking the position.

While the annoucement gives the name of the bride as Miss Genevive F. Lacey, her Christian name is Miss Genevieve F. McGovern. The reason for the difference is because when she was an infant her parents died and she was taken in charge by her uncle whose name is Lacey. Miss McGovern was known at all her friends as Miss Lacey, having taken her uncle's name at the time of her adoption.

PERCY HAND MARRIES MISS LAVINIA CANFIELD

Miss Lavina Canfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Allen Canfield, of 51 North Brighton avenue, East Orange, and Percy Hand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hand, formerly of this city, but now of Orange, were married at the Washington Street Baptist church, Orange, last night, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. William M. Lawrence, pastor of the North Orange Baptist church, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. John C. Stoddard, pastor of the church.

The bride had as her attendants her sister, Miss Electa Canfield, Miss Cecile Luth, of Orange, and Miss Viola Levers, of Philadelphia. Russell Pearce, of West Orange, was the best man and the ushers were William Wilberasishke and George Ross, both of Orange.

The bride was gowned in white satin, embroidered and trimmed with princess lace. Her tulle veil was caught up with sprays of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Miss Canfield wore a gown of yellow chiffon over white silk and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. Miss Luth and Miss Levers were gowned alike in lavender chiffon cloth over white silk and they carried lavender chrysanthemums.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, which was largely attended. Upon their return from a honeymoon the couple will reside in East Orange. Dr. Lawrence, who performed the ceremony, has officiated at the weddings of two sisters of the bridegroom within a year.

Mr. Hand resided in this city for several years, where he has many friends. He has been prominent in athletics, especially basketball and baseball, having been a leading member of the Orange Y. M. C. A. He holds an excellent position in New York with a wholesale house.

An entertainment by the "Willing Workers" under the management of Mrs. F. D. Schuyler, will be given at the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, and a delightful time is promised all who attend. The program includes recitations and vocal and instrumental selections by the elementary department, assisted by talent from other Sunday schools of Plainfield. As an additional attraction, S. Mr. Sonoda will appear in native costume. There will also be several banjo solos by J. A. Farland, whose high class playing is well known to the musical people of Plainfield, and whose reputation as a banjoist renders Mr. Farland an attractive feature of any program.

A silver offering will be taken during the evening for the benefit of the piano fund of the elementary department.

LODGE CELEBRATE

Queen City, I. O. O. Fellows Observes its Twentieth Anniversary Appropriately.

HISTORICAL SKETCH WAS READ.

Guillermo Thorn's Paper Instructive—Speeches By Prominent Members of the Lodge and a Supper Other Features.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, Independent Order Odd Fellows, celebrated its twentieth anniversary in its rooms in the Babcock building, last night. There was a large attendance of old and new members present when the roll was called. Seventy-three members answered the roll, and eleven members sent their regrets in not being able to attend.

After the third degree was worked on one candidate and the business was disposed of there were short speeches by Guillermo Thorn, S. H. Schleif, Alexander Muir, C. H. Rugg, Charles W. DeGraw, R. J. Neal, Fred Rose, A. Williamson, Peter Doeringer, J. B. Higgins, Phil Bock, Geo. Ludgate, Joseph Gray, A. J. Ford, Herman Betzhold, John Kerr. There was also selections by the Queen City Quartet, Messrs. Wilson, Page, Cubberly and Metler, and songs by Messrs. Pierson, Gray, William Harper, Sutton, H. B. Dunham and Robert Wilson. A feature of the evening was the historical sketch of Queen City Lodge read by Guillermo Thorn, a charter member. He was given an ovation and the report was applauded for several minutes. The sketch follows:

"On the 26th of October, 1891, just twenty years ago tomorrow night, Queen City Lodge was instituted. Six Odd Fellows who had withdrawn from other lodges in order to form a neucleus for the new lodge and 15 of the 64 persons who had signed a petition for its institution were present together with many visiting Odd Fellows.

"Grand Master Howard Sutphen issued the dispensation and instituted the lodge under the name of Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., of Plainfield, under the jurisdiction of the State of New Jersey. The work was done by the degree staff of Elizabethport Lodge, No. 116, of Elizabethport. The initiation and three degrees were worked on thirty-five members, who with the six Odd Fellows already mentioned made a list of 41 charter members. Five of the six Odd Fellows were elected as officers as follows:

"Noble grand, David L. Abbott; vice-grand, Calvin H. Rugg; recording secretary, Lewis R. Blackford; permanent secretary, W. C. Chamberlain; treasurer, James C. Field. The remaining Odd Fellow of the six was Dr. L. S. Pocock.

"It may be of interest to many to learn the names of the thirty-five who were made Odd Fellows on that evening, thus forming the charter list. I will give them in the rotation on the minutes of that date: Edward E. Wolverton, Lewis DeCamp, Isaac N. Wyckoff, D. L. Gulick, C. Heath Clark, David F. Blackford, Frank Boyle, Joseph E. Mosher, W. H. Rogers, R. A. Yorks, Edward Wolf, John Neagle, Jacob M. Higgins, N. H. Hoffman, Aaron M. Higgins, J. P Allis, William F. Bartlett, Stephen VanHorn, William J. Dodds, John Johnston, John H. Butler, R. W. Barnes, Guillermo Thorn, Enos W. Titsworth, Isaac E. Lance, James Bolmer, Charles W. DeGraw, James Cozens, Thaddeus C. Smith, Charles F. Meyer, Charles H. Randolph, Fred Westphal, Lewis B. Mulford, W. A. Westphal, Garret T. Dunham. The first three trustees were Joseph E. Mosher, W. H. Rogers and Garret T. Dunham. The appointed officers were as follows:

"On that night members were present from Memorial Lodge, 165, of Elizabeth; Hanso Lodge, No. 145, of Elizabeth; Elizabethport Lodge, No. 116, Somerset Lodge, No. 43, of Somerville; White House Lodge, No. 207; Home Lodge, No. 211, of Trenton; Westfield Lodge, No. 169; Flemington Lodge, No. 94; Painfield Lodge, No. 44.

"Of the 41 charter members, eight have died, three have withdrawn, sixteen have been suspended, one has been expelled and we have on the roll thirteen in good standing. Someone has said that thirteen is an unlucky number, but these thirteen are certainly in good luck. Personally, I regret the large number suspended

ALLEGED HOLD-UP MAN TELLS OF HIS ESCAPADE

After an absence of two years, William Morris, of East Fifth street, the young man whose escapade on a Chicago and Northwestern train July 17 caused stories of an attempted train robbery, has returned home. He has not fully recovered from the effects of the brakeman's bullet and has to go about on crutches. In telling his story of the alleged attempt at holding up the train he said: "I was beating my way on top of a sleeper. The night was very cold and I stayed on top as long as I could hoping that the train would make a stop so that I could get down. It seemed a very long time and loosing hope of alighting in this way I tried to get inside the car through on open window in the washroom, lowering myself feet first over the side of the swaying car. As my feet and legs went in through the window, the brakeman saw them and fired one shot at me, the bullet shattering the bone of my left leg.

"When the train was stopped at Belle Plain, Iowa, I was taken off and left in the freight house. The Overseer of the Poor of that town was notified and had me removed to a hospital at Cedar Rapids. While I was in the hospital recovering from the effects of the injury, which became serious owing to the delay in securing medical attention, an investigation showed that there was nothing criminal in my behalf in the experience and when able to do so I was allowed to come home."

It will be some time yet before Mr. Morris will be able to dispense with crutches as the bullet shattered the bone and it may be that he will have to submit to another operation before a permanent cure is effected.

POLICE ASSOCIATION OFFERS EXPLANATION

The following letter received by The Daily Press today, carries an explanation from the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, referring to an article in a local paper in its issue of Tuesday:

Editor, The Daily Press:

We wish to take exception to an interview given by Police Chief Kiely and published in another paper in which he urges that such residents as make private gifts to patrolman when they reopen their houses on returning from summer vacations in the future give such money to the police pension fund. We do not see any reason why such gifts intended to be personal in nature should be sent to one man to be placed by him in any particular fund. We also beg to take exception to the assertion that "no section of the city is under the protection of any particular policeman for longer than one month at a time."

The funeral will be held from her late residence Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church, will officiate. Burial will be made in the Methodist cemetery. Surviving are two daughters and a son, with whom deceased made her home.

TO SHOW POULTRY

Many Prizes Offered For the Union County Association's Exhibition Next Month.

W. J. STANTON TO BE JUDGE.

Entries to Be Received Until Nov. 1—Only Birds Raised By Residents of the County to Be Shown.

Arrangements have been completed for the poultry show to be held November 9, 10 and 11, and prospects are most excellent for a successful exhibition, as the interest taken by the poultry raisers in all sections of the county has been unexpectedly great, applications for entry blanks coming in by every mail. It seems to have encouraged many novices to exhibit their birds by making the rule that no birds would be accepted for competition excepting those raised by residents of Union county, so that many who otherwise would have been afraid to exhibit, for fear of being beaten by some of the very large breeders, have decided to enter their birds, feeling that as it is just among their neighbors, it will be more of a friendly rivalry.

This feeling has also been encouraged by the fact that instead of offering prize money, the association is having very handsome prize medals made up especially for the ocasion. These are similar to the medals awarded at all athletic events, first prize being a gold medal, suspended by a blue ribbon from a bar; second, silver on a red ribbon, and third, bronze and yellow ribbon. The medal is engraved with the crest of Union county, with "Union County Poultry Association" around the edge. These medals will be awarded for the first, second and third best cock, hen, cockerel, pullet and pen, of each variety of poultry exhibited, and will make very valuable and ornamental trophies for those who are fortunate enough to win. Similar prizes are also offered on turkeys, geese, pheasants, pigeons, rabbits and guinea pigs. In addition to these prizes, a large number of silver cups and valuable special prizes are offered by various members of the association and trades people, for competition by members of the association.

As the time is growing short before the entries close, all who wish to exhibit their birds may write promptly to F. Warren Sumner, 456 Rahway avenue, Elizabeth, for entry blanks, as no application will be received after October 31, or, attend the next regular meeting of the association to be held in the Union county court house, Broad street, Elizabeth, at 8:00 p. m., on Monday, October 30, at which time the rules and regulations will be fully explained and any questions answered to anyone wishing information about the exhibition.

In order to insure entire satisfaction in the placing of the awards, W. J. Stanton, of New York, one of the oldest, most competent and best known judges in this country, has been engaged to judge the different varieties, excepting Orpingtons, which will be judged by Percy Cook, of Scotch Plains, one of the most extensive breeders of this popular variety in the world.

During the show the birds will be placed in "Empire Exhibition" cages, carefully fed and cared for by experts in charge.

These are special prizes:

The President's Cup, donated by F. Warren Sumner, to be awarded to the best cockerel raised by a member of the Union County Poultry Association; ten-dollar automatic drinking fountain, to be awarded to the best pen, donated by George Wagner, of Elizabeth; a framed picture for the best exhibit by a woman, given by W. J. Fowler, of Elizabeth; a football to be awarded to the best exhibit made by a boy under 16 years of age; a silver cup, donated by George B. Benedict, for the best display of Plymouth rocks; an umbrella, donated by J. M. Noir, of Elizabeth, to be awarded to the best display of white Plymouth rocks; twenty-five-dollar silver cup, donated by A. D. Crane, for the best display of wyandottes. a box of cigars offered by H. A. Fisher, of Elizabeth, for the best white wyandotte male; ten-dollar silver cup, offered by George P. Steffany, of New York city, for the best R. C. R. THIEF GETS CLOTHES AT A TAILORING SHOP

Four residents of this city will have to wait some time yet for their fall suits, because a thief forced his way into Mrs. Robert Gardner's tailoring shop on Watchung avenue Monday night and made off with the clothes. Entrance was gained by prying open a rear window. The work shop consists of two back rooms and these were ransacked by the burglar, supposedly in a search for valuables. He did not enter the front room, or store, so far as could be learned from the trail left and made his exit in the same manner as entrance.

The loss was discovered when the shop was opened Wednesday morning and the matter was reported to the police. An investigation revealed the fact that the man entering the store had an accomplice who possibly may have entered the store to assist his pal in searching for valuables, or else the man was an exceedingly quick worker for his hunt was thorough. Something must have frightened the men away before they had time to go through the drawers and cabinets in the front room where the safe is also kept.

HUNT CLUB WOMEN FOLLOW THE HOUNDS

The Watchung Hunt Club observed "ladies' day" yesterday, and the event proved popular as was shown by the fact that many of the riders were women. Mrs. Brown Rolston was acting master for the day. The riders met the hounds at the kennels. The chase led to South Plainfield and thence over the Delafield, Dunham, Mundy and Wilson farms, where a check was held. The scent was again taken up, leading a distance of a mile down the country road.

The hounds then led the riders a merry chase over the Randolph and Manning farms back to the Delafield farm, the finish, covering in all a distance of about eight miles. The hounds were very fast, and although the going was heavy, the crisp October air filled the riders with enthusiasm and they declared it to be the best chase of the season. Not an accident occurred to mar the pleasures of the day. At the conclusion of the run, the party rode to the attractive new home of Mr. and Mrs. Brown Rolston on Rockview avenue, where tea was served. The following riders finished in the chase:

Mrs. Brown Rolston, master; Miss Anna Garrigues, Miss Charlotte Finch, Mrs. C. W. Holland, Miss Caroline Martin, Miss Caroline Brice, Miss Helen Hyde, Brown Rolston, C W. Holland, Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H., R. H. Towner, J. J. O'Donohue, Harry L. Finch, Lawrence Smith, Stanley Bellows, William Granville, William Harman and Huntsman Henry Watkins. A number of grooms were also out exercising green hunters.

Gives Fields a Chance.

Gilbert Fields, the notorious crook arrested by Chief Kiely, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, on a technical charge of disorderly conduct. He is not wanted for anything in this city and tearfully begged for his release. He declared he intended going to Buffalo where he intended trying to begin life anew, never to return to New Jersey. With this understanding in mind, Judge DeMeza allowed him to go.

WARNED MORMONS

Mayor Notifies Elder That They Will Not be Allowed to Spread the Faith Here.

WANTED TO MAKE CONVERTS.

Mr. Moy Informed Them That He Would Find a Way to Stop Their Work If They Attempted It In Plainfield.

No propogation of the Mormon faith will be permitted in Plainfield, that fact being impressed on two elders of the denomination who visited Mayor Moy today to obtain his consent to plans for a house to house canvas they desired to make. Elder Albert J. Newman, of Murray, Utah, and Elder Arthur S. Horsley, of Price, Utah, explained to His Honor their method of proselyting by visiting homes and distributing the sect's literature.

After listening to what the elders had to say, Mayor Moy declared that he was personally opposed to the propogation of Mormonism and so far as any attempt at proselyting in Plainfield was concerned he would take every resource to prevent it. When pressed to state how he could legally stop the elders working here he told them simply that he would find a way and that it would be part of wisdom for them not to make any attempt. The agreed to respect his command.

The pamphlets the elders had with them for distribution in Plainfield homes were entitled "Gospel Interview of the Doctrine of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," "Are the Mormons Loyal to the Government?" and "Plan of Salvation."

REGISTRATION CREDITED TO PRINTED QUESTIONS.

That the printed list which the Republican County Committee distributed containing the questions asked by the boards of registry of the voters who were to register were very effective, was evident at the office of the County Clerk when the returns of the registration began to come in. Many of those who brought in the registry lists declared that the printed lists had done a great deal to bring out the voters for registration.

This is attributed by the Republican leaders to the fact that these lists eliminated all the doubt which had been raised regarding the nature of the questions which were asked, and the voters, realizing that there was nothing too personal in the questions, and that they were asked for the protection of the voters against fraudulent use of their names on Election Day, went out to the registry booths and signed.

The Republican County Committee and the party leaders are pleased over the success of the action in sending out the lists.

PUBLIC UTILITY TAX EXCEEDS $1,000,000

Trenton, Oct. 26.—New Jersey municipalities will receive more than $1,000,000 this year from the franchise tax levied against public utility corporations. This will be a considerable increase over the aggregate amount of this tax last year, when the figures were $957,144. This increase will be partly accounted for by the higer tax rate this year against street railway companies.

Under an amendment to the Voorhees franchise act passed a few years ago street railway companies must pay this year at the rate of 4½ per cent. on their gross receipts. Before the amendment was enacted trolley corporations paid at the rate of 2 per cent. on their gross receipts, the same as all other public utility companies.

Last year this tax showed an increase of $132,871 over that of 1909. The tax is assessed by the State Board of Assessors and the amount due each taxing district in the State is then certified to the district. Then the tax is collected and used locally.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

If Ty Cobb keeps on receiving automobiles from the hands of admiring manufacturers he will have to build an addition to that Augusta garage of his for the housing of his personal cars. About every two months during the ball season a machine is delivered to the door of the Cobb mansion marked "paid for." Cobb's latest niche in the baseball hall of fame was when he received the Chalmers trophy a few weeks ago. The trophy was awarded by the secret votes of all newspaper men, one in each city in which either of the major leagues is represented and all of the ball scribes, who were allowed a vote, declared that Cobb had been the greatest help to his team in the pennant race.

Ty Cobb in "The College Widow," at Plainfield Theatre Next Wednesday Night.

The writers were allowed to vote for eight men. The first man voted for received eight points, the second seven and so on until the eighth who received one. As Cobb received 64 votes, or 1,000 per cent. it showed that every one of the men who voted on the American League placed his name at the top of the list.

This fall when Cobb decided to star in "The College Widow" he thought of taking one of his numerous machines with him but after careful consideration decided that if he would do this, that other manufacturers who had been kind to him and whose machines he was not using on the trip might feel slighted and for this reason this scheme was abandoned, although the agents for the various cars usually see that he does not want for the use of one during his stay in any city.

SOMERVILLE.

The special delegates from the Baptist church of this place to the annual State convention, which is being held in Trenton this week, are Rev. F. J. Soule, Dr. W. H. Merrell and Mrs. James H. Masker.

The women of the First Reformed church, whose names begin with the letters O to I inclusive, met in the chapel yesterday afternoon to plan for a sociable to be given November 16.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Dunster have moved from Bernardsville to this place. Mr. Dunster had always resided at Bernardsville, and was for many years a justice of the peace.

Mrs. Daniel Van Arsdale, of Pluckemin, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. H. Burnett, of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Keenan are occupying their new home in East Main street.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The work of tearing out the walls and flooring of the old school house, which is being remodelled as it is to be donated to the Baptist church by Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, brings to light many school day romances of the past. Hidden notes which were hastily poked down a convenient knot hole in the floor or wall to escape confiscation by the watchful teacher are being resurrected. Many of the tender missives are either signed or addressed to many of the fathers and mothers of the school children of today and read like memories of the past.

Township Clerk Edward L. Hand has been kept busy for the past week issuing licenses to the local hunters. The game law compels hunters to take out a license costing $1.00; failure to do so means arrest and a heavy fine if caught by the game warden.

The work of remodelling "Bonnie Barn," the county tuberculosis home in Washington Valley, will be completed this winter and the home will be ready for patients by the coming spring.

The young people of the Baptist church are arranging to hold a Hallowe'en party Tuesday night of next week in Schenck's barn on Forest avenue.

Benjamin Elliott, Jr., who has been spending several months in the West, expects to return home about the holidays.

Edward Ruth, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Blank, has returned to his home in New York.

Miss Florence Wade has returned from a visit with Mrs. John Kandelky at Springfield.

RULES ON POLITICAL FUNDS.

State Committee May Handle Them, Says Attorney-General.

Trenton, Oct. 26.—Edward E. Grosscup, Democratic State chairman has received an opinion from Assistant Attorney-General Gaskill, relative to the manner of handling campaign funds by the State committee.

The opinion holds that while the State committee has the right to solicit and collect campaign contributions it cannot place such contributions in a general fund and distribute such funds among the various local committees.

All it can do is to act as intermediary between the contributors and the finance committee of the candidates. Every contribution so made must appear in the statement of the candidates as having been received from the person who originally made it.

LEADS IN BANNER PUPILS.

Hudson Takes Record, While Essex Is Ahead in Truancy.

Trenton, Oct. 26.—There were 11,690 banner school pupils in New Jersey last year who were neither absent nor tardy the entire school year. The truancies, however, outranked this with a total of 39,588 cases of "playing hookey." The really bad pupils were not so plentiful, as there were only 1,680 cases of suspension or expulsion from school. These facts are shown in the annual report of the State Board of Education just issued.

Hudson county led in the banner pupils, with 3,174 of this class, while Essex county was away ahead in the number of truants, with 13,185 of them. The total number of cases of tardiness was 530,044, of whom 303,998 were boys and 226,046 were girls. The total number of pupils enrolled was 429,797.

SLAYER LAYS SHOOTING TO A STRANGE DREAM

New Brunswick, Oct. 26.—The double murder at Perth Amboy of Augustine Passarelli and Augustine Mena and serious injury of Frank Mena was laid by Marino Bellim, on trial here for the tragedy, to a dream. Bellim declares he is subject to strange dreams and has been ever since he had an attack of typhoid fever several years ago. He declares in one of these visions he saw these men approaching him as if to attack him and he shot them in self-defense.

Bellim testified Tuesday afternoon that he has been having these dreams since he has been in jail. If he sleeps on one side he cannot see anything, and if he sleeps on the other he has strange dreams. He has asked for a companion in his cell, thinking he will sleep better.

He explained why he purchased the revolver by declaring that he thought he might go into the woods and meet a robber and he wanted to be ready to protect himself. He had already met robbers. One had stopped him and asked for a match and another for a chew of tobacco. Neither one stole anything. He did not recall the shooting until the morning after the deed was committed. He then remembered he had fired four shots and had been hit in the head with a milk bottle. He showed the jury the scar of the wound. He still dreamed the three men shot were pursuing him and all had revolvers.

Father Galassi testified to the defendant telling him the story of the crime and admitting he did the shooting.

Dr. J. W. Rice and Dr. William Ramsay were called yesterday morning to testify as to the man's mental condition. Dr. A. L. Smith is attending the trial to testify in rebuttal for the State as an expert on the man's condition.

RODGERS HAS FLOWN 2,700 MILES OF TRIP.

Stafford, Tex., Oct. 26.—With 2,700 miles to his credit, Cal P. Rodgers, flying from New York to the Pacific Coast, planned to add only fifty miles to his record yesterday. He expects to fly from here to Del Rio, on the Mexican border, sighting foreign territory for the first time in his air cruise.

Edwards—Willett.

The first wedding in the new Westfield Methodist Episcopal church took place last evening when Miss Mabel S. Willett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Willett, of the North Avenue Hotel became the bride of Raymond L. Edwards, of the Elmtree Crescent section. The bride had for her maid of honor Miss Berta Willett, her sister. The Misses Elsie and Catharine Edwards, sisters of the bridegroom, were bridemaids. Little Miss Millicent Pearsall was flower girl. The best man was Harold Edwards, a brother of the bridegroom. Theodore Markthaler, of South Orange; Charles Parker, of Brooklyn, and Frank M. Taylor and Thomas Young, of Westfield, were the ushers.

EXPERIENCE.

My experience in starting business, less than six months ago, against great odds with four dollars only. Rented the only place available on North Avenue, $75.00 per month, spent nearly $400.00 on the building and bought $500.00 worth of furnifure on your good looks, making my expenses for help and all about $700.00 per month.

First Experience: Ordered six searches at one time for my clients, got sued jointly with a lady for ten dollars. Oh! I love one-half of our lawyers.

Party agreed to put up the money for Uptodate; some one howled after a small first payment was made, I went through with it all myself, only owe $75.00 on the deal and no notes out.

Another party agreed to put up about $18,000.00 to buy a tract for development near Plainfield; made first payment, some one howled, I made good, and no notes out.

Accummulated $1,100.00 in good notes, tried all the banks to have some of them cashed, all good, but refused; in the meantime had three suits threatening me and one went on without notice.

The notes would have paid all I owed twice over. I love our Banks; and I shall vote for Gov. Wilson; he said something about Wall Street, however, I made good without giving my note.

Then the heat and plumbing question came up, and I moved to 211 North Avenue. Don't have much cash, but this is what I do have to show for my work, (and only owe $300.00), 2 apartment houses at Paterson, equity from $8,000.00 to $10,000.00, the McLaughlin house on Somerset Street, the Rev. Francis house at Dunellen, about 200 lots in Plainfield, about 400 at Uptodate, and still have my notes.

Have sold property in the following places: Asbury Park, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Middlebush, Millstone, Cranford, Paterson, Riverside, Clinton, Pattenburg, High Bridge, Lebanon, Newark, Brooklyn, New York and, of course, Plainfield. My 'phone bill is more than all the rest of the agents put together.

$500 DEATH BENEFIT PROPOSITION BEATEN

Trenton, Oct. 26.—With the election of officers the twentieth annual meeting of the Junior Order United American Mechanics Funeral Benefit Association of New Jersey, which convened here Tuesday in Association Hall was brought to a close. The only feature of the closing hours was the defeat of the movement to establish another class of insurance, to be known as Class B, requiring the association to pay $500 to the subordinate councils upon the death of a member, instead of $250, as at present.

Rev. Dr. J. Morgan Read, of Glassboro, who has presided over the body for nineteen years, was re-elected president, and George H. Poulson, of Trenton, was re-elected vice president. Thomas H. Irwin, of Trenton, and William B. Cramer, of Beverly, were chosen directors for terms of two years each, and John B. Clevenstine, of Bridgeton, was re-elected auditor for three years.

The report of Secretary Howard S. Norris, for the year ending October 1, showed that 359 death claims were paid, the aggregate amount accruing to the beneficiaries being $97,937.88.

The receipts of the association for the year, as shown in the report of Treasurer Frank L. Morton, were $100,818.45 and the balance on hand at the close of the fiscal year is $2,880.57.

The list of deaths by counties showed that Essex headed the mortality roll with seventy-five; an increase of nineteen over last year. Hudson was second with sixty-three. Middlesex and Mercer were next in order with thirty-one and thirty respectively. In sixteen of the remaining counties the death roll ranged from one in Atlantic to twenty-one in Union county. Salem lost none of its members by death. The membership of the association on October 1, 1910, was 46,835, and on October 1 last it was 47,901, a gain of 1,066 in twelve months.

There are 261 councils holding membership in the organization, a loss of two from last year.

MOTHERS WHO BEAT A TEACHER HELD IN BAIL.

Trenton, Oct. 26.—After hiding for twenty-four hours while the authorities were looking for them on charges of beating Miss Lillian Tilton, a teacher in the Andrew K. Rowan School, Mrs. Mary Platzer, of 347 McClellan avenue, and her sister, Mrs. Helen Umstetter, of 130 Randall avenue, Broad street park, surrendered late Tuesday afternoon. They were also wanted on charges of demolishing furniture in the school building and resisting Special Officer William Nevius, who is also janitor of the school.

Since the trouble the two women had been hiding in their respective homes, and kept the houses closed up so tightly that the authorities believed that they had left for parts unknown. After remaining in hiding, their husbands advised them to surrender. They were each held in $1,100 bail.

The trouble was the outcome of the conduct of May Platzer, the ten-year-old daughter of Mrs. Platzer, who is a pupil at the Rowan School. According to the school authorities, the child has been a bad pupil ever since she was admitted to the institution.

Last Friday, it is declared, the girl erased several names from a blackboard after Miss Tilton had warned her to desist. She was made to stay in after school hours and reported the circumstances to her mother. Mrs. Platzer and Mrs. Umstetter then went to the school and beat the teacher about the head and body. Miss Tilton is able to teach, but she is suffering from shock and bruises.

SCHOOLBOY'S ALERTNESS SAVES HIS COMPANION.

Summit, Oct. 26.—Chasing a ball which had rolled on the tracks of the Lackawanna Railroad at the station here Tuesday, Walter Squiers, of Gillette, stepped directly in front of a train. He might have been killed but for the alertness and courage of Robert Woodruff, of New Providence, who jumped after him and pulled him to one side, with barely a yard to spare as the train went by. Squire and Woodruff are pupils in the local High School.

The boys commute each day on the Passaic and Delaware branch of the Lackawanna. They leave Summit for their homes on the 2:52 p. m. train. Squires was playing ball with other boys on the platform and did not notice the train's approach. Though slowing down for the station stop, the train was going at a fair speed when Squiers ran in front of it.

Wounds Boy; Found Guilty.

Elizabeth, Oct. 26.—After being out until late Tuesday night a jury in the Union county court found Joseph Corea, a Linden farmer, guilty of assault and battery, with a recommendation to mercy. He fired at Henry Steperfenne and August Holdenreid, boys, who were robbing his pear trees, and severely wounded one of them. He was indicted for atrocious assault. The trial lasted all day in the Court of Common Pleas.

P.C.C. PLAN FOR NEW BUILDING

The Plainfield Country Club has decided to close the restaurant after election day, unless a sufficient number of special entertainments are scheduled prior to November 4 to warrant closing at a later date. Simple luncheons, however, may be had by arrangement in advance with the superintendent up to December 1, when the clubhouse will be closed for the season, with the exception of the men's lockers.

The main building is being put in condition of perfect repair and is to be painted next March, prior to the spring opening. It has been decided to remove the caddie house from its present location and place it behind a row of shade trees standing between the first and eighteenth tees. An ample enclosure will be built for the boys back of the caddie house.

An appropriation has been made for trees and shrubs to improve the appearance of the aproach to the club and near the clubhouse, including the present site of the caddie house, where it is hoped in the near future to erect a new building containing a men's large locker room on the ground floor and bedroom upstairs for men, thus enabling members to live at the club in the summer months when their families are away. The present locker room will be used for a laundry and also a billiard room.

The wet weather this fall has been very fortunate in view of the new work on the golf course. Experts were called in last summer to analyze the soil, and advised that the turf has become so impoverished that it will soon give out entirely unless carefully treated. This work of renovation was begun last August and will be carried on next season including liming, fertilizing and extensive seeding of the fair greens. The fertilizing and seeding of the putting greens has been done this fall, and in addition the new second and sixth greens have been built and seeded. The work on the new fifteenth hole has also been completed and the fairway seeded down. Considerable work has also been done on the fair greens of the new thirteenth and fourteenth holes, and as the seeding has all gotten a splendid start this fall on account of the copious rainfalls, it is certain that the new 500 yards of playing length will be in commission next season. The green committee has had an unusual amount of work on its hands which has been admirably carried out.

AS ACTING GOVERNOR, DENIES ANY NEGLECT

The statement published in a Newark morning paper today to the effect that Senator Ackerman as acting governor had not appeared at the State House, Trenton, yesterday and that in consequence some important business was neglected was stamped as unqualifiedly false by the Union County Senator, himself, today, when the article was shown to him. The purport of the published dispatch was that Governor Wilson is neglecting the official business of the State executive by his absence from the State and that yesterday when there were requisition papers to be signed Acting Governor Ackerman was absent.

"I was not only discharging my duties as acting governor at Trenton yesterday," said Mr. Ackerman today, "but gave my particular attention of the requisition matter in question. I was at the State House the day previously and I shall always beon hand when I should be needed while the Governor is away."

Funeral of Julius Steiger.

The funeral of Julius Steiger, whose death occurred at his home on Rock avenue, Saturday afternoon, was held at Cole's undertaking parlors, yesterday afternoon. The service was in charge of Rev. J .G. Currier, curate of Grace church, and the attendants included a large delegation from the Baird Surgical Instrument works in which he was employed. A solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," was sung by Miss Etta Raybert. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery.

Davids at Trinity Church.

Mrs. Walter David, harpist, and Walter David, reader and impersonator, will appear in one of their incomparable entertainments at Trinity Reformed church tomorrow night under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band. Both Mr. and Mrs. David are well and favorably known here and will doubtless be greeted by a large audience.

Walter Lane Worse.

Walter Lane, the North avenue butcher, who is suffering from injuries and blood poisoning, as the result of a fall down stairs is detained at home today. His condition is said to be worse.

In the Borough Court.

Frank Scheelein, arrested for drunkenness and panhandling, was arraigned before Recorder Dolliver, this morning. He promised to sign the pledge and sentence was suspended.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lowe, of "Cedarcroft," on Park avenue, have gone to New York for the winter.

G.E. HALL TREASURER STATE BAPTIST ASS'N

George E. Hall, of Belvidere avenue, superintendent of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school, was elected treasurer of the New Jersey State Baptists' Association at the annual meeting being held in Trenton. He is also on the committee to represent the Baptists' Association at the Interchurch Federation of New Jersey. The other officers elected were: President, F. W. Ayer, Camden; first vice president, D. G. Garabrant, Bloomfield; second vice president, T. M. Eastwood, Burlington; general secretary, F. A. Smith, Haddonfield; secretary of Young People's work, E. G. Wilson, Newark.

To represent the association on the council of the Interchurch Federation of New Jersey, H. E. Fosdick, T. C. Villers, F. A. Smith, F. W. Ayer, George E. Hall and Everett Colby were chosen. President Ayer's address was an appeal to the Baptists in regard to the $100,000 fund.

This fund was started a year ago, and $85,000 has been raised. This sum will be invested as an endowment fund, while the interest will be used for the building of churches and chapels.

In an address, Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, of Montclair, said that the church would become more prosperous and do more good if the people in general would take a deeper interest in religious matters and attend regularly.

MISS HUSE DESCRIBES SOME ROYAL CHATEAUX

Mrs. Stuart Hoyt Patterson received her friends yesterday at her residence, 1006 Park avenue, where they were entertained in a characteristically charming fashion by listening to a talk upon the "Royal Chauteaux of Touraine." To say when the Chauteaux country is so much visited its history and romance seem to have been made alive and Mrs. Patterson could not have chosen a subject more replete with interest.

The talk was given by Miss Carolyn Evans Huse, of New York, who showed great familiarity with her subject and presented it with vivid historic detail and a clear sense of its artistic values. Only the medieval Chauteaux were handled, such as Chinon, Loches, Langeais and others. The talk was illustrated by stereopticon views which greatly enhanced the interest. The audience, which occupied both the drawing room and the hall of Mrs. Patterson's commodious house, was an appreciative one and grateful to the hostess who had given them such an opportunity. Those who did not attend missed a rare treat. Mrs. Patterson regrets that there are no proceeds to divide between the charities she had hoped to assist.

MAINE WENT DOWN FROM INTERNAL EXPLOSION.

Havana, Oct. 26.—The removing of the mud from about the wreck of the Maine is progressing rapidly and everything now confirms the testimony of Ensign Powellson before the court of inquiry in 1898 which brought about the verdict of an exterior explosion.

The boilers, the port bunkers and everything between midships and the bow section from the 10-inch magazine is bent to starboard. Over the magazine the traverse armor bulkhead has been found as reported by the divers in 1898. Experts are sanguine that the entire exposure of the ship will show the real cause of the explosion.

PASS MAY BE BAR TO TRAIN ACCIDENT SUIT.

Camden, Oct. 26.—On the ground that Frank Monroe, who was one of fifty persons killed when an electric train plunged into the Thoroughfare at Atlantic City five years ago, and whose widow seeks $20,000 damages, had not paid fare but was using a pass, counsel for the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad Company asked for a non-suit in the Circuit Court before Judge Cole, in Camden, Tuesday.

Before any decision was rendered counsel for the widow was granted the privilege of withdrawing a juror, and it was stated that a new suit would be instituted.

COUNTY BUYS STUFF OFFICIAL'S CO. SELLS.

Hackensack, Oct. 26.—The five Assemblymen appointed to investigate the charges of graft in connection with the erection of the $1,500,000 Court House and jail here and into county affairs generally reconvened here yesterday.

The first witness called was Jacob F. Fink, a dealer in disinfectants, of Englewood. He said that in 1905 he supplied the freeholders with disinfectant for the Court House and jail and that the total cost did not exceed $48 or $50 a year. In 1910 the freeholders spent $1,680 for disinfectant.

Sheriff Conklin was recalled and questioned regarding the buying of the disinfectant. He said he ordered it as it was required. "Whose business is it," he was asked, "to make a report that the cost of this article advanced from $100 to $1,680 in a year?" He replied he did not know.

George M. Brewster, a former freeholder, a former sheriff and a member of the Court House Commission, was next called as a witness. He is a member of the firm which supplied bricks for the new Court House, but said that he did not know it was a violation of the law for him to do so.

"For the last twenty years you have served as a county official in one capacity or another, and do you wish us to understand that you didn't know that as a county employee or a county official you were forbidden by criminal law not to be interested yourself in a contract with the county?" he was asked.

The probe will be continued today.

WANT WILSON TO HELP GORMAN IN MARYLAND.

Trenton, Oct. 26.—Just after Governor Wilson had left for his trip to Wisconsin and Texas, a telegram was receive at the executive department inviting him to speak at Baltimore Friday, November 3, on behalf of Arthur P. Gorman, the Democratic candidate for Governor. The telegram was signed by Mr. Gorman and Murray Vanderveer, chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Maryland. Governor Wilson already has an engagement for that day, and it is doubtful if he can accept the Maryland invitation.

MAN-HUNT WHEN HAMLET VISITOR STARTS BLAZE.

Whitehouse, Oct. 26.—A stranger given employment at Ellis Sutton's hotel, in Pottersville, Tuesday, started a fire in his bedroom after wrecking the furniture early yesterday morning.

The visitor, armed with a wash pitcher, chased Mr. Sutton from the building. He barred his door when help arrived, and after starting the blaze leaped from the window. A posse captured him after a long chase and struggle. The man was taken to the Somerville jail.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

SUGGESTIONS FOR TRAVELERS.

One of the most severe tests of friendships is traveling and the enforced intimacy of long trips is sometimes a great strain. It is the part of wisdom therefore, to choose one's traveling companions with the utmost care—with a future view to their "wearing" qualities.

When there is a party is is just as well to thoroughly agree on the itinerary before strating. The next best thing to do is to write down—and keep it with you on the journey. And then there can be no unpleasant misunderstandings.

If you expect to thoroughly enjoy the trip don't wear yourself to a frazzle before starting. Take plenty of time for the packing, don't wear yourself out with shoping or social engagements, and, above all, don't eat a lot of indigestible things that will ruin your digestion and spoil your temper. If you start out in good physical condition you are apt to get more enjoyment and real benefit from the vacation.

Have your belongings well and carefully packed in a good, stout trunk or bag—one that will withstand the knocks and bumps of the baggagemaster—and have it packed before you strat. And if you wish each article in it to come out fresh and unruffled s. w-p and unrumpled, pack each garment in tissue paper. Arrangements with the luggage people should be made well in advance, so that there will be no fuming, fussing or worrying at the last minute.

Gave Beer to Police; Fined $100.

Antonio Capruno, of Sussex street, Westfield, was fined $100 in the recorder's court there yesterday on a charge of selling beer without a license. Policemen McNeely and Rosecrans were witnesses. The policemen declared that they saw persons knock at the back door and obtained bottles. The officers decided to try it themselves, so waiting until after dark and in plain clothes, one of them knocked on the door and asked for half a dozen bottles of beer, which were handed out. The penalty was paid pending an appeal.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. VanNest, of Watchung avenue, left this morning on a pleasure trip which will include Buffalo, Montreal and Chicago.

The calendars for the present term and one in December are both filled. The plaintiff is represented by Lawyer Covenhoven, of New Brunswick.

Narrow Escape From Death.

Herbert Kieger, of Taylor avenue, Atlantic City, a brother of Mrs. Fred Moore, of this city, had a narrow escape from fatal injuries yesterday when he was hurled from an automobile as the car crashed into a telegraph pole, two miles out of Pleasantville. It was the soft mud at the side of the Meadow Boulevard that saved Kieger's life. His injuries consisted of two broken ribs, severe contusions and possible internal injuries. Something went wrong with the steering gear, Kieger said.

McIntyre-Klove Wedding.

Frank McIntyre, of North avenue, and Miss Emma Klove, of Aldine, were married last night at the rectory of St. Mary's church by Rev. B. M. Bogan. John J. 'VAN DYKE EV'G' FOR CONGREGATIONALISTS

What was entitled a "Van Dyke Evening" was given at the Congregational church last night and afforded no small amount of pleasure for the large number attending. An attracive program consisting of the singing of hymns from the new church hymnal, of which Dr. Van Dyke is the author, and readings his prose and poems had been prepared in order to carry out the scheme. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, the pastor, read a letter from Dr. Van Dyke which contained a message to the congregation.

The program follows: Hymn, by the audience; reading of the Twenty-third Psalm; poem, "The Lord in My Work," Rev. Mr. Goodrich; "The Tribe of Helpers," Athol Newman; patriotic poem, "America for Me," Rev. Mr. Goodrich; reading, "A Handful of Clay," Miss Lola Fuller; reading, "Legend of Service," Miss Allen; duet by Mrs. D. F. Updyke and Miss Mary Decker; poem, "Three Best Eggs," Miss Daisy Day; poem, "The Toiling of Felix," James MacClymont; story, "The Mansion," Mrs. D. F. Updyke. Placed about the parlors were placards bearing inscriptions and sayings of which Dr. Van Dyke is the author. These placards were decorated with water color paintings and made a pleasing impression.

CONVENTION'S CHOIR TO REHEARSE TONIGHT

Grant Colfax Tullar takes the big Sunday school convention chorus in hand tonight at the First Baptist church for the opening rehearsal. The choir has the pick of the voices of some thirty Sunday schools in the city and borough, and it will not take many evenings with a leader of Mr. Tullar's talent to drill them into a great choir. They will sing at each evening session of the convention, November 14, 15, and 16, and probably keep together long enough after that to give a public concert.

The publicity campaign of the local committee on the New Jersey Sunday school convention has already brought 738 responses from as many superintendents to its post card "No. 3" sent out last week. The Methodist School at South Amboy won the prize set of flags by being the first to respond. Another Methodist school in Newark was only thirty minutes behind. The committee mailed yesterday its "card nnumber 4." Another set of two prize flags will go to the first school which responds by sending its full list of delegates, and all schools which comply with this request before November 7 will receive a "Plainfield 1911 pennant" in the convention colors—red and blue.

A map of New Jersey with nothing on it but a big red heart in the spot where Plainfield ought to be has gone this week to every Sunday-school superintendent in the State with the request 'Please hang me up in your Sunday-school room." The poster is 11x24 inches and bears a view of the convention church, the convention dates, and such legends as "In the Heart of New Jersey," "All Roads Lead to Plainfield; Try One." "Plainfield's Message to you, Welcome. Your Message to Plainfield, We'll Come."

Dr. Edward P. St. John, of the Hartford, Conn., School of Religious Pedagogy, will be the speaker of Wednesday evening, Nov. 5. His subject will be "The Home and the Sunday School." He is a scientific student of educational theory and an unusually forceful and entertaining speaker.

Dr. A. W. Halsey, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Missions, will deliver the address on Thursday evening, November 16, at 8:15 At the annual banquet of the State Superintendents' Association in Y. M. C. A. Hall, Thursday evening, November 16, the principal speaker will be Henry M. Dickson, executive secretary of the Men and Religious Movement for New York.

Local Option Speeches.

Samuel S. Swackhamer will devote his time on the stump speaking for the Democratic ticket in Salem and Burlington counties, where the Democratic candidates have come out for local option. One appointment for Woodstown, Salem county on October 31, has been definitely arranged, and he will fill such other dates and address mass meetings at such other places as may be arranged.

MOTHER, CAUSE OF SON'S DIVORCE ACTION

Trenton, Oct. 26.—Because his mother regarded work as humiliating and disgraceful to any one in his station of life, Binney Woodward Earl, of Edgewater Park, was not allowed to accept employment. This is one of the allegations made in an affidavit filed in the Court of Chancery by Mrs. Irma Leigh Earl, Binney's wife, who seeks a divorce. Mrs. Earl has asked for alimony and counsel fees pening the disposition of the divorce proceedings. Vice-Chancellor Walker will hear the argument next Tuesday.

In her affidavit, Mrs. Earl says that while her husband has an income of at least $2,500 a year, he has never had any employment in his life. The wife says she many times urged her husband to seek employment, but that each time the mother interposed, saying that none of her family had ever been obliged to work and that it would be a disgrace for her son to do so. The affidavit says Earl's mother gave him about $2,500 a year out of the inheritance due him from his father's estate. The father was Franklin Woodward Earl, who died in 1903.

Among the heirs that shared in this estate was Princess Florence Di Camporeal, of Palermo, Italy, Mrs. Earl's sister. It was during a reception to the princess in 1909 that Earl and his childhood friend, Irma Leigh, eloped and were married.

TAFT URGES GOVERNMENT SUPPLIES FOR CANAL.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 26.—In an address here yesterday President Taft told of his ideas for the conduct of the Panama Canal and the canal zone after its completion. He urged that the government itself furnish all supplies to the canal zone, so as to prevent any possibility of discrimination. The plan for favoring in toll charges American vessels engaged in coastwise trade through the canal might, he thought, be tried out. He urged a strongly centralized guard for the canal zone, to be placed in the hands of the men responsible for the running of the canal. The government of the zone, he declared, should be incidental with the operation of th canal.

"I am not generally in favor of government ownership," said the President. "I would prefer to rely on individual enterprise, but there are instances in which the peculiar circumstances justify and require government ownership if you choose to call it such, and government operation without furnishing a precedent for government ownership and government operation where these things are not necessary. In other words I am not afraid of making a precedent, where you can explain the precedent on logical reasons without providing that government ownership ought to be everywhere."

Accused of Having Ducked Freshman in a Pond.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 29, 1911.

Topic.—A missionary journey around the world.—X. Missions in Europe.—Acts xvi, 6-15. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The introduction of Christianity into Europe is of vital interest to us for the reason that it was the final step in missions that assured Christianity to our forefathers and through them to us. It is of importance also because Europe became the first distinctive Christian continent of the world and demonstrated what Christianity can do for nations and races as well as individuals. Through Europe, Christianity came to America, and from Europe and America have gone forth the missionaries of modern times to evangelize the world. Thus we can see even in this brief glance at several important facts what momentous issues were involved when Paul, the apostle to the gentiles, obeyed the divine call to preach the gospel in Europe in answer to the prayer of the Macedonian, "Come over into Macedonia and help us."

The early history of Christianity in Europe is the history of the great movement by which the strategic center of missionary activity was transferred from Antioch in Syria, to Rome. The leaders of the new religious movement were divinely led to select the most strategic points from which to propagate their beliefs. Jerusalem was naturally the first center, because the gospel was first preached to the Jews. But Jerusalem was inadequate for gentile activity, and the movement was transferred to Antioch, a great, thriving gentile city. As the movement spread Antioch became insufficient, and gradually the center of Christian activity was removed to Rome, the capital of the Roman empire, which was then practically synonymous with the world. From Rome their "line went out through all the earth and their words unto the end of the world." Paul did not found the Christian church at Rome, although he had much to do with the development of the church in the imperial city.

It is not known for a certainty that Peter ever even visited Rome. The human founder is unknown, but the hand of God is clearly seen, and the purpose which He had in view is clearly understood. From Rome as a center, the world was to be evangelized, and before three centuries had passed away Constantine, the Roman emperor, had recognized Christianity as the religion of the empire. The history of these great movements reads like fiction, but nothing is impossible with God. It is this fact that is the basis of our belief that the modern world will be won for Christ.

The work of evangelizing Europe after the Christianization of the Roman empire went steadily forward. Missionaries from Asia Minor visited the people along the Danube river and first preached the gospel in Germany. But it was contact with Rome that led the German races into the Christian fold. Roman missionaries carried the glad tidings to Spain and to England. Charlemagne completed the work among the Franks. Thus all Europe was won and became the seat of the vast struggles by which the creeds of Christendom were developed and the various divisions of the Christian church as they exist today were determined. It is a mighty story, and all the while God was unfolding His plans and purposes and preparing for the great modern movement for worldwide evangelization. In this great movement we may have a part, and the recollection of the great deeds of the past should inspire us with new zeal and energy in all our missionary interests and activity.

A Summary of Suggestions.

Shall these, then, be our ambitions and our efforts for the biennium which is before us?

1. As an international organization, the promotion of worldwide peace.

2. As an interdenominational organization, a still wider fellowship of all young Christians.

3. As state organizations, field secretaries who will promote our principles and our fellowship in every section.

4. As a local organization—

a. A campaign of education in every society.

b. A campaign of efficiency, promoted by careful rating of faithful service, in every society.

c. A simple form for opening and closing our meetings in every society, which shall emphasize our unity and demonstrate our fellowship. — Dr. Clark's Suggestions in the President's Address at Christian Endeavor Convention in Atlantic City Convention.

A Newsy Business Bit.

The busy world knows in a general way that Christian Endeavor is the name of a great young people's movement, but comparatively few know the tremendous fact that not one of its members has ever been taxed one cent for its support, nor the other tremendous fact that, aside from paying all its running expenses for twenty-five years, the publishing department has enabled the united society to contribute nearly a quarter of a million dollars to worldwide work for young people.—H. "Well, she thinks too much of herself to associate with those she works with, in the office here, for instance. She won't have anything to do with a fellow, you see. I've asked her out repeatedly, to the theater and the chutes and such things. But nothing doing. Says she likes plenty of sleep, and can't stay up late, and has to go all the way to Berkeley—that's where she lives. But that's all hot air. She's running with the University boys, that's what she's doing. She needs lots of sleep, and can't go to the theater with me, but she can dance all hours with them. I've heard it pretty straight that she goes to all their hops and such things. Rather stylish and high-toned for a stenographer, I'd say. And she keeps a horse, too. She rides astride all over those hills out there. I saw her one Sunday myself. Oh, she's a high-flyer, and I wonder how she does it. Sixty-five a month don't go far. Then she has a sick brother, too."

"Live with her people?" Daylight asked.

"No; hasn't got any. They were well to do, I've heard. They must have been, or that brother or hers couldn't have gone to the University of California. Her father had a big cattle-ranch, but he got to fooling with mines or something, and went broke before he died. Her mother died long before that. Her brother must cost a lot of money. He was a husky once, played football, was great on hunting and being out in the mountains and such things. He got his accident breaking horses, and then rheumatism or something got into him. One leg is shorter than the other, and withered up some. He has to walk on crutches. I saw her out with him once—crossing the ferry. The doctors have been experimenting on him for years, and he's in the French Hospital now, I think."

All of which side-lights on Miss Mason went to increase Daylight's interest in her. Yet, much as he desired, he failed to get acquainted with her. He had thoughts of asking her to luncheon, but his was the innate chivalry of the frontiersman, and the thoughts never came to anything. He knew a self-respecting, square-dealing man was not supposed to take his stenographer to luncheon. Such things did happen, he knew, for he heard the chaffing gossip of the club; but he did not think much of such men and felt sorry for the girls.

CHAPTER XI.

Daylight was in the thick of his spectacular and intensely bitter fight with the Coastwise Steam Navigation Company, and the Hawaiian, Nicaraguan, and Pacific-Mexican Steamship Company. He stirred up a bigger muss than he had anticipated, and even he was astounded at the wide ramifications of the struggle and at the unexpected and incongruous interests that were drawn into it. Every newspaper in San Francisco turned upon him. It was true, one or two of them had first intimated that they were open to subsidization, but Daylight's judgment was that the situation did not warrant such expenditure. Up to this time the press had been amusingly tolerant and good-naturedly sensational about him, but now he was to learn what virulent scurrilousness an antagonized press was capable of. Every episode of his life was resurrected to serve as foundations for malicious fabrications. Daylight was frankly amazed at the new interpretation put upon all that he had accomplished and the deeds he had done. From an Alaskan hero he was metamorphosed into an Alaskan bully, liar, desperado, and all-around "bad man." The whole affair sank to the deeper deeps of rancor and savageness. The poor woman who had killed herself was dragged out of her grave and paraded on thousands of reams of paper as a martyr and a victim to Daylight's ferocious brutality.

He was like a big bear raiding a beehive, and, regardless of the stings, he obstinately persisted in pawing for the honey. He gritted his teeth and struck back. Beginning with a raid on two steamship companies, it developed into a pitched battle with a city, state and continental coast line. Allied with him, on a splendid salary, with princely pickings thrown in, was a lawyer, Larry Hegan, a young Irishman with a reputation to make, and whose peculiar genius had been unrecognized until Daylight had picked up with him. It was Hegan who guided Daylight through the intricacies of modern politics, labor organization, and commercial and corporation law. It was Hegan, prolific of resource and suggestion, who opened Daylight's eyes to undreamed-of possibilities in twentieth-century warfare; and it was Daylight, rejecting, accepting, and elaborating, who planned the campaigns and prosecuted them. With the Pacific coast, from Puget Sound to Panama, buzzing and humming, and with San Francisco furiously about his ears, the two big steamship companies had all the appearance of winning. It looked as if Burning Daylight was being beaten slowly to his knees. And then he struck—at the steamship companies, at San Francisco, at the whole Pacific coast.

It was not much of a blow at first. A Christian Endeavor convention was being held in San Francisco, a row was started by Express Drivers' Union No. 927 over the handling of a small heap of baggage at Ferry Building. A few heads were broken, a score of arrests made, and the baggage was delivered. No one would have guessed that behind this petty wrangle was the fine Irish hand of Hegan, made potent by the Klondike gold of Burning Daylight. It was an insignificant affair at best—or so it seemed. But the Teamsters' Union took up the quarrel, backed by the whole Water Front Federation. Step by step, the strike became involved. A refusal of cooks and waiters to serve scab teamsters or teamsters' employers brought out the cooks and waiters. The butchers and meat cutters refused to handle meat destined for unfair restaurants. The combined Employers' Associations put up a solid front, and found facing them the 40,000 organized laborers of San Francisco. The restaurant bakers and the bakery wagon drivers struck, followed by the milkers, milk drivers and chicken pickers. The building trades asserted its position in unambiguous terms, and all San Francisco was in turmoil.

But still, it was only San Francisco. Hegan's intrigues were masterly, and Daylight's campaign steadily developed. The powerful fighting organization known as the Pacific Slope Seaman's Union refused to work vessels the cargoes of which were to be handled by scab longshoremen and freight handlers. The union presented its ultimatum, and then called a strike. This had been Daylight's objective all the time. Every incoming coastwise vessel was boarded by the union officials and its crew sent ashore. And with the seamen went the firemen, the engineers and the sea cooks and waiters. Daily the number of idle steamers increased. It was impossible to get scab crews, for the men of the Seamen's Union were fighters trained in the hard school of the sea, and when they went out it meant blood and death to scabs. This phase of the strike spread up and down the entire Pacific coast, until all the ports were filled with idle ships, and sea transportation was at a standstill. The days and weeks dragged out, and the strike held. The Coastwise Steam Navigation Company and the Hawaiian, Nicaraguan, and Pacific-Mexican Steamship Company were tied up completely. The expenses of combating the strike were tremendous, and they were earning nothing, while daily the situation went from bad to worse, until "peace at any price" became the cry. And still there was no peace, until Daylight and his allies played out their hand, raked in the winnings, and allowed a goodly portion of a continent to resume business.

Daylight's coming to civilization had not improved him. True, he wore better clothes, had learned slightly better manners, and spoke better English. But he had hardened, and at the expense of his old-time, whole-souled geniality. Even his human affiliations were descending. Playing a lone hand, contemptuous of most of the men with whom he played, lacking in sympathy or understanding of them, and certainly independent of them, he found little in common with those to be encountered, say at the Alta-Pacific. In point of fact, when the battle with the steamship companies was at its height and his raid was inflicting incalculable damage on all business interests, he had been asked to resign from the Alta-Pacific. The idea had been rather to his liking, and he had found new quarters in clubs like the Riverside, organized and practically maintained by the city bosses.

One week-end, feeling heavy and depressed and tired of the city and its ways, he obeyed the impulse of a whim that was later to play an important part in his life. The desire to get out of the city for a whiff of country air and for a change of scene was the cause. Yet, to himself, he made the excuse of going to Glen Ellen for the purpose of inspecting a brickyard which Holdsworthy had sold him. He spent the night in the little country hotel, and on Sunday morning, astride a saddle horse rented from the Glen Ellen butcher, rode out of the village. The brickyard was close at hand on the flat beside the Sonoma Creek.

Resolving to have his fun first, and to look over the brickyard afterward, he rode up the hill, prospecting for a way cross country to get to the knolls. He left the country road at the first gate he came to and cantered through a hayfield. The grain was waist-high on either side the wagon-road, and he sniffed the warm aroma of it with delighted nostrils. At the base of the knolls he encountered a tumble-down stake-and-rider fence.

He tethered the horse and wandered on foot among the knolls. Their tops were crowned with century-old spruce trees, and their sides clothed with oaks and madronos and native holly. But to the perfect redwoods belonged the small but deep canyon that threaded its way among the knolls. Here he found no passage out for his horse, and leading the animal, he forced his way up the hillside. On the crest he came through an amazing thicket of velvet-trunked young madronos, and emerged on an open hillside that led down into a tiny valley. The sunshine was at first dazzling in its brightness, and he paused and rested, for he was panting from the exertion. Not of old had he known shortness of breath such as this, and muscles that so easily tired at a stiff climb. A tiny stream ran down the tiny valley through a tiny meadow that was carpeted knee-high with grass and blue and white nemophila.

Crossing the stream, Daylight followed a faint cattle trail over a low, rocky hill and through a wine-wooded forest of manzanita, and emerged upon another tiny valley, down which filtered another spring-fed, meadow-bordered streamlet.

"It sure beats country places and bungalows at Menlo Park," he communed aloud; "and if ever I get the hankering for country life, it's me for this every time."

An old wood-road led him to a clearing, where a dozen acres of grapes grew on wine-red soil. A cow-path, more trees and thickets, and he dropped down a hillside to the southeast exposure. Here, poised above a big forested canyon, and looking out upon Sonoma Valley, was a small farmhouse. With its barn and outhouses it snuggled into a nook in the hillside, which protected it from the west and north. It was the erosion from this hillside, he judged, that had formed the little level stretch of vegetable garden. The soil was fat and black, and there was water in plenty, for he saw several faucets running wide open. Forgotten was the brickyard. Nobody was at home, but Daylight dismounted and ranged the vegetable garden, eating strawberries and green peas, inspecting the old adobe barn and rusty plow and harrow, and rolling and smoking cigarettes while he watched the antics of several broods of young chicks and the mother hens.

Nothing could satisfy his holiday spirit now but the ascent of Sonoma Mountain. And here on the crest, three hours afterward, he emerged, tired and sweaty, garments torn and face and hands scratched, but with sparkling eyes and an unwonted zestfulness of expression. He felt the illicit pleasure of a schoolboy playing truant. The big gaming table of San Francisco seemed very far away. But there was more than illicit pleasure in his mood. It was as though he were going through a sort of cleansing bath. No room here for all the sordidness, meanness and viciousness that filled the dirty pool of city existence. He was loath to depart, and it was not for an hour that he was able to tear himself away and take the descent of the mountain. Working out a new route just for the fun of it, late afternoon was upon him when he arrived back at the wooded knolls.

Daylight cast about for a trail, and found one leading down the side opposite to his ascent. Circling the base of the knoll, he picked up with his horse and rode on to the farmhouse. Smoke was rising from the chimney, and he was quickly in conversation with a nervous, slender young man, who, he learned, was only a tenant on the ranch. How large was it? A matter of one hundred and eighty acres, though it seemed much larger. This was because it was so irregularly shaped. Yes, it included the clay-pit and all the knolls, and its boundary that ran along the big canyon was over a mile long. Oh, yes, he and his wife managed to scratch a living without working too hard. They didn't have to pay much rent. Hillard, the owner, depended on the income from the clay-pit. Hillard was well off and had big ranches and vineyards down on the flat of the valley. The brickyard paid ten cents a cubic yard for the clay. As for the rest of the ranch, the land was good in patches, where it was cleared, like the vegetable garden and the vineyard, but the rest of it was too much up-and-down.

"You're not a farmer," Daylight

The young man laughed and shook his head.

"No; I'm a telegraph operator. But the wife and I decided to take a two-years' vacation, and . . . here we are. But the time's about up. I'm going back into the office this fall after I get the grapes off."

As Daylight listened, there came to him a sudden envy of this young fellow living right in the midst of all this which Daylight had traveled through the last few hours.

"What in thunder are you going back to the telegraph office for?" he demanded.

The young man smiled with a certain wistfulness.

"Because we can't get ahead here. . . ." (he hesitated an instant), "and because there are added expenses coming. The rent, small as it is, counts; and besides, I'm not strong enough to effectually farm the place. If I owned it, or if I were a real husky like you, I'd ask nothing better. Nor would the wife." Again the wistful smile hovered on his face. "You see, we're country born, and after bucking with cities for a few years, we kind of feel we like the country best. We've planned to get ahead, though, and then some day we'll buy a patch of land and stay with it."

Daylight could not persuade himself to keep to the traveled roads that day, and another cut across country to Glen Ellen brought him upon a canyon that so blocked his way that he was glad to follow a friendly cow-path. This led him to a small frame cabin. The doors and windows were open, and a cat was nursing a litter of kittens in the doorway, but no one seemed at home. He descended the trail that evidently crossed the canyon. Part way down, he met an old man coming up through the sunset. In his hand he carried a pail of foamy milk. He wore no hat, and in his face, framed with snow-white hair and beard, was the ruddy glow and content of the passing summer day. Daylight thought that he had never seen so contented looking a being.

"How old are you, daddy?" he queried.

"Eighty-four," was the reply. "Yes, sirree, eighty-four, and spryer than most."

"You must a' taken good care of yourself," Daylight suggested.

"I don't know about that. I ain't loafed none. I walked across the plains with an ox team and fit Injuns in '51, and I was a family man with seven youngsters. I reckon I was as old then as you are now, or pretty nigh on to it."

"Don't you find it lonely here?"

The old man shifted the pail of milk and reflected.

"That all depends," he said oracularly. "I ain't never been lonely except when the old wife died. Some fellers are lonely in a crowd, and I'm one of them. That's the only time I'm lonely, is when I go to 'Frisco. But I don't go no more, thank you 'most to death. This is good enough for me. I've been right here in this valley since '54—one of the first settlers after the Spaniards."

The old man chuckled, and Daylight rode on, singularly at peace with himself and all the world. It seemed that the old contentment of trail and camp he had known on the Yukon had come back to him. He could not shake from his eyes the picture of the old pioneer coming up the trail through the sunset light. He was certainly going some for eighty-four. The thought of following his example entered Daylight's mind, but the big game of San Francisco vetoed the idea.

SOMERVILLE HEARS FORMER GOVERNOR

There was a large and enthusiastic gathering of Somerset county Republicans at the mass meeting held last night in the armory in Somerville. Nearly all parts of the county were represented and special cars from Bound Brook took the Republican Club from that place and the J. Franklin Fort Club of Greenbrook to the county seat in a body. Prosecutor Frederick A. Pope called the meeting to order and introduced State Senator Joseph Sherman Frelinghuysen as chairman.

The speakers were former Governor J. Franklin Fort, W. W. Smalley, candidate for State Senator, and William de laR. Anderson, candidate for member of the Assembly. All of the campaigners were given rousing receptions and the applause greeting Mr. Fort was loud and prolonged. He was the last speaker and at the conclusion of his address he was presented with a large bouquet of chrysanthemums by Charles P. Sebinrg, president of the Greenbrook J. Franklin Fort Club. The flowers were the pick of Anthony Zvolnack's crop of blooms.

THE FINAL SCORE IS 37 TO 0.

Nash and Ricketts Again Do Good Work—Westfield Never Threatened Opponents' Goal—Details of the Game.

The Plainfield High School football eleven won its second game of the season on Parker Field yesterday, when it defeated the Westfield High School team by a score of 37 to 0. The scoring, started by Nash in the first quarter was continued in every period during the game. All of the local backs hit the Westfield line in whirlwind fashion, tearing through for big gains on nearly every play.

Nash figured largely in the scoring, making two touchdowns, a drop kick from the field and kicking three goals from touchdowns. Ricketts scored two touchdowns. Lindzey and Peacock both crossed the line once and the latter kicked a goal from touchdown. The local team outweighed the visitors, but the victory was largely due to the fast work of the Plainfield backfield. The game ended with a shutout for Westfield, who did not have a chance to score in any period.

Nash made the first touchdown of the game in the first quarter. Westfield received the ball at the thirty-five yard line. After a few short line plunges, the visitors resorted to kicking. The ball went to P. H. S. in the middle of the field. Ricketts made twenty years on a forward pass, but the local team was soon held for downs. Westfield carried the ball back to the middle of the field before Nash picked it up on a fumble and sprinted fifty-five yards of a touchdown. Nash kicked the goal. The quarter ended with P. H. S. at the twenty-yard line.

Nash executed another brilliant play at the beginning of the second quarter when he intercepted a forward pass and ran thirty yards for a touchdown. He kicked the goal. Westfield then kicked off to P. H. S., who covered the length of the geld without the ball changing hands. Peacock made several big gains in this quarter by his dodging and fast footwork and made a touchdown after a fifteen-yard dash around right end. No goal was kicked. Lindzey made the third touchdown in this quarter after the ball had been rushed to the one-yard line. The half ended with a score of 23 to 0.

P. H. S. worked a number of trick plays in the last part of the game which all netted large gains. In the third quarter Nash made a neat drop kick from the fifteen yard line. This was the first field goal made this season. The quarter closed with Plainfield's ball at the fifty-yard line.

Several changes were made in the local lineup at the beginning of the last quater. After several short gains, Widoson was called back and kicked to the ten yard line. Westfield fumbled and Harrington recovered the ball for P. H. S. Westfield planted itself firmly and held the local team for downs just outside of the goad. Plainfield recovered the bill at the fourteen yard line. Nash rushed to the seven-yard line and Ricketts ploughed through left for a touchdown. Nash missed the goal. Ricketts made another touchdown in the last few minutes of play and Peacock kicked the goal.

Both teams were penalized for fouls. Westfield was penalized five yards for pushing and P. H. S. ten yards for using only six men on the line. Widoson, Moy, Robinson, Cullin and Harrington played a strong game on the line for P. H. S. Cherry at left halfback starred for Westfield. The lineup:

Referee, A. Doggett; umpire, Mr. Martin; timers, J. C. Field, Wicke; head linesman, Webb; field judge, Mr. Phelps; time of quarters, ten minutes.

MERCHANTS' IDEAS

"What's the Matter With Plainfield" Subject For Discussion at a Dinner.

What is the matter with Plainfield, from the merchants' viewpoint, was told by a number of them last night at a dinner at the Waldorf Hotel, held under the auspices of the Merchants' Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. Every branch of the city's business was represented. The merchants themselves gave expression to their ideas for stimulating trading at home, and two lawyers, former City Judge William R. Codington, and Winfield S. Angleman, told of the legal ramifications of the municipal water question and of the physical difficulties to be overcome. E. F. Feickert, vice-president of the State Trust Company, told of his belief in publicity as a city booster and urged the creation of a fund for advertising purposes. The menu and service was fully in keeping with the high reputation Mr. Windham has established at the Waldorf.

William Jeffery, former president of the Board of Trade, acted as toastmaster and stated that the purpose of the meeting was to get the merchants together for an informal discussion of ideas tending to the betterment of the city and business conditions. To this end he appealed to all called upon to freely and frankly express their views and to offer any suggestions.

A. E. Force was the first merchant called upon and he told of his efforts to secure better lighting in the business section. He mentioned the two petitions circulated and presented to the Common Council and of their demise. Continuing he told of a plan now being perfected to make a proposition to that body at the next meeting. This plan received favorable consideration, he said, after he had taken a number of the councilmen and P. S. C. officials to New Brunswick, where the "white way" on Albany and Church streets in that city was inspected and the plan whereby it was brought about was explained by the New Brunswick merchants.

J. V. E. Vanderhoef, advertising manager of the Woodhull & Martin store, spoke along the lines of publicity, coinciding in what Mr. Feickert had previously mentioned. H. P. Greenwood told of the good work of the Merchants' Association and expressed a desire for a return of its benefit. As next speaker F. A. Duttenhoffer spoke in the same tone and said that there is so much city trade getting away from the merchants that he was of the opinion that an effort should be made to make shopping at home more attractive to the residents here. After their patronage has been secured he thought it would be time to go after the trade of residents in the surrounding hamlets.

Others who spoke were D. J. Carney, Harry H. Sanderson, M. C. Van Arsdale, William R. Townsend, Paul Burns and Hyman Adelberg. They all stated what to their minds were unfavorable conditions that could be improved if the proper method was employed and persued to completion.

In his talk Mr. Codington, while favoring a municipal water plant, decried the expense to which those steering the proposition had already put the taxpayers.

During the dinner and at intervals between the speeches, the Elks' quartette, composed of John V. Todd, Elmer D. Cutting, Harry Blimm and William G. Smith, sang popular selections accompanied on the piano by Prof. Denny.

JURY IN SLANDER CASE DISAGREE, DISCHARGED

After being locked up all night the jury in the libel suit of Excise Commissioner Thomas Y. Bye, of Elizabeth, against John J. Stamler, attorney for the Peter Breidt Brewery Company, was discharged this morning by Judge Vail in the County Court at Elizabeth. The case began early in the week and aroused great interest among residents of the county seat.

The suit was the outcome of trouble which started last June, when Mr. Stamler accused Mr. Bye of taking "graft" and the latter struck Mr. Stamler in the face. The attorney for the brewery company then defied the excise commissioner to start a suit for libel, which he did for $25,000. There were a great many witnesses called, including John E. Weitzel, an Elizabeth newspaper reporter. After the jury was discharged it was learned that eight favored Mr. Bye and four stood by Mr. Stamler.

UNION MEN ALLEGED BLDG. CODE VIOLATIONS

The Councilmanic fire and building committee received a committee from the Carpenters and Joiners Union and Plumbers Union, last night to listen to grievances which the men had to present regarding alleged violations of the building code. The delegation asserted that owing to the fact that Building Inspector T. O. Doane's time is so occupied it is impossible for him to make a close inspection of all building operations. The alleged violations, it was complained, had been going on for a long period and they were charged up to contractors who are doing cheap work.

Building Inspector Doane explained that at present he has eighty-two permits on his list, representing about 125 buildings in course of construction. He said that it was a physical impossibility for him to cover the ground as fully as the work demanded to search for violations. The delegation agreed to his statement. William Harding spoke for the carpenters and Peter Winn for the plumbers.

The committee promised to look into the matter thoroughly and give the men another hearing later on. It seemed to be the opinion that the building code was violated chiefly by non-union men.

R. H. M'ADAMS QUITS CO. ELECTION BOARD

Robert H. McAdams, nominee for the State Senatorship, yesterday sent to Governor Wilson his resignation as chairman and member of the Union County Board of Elections, to take effect immediately.

Mr. McAdams has been contemplating this step for some time but has postponed it on the advice of his friends and because he did not wish to stir up a tempest too early before election in the ranks of the party which inevitably would result from his resignation, on account of the rush of candidates to fill the vacancy.

Under the provisions of the election law, no member of a board of registry and elections shall be elected to any office at the election in which he shall serve, and while there has been some discussion in regard to the interpretation of the section, Mr. McAdams decided that he would tender his resignation rather than to force an issue. Early in the week he conferred with Congressman Tuttle with the result that the resignation was prepared and yesterday morning it was sent to the Governor at Trenton. As Governor Wilson is away on a tour of the West and South, no action can be taken on the resignation until November 1 at the earliest, as the Governor will not return until October 31.

The Democratic County Committee will meet tonight and it is probable that someone will be chosen to fill the vacancy, but nothing can be done until the resignation of Mr. McAdams has been acted upon by the Governor.

The affair was well planned, the choir members meeting at the home of George Leighs and proceeding in a body to the home of Miss Jones on Essex street. Thomas Hendry, on behalf of the choir, presented Miss Jones with a gift and at the same time expressing the appreciation of each one for her faithful services and also regrets over her resignation.

PHYSICAL CULTURE

Miss Jackson Gives Talk on Health at Parent-Teacher Association Meeting.

Interest in the subject discussed by Miss Ada Jackson, that of physical culture in the public schools, attracted a large number of mothers to the Franklin-Whittier-Stillman Parent-Teachers' Association meeting yesterday afternoon in the Stillman School auditorium. There was a short business meeting prior to the lecture. She followed the progress of the child from the time it enters the school and defined what to her mind are the most vital stages.

Miss Jackson said that from the fifth grade on she deems the most important in mental development and between the ages of 11 and 14 years she considers the period when physical development should be given serious thought and attention.

In explanation of her view regarding the pupil during this time, Miss Jackson said that statistics show that in the first years of the teens, a child's limbs develop so rapidly that the slow growth of the trunk is out of proportion and organic enlargement is accordingly retarded. This is particularly true, she said, of the heart and lungs.

To equalize this disporportionate development, a system of calesthenics has been carefully prepared by her for school and home execution, and Miss Jackson devoted some time to mastering the exercises prior to her engagement for giving instruction along this line. No especial preparation is necessary, she said, for anyone to become an adept in the movements and if he or she is methodically practised the health and development are greatly improved.

Taking up the subject of fresh air, the speaker said that the lungs of a growing child are capable of consuming an astonishing amount of oxygen and that too much care cannot be exercised in producing good ventilation in home and school for this reason. Several simple and practical hints for securing fresh air at all times in all rooms were given and in referring to the sleeping room for growing children, Miss Jackson said that ten hours sleep is not any too much for them. Stress was also placed on the benefit of retiring early as the time honored remark about "beauty sleep or that obtained in the hours before midnight, is not near as witty a remark as it is true and she then defended the adage in couplet about "early to bed and early to rise,"

Following the lecture tea was served, Miss Lansing pouring. All of the other teachers assisted in serving. Miss Margaret VanZandt gave several piano solos. During the business meeting, eighteen new members were added to the list.

DOGS KILL 14 SHEEP ON CODDINGTON FARM.

Dogs made an attack on the sheep pen at William H. Coddington's farm at Mt. Horeb last night and killed fourteen ewes and lambs before completing the visit. This is the second time tht Mr. Coddington has suffered losses through the attacks of dogs on his flock.

Last year six sheep were killed, their mangled bodies being found in the morning when he went to the shed where the animals were housed.

50,000 Not Registered.

From scattering unofficial reports received at the State House, Trenton, it is roughly estimated that there are at least 50,000 voters who cast their ballots on election day one year ago who have failed, under the Geran law, to register for the election November 7 next. The voters who have thus disqualified themselves for the exercising of their suffrage rights this year all live in towns exceeding 5,000 population, personal registration not being required in communities of smaller size.

Mrs. Samuel Morris Wickersham, of East Seventh street, leaves tomorrow for Europe, where she will spend the winter. Accompanying her will be her daughter, Miss Lily Gordon Wickersham, and granddaughter, Miss Dorothy Gordon Hibbard, also of East Seventh street.

ELECTION OFFICERS DENY BEING DRUNK

"It is a malicious falsehood," declared Louis Menge, Republican member of the Board of Registry of the Fourth district of the Eighth ward, Elizabeth, when the accusation that the members of the board were late at the polling place on Tuesday and that they were intoxicated was called to his attention.

The charge was made by Edwin R. Curtiss in a letter to the County Board of Elections and specifies that he refused to register because the members of the board appeared to be under the influence of intoxicants and unfit to do their duty properly.

Joseph Woodruff, another member of the board, was most indignant over the charges and branded them as deliberate falsehood.

There will be a meeting of the County Board of Elections at the Courthouse, Elizabeth, Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock before Judge Atwater, and evidence of the case will be brought forward at that time.

GAVE A RECEPTION FOR PASTOR AND HIS WIFE

Under the auspices of the Pastor's Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church a reception and entertainment was given in the chapel of the church last night for Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Herring. The purpose of the affair was to promote sociability and bring together the new members, who have recently united with the church. Mrs. Clarence E. Bond was general chairman, while Mrs. George A. Ballantyne had charge of the entertainment.

The program comprised whistling solos by Miss Edith Hamilton; recitations by the Misses Marion Wean, Pauline Gates, Georgia Ricker; soprano solos by Miss Ruth Sadler; piano solos by Miss Helen George and songs by Donald Wean, all of which were well received.

The rest of the evening was devoted to social features, during which refreshments were served by the Misses Marion Wean, Barbara Peacock, Marion Englehart, Helen George, Harriet Humphrey, Alice Fenner and Georgia Ricker. Mrs. J. M. Bettman poured coffee. The chapel was decorated for the occasion with autumn leaves, dahlias and chrysanthemums, the work being done by Mrs. Percy Dayton, Mrs. E. W. Poinier and Mrs. C. E. Bond.

BUSINESS STUDENTS HOLD ANNUAL REUNION

The student's society of the Drake Business College held its fourth annual reunion and dance in Deble's auditorium last night. The affair was largely attended by the students and their friends and proved a most successful event in every way. Music was furnished by Suhr's Imperial Orchestra.

The program included a laughable sketch, presented during the course of the evening, entitled "The Haunted House." The characters and their interpreters were as follows: "Clarence White Asterbilt, suposed to be from somewhere," Howard J. Armstrong; "Jeremiah Worthless Washington Lee," a no account nigger from nowhere, John A. Henry; "The Ghost," F. C. Denton. The scene was a deserted house and afforded plenty of opportunity for humorous situations.

The dance program was composed of eighteen members, C. W. Fogarty acting as floor manager. Refreshments were served during an intermission.

The affair was arranged and in charge of the following committee: Howard J. Armstrong, general manager; P. B. McHugh, R H. Bullard, F. C. Denton, and the Misses Martha Reid, Helen Flatley and Anna Sullivan. The hall was prettily decorated with the college colors. Miss Nettie Ford received a handsome pillow made by Miss Pauline Denton for selling the greatest number of tickets.

P. B. C. Alumni Banquet.

The Alumni Association of the Plainfield Business College, at a business meeting last night, decided to hold a banquet in December. The exact date and the details will be arranged later. The subject of class pins was also discussed but no action was taken. Harry Porter acted as chairman of the meeting.

MORMONS IN BORO

Utah Missionaries Get a Better Reception in North Plainfield They Say.

Undaunted by Mayor Moy's statement to them that he would use every legal means to prevent their spreading Mormanism here should they attempt it, the two elders of that faith who called upon him are propogating the faith in this vicinity at present confining their attention to North Plainfield. Elder Albert J. Newman, of Murray, Utah, and Elder Arthur S. Horsley, of Price, Utah, are the two missionaries sent out from the Mormon Mission House, No. 33 West 126th street, New York, to make converts in this community and according to statements made by them today they are meeting with success over in the borough.

"I wish to take exception to the statement made by Mayor Moy in your paper yesterday," said Elder Horsley today. "The article asserts that he gave us a hearing. He did no such thing. As a matter of fact he refused to give us a hearing. We called upon him and attempted to explain our object in visiting Plainfield but he was too busy to talk with us. We left some of our tracts and arranged to come the next day.

"When we came back the next day to see Mayor Moy, he abruptly dismissed us by saying, 'I haven't had time to read your tracts and I won't talk to you.' He gave us to understand that if we attempted to visit homes here with our tracts he would find a way to stop us. Over in North Plainfield they were more considerate and we are engaged now in visiting the homes and wherever possible explaining our creed."

DR. BUCHANAN SPEAKS TO HEAVENLY REST CLUB.

These officers were chosen by the Heavenly Rest Chuch Men's Club at a largely attended meeting last night in the parish house: President, William J. Ochiltree; vice-president, Geo. Caskey; treasurer, Robert Larmour, Jr.; secretary, Mortimer Givens; financial secretary, William Sieghin. The newly-elected president made a brief address of acceptance.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan read an instructive paper on "Preservation of the Health." The physician brought to his hearers a number of simple and practical hints for caring for the system to keep it free from disease. He put stress on the three fundamental requirments, pure air, nutrition, and proper rest. The club accepted an invitation from the Grace church club to attend an entertainment and smoker to be given Monday night, November 6.

PARENT-TEACHER ASS'N. DISCUSSES SOME PLANS.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Irving-Jefferson schools held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Irving school assembly hall and discussed plans for the Mothers' Congress annual session to be held here next month. Arrangements were also made for the next meeting which will be held in the nature of a reception and take place in the Jefferson school.

Following the business meeting the remainder of the afternoon was spent in a social way and refreshments were served. The attendance was gratifying, more than a hundred being present.

CAPTAIN HOWE IS OUT AT NEW HAVEN.

New Haven, Oct. 27.—With many substitutes in the lineup the Yale varsity yesterday afternoon played a no-score practise game with the scrub team. The practise was interrupted from time to time in order that coaches might explain some play to the men. Both Head Coach Field and Foster Sanford took turns at this. It is probable that the varsity would have scored if the coaches had not stopped them to put some special kind of a play against the scrubs.

On one occasion the scrubs were told the play which was to be sent against them and were able to stop it. This was within ten yards of the Yale goal line and the varsity was told to put the play through tackle. Anderson tried it first and when he failed to put the pigskin over Merrit tried it. He failed also and there was no scoring.

Before the scrimmage was over Captain Howe went in to do some kicking. He didn't get into the scrimmage, for fear that he would be injured again, but he did the varsity punting and made an onside kick which netted a good gain.

Against Howe doing the punting for the scrub team there was Paul Veeder, who did the punting for Sammy Morse's team. McDevitt, who has been playing guard for the varsity, was out of the scrimmage with a bad cold and St. Germain played his position.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Denman Thompson's charming play, "The Old Homestead" will be seen here on Monday night. There are many reasons why "The Old Homestead" has been so successful for twenty-six years. One of the most important of them is that the characters are drawn from real life. The audience seems to appreciate the fact that Cy Prime, Aunt Matilda, Seth Perkins, Rickety Ann, Eb Ganzey and dear Uncle Josh, are real, live people and not fictions of the author's imagination. Denman Thompson lived among these people for many years before he gave Uncle Josh to the stage. He became intimate with their daily life, and he made copious notes of the humorous and pathetic incidents with which New England country life is crowded. And so the thing seemed to grow in his mind as the years went by, until he had prepared a series of pictures (living pictures, in the truest sense of the word) which became in time the finished drama, and which he aptly called "The Old Homestead," thereby giving to the stage one of the few really successful plays of this generation. When the history of the American stage comes to be written, no play will occupy a more conspicuous page in its annals than this unique creation of the brain of Denman Thompson.

Most plays wind up with a marriage, but Edith Ellis, who dramatized E. P. Roe's novel, "He Fell in Love with His Wife," starts her play with a wedding ceremony. After that she spends the next three acts in showing how the two married fell in love with each other. The play will be seen here at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. It is a plain tale of the sweet green fields, and the aroma of white clover and new mown hay seems to filter through the lines as the play progresses. A farmer, with a farmer's stolid indifference to romance, marries a girl for the principal reason that it is hard to keep a servant. He offers her a home if she will cook for him and attend to the household duties. She accepts, and they take up their humdrum life with absolutely no feeling. Very skilfully and very ingeniously, Miss Ellis brings out the womanly depth of feeling in the girl, and shows conclusively that although of lowly birth she is still capable of loving and hungering for love in return. This side of her character, although not taken into cognizance by the man, still appeals to him subconsciously, and before he knows it he finds her more than a servant. It takes a long time to waken him up, but he is finally startled when his brain really does work to realize that he is in love, head over heels, with his partner.

Proctor's Fine Show.

The Reckless Recklaw Troupe of European comedy bicyclists offer one of the best acts ever seen at Proctor's theatre. Two men and a girl perform daring feats on all kinds of bicycles. The Five McGregors present a high class Scotch act, and the four men and a woman have sweet voices, and the woman has already captivated the patrons with her voice and winning manner. Ted and Corinne Breton, the old salt and merry sailor girl, have an unusually good line of talk and songs; Westford and Bock, in comedy sketch, "Room 23," and Basil Brady, the monologuist, are far above the average.

—At Neuman Bros.' tomorrow there will be a choice display of fruits, including oranges, grape fruit, Sickle pears, Bartlett pears, Concord, Niagara, Tokay Cornishon and Malaga grapes.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

Causebrook, of East Second street, was the celebration of the birthdays of two of the members, George Wescott and Phillip Kirch. Appropriate gifts were presented to them after refreshments were served.

HARVARD IS READY FOR BROWN BATTLE.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 27.—Perry Haughton put the finishing touches to his eleven for Saturday's game against Brown, yesterday afternoon, keeping his regulars and substitutes busy against each other for an hour in the stadium, the scrub team being allowed to rest. The work was almost entirely scrimmage, but the play was directed by the coaches so as to work out Saturday's plays, and to have the substitutes give the varsity defense a thorough trying out on varieties of open play.

There was no scoring, but, for all that, the men were tired when they came back to the locker building. Captain Fisher showed that his physical condition is all right by getting into the thick of the game, and there is now no doubt that he will lead his team on to the field against Brown. Storrer, whose ankle was wrenched Wednesday, also was on the field and took part in the scrimmage.

COMBS HURT WORSE THAN FIRST THOUGHT.

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—Jack Coombs, the brilliant Athletic pitcher, is in bed at his home in this city with serious internal injuries. In the sixth inning of Wednesday's game at New York he wrenched his intestines. Yesterday his condition was so much worse that his physician called in two other doctors. They succeeded in reducing the injury and say no operation will be necessary. Coombs, however, will be in bed for a week and will have to wear a truss for some time. He will be able to pitch again next season, the doctors say.

Coombs, when seen in bed, said that in the sixth inning his cleats caught in the hole in the pitcher's box and when he delivered the ball he felt a terrific jar. The pain was intense, especially on the right side, but he kept on pitching. In the ninth inning he had to quit after Trainer Chadwick had examined him, though his teammates urged him to keep on. Rupture of the intestines is what killed Dr. Mike Powers, catcher for the Athletics, several years ago.

REQUEST FIRE CHIEF TO RESIGN OFFICE.

As a climax to the trouble between Edgar T. Humphrey, chief of the Nutley Fire Department, and secretary of the State Exempt Firemen's Association, and the members of Yantacaw Chemical Engine Company, of that town, the Town Council at a meeting Wednesday night passed a resolution requesting Humphrey to tender his resignation as chief before the body's next meeting, November 8. Councilman Arthur R. Carr, chairman of the Fire Committee, made the recommendation, saying he had no explanation to offer.

Apparently the recommendation was no surprise to the Coucil. It was after but a short discussion that it was passed by a four to two vote.

Included in Mr. Carr's resolution was a request that the town clerk be directed to send notice of the body's action to the chief.

Character in Our All-Wool Suits at $15

"MADE IN NEWARK"

Suits at $15, which look just like $15 suits, can be seen in the shop of most any manufacturing retailer.

But it has remained for Marshall & Ball to produce a GUARANTEED ALL-WOOL SUIT AT $15 which looks several dollars better than the price and superior to any other suits sold at $15.

This striking characteristic of OUR ALL-WOOL $15 SUITS is accounted for from the fact that they are tailored in OUR OWN WORKSHOP by the same workmen who make our higher priced garments.

The inner materials are so thoroughly shrunken and tailored that shapeliness is permanent. The fronts never break; the collars always set snugly—they "stay put."

If you will compare OUR GUARANTEED ALL-WOOL $15 SUITS with any other $15 suits offered, you will at once recognize their superiority and be convinced that they are away above the $15 class.

There is an unusual choice of patterns, in cheviots and worsteds, including the new brown, gray and blue gray effects, many of them exclusive, as well as plain blue and black. Almost any fancy can be pleased.

OTHER ALL-WOOL SUITS for men and young men at prices all the way from $12 to $35.

OVERCOATS—Men's and Young Men's. Big roomy models, in the popular browns and grays, also Chesterfields, at $12 to $40.

MEN'S $3.50 TO $5.00 SHOES AT $2.85. Saturday the Last Day.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

There is no single scene in George Broadhurst's comedy-drama at the Playhouse which equals the interview between the wife and the sea captain in Walter' drama, but the characterizations are superior and the comedy interest is so much greater that it bids fair to appeal to an even wider public. It is a delight to hear an audience roar with laughter as they did at the Playhouse last night, for it was laughter which a great deal of the time had a tear behind it. Clever farceur as he has proved himself in the past, in this play Mr. Broadhurst never even resorts to a farcical touch. He has written a splendid human comedy and given it a serious background which always rings true.

Globe, Broadway and 48th street—"Gypsy Love." Miss Phyllis Parrington, who alternates with Miss Marguerite Sylvia in the leading character was not known by half a dozen persons in the audience. But before the end of the performance everybody was asking who was the young singer whom chance had forced into a position from which she easily won success in a night. Miss Parrington comes from San Francisco, where her family is well known, and where, five years ago, she made her stage debut at the Tivoli theatre, singing in the chorus of a grand opera production, in which Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini was the prima donna. She remained in San Francisco for two years and then went to Chicago, singing minor roles in one or two not very successful musical plays. A year ago she came to New York, and last season sang minor roles on tour in "Fantana" and "The Snow Man," two productions by the Messrs. Shubert. Early in the summer A. H. Woods engaged her for Franz Lehar's newest opera success, which promises to be a long run at this cozy little theatre.

NO DAMAGES FOR A COLD.

Paterson, Oct. 27.—The therapeutics of a cold in the head and the progress of the disease to an illness lasting several weeks, as resulting from exposure in a house where the rain and snow ventured through ceilings and side walls, formed the basis of a contested action in the District Court Wednesday, when Judge Klenert, presiding, declared:

"Colds may be 'caught' anywhere. Even where homes are amply protected from the elements, occupants suffer illness."

The judge declared that he was unable to find from the evidence that Mrs. Alfred Bell received her illness from the conditions of her former home at 237 Edmund street, as her husband declared, and so granted a non-suit.

CHAPTER XII.

Instead of returning to the city on Monday, Daylight rented the butcher's horse for another day and crossed the bed of the valley to its eastern hills. As on the previous day, just for the joy of it, he followed cattle-trails at haphazard and worked his way up toward the summits. Coming out upon a wagon road that led upward, he followed it for several miles, emerging in a small, mountain-encircled valley, where half a dozen poor ranchers farmed the wine-grapes on the steep slopes. Beyond, the road pitched upward. Dense chaparral covered the exposed hillsides, but in the creases of the canyons huge spruce trees grew, and wild oats and flowers.

Late in the afternoon he broke through, and followed a well-defined trail down a dry canyon. The dry canyon gave place to one with a slender ribbon of running water. The trail ran into a wood-road, and the wood-road emerged across a small flat upon a slightly traveled country road. There were no farms in this immediate section, and no houses. The soil was meager, the bed-rock either close to the surface or constituting the surface itself. Manzanita and scrub-oak, however, flourished and walled the road on either side with a jungle growth. And out a runway through this growth a man suddenly scuttled in a way that reminded Daylight of a rabbit.

He was a little man, in patched overalls; bareheaded, with a cotton shirt open at the throat and down the chest. The sun was ruddy-brown in his face, and by it his sandy hair was bleached on the ends to peroxide blonde. He signed to Daylight to halt, and held up a letter.

"If you're going to town, I'd be obliged if you mail this," he said.

"I sure will." Daylight put it into his coat pocket. "Do you live hereabouts, stranger?"

But the little man did not answer. He was gazing at Daylight in a surprised and steadfast fashion.

"I know you," the little man announced. "You're Elam Harnish—Burning Daylight, the papers call you. Am I right?"

Daylight nodded.

"Well, I'm glad I wrote that letter this afternoon," the little man went on, "or else I'd have missed seeing you. I've seen your photo in the papers many a time, and I've a good memory for faces. I recognized you at once. My name's Ferguson."

"Do you live hereabouts?" Daylight repeated his query.

"Oh, yes. I've got a little shack back here in the bush a hundred yards and a pretty spring, and a few fruit trees and berry bushes. Come in and take a look. And that spring is a dandy. You never tasted water like it. Come in and try it."

Walking and leading his horse, Daylight followed the quick-stepping, eager little man through the green tunnel and emerged abruptly upon the clearing, if clearing it might be called, where wild nature and man's earth-scratching were inextricably blended. It was a tiny nook in the hills, protected by the steep walls of a canyon mouth. Here were several large oaks, evidencing a richer soil. The erosion of ages from the hillside had slowly formed this deposit of fat earth. Under the oaks, almost buried in them, stood a rough, unpainted cabin, the wide veranda of which, with chairs and hammocks, advertised an out-of-doors bedchamber. Daylight's keen eyes took in everything. The clearing was irregular, following the patches of the best soil, and every fruit tree and berry bush, and even each vegetable plant, had the water personally conducted to it. The tiny irrigation channels were everywhere, and along some of them the water was running.

"What Do You Think of It, Eh?"

Ferguson looked eagerly into his visitor's face for signs of approbation.

"Hand-reared and manicured, every blessed tree," Daylight laughed, but the joy and satisfaction that shone in his eyes contented the little man.

"Way, d'ye know, I know every one of those trees as if they were sons of mine. I planted them, nursed them, fed them, and brought them up. Come on and peep at the spring."

"It's sure a hummer," was Daylight's verdict, after due inspection and sampling, as they turned back for the house.

The interior was a surprise. The cooking being done in the small, lean-to kitchen, the whole cabin formed a large living-room. A great table in the middle was comfortably littered with books and magazines. All the available wall space, from wall to ceiling, was occupied by filled bookshelves. It seemed to Daylight that he had never seen so many books assembled in one place. Skins of wildcat, coon and deer lay about on the pine board floor.

Daylight found himself charmed and made curious by the little man. Why was he hiding away here in the chaparral, he and his books? So it was, when between them they had washed and wiped the dishes and put them away, and had settled down to a comfortable smoke, that Daylight put his questions.

"Look here, Ferguson. Every since we got together, I've been casting about to find out what's wrong with you, to locate a screw loose somewhere, but I'll be danged if I've succeeded. What are you doing here, anyway?"

Ferguson frankly showed his pleasure at the questions.

Pit Brow Women.

The pit brow women work at the mouths of English coal mines in sheds open to the weather at the sides. The work which they perform has to do with the sorting of the coal according to size and quality and the freeing of it from stones. There is some lifting to be done and some pushing. There is some risk, but not a great deal. Women have been hurt by the catching of their clothing in the belting and machinery, but of late there has been more care than formerly in covering the parts of the machinery which proved dangerous. At the present time accidents are rare and confined for the most part to the crushing of fingers. There is dust constantly rising, and this makes the work untidy. Women working in coal get black faces as well as men, but they wear cloths on their heads, which keep the dust out of their hair, and the fact that they are in the open air, together with the constant muscular exertion required, is on the whole beneficial to their health. Many of the girls are fine figures and all have good color. They prefer the occupation to domestic labor or employment in factories. The wages they earn range from a shilling to 2s. 3d. a day. In the various colliery towns there are upward of 5,000 women thus employed.—Exchange.

An Elastic Appetite.

The American black bear has an appetite that may be appropriately termed elastic. He will kill a thousand pound steer and capture the tiny field mouse for a meal with equal indifference. If a pig or sheep is not handy to his reach he will dine on a colony of ants or a nest of wood grubs. He will feast on dainty birds' eggs or sweet stores of wild honey and on the foulest carrion with like gusto. He will fish for the savory trout, but at the same time snap any warty toad or slimy lizard that may happen along that way. He will seek the luscious wild plum when it has ripened or the wild grape among the branches where the vine clambers and bears its fruit, but will not miss the opportunity to make food of any snake that may lie in ambush there for birds that come to peck at the plums or grapes. The bear has a comprehensive palate. There is scarcely a thing in the animal or vegetable kingdom that will not tickle it.

The Strength of Rings.

Some elaborate calculations, backed by experiments, have been made to determine the "breaking strength" of rings. It appears that a ring of ductile material like malleable iron will be pulled out into the form of a long link before it breaks and that the ultimate strength of the ring is virtually independent of its diameter. Fracture finally occurs as the result of almost pure tension, and the resistance to breaking is a little less than twice that of a rod of the same cross section subjected to a straight pull. As the ring increases in diameter there appears to be a slight approach toward equality, with double the strength of a bar. Thus a three inch ring made of three-quarter inch iron broke at nineteen and one-half tons; a four inch ring at nineteen and nine-tenths tons and a six inch ring at twenty tons, the strength of a bar of the same metal being ten and one-half tons.

A King Full.

When a man charged with disorderly conduct was arraigned by Patrolman Queen before a chief magistrate in the Adams street court, Brooklyn, the court asked, "What's your name?" "Thomas King," was the answer. "Ah," said the magistrate, "a queen captures a king." "Yes, but it wasn't a straight deal," retorted King. "Sure it was," interrupted Queen. "This man is a fourflusher." "What's your business?" "I dig for a living," answered King. "So you are a king of spades," laughed the magistrate. "Yes, but beaten by a club," answered King. "Can you come across with $2?" "A deuce of a fine," spoke up King, "but I'll see you." He handed over the money, and Clerk Hesterberg raked in the pot. "I see a joker's no good in this game," said King as he was leaving court.—Exchange.

New Ways of Serving Old Dishes.

The clever hostess can always show her ingenuity by a touch of novelty in the serving of some of the time honored courses at her dinner. Raw oysters, for instance, produce a very original effect when served with maple syrup or whipped cream.

A very palatable fish pudding may be prepared by mixing the finely chopped fish with sugar, raisins and a bit of vanilla extract, serving cold with a custard sauce.

A delicious dessert is onion jelly with caviar sandwiches and maraschino cherries. Try it.—Judge's Library.

Classified.

"You say you are your wife's third husband?" said one man to another during a talk.

"No, I am her fourth husband," was the reply.

"Heavens, man!" said the first speaker. "You are not a husband—you're a habit."

Duty Done.

The pleasure a man of honor enjoys in the consciousness of having performed his duty is a reward he pays himself for all his pains.—La Bruyere.

Sometimes a noble failure serves the world as faithfully as a distinguished success.

Taking Chances!

That's what the Savings Bank, Insurance Company, Building and Loan Association and other institutions, as well as the individual, are doing when lending on bond and mortgage without securing a Guaranty of Title.

No other service can compare with it.. A FIDELITY GUARANTY is not the product of one man and his clerk, but of the most exhaustive examination by many experts, based not only upon the records, but also upon much history, not shown in the records, but gathered by the Fidelity after many years of searching.

ALL THIS IS AT YOUR SERVICE.

Come in and talk it over.

A TRUST COMPANY TO A CERTAINTY WILL OUTLIVE THE INDIVIDUAL, and in representing you in your real estate transactions will save you the vexatious and ofttime costly delays coincident with the administration of the individual representative's estate after death.

Are you exercising the utmost precaution for the protection of your money loaned upon bond and mortgage by using the antiquated method of a "search of title" by the individual when the facilities of title insurance ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEEING your title are offered you at no greater expense by a home company WITH OVER $9,500,000 OF CAPITAL AND SURPLUS TO PROTECT ITS GUARANTY?

Fidelity Trust Co.,

NEWARK, N. J.,

guarantees the title and relieves you of all risk, annoyance or uncertainty.

ARTISTS PLEASED

Mr. and Mrs. Walter David Well Entertained Trinity Church Folk.

MISS ETTA RAYBERT SOLOIST.

Charming Soprano Thrills Hearers—Gifted Harpist and Impersonator Make Evenings Entertainment Complete.

Walter David, impersonator and reader, and Mrs. Walter David, harpist, assisted by Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano, were greeted by a large audience at Trinity Reformed church, last night, when they gave an entertainment of unusual merit. The artists are all favorites with the people of Trinity, and the performance last night was fully in keeping with their reputation.

In addition to the regular numbers on the program, the artists were generous in their response to encores, and it was late when the entertainment was concluded. The incomparable work of Mrs. David as a harpist is well-known and she was given a genuine ovation last night. Mr. David, who it would be heard to excel in his work, delighted his hearers with some new selections. By request he repeated one old favorite number, "That Sweetheart of Mine," with harp accompaniment. Miss Raybert, never in better voice, gave a number of favorite selections. She was accompanied on the harp by Mrs. David.

The program was opened with Mr. David, who gave one of his charming recitals, followed with a harp selection and then Miss Raybert sang, "The Rose," "Annie Laurie" and "Just a Song at Twilight," for an encore.

Mr. David's next three numbers were "Hayseed," "Why I Am Single" and "Grass," in which he convulsed his audience with laughter. Mrs. David rendered two charming number, "Autumn," and Beethoven's "Minuet."

Miss Raybert favored the audience with three popular numbers, "Dawn," "On a Summer's Day," and "The Rosary." One of Mr. David's most pleasing selections was entitled "He Knew Lincoln," it being a true story as related by Bill Brown, of Springfield, Mass., and written by Miss Ida Tarbell. Mr. David concluded the program with two numbers, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," and "When Earth's Last Picture is Painted," by Rudyard Kipling, both of which were given with harp accompaniment.

The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band of the church, and was an entire success. At the close F. S. Cutter, who had arranged the entertainment, announced that Mrs. David would play the harp at the musical service at Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow night.

SOME FINE PAINTINGS AT PROCTOR'S THEATRE.

Lovers of art have been attracted by the changes made in the decoration of the long entrance hall at Proctor's theatre. The artist, Samuel Schneider, a Frenchman, of considerable ability, has just completed the task after four months' labor. There are fourteen panels of classical decorative paintings, reproductions from famous European works of art, and also some original designs by Mr. Schneider. They represent the French, Italian, German, Spanish and American schools. The original paintings are "Still Life," Sowers tapestry panel and "After the Storm," a landscape with elks at the water's edge.

Women's Work For Women.

Two interesting papers on women's missionary work among the women of foreign lands and among the immigrants who come to our shores were presented at the meeting of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, held yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Shreve, of Grove street. Mrs. Robin Brown's paper gave the status of women in India, China, Japan and Africa, and "What to do for the Immigrants," was the subject treated by Miss Elizabeth Nash, who told of their reception at Ellis Island and the efforts made by the Women's Foreign Missionary Society to influence and direct them. Preceding the papers a devotional service was held by the president, Mrs. Albert Kenelly.

RAISE GIANT POTATOES AT ALMS' HOUSE FARM

A display of three sweet potatoes in the windows of The Daily Press office is attracting considerable attention. They were raised on the city's Alms House farm and were taken from the ground yesterday. Two of the bulbs tip the scales at three pounds each and the other, the most unique of the three weights five and a half pounds. It contains eight fully developed potaoes and is the case of where the hill grew together.

Overseer-of-the-Poor Alexander Ayres said that 800 plants were set out by him in May and the crop will probably reach more than fifty busheds. Not all of those dug are as freakish as the ones on exhibition, but all instead are of good quality and large size. One of the three pounders is a red sweet. Its mate and the large one are of the ordinary kind.

EXCELLENT ATTRACTION AT THEATRE TONIGHT

Of course, everybody who could read 20 years ago, and a large number of those who have the same power today, know the interesting novel of Rev. E. P. Roe, the Hudon River novelist, whose stories are nearly all set amid the beautiful scenery which surrounded his own home. The announcement that Edith Ellis has just completed a dramatization of Roe's most popular novel "He Fell in Love with His Wife," will therefore arouse great interest among theatre-goers of this country. The new play will be produced at the Plainfield theatre tonight by Frazee & Lederer, who have a company of talented players, headed by May Buckley and Frederick Burton, to portray the strong, quaint characters of Roe's inimitable story of country life in Northern New York.

And all the characters that moved so humanly and interestingly through the absorbing pages of the story, will be seen as actual figures in the clever stage version made by Miss Ellis. She has taken the heart of the story for her play, showing the skill of the trained dramatist and the art of the literary genius in selecting its salient points, condensing them into a strong and dramatic work, catching the characteristic Roe atmosphere yet leaving out everything that is not essential to the dramatic story itself. Those who have been privileged to read her play in advance are unanimous in stating that it is one of the best pieces of its agreeable kind—a play which places before American theatre-goers a delightful phase of American country life. The three acts of Miss Ellis' play are laid at the Holcrofts' farm home, which is the central scene, it will be remembered, in the action of the book. All the quaint and amusing characters which surround the two, strong central figures of the story, have been utilized, and it is believed that "He Fell in Love With His Wife," will prove a second "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," as a thrillingly interesting play of American types and American fibre.

This exceptional cast and complete production come direct from a successful engagement at the Cort Theatre, Chicago.

Arrested On Suspicion.

Peter Ritter and John Shugars, of Dunellen, were arrested in that borough, Thursday night, on suspicion of being the men who had broken into a Jersey Central passenger car in the local yards and badly wrecking the interior. It was also believed that they might know something about a shoe store robbery in Bound Brook but questioning on the part of railroad detectives, Detective Totten, of Somerville, and Marshal Benson, of Dunellen, failed to elicit any information. They were released after being detained in the borough jockup for an hour.

Gave Dinner Parties.

Several friends of Mrs. V. M. Purcell, of East Seventh street, tendered dinner parties at her home, last night, anticipating by several days the formal opening of her new dining room. There were thirty present in all. The decorations of palms and plants, together with the massive mahogany furniture and brilliant lights, presented a very pretty scene. The handsome evening gowns of the women added a finish to the scene seldom seen outside of the city's exclusive homes.

STATE WOMEN'S CLUBS ARE IN SESSION TODAY

The Monday Afternoon Club and other similar organizations here affiliated with the State Federation of women's Clubs were unable to send delegates to the semi-annual meeting of the State Federation at Haddonfield, today, owing to the difficulty in reaching the place. The Monday Afternoon Club, however, sent a telegram of greeting to the State body.

International peace and the efficiency of the schools of New Jersey were the two important subjects to be considered today. They were presented by two speakers, Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, of Boston, and Dr. Calvin N. Kendall, State School Commission. Mrs. Howard Crosby Warren, president, is presiding at the sessions. Reports will be presented from the chairmen of departments and an innovation will be three minute talks by the ten district vice presidents, who were elected to do the work formerly undertaken by the county chairmen. Among the vice presidents to report will be Mrs Florence Howe Hall, formerly of this city.

TO OPPOSE REPEAL OF LIABILITY LAW

William H. Lunger and Thomas Harding were appointed a committee at the meeting of the Building Trades' Council, last night, to wait on the Assembly candidates and get their views regarding the Employers' Liability Act, which it is claimed the contractors throughout the State will endeavor to have repealed or changed. It is the purpose of the journeymen to support those candidates who will favor the retention of the present law.

It was reported last night that the contractors will make an effort to either have the bill taken off the statute books or considerably changed, owing to the fact that they are put to heavy expense in securing insurance to protect themselves against liability of accidents to their employes.

THEY AIM TO PROTECT LOCAL WATER SUPPLY

The Councilmanic water committee was present last night at a meeting of the Board of Health. All efforts to learn what transpired at the session proved futile today when information was sought. This simple statement was handed out by the Board of Health for publication:

"A joint meeting of the Water Committee of the Common Council and of the Board of Health was held last evening for the purpose of devising means looking toward the further protection of the water supply of Plainfield. Plans were talked over and various recommendations discussed. No final action was taken. The water will be further considered at the regular meeting of the Board of Health."

HALLOWE'EN MASQUERADE IN CHAS. LEIGH'S HONOR.

A Hallowe'en masquerade surprise was tendered to Charles Leighs at his home on South Second street last night, when a company of forty people called unexpectedly and took possession of the home. The costumes showed considerable originality, some of them being very amusing. The evening was spent in dancing, other features being vocal and instrumental music and Gramaphone selections. Miss Daisy Cowley was at the piano and Donald McPherson played the violin. Refreshments were served at intervals during the evening and it was 5 o'clock this morning when the company departed singing "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

These were present: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leighs, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cowley, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. John Donaldson, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baillie, Mr. and Mrs. William Spalding, Mr. and Mrs. John Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chadwick, Mrs. Clifford, Mrs. Wilson, the Misses Ellen and Daisy Cowley and Messrs. Douglas, Cross, Neil, Bray, Finlay, Howe, McPherson, Irving, Stodd, McInnes and Taylor.

M'ADAMS PARRIES

Places His Resignation in Vest Pocket Instead of on Governor's Desk.

STILL ON THE ELECTION BOARD.

Holds On to One Office While a Candidate For Another, Although Election Law Forbids It.

Evidently hoping that Governor Wilson, who is at present making a tour of the West, will not return to Trenton in time to act upon his resignation as chairman of the County Board of Elections, Robert H. McAdams, Democratic nominee for State Senator, is holding in his office in the Kean building, Elizabeth, a typewritten resignation. He was to have mailed it the early part of the week. Then he was to have sent it to Trenton on Wednesday. Thursday, too, he was to have mailed it. He has not done so and offers no plausible reason.

McAdams, under the election law, is compelled to resign. Acquaintances of the Democratic nominee say he is shrewd enough to see that if Governor Wilson does not act upon his resignation until after election he will still hold a paying job in the county in the event of his defeat. The general belief is that McAdams has been "stalling" on the question of resigning as a member of the County Board of Elections and has kept the game running along smoothly to date.

Yesterday the story of McAdams' resignation as a member of the County Board of Elections was published. The story came from McAdams. He said he was going to send his resignation to Governor Wilson. It was learned yesterday afternoon that he had not, although he had the resignation written and signed. Today he said he was still holding it.

Before the primaries when the question came up as to whether McAdams and George Stewart could still hold their positions as members of the county board in the event of their nominations, both candidates declared that if nominated they would resign from the election board. Stewart was defeated at the primaries. McAdams won out by a few votes. The primary election was ample opportunity to resign in that time, but has failed to do so despite the fact that he knows he is compelled to under the election law.

It was only after a story was published, showing that McAdams had to either quit his position on the county board or get out of the Senatorship fight that the nominee became satisfied that he must act. For two weeks and more he has been "hedging." The question of his resignation has been put up to him day after day. He has been pushed so hard to show his hand that he had a resignation written and signed it. This he showed as proof that he intended to quit the county board.

McAdams has not "formally" resigned, in that he has postponed the slight resignation to Governor Wilson. Democrats who know McAdams are satisfied that he is simply "sparring for time."

AUTOMOBILE SMASHED WHEN IT HITS A TREE.

In an effort to prevent being run into by another auto, the driver of which was not looking where he was going, James Stiller, of New York, turned his car sharply to the right at Madison avenue and West Fifth street, yesterday afternoon. The quick turning on the steering wheel caused his car, however, to become unmanageable for a moment and it jumped at a tree before the driver could come to a stop.

The accident although seen by the driver of the other auto did not cause him to stop and putting on speed he drove away. A large crowd collected and Dr. N. W. Currie, who saw the accident, stopped and offered assistance. The damaged car was removed to Thompson's garage where it is undergoing repairs. The front end was badly stove in, the front axle bent and the lamps smashed.

The funeral will be private.

ANNUAL RECEPTION AT THE PARK CLUB

The annual reception marking the resumption of fall and winter activities held at the Park Club last night was largely attended by members and friends of the club, including a number from out of town. It was followed by dancing which was continued until this morning.

The clubhouse seldom has looked more attractive in its elaborate decorations, the work of Henry Johnson. Clemetis, chrysanthemums willow and autumn branches were used with good effect about the stage and throughout the hall and combined with colored lights presented an attractive picture.

The patronesses for the affair were Mrs. Wayland E. Benjamin, Mrs. William Barlow, Jr., Mrs. Hugh F. Fox, Mrs. DeWitt Hubbell, Mrs. A. W. Kleinecke, Mrs. Donald A. McGee, Mrs. Francis L. Sill and Mrs. H. A. G. Taylor. Mrs. Samuel Townsend is the chairman of the entertainment committee. During the dancing there was an intermission when refreshments were served.

PRIZE WALTZ FEATURE OF JOLLY BACHELORS' DANCE.

Fully 100 couples attended the first dance of the Five Jolly Butchers in Sangerbund Hall last night. It was one of the most successful affairs of the kind this season. Music was furnished by Paroubek's orchestra.

A feature of the dance program was a prize waltz given at 11 o'clock. There were fourteen couples at the start, all of whom executed the figures of the light fantastic in such a graceful manner that the judges found it a hard proposition to select the winners. The $5 gold piece was finally awarded Miss Lizzie Novatney and William Drake.

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of W. L. Randall, L. J. Stites, Robert T. Skinner, Edward Terry and Charles Setler.

ENDORSE SCHLOTTER FOR ELECTIONS' BOARD

At its meeting last night, the Union County Democartic Committee at Elizabeth passed a resolution endorsing George H. Schlotterer, of Elizabeth, for member of the Board of Elections in the event of Governor Wilson accepting the resignation of Robert H. McAdams, candidate for State Senator. Mr. Schlotterer was defeated by J. Logan Fay for the shrievalty nomination.

This was a regular meeting of the committee and aside from routine matters acted upon, challengers were selected for all polling places throughout the county. Frank J. Shattle, of this city, presided in the absence of chairman W. E. Tuttle. The appointment of McAdams' successor is made by Governor Wilson on the recommendation of the party's committee.

Charles O. Wright, of Ridgewood, conducted devotional exercises. David R. Porter, international secretary for high and preparatory schools, spoke on the assembly of boys' workers of the world, which will be held a year from next May, and urged the New Jersey men to plan ahead for attending this initial gathering of the kind. He also recommended the "Order of the Hour Glass," an organization to promote the reading of scientific and technical books on the boy question.

RACING AUTOS CAUSE TROUBLE FOR A TRUCK.

To avoid a collision with two racing automobiles coming towards him abreast, the driver of a Schwaltz Company truck pulled far to one side of South avenue, near "The Maples," at Terrill road at 3 o'clock this morning and was ditched in the mud. The heavily loaded truck seemed about to tople over, and fearing that it would do so the driver jumped. Neither driver of the other machines slackened his pace and after staying with his car until daylight, the Schmaltz driver was given a tow by the driver of the Fiegenspan Brewery truck which happened along.

Ropes were secured from the hotel and after being pulled out of the mad the Schmaltz truck was able to proceed to this city, arriving several hours late. The driver left immediately for Hoboken after discharging his load. He said that he could not get the numbers of the cars which crowded him off the road.

NO VOTE FOR FAY

E. C. Pearson Expresses Local Democratic Sentiment on Shrievalty Nomination.

CANDIDACY IS UNFORTUNATE.

Stalwart Democrat Says that He Will Cast His Ballot For G. O. P. Nominee As a Rebuke to His Own Party.

Among the hundreds of Democrats and Independent voters in Plainfield who were astonished to find that the Democratic party nominated at the primaries for the shrievalty, Freeholder J. Logan Fay, was Edward C. Pearson, of Second place. Mr. Pearson, a New York lawyer, is an ardent Democrat, but he with scores of others will cast their ballots for William H. Wright, the Republican shrievalty nominee, on November 7. Fay, they realize, abandoned the saloon business only to aspire for the highly important office of sheriff of Union county. At the Democratic primaries, be it said for the good of Plainfield, Fay only received seven votes, but he was made a winner by the Elizabeth result. His opponent, Mr. Wright, is held in the highest esteem throughout the county and particularly in his own town, Rahway. Clergymen and business men of Rahway, irrespective of party, have only the best of things to say of the G. O. P. nominee.

Here is what Mr. Pearson has to say in explanation of why he cannot and won't as a Democrat vote for Mr. Fay:

Editor, The Daily Press:

The nomination of a saloonkeeper on the Democratic ticket for the important office of sheriff is a most unfortunate outcome of the direct primary for it is hardly probable that an old time convention controlled by machine bosses would have so far flown in the face of an intelligent community as to make such a nomination. It only serves to emphasize the fact that neither the Geran law nor any other method of selecting candidates can be successfully worked unless the voters are alive to the duty which citizenship imposes upon them, and to remedy the neglect of which duty the present law governing nominations was enacted at the urgent solicitation of Governor Wilson.

Unless some widespread organization within party lines be formed to safeguard the selection of candidates, it will be easy for any self-seeking man to secure a position at the primary and in the general lack of knowledge as to his character and fitness obtain enough votes to make him the candidate of his party. I know nothing about Mr. Fay personally, but his past affiliations and the sympathies to which his long career as a liquor dealer must have given rise certainly unfit him for the most responsible executive office in the county. While the liquor traffic is tolerated because of the impossibility of destroying it, self-respecting people who have the social welfare at heart, and who are anxious to protect so far as possible their weaker brethren against the temptation of drink and the physical and moral degradation which follow indulgence, do not knowingly associate with the saloonkeeper who is so indifferent to the bettering of society, that he is willing to turn men's weakness to his own advantage. Why, then, should we entrust such a man with the high duties which a sheriff is called upon to perform?

Fortunately, voters who feel as does the writer, that our national politics would be better shaped if entrusted to the Democratic party, need not feel that the election of Mr. Fay is necessary to the success of the party next year, and by voting for Mr. Wright, the Republican candidate can at once rebuke the element to which Mr. Fay owes his nomination, and endorse a man who not only has not the taint of a society destroying profession, but who has proved himself efficient in the positions of public service which he has already held.

SUES HER BROTHER FOR FATHER'S GIFT.

Elizabeth, Oct. 28.—To recover bonds valued at $10,000, which, she asserts, were given to her by her father before his death, Mrs. Julia E. Collins, of Westfield, brought suit in the Circuit Court yesterday against her brother, Frank B. Ham. Ham was the co-executor of his father's estate. According to the testimony Mrs. Collins' father gave her and her sisters the income from certain bonds. These were in a safe deposit vault and when the interest was due he gave his daughters the coupons.

His daughter Julia married against his wishes and after the marriage when she asked for the bonds he refused to give them up, but continued to pay her the interest on them at regular intervals. He died soon after his daughter's marriage and his son, Frank B. Ham, as executor, seized the bonds which had been given to Mrs. Collins, she alleges, and held them as part of the estate. During the progress of the case yesterday Foster M. Voorhees, who appeared for the defendant, moved for a non-suit, basing his action on a technicality. The motion was denied.

CLAIM NEW FLYER CANNOT BE UPSET.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 28.—Roscoe P. Timson, aged 24, of this city, claims to have a monoplane with which he is able to demonstrate the principle of automatic stability in soaring flight with heavier than air flying machines. The discovery which young Timson claims to have made is one on which the Wright brothers have long been working. If the perfected machine proves as efficient as the model which he has completed it will undoubtedly mean the revolutionizing of the aviation world.

Timson's idea is bird flight. His models, which vary from one to three inches in length, closely resemble the soaring flight of a buzzard, hawk or sea gull.

The important features of his invention, according to Timson, are angles of the wings, which are so arranged that the air is spilled out at the proper time and place on the wings to maintain equilibrium, the tail automatically adjusts itself to keep the machine in the proper position, accommodating itself to the direction of the wind at every instant, the weights so situated ahead of the centre of gravity serve to keep the machine balanced so that the wings and tail are able to perform their respective functions perfectly.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Plainfield People Know How to Save It.

Many Plainfield people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill-health, the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has cured thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Plainfield citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Margaret Reville, 732 W. Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For a long time I was troubled by lame and weak back and I never found anything that would help me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills from Randolph's drug store. My back was so painful and sore that I dreaded to stoop and whenever I caught cold or exerted myself, I suffered more severely. I tried several kidney remedies but it was left for Doan's Kidney Pills, which I obtained at Randolph's Drug Store to cure me. They are certainly a most effective preparation for kidney trouble."

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. It shall be the duty of all street railway companies operating one or more lines of street railway within the limits of the City of Plainfield to maintain their roadbed, tracks, wires and appurtenances occupying or being upon or over any portion of any street or public highway in the City of Plainfield, in good condition and repair, and to repair any defects which may be found to exist therein within ten days after such defects would by the exercise of reasonable care and inspection have become apparent. Any such company violating any of the provisions of this section shall on conviction be punished by a fine of twenty dollars for each offense, and every day any such defect shall continue after written complaint made to the City Judge under this section shall constitute a new offense.

Upon receipt of any such report, it shall be the duty of the Mayor to give written notice to the company affected thereby, requiring it forthwith to repair such defect or defects, which notice may be served by the Mayor or Chief of Police or any regular police officer upon any officer or agent of said company, and a copy thereof shall on the same day be sent by registered mail, postage prepaid, to said company at its principal office in this State. Sec. 3. HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The remaining candidates for endmen for the minstrel show were selected Thursday after rehearsal. Those chosen are Frederick Mygatt, Valentine Goldsmith and Julian Linke. The others will be Felix Janke, Fred Krom and Edson Woodhull. Charles R. Bostwick will be interlocutor.

The P. H. S. football eleven will meet Princeton High on Parker Field this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

At a senior class meeting Thursday a report of the committee chosen to select a banner was read and accepted. The class has decided to have a large banner with white numerals. It is to be made of heavy felt measuring ten feet long and six feet wide with numerals two feet high. This will probably be the most valuable flag ever owner by the senior class. Theodora Champlain, Ruth Douglas and Jessie Stewart comprise the committee on banner.

The girls' basketball squad of P. H. S. is preparing for an active season. Miss Ruth Douglas manager of the team, has already scheduled about twenty games. The squad will elect a captain next week. The season begins November 3, with Somerville High School as the opposing team.

THE FORUM.

Sporting Editors Please Note.

Editor, The Daily Press:

From a recent reference in your interesting paper to Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Dominion conservative party politics, I have marked the following statement:

"Mr. Borden was a most excellent teacher and had the full confidence of his class. While here he indulged to a degree in the usual sports of the Episcopal church; but beyond this mingled little with the town fold."

As a priest of the Episcopal church indirectly interested in Canadian affairs, may I suggest the possibility that the public might welcome as entertaining a more detailed statement of those "usual sports of the Episcopal Church" in which Mr. Borden indulged to a degree.

One reads with relief the saving clause that beyond this occasional excursion into sporting circles, Mr. Borden was quiet and innocent enough.

Very truly yours,
E. VICARS STEVENSON.

SENTENCES BROWN, WHO FIRED BOOKS.

Jersey City, Oct. 28.—Samuel Brown, the cashier and bookkeeper of the Long Dock Mill and Elevator Company, who, it is alleged, conspired to destroy the books of the company to cover up his shortages and who, it is said, hired an East Newark man named John Walsh to set fire to the comapny's office at 68 Pavonia avenue, this city, was sentenced Thursday by Common Pleas Judge John A. Blair to three years in the county penitentiary. He pleaded guilty to two charges, arson and conspiracy.

The milling company's office was burned Sunday, August 6 last, and the dead body of Walsh was found in the ruins. The office furniture had been saturated with kerosene oil and the presumption was that an explosion of a can of oil killed Walsh.

Brown and an accountant, John Timmons, of New York, were arrested the morning following and charged with the double crime. Timmons, who had been hired at odd times by Brown to go over the books, placed the blame for the whole thing on Brown, and Brown explained how Timmons had entered into the conspiracy. Timmons is still in jail awaiting the disposition of his case.

Brown's light sentence, it is said, was due to the pleading of his aged mother, who had spent an hour or more with Judge Blair before sentence was pronounced.

ALMS CASE BRINGS QUERIES.

Rahway, Oct. 28.—Since Matthais Scanlon was taken away from the almshouse, two weeks ago, in odd circumstances, after fifteen years, several inquiries have been received from persons missing relatives. There appeared to be some question of Scanlon's identity.

A letter has been received from a young man in the East, who thinks the man may be his father. A Massachusetts woman believes the man may be her brother-in-law who disappeared twenty years ago.

The matron of the almshouse has not heard from Scanlon since he was taken by a woman who said she was his dauhgter, and that his wife near Elizabeth was dying.

Uneeda Biscuit never disappoint!

You have never heard anyone say—"The Uneeda Biscuit in that last package were not as good as usual."

You have never said it yourself.

It is one thing to make soda crackers that are occasionally good.

It is quite another thing to make them so that they are not only always better than all other soda crackers, but always of unvarying goodness.

The name "Uneeda"—stamped on every one of them—means that if a million packages of Uneeda Biscuit were placed before you, you could choose any one of them, confident that every soda cracker in that package would be as good as the best Uneeda Biscuit ever baked.

5c a package—never sold in bulk.

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL FOR DR. P. T. KIMBALL.

Lakewood, Oct. 28.—In memory of Dr. Paul T. Kimball, for twenty years a physician in Lakewood, who died last November, a $40,000 hospital is to be erected here with funds subscribed by former friends. Geo. J. Gould and Miss Emily H. Bourne head the first list of subscriptions made public, which amount to nearly $32,500, each having given $5,000. In all, seventeen persons have each given $1,000 or over up to the present time. The smallest contribution is twenty-five cents.

To partially support the institution there has been placed in the local tax levy an appropriation of $3,000, and in an effort to assure its adoption by the people at the election on November 7 a number of cottagers who are interested in the hospital are planning to make a personal campaign to convince the voters of the necessity of voting the money.

THE FORUM.

Mayoralty Nominee's Record.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The Republicans of Dunellen, in open caucus selected Wilson S. Frederick as their candidate for mayor. Mr. Frederick was born in Acquackanonk township, Passaic county, in 1869, and was educated in the local public schools and Coleman's Business College. Immediately after his graduation he was one of the teachers of that institution.

In 1888 he procured a position with the United States Express Co., with which company he is still employed, as their local agent at Plainfield. He has been a resident of Dunellen since 1893, and through civic pride and public spirit has always taken a keen interest in public affairs. He was elected a member of the Board of Education in 1898 and is still a member of that board.

While serving as district clerk and president of that body he took the initiative in having the high school department transferred to Plainfield, which high school is one of the best in the State.

In 1902 Mr. Frederick was elected a member of the Borough Council and was chairman of the finance committee for three years, during which time the finances of the borough were handled in a most business like manner there not being one cent of indebtedness against the borough at the expiration of his term. He was a member of the committee who incorporated the fire department and the Firemen's Relief Association and is still an active member of both organizations. He was an active member of the Board of Health for ten years serving as secretary during that time. He is treasurer of the First Presbyterian church, treasurer of the board of trade, director of the Home Building and Loan Association, a member of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., Court Dunellen, No. 1123, I. O. F., and Council 711 Royal Arcanum.

There are few men in this vicinity who have such an enviable record for honesty and integrfity in all matters pertaining to both public and private life as has Mr. Frederick, who numbers his friends from both sides of the political fence. It is in response to continued urging from his friends that Mr. Frederick has accepted the nomination, and his enthusiastic admirers already predict his election by a safe majority.

Building Code Violations.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In yesterday's issue you stated that the violations of the building code, of which we complained when appearing before the Councilmanic committee were chiefly those of non-union men. I wish to make it perfectly clear to the public that what we did tell the fire and buildings committee was that the provisions of the building code are being violated by both union and non-union men.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

PISCATAWAY CHICKEN THIEVES IN TOWN

The Piscataway township chicken thieves, who have been operating in that locality with great success, have abandoned this fertile field and moved into town. Clinton avenue is the scene of bivouac at present and citified rooster and hens in residential backyards ascend their perches every night in fear and trembling. One commuter, who has had a choice flock of egg providers, lost fourteen fat pullets two nights ago and another is bemoaning the disappearance of ten prize-winning Cochin Chinas, second to none for presenting high priced hen fruit.

The nature of the thefts is so closely resembled to the Piscataway mode of procedure that no doubt exists in the minds of the angry owners as to who is responsible. The The thieves wring the necks of the luckless fowls, frequently twisting the heads off, thus preventing the chance of any outcry. The owners have organized a protective posse and beside instituting a regular patrol will install burglar alarms in each coop. The police will also be notified.

One Clinton avenue resident, who found his Sunday dinner prospects blighted like a frost bitten geranium purchased a new pair of fowls and placed them in the emptied coop with this polite invitation on a placard:

"I bought this rooster and hen,
When they hatch more please come again."

Chamber of Commerce to Meet.

RECEIPTS OF UNCLE SAM FALLING OFF.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Uncle Sam is not taking in as much money this fiscal year as he did in the first four months of the last period. There is a deficit thus far of more than $21,000,000. On the corresponding date in the last fiscal year the deficit was only $15,000,000. Taking into account all receipts and expenditures and including the sum received for the sale of Panama bonds the remaining deficit is $4,647,869. The deficit for the last fiscal year, when there was no bond issue, was more than $22,000,000.

Customs receipts are falling behind. Up to date the total receipts from this source amount to $94,000,000 as compared with $102,000,000 for the same period last year. There has been no appreciable fluctuation in the internal revenue receipts. Last year was a particularly excellent one in this respect and present indications are that this year will be just as good.

FORT COUNSEL FOR STATE.

Will Appear In Fight On Railroad Taxation.

Trenton, Oct. 28.—With a view to preparing for litigation between the State and the New Jersey railroad companies over the question of the increased valuations placed on the property of the railroads by the State Board of Assessors as a result of the report made by Charles Hansel, who is making a revaluation of all such property for taxation purposes, Attorney-General Wilson has retained former Governor Fort as special counsel in the cases.

Mr. Fort is recognized as being especially fitted to defend the State's side of any litigation that may grow out of the revaluation work. It was on his recommendation as Governor, after thoroughly investigating the subject, that the work of revaluing the railroad property was undertaken by the Legislature. It was Mr. Fort who appointed Mr. Hansel to conduct the work necessary to the revaluation, and during the last year of his term as Governor he was in constant touch with the whole proposition.

WHEAT PRICES DROP.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—There was a selling panic in wheat yesterday and a break of about two and one-half cents a bushel inside of two hours. In the words of a leading broker:

"There was as much wheat sold in two hours yesterday as was bought in the entire six trading days of last week on the advancing market."

Trouble began for holders of wheat when the news of the government action against the Steel Corporation was spread broadcast. Many leaders in the trade expressed the belief that there was no logical reason why wheat prices should break on a demoralized New York stock market. However, in Board of Trade operations, as in financial circles, the tenor of the business is that of confidence. The action against the steel interests and the break in the stock from the best point yesterday to the low point was so startling as to disturb confidence among holders of all kinds of stocks.

Selling of wheat was on a heavy scale from the start and it was estimated before the market closed that the grain thrown on the market during yesterday's session might aggregate anywhere from 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 bushels.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

"Around the World" at the New York Hippodrome is still attracting twice daily crowds. One can take a trip to almost every country worth visiting on the face of the earth without leaving his seat in the Hippodrome. Among the many lands visited during the course of the splendid spectacle may be mentioned Ireland, Italy, England, Spain, Switzerland, India, Egypt, Turkey and Honolulu. 1200 people and 200 animals take part in what is undoubtedly the finest theatrical pageant ever presented. Tomorrow night (Sunday) at the Hippodrome, the Imperial Russian Balalaika Orchestra will be heard in concert under the management of Mr. R. Johnston. Prices for this occasion will range from 25c to $1.50.

Ruth St. Denis, the famous exponent of Oriental dances, supported by a company of twenty-five, will be the head liner at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre next week. She will present the famous dane of India, which has won for her a position as the leading terpsichorean artist of America. India and the Hindus have always had a strange fascination for occidentals. There is something about this land of mystery which seems to be a world apart. These dances do not represent the physical abandon that is so characteristic of the great mass of dances seen on the vaudeville stage, but depend considerably on pantomime. There is tenderness, feeling, warm emotion, color and originality. Miss St. Denis takes us from a world we are living in, and transports us into the very midst of oriental mystery, and illumines us with the philosophy of the occult.

The Kiss Waltz, the new musical play, is still dancing gaily at the Casino, New York, where it is expected to remain for some time to come. The cast is one of the most remarkable in New York as one may judge from this list: Eva Davenport, Charles Bigelow, Robert Warwick, Flora Zabelle, Elsa Ryan, Martin Brown, Adele Rowland, Oscar Schwartz, William Pruette and George Pauncefort. "The Kiss Waltz" which was originally played in Vienna where it ran for a whole season is in two acts, and these two scenes contain more music and dancing than is customary in the productions at the Casino, which as every one knows is the home of musical comedy in New York.

CORWIN FOR POLITICS CHAIR AT PRINCETON.

Princeton, Oct. 28.—In addition to discussing the election of a president for Princeton University and postponing action until January 11, the trustees of the university Thursday elected Dr. Edward Samuel Corwin professor of politics to fill the chair left vacant by Dr. Wilson's resignation. Dr. Corwin was formerly professor of political science in Cornell University.

Because of ill health, Cleveland H. Dodge resigned as a life trustee. Since the last meeting of the board gifts to the amount of $185,736.82 have been announced. It was reported that the graduate college building would be ready for use in the autumn of 1912.

Winthrop Moore Daniels, who resigned last June as professor of political economy to accept Governor Wilson's appointment to the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission, offered to continue his lectures on economics and his appointment was made.

ANTI-HARMON OHIO MAN TO SEE WILSON, TRENTON.

Trenton, Oct. 28—Newton L. Bunnell, of Waynesville, O., a former member of the Ohio Democratic State executive committee, was a visitor at the State House, Thursday, and was much disappointed when he found that Governor Wilson was absent on a Wisconsin-Texas trip. Mr. Bunnell bluntly stated that he had come to Trenton to meet Governor Wilson as one who is strongly opposed to the movement to nominate Governor Harmon, of Ohio, for the Presidency.

Mr. Bunnell said that Ohio Democrats are very far from being a unit for the nomination of Governor Harmon as the Democratic candidate to succeed Taft. There is, he said, a great deal of Wilson sentiment throughout the State and it is only waiting to be properly marshaled to make itself influential in the political make-up that is now going on with a view to the national campaign next year.

(Copyright 1910 by the ...)

"First of all," he began, "the doctors wound up by losing all hope for me. Gave me a few months at best, and that, after a course in sanitariums and a trip to Europe and another to Hawaii. They tried electricity and forced feeding and fasting. I was a graduate of about everything in the curriculum. They kept me poor with their bills, while I went from bad to worse. The trouble with me was two-fold; first I was a born weakling; and next, I was living unnaturally—too much work, and responsibility and strain. I was managing editor of the Times-Tribune in San Francisco, and I wasn't strong enough for the strain. Of course my body went back on me, and my mind, too, for that matter. It had to be bolstered up with whisky, which wasn't good for it any more than was the living in clubs and hotels good for my stomach and the rest of me. So I quit, quit everything, absolutely, and came to live in the Valley of the Moon—that's the Indian name, you know, for Sonoma Valley. I lived in the lean-to the first year; then I built the cabin and sent for my books. I never knew what happiness was before, nor health. Look at me now and dare to tell me that I look forty-seven."

"I wouldn't give a day over forty," Daylight confessed.

"Yet the day I came here I looked nearer sixty, and that was fifteen years ago."

They talked along, and Daylight looked at the world from new angles. Here was a man, neither bitter nor cynical, who laughed at the city-dwellers and called them lunatics; a man who did not care for money, and in whom the lust for power had long since died.

It was not until ten o'clock that Daylight parted from Ferguson. As he rode along through the starlight, the idea came to him of buying the ranch on the other side of the valley. There was no thought in his mind of ever intending to live on it. His game was in San Francisco. But he liked the ranch, and as soon as he got back to the office he would open up negotiations with Hillard.

The time passed, and he played on at the game. San Francisco's attitude toward Daylight had undergone a change. While he, with his slashing buccaneer methods, was a distinct menace to the more orthodox financial gamblers, he was nevertheless so grave a menace that they were glad enough to let him alone. He had already taught them the excellence of letting a sleeping dog lie.

Dede Mason was still in the office. He had made no more overtures, discussed no more books. He had no active interest in her, and she was to him a pleasant memory of what had never happened, a joy, which, by his essential nature, he was barred from ever knowing. Yet, while his interest had gone to sleep and his energy was consumed in the endless battles he waged, he knew every trick of the light on her hair, every quick definite mannerism of movement, every line of her figure as expounded by her tailor-made gowns. Several times, six months or so apart, he had increased her salary, until now she was receiving ninety dollars a month. Beyond this he dared not go, though he got around it by making the work easier. This he had accomplished after her return from a vacation, by retaining her substitute as an assistant. Also, he had changed his office suite, so that now the two girls had a room by themselves. The more he saw of her, and the more he thought he knew of her, the more unapproachable did she seem to him. But since he had no intention of approaching her, this was anything but an unsatisfactory fact. He was glad he had her in his office, and hoped she'd stay, and that was about all.

Daylight did not improve with the passing years. The life was not good for him. He was growing stout and soft, and there was unwonted flabbiness in his muscles. The more he drank cocktails, the more he was compelled to drink in order to get the desired result, the inhibitions that eased him down from the concert pitch of his operations. And with this went wine, too, at meals, and the long drinks after dinner of Scotch and soda at the Riverside. Then, too, his body suffered from lack of exercise; and, from lack of decent human associations, his moral fibers were weakening. Never a man to hide anything, some of his escapades became public, such as speeding, and of joy-rides in his big red motor car down to San Jose with companions distinctly sporty—incidents that were narrated as good fun and comically in the newspapers.

CHAPTER XIII.

One Sunday, late in the afternoon, found Daylight across the bay in the Piedmont hills of Oakland. As usual, he was in a big motor car, though not his own, the guest of Swiftwater Bill, Lock's own darling, who had come down to spend the clean-up of the seventh fortune wrung from the frozen Arctic gravel. It was a merry party, and they had made a merry day of it, circling the bay from San Francisco around by San Jose and up to Oakland, having been thrice arrested for speeding, the third time, however, on the Haywards stretch, running away with their captor. Fearing that a telephone message to arrest them had been flashed ahead, they had turned into the back-road through the hills, and now, rushing in upon Oakland by a new route, were boisterously discussing what disposition they should make of the constable.

"We'll come out at Blair Park in ten minutes," one of the men announced. "Look here, Swiftwater, there's a cross-road right ahead, with lots of gates, but it'll take us back-country into Berkeley. Then we can come back into Oakland from the other side, sneak across on the ferry, and send the machine back around tonight with the chauffeur."

But Swiftwater Bill failed to see why he should not go into Oakland by way of Blair Park, and so decided.

The next moment, flying around a bend, the back-road they were not going to take appeared. Inside the gate, leaning out from her saddle and just closing it, was a young woman on a chestnut sorrel. With his first glimpse, Daylight felt there was something strangely familiar about her. The next moment, straightening up in the saddle with a movement he could not fail to identify, she put the horse into a gallop, riding away with her back toward them. It was Dede Mason—he remembered what Morrison had told him about her keeping a riding horse, and he was glad she had not seen him in this riotous company. Intervening trees at that moment shut her from view, and Swiftwater Bill plunged into the problem of disposing of their constable, while Daylight, leaning back with closed eyes, was still seeing Dede Mason gallop off down the country road.

On Monday morning, coming in for dictation, he looked at her with new interest, though he gave no sign of it; and the stereotyped business passed off in the stereotyped way. But the following Sunday found him on a horse himself, across the bay and riding through the Piedmont hills. He made a long day of it, but no glimpse did he catch of Dede Mason, though he even took the back-road of many gates and rode on into Berkeley. It had been a fruitless day, so far as she was concerned; and yet not entirely fruitless, for he had enjoyed the open air and the horse under him to such purpose that, on Monday, his instructions were out to the dealers to look for the best chestnut sorrel that money could buy. At odd times during the week he examined numbers of chestnut sorrels, tried several and was unsatisfied. It was not till Saturday that he came upon Bob. Daylight knew him for what he wanted the moment he laid eyes on him. A large horse for a riding animal, he was none too large for a big man like Daylight. In splendid condition, Bob's coat in the sunlight was a flame of fire, his arched neck a jewelled conflagration.

Daylight examined the mane and found it finer than any horse's hair he had ever seen. Also, its color was unusual in that it was almost auburn. While he ran his fingers through it, Bob turned his head and playfully nuzzled Daylight's shoulder.

"Saddle him up, and I'll try him," he told the dealer. "I wonder if he's used to spurs. No English saddle, mind. Give me a good Mexican and a curb bit—not too severe, seeing as he likes to rear."

Daylight superintended the preparations, adjusting the curb strap and the stirrup length, and doing the cinching. He shook his head at the martingale, but yielded to the dealer's advice to allow it to go on. And Bob, beyond spirited restlessness and a few playful attempts, gave no trouble. Nor in the hour's riding that followed, save for some permissible curveting and prancing, did he misbehave. Daylight was delighted; the purchase was immediately made; and Bob, with riding gear and personal equipment, was dispatched across the bay forthwith to take up his quarters in the stables of the Oakland Riding Academy.

The next day being Sunday, Daylight was away early, crossing on the ferry and taking with him Wolf, the leader of his sled team, the one dog which he had selected to bring with him when he left Alaska. Quest as he would through the Piedmont hills and along the many-gated back-road to Berkeley, Daylight saw nothing of Dede Mason and her chestnut sorrel. But he had little time for disappointment, for his own chestnut kept him busy. At the end of half an hour of goodness Daylight, lured into confidence, was riding along at a walk and rolling a cigarette, with slack knees and relaxed seat, the reins lying on the animal's neck. Bob whirled abruptly and with lightning swiftness, pivoting on his hind legs, his fore legs just lifted clear of the ground. Daylight kept his seat, but, beyond a futile rein across the neck, did nothing to prevent the evolution.

"Well, Bob," he addressed the animal, at the same time wiping the sweat from his own eyes, "I'm free to confess that you're sure the blamedest all-fired quickest creature I ever saw. I guess the way to fix you is to keep the spur just a-touching—ah! you brute!"

For, the moment the spur touched him, his left hind leg had reached forward in a kick that struck the stirrup a smart blow. Several times, out of curiosity, Daylight attempted the spur, and each time Bob's hoof landed the stirrup. Then Daylight, following the horse's example of the unexpected, suddenly drove both spurs into him and reached him underneath with the quirt.

"You ain't never had a real licking before," he muttered, as Bob, thus rudely jerked out of the circle of his own impish mental processes, shot ahead.

Half a dozen times spurs and quirt bit into him, and then Daylight settled down to enjoy the magnificent gallop. No longer punished, at the end of a half mile Bob eased down into a fast canter. Wolf, toiling the rear, was catching up, and everything was going nicely. And when, at last, Daylight decided that the horse had had enough, he turned him around abruptly and put him into a gentle canter on the forward track. After a time, he reined in to a stop to see if he were breathing painfully. Standing for a minute, Bob turned his head and nuzzled his rider's stirrup in a roguish, impatient way, as much as to intimate that it was time they were going on.

SUFFRAGISTS WILL HOLD MOCK TRIAL

Elizabeth, Oct. 28.—The suffragettes will figure in a novel way in the entertainment which has been planned by the young people of the Central Baptist church, of this city, which will be held on Thursday evening, November 16.

For the first time the suffragist cheers will be heard, and their songs rendered and their banners displayed when they rally to the defense of one of the members who, in a mock court trial whose life will be placed in jeopardy for entering into a conspiracy to displace William Howard Taft as President of the United States, by Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey.

Miss Lotette Painter has written one of the suffragette songs which will be rendered by the "Betsy Town Suffragette Club."

Quibs and cranks and jibes against those in public life as well as against others who are prominent in this city will be made. The most amusing, it is thought, will be the appearance of the suffragettes who will demand votes for women, and who will defend their member who is charged with stuffing the ballot box.

Frank Silvers will be judge, John M. Dudley county clerk and H. M. Blackburn court crier. Others who will take part will be: Abram Cornish and Rolland B. Moore, who will be the prosecutors, and Arthur E. Warner and Louis R. Allison, representing the defense. Clarence Stoddard will represent the sheriff. Archie R. Painter will act as constable. There will be other witnesses.

MILLIONS MAY SEE WARSHIPS' REVIEW.

New York, Oct. 28.—The program for the mobilization and review of more than 100 war vessels in the North River was completed Thursday. The big day will be Wednesday, November 1, when the review will take place. At 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon the 102 vessels in the fleet will start south. In the meantime Secretary of the Navy George Von L. Meyer will have taken his position on the dispatch boat Dolphin, near the Statue of Liberty.

There will pass before him in review the massive battleships, the trim cruisers, the swift, graceful but wicked-looking torpedo-boats and destroyers, the shiny submarines, the useful tenders and the gloomy colliers. As each ship passes the Dolphin a salute will be fired.

The spectacle, in whole or part, will be visible from Riverside Drive and Park for their entire length, from the heights of New Jersey, from the water front and skyscrapers of lower Manhattan and from the heights of Brooklyn and Staten Island. There is room for millions of persons on these vantage points.

The Secretary of the Navy will inspect each of the battleships at anchor. As he leaves each ship the official salute of nineteen guns will boom over the water and echo from the towering apartment houses and hotels on the Manhattan side and the Palisades on the Jersey shore. Something like 400 shots will be fired.

CONNIE MACK'S VIEW ANENT DOYLE INCIDENT.

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—Concerning the statement of Umpire Klem that Captain Doyle, of New York, did not touch the home plate when he came home with the winning run in the tenth inning Wednesday, Manager Mack said:

"I will make no protest. The Giants won the game and are entitled to the victory. Doyle was safe at the plate by fifteen feet, and the question of whether he slid over the plate or alongside of it is a matter of minor importance. I never have and never will picker over decisions of umpires. The game will stand as a win for New York."

SEE PLAYMATE FATALLY HURT.

Flemington, Oct. 28.—Struck by a Central Railroad train in the sight of companions, Leroy Young, seven years old, son of George Young, of Flagtown, was fatally injured, near his home, Wednesday afternoon.

The boy was playing with his companions and ran directly in front of the locomotive. He was thrown a short distance and picked up unconscious by the crew and taken to this place.

Dr. O. H. Sproul met the train upon its arrival, but could do nothing to save the lad's life. The boy's skull had been fractured and he died a half hour later without regaining consciousness.

The Robin Hood of Pa.

In the North American of Sunday, October 29, there will appear a story based upon the life of one of the most interesting characters in Pennsylvania criminal history. This man, "Lewis the Robber," held the State in terror in the early part of the nineteenth century. Yet occasionally he paused in the pursuit of his nefarious business of counterfeiting and highway robbery, cheating when the opportunity presented itself, to fill the role of devoted father and husband and friend of the poor and distressed.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The Plainfield High School council at a meeting yesterday afternoon decided to award pins to members of The Oracle board, all class officers, athletic association officers and officers of other organized groups recognized by the council. The pin will correspond to the high school insignia given for excellence in athletics. The plan has been arranged so that members of the school who are not athletes may have a chance to win honors. The emblems are to be awarded to members now in office and those who will hold office in the future. The following were selected as a committee to decide upon the design of the pins: Miss Janette Neighbor, chairman; Miss Pauline Gates, Robert Gavett and Robert Butler. The council also decided not to have a special work day this year as the school is so crowded that it necessitates double assemblies. It was also suggested that some new plan of self-government be adopted.

John Stafford, of Essex street, has been detained at home by illness for the past week.

Mrs. A. Lusardi, Jr., of East Front street, has gone to Irvington to spend two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Emory.

MATERIAL CREDIT MEN IN QUARTERLY SESSION

With a gathering, primarily with an object to transact business but incidentally including much of pleasure, the quarterly meeting of the Central New Jersey Material Men's Credit Association was held in the Cafe Broeker, in High street, Elizabeth, being attended by twenty-five members. The association is but six months old, having been organized in the early summer, and its condition and growth as reported by the secretary last night was a source of much gratification. The business men of Middlesex, Somerset and Union county are enrolled in the association.

H. A. Todd, of the Bolyce-Runyon Company, of this city, president of the association, presided as toastmaster and called upon F. W. Veghte, of Roselle; Patrick Traynor, of Cranford; Edwin Taylor, Edward Petty and A. G. Howell, of Elizabeth, and Mr. Abbey, of Newark, for remarks, and Secretary A. W. Schwartz spoke at length on the condition of the association, the outlook for its continuance and future prosperity and the plans for extending the club. Dinner was served, the evening being spent socially at the close of the business session.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

When Denman Thompson gave us "The Old Homestead" and put his heart and soul into the famous characterization of Joshua Whitcomb, the old farmer who had a heart as big as the State of Texas, he well deserved to have his name carved in the Hall of Fame. This piece which has charmed millions has lost none of its former popularity. It plays here on Monday night.

Glance These Over.

The best proof that the New York Sunday World is the best Magazine Newspaper for you to order in advance and to read is that it has a circulation in New York City greater than the Sunday Herald, Times, Sun, Tribune and Press combined. In its Magazine Section next Sunday will be: "Society Women Who Wear Trousers," "Peculiar Names in the City Directory," "Girls Prominent in Get-Rich-Quick Games," "The First New Yorker," "The Source of Charles Dickens' Characters," "Important Changes on Broadway," "Hallowe'en Facts," "Exercising," etc., etc., Don't fail to order next Sunday's New York World in advance.

Proctor's New Show.

Beatrice Ingram & Co., will offer that ripping good comedy sketch, "The Dutchess," by Porter Emerson Browne, famous for his magazine stories and vaudeville sketches, at Proctor's theatre on Monday. The sketch contains a witty dialogue, interesting plot and is well acted. McGrath and Page, expert banjoists, will give popular selections; Shaw & Everts will present a sketch entitled, "The Captain and the Tar;" Crotton Brothers, Grecian gymnasts of international repute, will give a startling performance and May Melville, a classy singing comedienne, will sing several of the latest songs.

Catches Flea of Almost Two Pounds.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28.—Mrs. E. Manning, the "champion jack smelt catcher of Long Beach," as she is designated by the leisure class who fish from the Pine avenue pier, captured the grandfather of all fleas in Long Beach yesterday morning. It weighs a pound and three-quarters, and measures ten inches across, with its legs stretched out. The flea is believed to be many years old and, Mrs. Manning says, probably was driven into the ocean by the advance of civilization and too much competition by other varieties of fleas. The flea is on exhibition and local scientists have it in charge.

The Turning Point In Player-Piano Invention

The VIRTUOLO

In the Virtuolo the first real turning point in player-piano invention has been reached.

In playing it you produce musical expression to suit your mood and fancy, but you don't have to put your mind on any means to get such expression. You use the Virtuolo's means unconsciously and feel that you are playing under inspiration.

In other words, the Virtuolo dispels the final objection the music loving public has to player-pianos. No other player-piano permits of Instinctive Playing.

The reason you are able to put expression into your playing naturally and without effort, lies in the perfection of the Virtuolo's finely sensitive mechanisms and the simplification of its control.

We call these mechanisms the Virtuolo "air muscle fingers," because their sensitiveness makes them a real substitute for human finger playing on the keys. They are so keenly responsive that they produce any effect in music that you desire the instant you send them your instinctive signal through pedals, buttons or tempo lever.

The new simplified control on the Virtuolo brings in another entirely new feature. Confusing, awkward levers have been replaced with simple buttons which are in such close relation to the "air muscle fingers" that the whole action of both player and piano seems to be one instrument, directly responsive to your will. The new Acsolo buttons make it possible for you to emphasize or accent any note in the music, the instant you feel the inspiration to do so.

Call at the store and see the Virtuolo. Play it yourself, and realize the importance of its new features. If you cannot come to the store, 'phone or write us and we will send a Virtuolo to your home on free trial, without any obligations on your part.

P. H. S. VICTORS

Defeat Princeton High on Parker Field by Score of 9 to 0

NASH PLAYS STAR GAME.

Scores All the Points With a Drop Kick Followed by Touchdown —Robinson's Good Work for Princeton.

The Plainfield High School football team outclassed the Princeton High School eleven Saturday afternoon at Parker Field, and defeated them by a score of 9 to 0. Several hundred enthusiastic rooters witnessed the contest which proved to be the most exciting of the season. This is the third shut-out victory in sucession for the local high school team.

"Goat" Nash was again the star for P. H. S., doing all of the scoring and making big gains in a broken field by his brilliant playing. He scored first in the second period when he made a drop kick from the fifteen yard line He completed the scoring in the last quarter when he crossed the line for a touchdown and followed by kicking the goal. Although the P. H. S. eleven was crippled by the absence of several regulars including two of the backs, the Princeton boys were kept out of the local's territory except for short periods. They were never nearer the goal than the twenty-five yard line.

The game started with a kicking contest which lasted through the first quarter and at various intervals during the rest of the game. Princeton gained a little ground by kicking as the local team was weak on catching the ball. Joe Widowson, Plainfield's big right guard, was called back to do the punting. Neither side made material gains by this open play and the period ended with Princeton's ball on the forty-eight yard line.

Ricketts and Peacock were both out of the game, but their positions were ably filled by Cullen and Mills, who had only an afternoon of practice in the back field. Although the side lines were lined with "subs," neither team made any changes during the game. P. H. S. outclassed the visitors both on the defensive and offensive except for the deadly accuracy with which the Princeton boys executed their forward pass to left halfback which netted them several twenty-yard gains.

In the second quarter the local team was penalized fifteen yards for interfering with a free catch on one of Widowson's long punts. Princeton was soon forced to kick and Lindsey received the ball at the thirty yard line. The visitors could not stop the local's progress until they had carried the pigskin half the length of the field. When Princeton received the ball for downs they punted again. Nash received the ball at the twenty yard line and made a brilliant run in a broken field for a thirty-five yard gain. From the middle of the field P. H. S. carried the ball to the fifteen yard line by a series of line bucks and trick formations. From this point Nash sent a drop-kick whistling over the goal scoring the first points of the game.

In the last period P. H. S. started with the ball on the fifty-three yard line. After several line plunges Lindsey shot Rosenson a forward pass good for twenty-two yards. A few more line bucks brought the ball to the two-yard line and Nash was sent over the line after a crashing interference. Nash kicked the goal which completed the scoring.

There were several disputes and delays over rules. All of the local backs played a fast game and Moy, Widowson, Harrington and Carty did good work on the line. Robinson starred for the Princeton team. The lineup follows:

Plainfield.		Princeton.
Rosenson		E. Bamman

'MEN AND RELIGION' CONFERENCE TONIGHT

The "Men and Religion" movement will be formally inaugurated in this city tonight at a conference of pastors and laymen to be held at Y. M. C. A. Hall. The purpose of this conference will be to suggest ways in which the local church may participate in the movement.

The speakers will be Henry D. Dickson, executive secretary of the Newark "Men and Religion" committee, who will have as his topic, "The Place of the Local Church in the Men and Religious Movement," and Rev. J. J. Moment, pastor of the High Street Presbyterian church, Newark, who will speak upon "The Church and the Social Problem." Mr. Moment takes the place of the Rev. John McDowell, who will be unable to attend. He is a member of the Newark committee.

Every Protestant pastor of the city and borough is co-operating in the promotion of this conference by appointing five laymen who, together with himself will represent his church at the meeting. The membership of the conference will not be restricted, however, to pastors and laymen thus appointed, and a cordial invitation is extended to all men to be present. Howard McWilliams will preside.

REV. DR. ANDERSON WARNS CONGREGATION

Prior to his sermon at the First M. E. church, yesterday morning, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, the pastor, made a few pertinent remarks regarding the visit of representatives of the Mormon church in this city. He commended the action of Mayor G. W. V. Moy in refusing to permit the men to make a house to house canvas and distribute their literature.

Dr. Anderson then advised his people that if the Mormon's call at their home to leave literature that they refuse to accept the same and that they refuse to discuss the subject of Mormonism with them. If they refuse to go away, he then advised his people to shut the door in their face and have nothing whatever to do with the visitors.

Dr. Anderson said that he felt it to be his duty to speak in this way to his people and to warn them of the efforts of the Mormon church and their representatives to proselyte and propogate their faith wherever possible.

MISS SERRELL GIVES EXHIBITION AT HER HOME.

Miss Minnie B. Serrell, of Union street, gave the third afternoon reception and tea at her home, Friday and Saturday, for the exhibition and sale of her hand-made velvet, tapestry and leather hand bags, card cases and mats. The attendance was large many local people availing themselves of the opportunity to witness the display. There was also an exhibition of hand-painted china, white and gold with initials. Miss Serrell, who is a pupil of Louis Tiffany, of New York, has previously held exhibitions in New York, Chicago, Atlantic City and Milwaukee.

The color scheme in the dining room was silver and white, producing a very pretty effect. Those who assisted Miss Serrell were the following: Mrs. Norman H. Probasco, Mrs. A C. Lawrence, Mrs. Evarts Tracey, Mrs. George Endicott, Jr., Mrs. William Scott and Miss Geraldine Rennie of Hackensack.

Miss Serrell will continue the exhibition at her studio on Union street from now until Christmas.

New Bridge Completed.

Traffic was opened Saturday on Washington avenue over the new bridge which spans Greenbrook. The bridge and retaining walls are completed, but the sidewalks of concrete will not be laid until next spring. Temporary walks have been laid for the present. The roadbed will be macadamized at once. The bridge is one of the best in this section and is a great improvement over the former structure. On either end appears the names of the bridge committee of the two counties, Union and Somerset.

Miss Ruth Harris to Sing.

Miss Ruth Harris, the soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, will be the assisting artist at a musicale to be given by the McIntyre Trio at Summit tonight. Later on Miss Harris will sing at one of Mr. McIntyre's concerts in Brooklyn.

—Neuman Bros. will have a large and exceptionally fine display of fresh vegetables for tomorrow's trade.

—Mr. Elmer Runyon has placed his order with the Auto Distributing Company for a Stoddard-Dayton roadster.

REV. W. C. O'DONNELL LEAVES THE MINISTRY

Rev. William C. O'Donnell, of this city, the former pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, Newark, and later transferred to M. E. church, Woodbridge, has given up pastorial work, and taken a position with a large publishing concern in New York. His special work has to do with text books for schools and colleges and his time is well taken up visiting the heads of educational institutions.

Mr. O'Donnel was at one time pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, this city, where he did a good work. Later he was sent to St. Paul's church, Newark. Last year the Bishop at the Newark Conference occassioned much surprise by sending Mr. O'Donnell to Woodbridge the charge being a small one. Considerable criticism was heard over the Bishop's action, and there were rumors that Mr. O'Donnell would not remain at Woodbridge. In fact Mr. O'Donnell explained the situation to his people and it was understood that he might leave them at any time. A member of the conference who held a charge in northern New Jersey has succeeded Mr. O'Donnell.

HUNT CLUB HAS EXCITING CHASE

Although a large field turned out Saturday afternoon in the weekly chase of the Watchung Hunt Club, about twenty riders meeting the hounds at Dog Tavern, not half that number was able to finish, owing to the heavy going and the fast pace set by the hounds. Many four-rail fences were encountered and the hunt, which covered a distance of about fourteen miles, was the longest ever held by the club. Henry Rose, of New York, came a cropper, and although not seriously injured, was unable to finish.

The hounds were met at Dog Tavern, and the chase then led through Alton and Potter's Crossing over the Glaser and Widowson farms to Netherwood, where a check was made on the Murray farm. The hounds were then thrown in on the Nelson farm and the chase continued at a lively place over the Ryno, Scudder, Hetfield farms to Terrill road, where another check was made.

The hounds were again thrown in on the French farm and the riders circled back of Fanwood and Netherwood, over the Peterson and Krog farms, back to Alton, the finish. After the run, all the riders were entertained at tea by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Beebe. Those who finished were: Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H.; J. J. O'Donohue, Col. C. E. S. Bellows, Harry L. Finch, Brown Rolston, R. H. Towner and Huntsman Henry Watkins.

Saw the Battleships.

Through the courtesy of E. C. Joyce, manager of the marine department of the New Jersey Central, employes of the company in the New York offices were given the opportunity of reviewing the fleet of battleships and cruisers in New York harbor yesterday. The tugs Fleming and Roselle were placed at their disposal for the afternoon and about one hundred employes enjoyed the trip.

Tennis P. G. C.

The finals in the mixed doubles, tennis tournament, were played at the Park Golf Club, Saturday afternoon, Miss Elizabeth Nash and Harry Eddy defeating Miss Irene Dunham and Clarence Hand, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring Gives Talk on "Babson's Weekly Barometer Letter."

TELLS OF BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Scriptural Injunctions Used As a Guide For Families, Firms and Individuals.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, at the morning service, yesterday, delivered an interesting discourse on the topic, "Something to Think About." At the commencement of his sermon, Dr. Herring said that he wished to call the attention of his people to a document that practically every broker in England and America regards as giving good advice in the buying of stocks and bonds, that is "Babson's Weekly Barometer Letter." In it are found "barometer figures for present American business conditions."

Dr. Herring said that it was not his purpose to lead anyone to invest their money, but that they might read the last page of the October issue of the "barometer letter." Dr. Herring then read the extract referred to. He added that so many people in Plainfield are forgetting about God and His worship and while the text was a long one, he urged all to read it and test their lives by it. The extract from the pen of Roger W. Babson is as follows:

"The following words were spoken by one of the world's greatest statesmen after his nation had emerged from a forty year's depression and was entering a period of great prosperity. Believing that the fundamental principle involved is applicable to nations today as in those early centuries, I herewith quote them as given by the best authorities:

"'Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the Lord thy God, to walk in His ways and to fear Him. For the Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills; a land of wheat and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates, a land of oil olive and honey; a land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack anything in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayst dig brass.

"'When thou hast eaten and are full, then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which he hath given three. Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and His judgments and his statutes, which I commend thee this day, lest when thou hast eaten and are full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein; and when thy herds and thy flocks multiply; and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied, then thy heart be lifted up, and thou forget the Lord thy God, and lest thou say in thy heart, "My power and the might of my hand hath gotten me this wealth." But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth, that he may establish his covenant which He sware unto thy fathers, as it is this day.

"'And it shall be, if thou do at all forget the Lord they God, and walk after other gods and serve them and worship them, I testify against you this day that ye shall surely perish. As the nations which the Lord destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish, because ye would not be obedient to the voice of the Lord your God.'

"Mr. Babson adds by way of comment. "However, not only does the above apply to nations, but also to families, firms and individuals. All of us know of many business concerns which have waxed strong enough through hard work and fair dealing, only to be wrecked or left to disintegrate by the wealth and carelessness of a later generation. In fact these changes are taking place in our very midst today, perhaps in the very firm or corporation in which we are interested. Therefore is it not a warning to us."

GEORGE SMITH ON TRIAL FOR ASSAULT

George Smith, of this city, formerly employed as a motorman on the trolley, was placed on trial in the court of quarter sessions, before Judge Atwater, at Elizabeth, today, on a charge of assault and battery made by Mrs. Alfred S. Gudgeon, of 921 South Second street. Winfield S. Angelman and Francis J. Blatz represent the defendant, while Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represents the State.

According to the complaint, the assault was committed on Juy 22 last, while Mrs. Gudgeon's husband, who is a member of Company K, was at Sea Girt. When the trial began this morning, Mr. Angleman moved to have the case dismissed, but Judge Atwater denied the motion.

According to the complaint, Mr. Smith entered Mrs. Gudgeon's room on the night of July 22. The former claims that he occupied the other side of the double house and that he entered Mrs. Gudgeon's apartments by mistake for his own. The case will probably be finished late today.

ELIAS APPLEBY SUSPECTED OF ARSON

As the result of a close watch for a supposed firebug Elias Appleby, 50 years old and wealthy, of Old Bridge, was arrested this morning and arraigned before Judge Daly in the Middlesex county court. Bail was fixed at $5,000 to await the action of the grand jury and was furnished immediately by the prisoner himself. The charge on which Appleby was arrested alleges that on August 31 he set fire to Clover & Stonacker's store at Old Bridge. This was the sixth suspicious fire in that vicinity during the month.

Becoming alarmed, residents were afraid to retire at night and merchants feared to leave their places unguarded. All efforts to detect the incendiary at work were futile, but the lookout maintained pointed the finger of suspicion at Appleby. He is a nephew of Mayor Appleby, of Asbury Park, and is well connected otherwise throughout the State. It is thought that he is deranged mentally.

In the afternoon, at 3 o'clock, Mr. Wright will give the school children a lecture on "Children of Many Lands," showing them in their characteristic costumes and occupations. His lectures are said to be fascinating and instructive.

Automobile Racing.

The ideal weather of yesterday brought out an unusual number of automobiles and several instances of speed violations were noticed, especially on West Front street, between Grant and Clinton avenues. The fine roadbed was a strong inducement to autoists to let their machines out and there were two or three cases of racing noticed on that thoroughfare.

Mass Meeting Tonight.

City and county Democratic candidates and other prominent speakers will be present at the Democratic mass meeting tonight in Reform Hall, West Second street and Central avenue. A special invitation has been issued to women to attend, as local affairs will be discussed.

Beatrice Herford, whose clever work in monologues is so widely known, will give one of her excellent entertainments at the Hartridge Auditorium, tonight, under the auspices and for the benefit of the Woman's Exchange. The program will be an unusually good one.

FINE MUSICAL SERVICE AT TRINITY

With Mrs. Walter David, assisting with her harp, the choir of Trinity Reformed church, under the direction of A. L. Titsworth, organist, gave a musical service, last night, which attracted a large congregation. In addition to the carefully prepared program, the pastor, Rev. J. Y. Broek, made a brief address, selecting the appropriate topic, "Making the Joy Bells Ring." The program consisted of solo, duet and quartet selections and with the harp acompaniment furnished a rare musical treat. The harpist also accompanied the organ and congregation in the singing of the hymns, the vibrant, sweet tones of the harp being easily discernible, and without any effort on the part of Mrs. David.

The program follows: Quartet, "Deus Miseratur," Brown; "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," W. E. Ashmall; "Trust in the Lord," arranged to "Handel's Largo," with harp accompaniment; trio, "O Salutaris Hostia," John Wiegand; duet, "Rejoice in the Lord," P. A. Schnecker; soprano solo, "O Divine Redeemer," Charles Gounod; harp solo, "Prayer," Hasselman; organ prelude, "Canzonetta," W. E. Ashmall; organ postlude, "Triumphal March," Dudley Buck.

TEACHERS ENJOY INFORMAL RECEPTION

The teachers in all the public schools of the city enjoyed an informal reception at the high school, Saturday night. There were about one hundred teachers present, in addition to a number of friends. An interesting program was arranged by those in charge of the affair. The first part of the entertainment opened with a vocal duet by the Misses Sadler and Mary Searle.

This was followed by cleverly arranged characters in which many of the teachers took part.

During an interval Miss Elsie Knowlton rendered a piano solo, after which additional characters were presented, representing books which the audience was expected to guess. This feature was greatly enjoyed. After recitations by Frances and Edward Beals, children of Frederick Beals, the program was concluded with additional character pictures.

Each person present wore a costume, representing the name of a book. Miss Alice Barlow received a bouquet of flowers for guessing the greatest number of names of books. Later refreshments were served in the gymnasium under the direction of Benjamin Evans, after which dancing was enjoyed.

The committee in charge of the affair comprised Miss M. Elizabeth Benedict, chairman; the Misses Katherine Beebe, Ruth Maxson, Louise Fuller, Harriet Humphrey, Catherine Carman, Bessie Allen, Myrtle Reynolds, Helen Whitton.

Lawrence, with a few words from the Classical committees and the Young Women's Auxiliary Societies. Lunch will be served by the women of the entertaining church.

Race Meets Not Profitable.

The annual statement of the Westfield Driving and Riding Club shows financial losses this year. From present indications there will be no races held next year, even though the club retains the track. The expenses of the race meets have been heavy, and one or two bad days caused the losses. It is possible that there will be a reorganization of the club during the winter.

MARRIAGE A JOKE

Wedding Announcement of New Brunswick Girls Proves to be False.

ALLEGED HUSBANDS ARE HELD.

Young Women Assert That C. W. Boyd and G. W. Reamer Promised to Marry Them, But Refused.

Mrs. Mary Bennett, of 118 Church street, New Brunswick, received a telegram from this city Friday, stating that her two daughters, the Misses Nellie and Violet Bennett, 23 and 25 years old, respectively, were married to Clarence W. Boyd and George W. Reamer, of this city, and would be home Saturday. The young women went home as the telegram stated, but tearfully explained to their mother that the young men, after detaining them in this city two days and nights refused to marry them. Mrs. Bennett came to this city yesterday and caused the arrest of Boyd and Reamer and they were held under $250 bail this morning to await the action of the Union County Grand Jury by Judge William G. DeMeza.

Prior to coming to Plainfield several weeks ago to solicit business for a credit system they were introducing, Boyd and Reamer worked New Brunswick with the same scheme. In that city they boarded with Mrs. Bennett from June until September. Since coming to this city they have been staying at the Kensington Hotel. While boarding with Mrs. Bennett they became acquainted with her two daughters and a close friendship sprung up between them.

After coming to Plainfield, correspondence had been kept up and Thursday night, by a pre-arranged plan, the two young women came to this city, where they were met by the young men. That night and the following day and night were spent at the hotel and the young women allege that in order to get them to acquiesce to the plan, Boyd and Reamer promised to marry them. The young women further allege that the reason the ceremony was not performed Thursday night was because it was impossible to secure a license. Friday morning when the vital statistics office was open they protested that it would be impossible for them to secure the proper certificate as they were "broke."

Miss Nellie Bennett asserted that she gave Boyd a check for $44, which he cashed and paid two weeks' board which he owed. The telegram was sent shortly after from the North Avenue station by the young men, while the young women remained outside on the platform. During the day other excuses, according to the young women, were made as to the inability of the young men to go through marriage ceremonies at present and when Friday night came it found them in the hotel as on the night previous. The young women said that they could not do otherwise as it was impossible for them to go home.

When on Saturday morning, the excuses of the day before were again presented, the deceived girls went home, being accompanied part way by the young men. Later, on the street another member of Mrs. Bennett's family met them and offered congratulations, believing that the weddings had taken place. Mrs. Bennett learned of this and after hearing her daughters' stories began to hunt for Boyd and Reamer, who were waiting at the postoffice to see if the girls were driven from home as they said they would be when they had arrived there and told their experience. Boyd was the only one found and to Mrs. Bennett's entreaties to make her daughter his wife, he refused.

He is a native of Virginia. His father is president of the association being promoted in this city. The main office is in Pittsburg. Reamer lives in Pennsylvania and is the son of a minister. He has an uncle of means and high standing in the medical profession in South Jersey. Judge DeMeza told their counsel, V. W. Nash, Jr., that he would allow an extension of time in order to secure bondsmen for the prisoners.

NEW MISSIONARIES NAMED BY BISHOPS.

At the last session of the special meeting of the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church, held Friday in Calvary church, New York, the Rev. D. Trumbull Huntington was elected missionary Bishop of Wuhu, China; the Right Rev. Peter Trimble Rowe was elected missionary Bishop of South Dakota, and the Rev. Henry St. George Tucker was elected missionary Bishop of Kyoto.

Bishop Rowe has been Bishop of Alaska for years, and it is believed by many that he will not accept the new post. When he was elected Bishop of Nevada, four years ago, he declined to accept, saying at the time, "I will never leave Alaska." It is not known what Bishop Tucker will do. He is at present the president of St. Paul's College, Tokio. It is said that he is very fond of his present charge. He is a son of the Bishop Coadutjor of Virginia. The newly elected Bishop of Wuhu is well known in China's missionary fields. The House of Bishops accepted the resignation of Bishop Alexander Mackay Smith, of Pennsylvania, to take effect next February. Sixty-two bishops, including ten missionary bishops, attended the meeting.

PETITION FOR TROLLEY ACROSS CAMP GROUNDS.

Names of almost 2,000 persons have been placed on the petitions which will be forwarded to Governor Wilson and Quartermaster General C. Edward Murray, of the New Jersey National Guard, requesting them to grant to the Atlantic Coast Electric Railway Company the right to run through the western part of the State encampment grounds at Sea Girt, in order to connect the Manasquan people with the Sea Girt end of the trolley line.

During his term Governor Fort agreed to let the company over the grounds for $10,000, but the people say that this sum is too much.

DROWNING MAN SAVED GIVES HIS RESCUER $10.

Atlantic Highlands, Oct. 30.—Frederick L. Applegate, of Jersey City, fell through a hole in a pier at Atlantic Highlands early Friday morning and escaped drowning through the heroism of John Holney, who was near him when he fell. He gave his rescuer $10 which, he said, was five-sixths of all he had.

Holney, who was clamming some distance away, dived several times and when all but exhausted dragged Applegate to the boat and worked over him nearly an hour before signs of life were evident.

St. Nicholas in 1912.

There is to be a new baseball series in St. Nicholas during 1912, a companion to the series concluded in the October number. The new series will deal even more minutely with the fine points of the great National game, enriched by the experiences and incidents of the latest race for the pennant in the National League. In one instance this series seems to have worked disaster to a local manager, for a resident of a Western town sends the magazine a letter stating that, after reading the St. Nichols articles, their club had promply decided that their manager was a "bone-head," and had asked for his resignation.

COMMENCE HEARING OF PRINCIPAL'S APPEAL.

A preliminary hearing of the appeal made by Grover Kipsey, former supervising principal of Warren township schools, for the Board of Education of that district to show cause why he had been deposed, took place in the Somerset street school this morning. The petitioner was represented by Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, and J. Brognard Betts, assistant State commissioner of schools, presided. The time was devoted to deciding what matters should be heard and adjournment was taken at noon for two weeks.

The facts in the case are these: Kipsey was elected principal by the Board of Education on April 3, for one year, with the understanding if his services were satisfactory he would be reappointed. On June 24 the board convened and without giving him any notice, deposed him from the office and E. E. Sage, then president of the board, was elected in his stead by a vote of 8 to 1. Kipsey was given no satisfaction as to why he had been dropped and appealed to the State board to compel the Warren body to give its reasons.

DELIGHTFUL MUSIC BY CHURCH QUARTET

The quartet choir of the Crescent Avenue church, under the direction of Charles L. Gulick, organist and choirmaster, gave a delightful musical service last night, the rendition being selections from the cantata, "The Last Judgment," by Spohr. The work of the quartet was up to the usual high standard, and the rendition was all that one could desire.

Prior to the cantata, Mr. Gulick gave an organ recital, during which he rendered "Finale in B flat," Wolstenholme, and "Marchre Funebre et Chant Seraphique," Guilmant. The quartet which is comprised of Miss Lillian Vernon Watt, soprano; Miss Grace Carroll, contralto; Harry Hopner, tenor and A. E. Betteridge, bass, then sang the following selections from the cantata:

"Praise His Awful Name," quartet; recitative and aria, "Come up Hither;" "All Glory to the Lamb," quartet; aria, "Thus Saith the Lord;" duet, "Forsake Me not in This Dread Hour;" "Blest Are the Departed," quartet; offertory solo, "A Song of Penitence," Beethoven; organ postlude, "Marche Soloennelle," Gounod.

Miss Jessamine Burd, of Somerville, formerly contralto soloist at the First Presbyterian church, and more recently at the First M. E. church, and James W. Miss Burd, accompanied by her maid of honor, Miss Bessie Lindquist, left the choir, and proceeded to the altar, where they were met by Mr. Lee and his best man. The ceremony was a simple one and the couple left immediately afterward. The bride was attractively gowned in blue cloth and wore a velvet hat. The couple will reside in Philadelphia, where the groom is engaged by the Wiedner Company as a constructing engineer. Many Plainfielders attended the wedding.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

Diamonds From Sugar.

It can be stated with perfect truth that a lump of sugar may be turned into diamonds. Not all the substance of the sugar, of course, will enter into the composition of the gem, but only the carbon that it contains. Sugar consists of carbon united with oxygen and hydrogen. The carbon can be easily separated out, and in certain experiments for the production of diamonds this sugar carbon has been employed. The diamonds so produced were, of course, very small and destitute of commercial value, but still they are real diamonds, and the chemical result achieved would be no greater intrinsically if they were as large as the Kohinoor. The hope has often been held out that an improvement in the process of manufacturing diamonds may be effected whereby the necessity of dissolving the carbon in molten iron may be dispensed with, and the required combination of great pressure with great heat may be brought about by some such operation as squeezing the carbon between red hot metal plates.

A Discouraged Sport.

This is the sad story of one of the most thoroughbred sports known to the history of hazards. His name was Sullivan, and he had blue eyes and red hair, with a brogue to match his coloring. John Hays Hammond, the mining engineer, met him in prison in South Africa at the time when Hammond and other prominent men were held as captives by the Boers in connection with the Jameson raid. The engineer and the Irishman became well acquainted.

"Probably you wonder why I'm here," said Sullivan one day when the thermometer had gone as high as 115 in the shade. "Well, I'll tell you. I got into a little trouble, and I pleaded guilty to it.

"'Five years!' said the judge.

"'Your honor,' I cried out, 'I'll throw heads and tails with you to see whether it shall be ten years or nothing.'

"And, would you believe it, Mr. Hammond, that judge got mad and added on the five years anyhow. And now I'm serving that extra five. What's the use of being a sport?"—Popular Magazine.

Strength of a Czar.

A story is told in St. Petersburg which illustrates the phenomenal physical strength of the old czar. At a little station not far from the capital the imperial train was delayed for quite a time, and the czar, being hungry, partook of some of the simple food of the buffet. Meanwhile the little daughter of the mayor presented the empress with a bouquet, the flowers of which were hastily gathered from private hothouses in the neighborhood. The stalks being still damp and earthly, the empress visibly hesitated to take the bouquet in her neatly gloved hand. The czar coolly took up one of the heavy pewter plates on the table, and twisting it as if it were paper, made a neat covering for the stalks. There is nothing incredible in the story, since the czar had been known to bend a kitchen poker as an ordinary man would a strip of tin.

Vegetables In Tudors' Time.

What did people eat before they had the potato as a staple article of diet? Apparently they had most of the vegetables that we have now. Of Londoners in the time of the Tudors, Sir Walter Besant tells us that they ate lettuce as a separate dish before the meat, used turnip leaves as a salad and roasted the turnip itself in wood ashes. Horseradish and carrots were known to them, and capers were served boiled in oil or vinegar. Cucumbers, radishes, parsnips and cabbages also figured at the Tudor meal table, for which, by the way, they boiled their oysters and spread their beef with honey. It would be fun in these days to eat—or refuse—a Tudor meal.—London Chronicle.

A Whistler Story.

When Whistler had not yet reached the height of his fame a millionaire called at his studio and wanted his wife's portrait done.

"How much will you charge me, Mr. Whistler," he said, "for a lifesize picture of the madam?"

"My price," said Whistler, "will be $2,500."

The millionaire took up his hat and stick.

"Why," he snorted, turning to go, "you expect to be paid for your work as if you had been dead four or five hundred years!"

Seal Oil Ice Cream.

A favorite dish with the Eskimos is an ice cream made of seal oil into which snow is stirred until the desired consistency has been obtained; then frozen berries of different kinds are added. This decoction is said to be about as tempting to the civilized palate as frozen cod liver oil.

A Legal Quibble.

She (making up)—And you will admit you were wrong? He (a young lawyer)—No, but I'll admit that an unintentional error might have unknowingly crept into my assertion.

The Reason.

Daughter—Father went off in good humor this morning. Mother—My! That reminds me. I forgot to ask him for any money.—Christian Advocate.

The Eternal Masculine.

As soon as a man gets everything he wants he finds that the things he has are not the things he wanted.—Chicago Record-Herald.

He that follows two hares catches neither.

A Puzzling Applicant.

When needy Mrs. Caderette required a letter of introduction to the benevolent association Jules Duport, proud of his ability to express himself in English, obligingly helped her out. Imagine the bewilderment of the secretary when a large, robust lady in search of work presented what well meaning Jules had written:

"This is Miss Caderette that I induce wherewith to everybody. This lady has been sick for a long time and is still in bed. She has five children, all little and partly dead, and is in very poor condition, as she have no money. Her husband went away two years ago and has not never been heard of since. This man has rheumatism, is a cripple and cannot help herself. This lady is his brother's girl. Help her and she will be very comfortable."

As the sick abed lady could speak no English, she was unable to explain why she looked so well, but the secretary made her "very comfortable" with steady employment in a laundry.—Youth's Companion.

An Eye For Lines.

"The last time I was here I saw that same woman," said the man who was waiting for his eyeglasses to be adjusted. The optician looked across the room to a little woman in faded black.

"Yes," he said, "and if you should be here three months from today you would see her again. She comes every three months. She is a palmist. Nobody gives closer attention to the eyes than the professional palmist. Most of them wear glasses, and they visit an optician regularly. With every change in their eyes their glasses are changed. They have to do that to keep track of all the fine lines in their clients' hands.

"They have keen eyes themselves, those persons who patronize palmists, and are apt to pick out any number of little straggling lines and ask what they mean. If the palmist can't see the lines herself she is likely to get into trouble."—New York Times.

Modest Marie.

"In November, 1875," writes Marie Bashkirtsev, "the great day of the opera, I was nervous all day. I wore a white muslin jupe unie (whatever that may be) with a wide frill at the bottom; corsage Marie Stuart and coiffure in harmony with the gown. A very beautiful affair. Every one admired me. About the middle of the performance the feeling swept over me that I was beautiful to distraction. At the close I make my way out between two lines of gentlemen who stare themselves blind, and their verdict is not an unfavorable one. One feels that. Coming home, I looked at myself in the glass. I was like a queen, like a portrait that had stepped out of its frame. What a misfortune it is that instead of these pen scratches I cannot draw my portrait as I was then—my marvelous complexion, my golden hair, my eyes black like the night, my mouth, my figure!"

A Quibbler.

"These people obey the letter, perhaps, but they don't obey the spirit of the law." The speaker was discussing certain troublesome and wily transgressors. He continued: "And they don't even interpret the letter of the law correctly. They and their attorneys quibble like the young man in Pike county.

"A young man and his girl were strolling in a Pike county meadow when a bull dashed upon them.

"'Stay here and protect my retreat,' cried the girl. 'You know, Reggie, you've often said you'd face death for my sake.'

"But Reggie, who had already sprinted fifty yards, called back over his shoulder:

"'Do you call that bull dead?'"—New York Press.

Why Rubber Tires Grow Hot.

When an automobile is running at high speed the rubber tires are rapidly warmed, and the heat sometimes becomes very great, with resultant injury to the rubber. The cause of this accumulation of heat in the tire is ascribed to the kneading of the rubber, which generates heat faster than it can be radiated away. For this reason manufacturers have found it to be an advantage to have metal parts in the tread, such as the ends of rivets, in contact with the tire, because the metal being a good radiator, helps to carry off the heat of the outer air.

A Composer's Dream.

The "Devil's Sonata" was written by Tartini, Italian musician, under the inspiration of a dream, in which the arch fiend challenged him to a trial of skill. Entranced by the wonderful performance of his visitor, the dreamer upon awakening seized his violin and produced from his general impressions this celebrated composition.

The Virtue of Vanity.

What a hideous place to live in this world would be if women took it upon themselves to be too superior for the use of the powder puff!—London Madame.

Thought Reading.

"Can I see you apart for a moment?"

"You mean alone, don't you?"

"Exactly; I want the loan of a fiver."—London Bystander.

When China Was Good.

During the reigns of Yao and Chun in 2200 B. C. virtue pervaded China and crime was unknown, while prosperity abounded.

He who is most slow in making a promise is the most faithful in its performance.—Rousseau.

What's in a Name.

Repugnant to us as is the subject of names, we feel obliged to mention that Guy Angel has been arrested in Salt Lake for forgery; that Rube Lamborn shears sheep in Ramsdale, Utah, and that Lyttle & Weeman are small dealers in Toledo.—Chicago Tribune.

A Medieval Megaphone.

A curiosity of great antiquity is still to be seen within St. Andrew's church at Willoughton, near Gainsborough, says an English magazine. This is a quaint speaking trumpet with an obscure early history, dating back to the times of the Knights Templars. In shape it resembles a French horn and is more than five feet long, having a bell at the end of the graduated tube. It was formerly six feet in length, but is now telescoped at the joints, where the metal has apparently decayed. Tradition declares it was formerly sounded from the tower to summon aid in case of need, as when blown at a height the weird, deep notes the trumpet produced could be heard a great distance away in bygone days. It is believed that this curious instrument has often been used to call together the villagers, thus dispensing with the usual bell, and to give additional power and strength to the choir, being then probably used by the chief singer, as the trumpet intensifies vocal sound to a marked degree.

Rare Peruvian Ware.

Vessels of odoriferous clay were imported early in the sixteenth century from Peru, Chile and Mexico by the Portuguese merchants, to which were given the name of buccaros. So highly was this ware esteemed that only the wealthiest collectors could afford to possess entire specimens. Broken pieces were set in gold or silver or ground to powder to be used to scent cakes and confections and to perfume gloves and handkerchiefs. It was also supposed to possess medicinal properties and was prescribed by contemporary physicians for certain ailments. The great demand for the buccaros resulted in the alleged discovery of scented clays in Portugal and the potters of the time used them to fashion all sorts of drinking vessels on which they impressed a seal or stamp, hence the adoption of the name terra sigillata.

The Haughty Butchers.

The complaint against the high cost of living probably dates from the time Adam paid so dearly for a bite of apple. At a later date, according to the Westminster Gazette, the retail butcher of France grew very arrogant, and it says that the present increased price of meats has caused the examination of the records in order to trace the origin of the trouble there. In 1500 a decree was issued which suggests that butchers were carrying things with a high hand. It says: "Butchers are expressly enjoined not to ill treat or use abusive language to the ladies of their city, or the women of low degree, or the servant maids who propose to deal with them. They are on no account to mock or deride the said ladies, women and maids, but are to receive politely all offers made to them for their goods."—San Antonio Express.

Swiss English.

Swiss English always seems designed to round off the scenery with the touch of humor. For years the best in the writers' collection has been an inscription by a path leading to a waterfall near Meiringen, which explained that a toll was necessary for "the foundation and untaining" of that path. Until recently, however, there was nothing quite equal to the Strassburg cathedral notice: "Express interdiction to circulate during divine service. Beadle have to preserve order." But Switzerland has at least tied with Germany now in the collection. In a certain Oberland valley, too unspoiled yet to be given away by name, there is a series of gates which bear a short request in Oberland German to the wayfarer to close them. And twice it is translated into the English "Shut up!"—London Spectator.

Costly Coats.

An Indian prince after a court function in London went home for a chat with a friend, also an eastern potentate. On arriving he asked to be allowed to take off his dress coat and then bade his friend's private secretary might put it in the safe for the night. It was a silk frock coat, buttercup yellow and heavy with jewels.

"How much may you be worth with your coat on?" the prince was asked.

"About £200,000," was the reply.

"I am a poor man beside you," said his friend sadly. "My dress coat is worth not much more than half that amount."

Plans For the Future.

She was a visitor to the prison, kindly and well meaning, and as she chatted with a burglar who had been sentenced to six months' imprisonment she thought she detected signs of reform in him.

"And now," she said, "have you any plans for the future on the expiration of your sentence?"

"Oh, yes, ma'am," he said hopefully. "I've got the plans of two banks and a postoffice."—Stray Stories.

"Well, I'll be plumb gosh darned!" was Daylight's comment. "No ill-will, no grudge, no nothing—and after that lambasting! You're sure a hummer, Bob."

He had taken a liking to the animal, and repented not of his bargain. He realized that Bob was not vicious nor mean, the trouble being that he was bursting with high spirits and was endowed with more than the average horse's intelligence. It was the spirits and the intelligence, combined with inordinate roguishness, that made him what he was. What was required to control him was a strong hand, with tempered sternness and yet with the requisite touch of brutal dominance.

Throughout the week Daylight found himself almost as much interested in Bob as in Dede; and, not being in the thick of any big deals, he was probably more interested in both of them than in the business game. Bob's trick of whirling was of special moment to him. How to overcome it—that was the thing. Suppose he did meet with Dede out in the hills; and suppose by some lucky stroke of fate, he should manage to be riding alongside of her; then that whirl of Bob's would be most disconcerting and embarrassing. He was not particularly anxious for her to see him thrown forward on Bob's neck. On the other hand, suddenly to leave her and go dashing down the back-track, plying quirt and spurs, wouldn't do, either. What was wanted was a method wherewith to prevent that lightning whirl. He must stop the animal before it got around. The reins would not do this. Neither would the spurs. Remained the quirt. But how to accomplish it? Bob always whirled to the right. Very well. He would double the quirt in his hand, and, the instant of the whirl, that double quirt would rap Bob on the nose. The horse didn't live, after it once learned the lesson, that would whirl in the face of the doubled quirt.

More keenly than ever, during that week in the office, did Daylight realize that he had no social, nor even human contacts with Dede. The situation was such that he could not ask her the simple question whether or not she was going riding next Sunday. Thus he found another card in the hand the mad god had dealt him. How important that card was to become he did not dream, yet he decided that it was a pretty good card.

Sunday came, and Bob, out in the Piedmont hills, behaved like an angel. His goodness at times was of the spirited, prancing order, but otherwise he was a lamb. But no Dede did Daylight encounter. He vainly circled about among the hill roads, and in the afternoon took the steep grade over the divide of the second range and dropped into Maraga Valley. Just after passing the foot of the descent, he heard the hoof beats of a cantering horse. It was from ahead and coming toward him. What if it were Dede! He turned Bob around and started to return at a walk. The canter came nearer, but he faced straight ahead until he heard the horse behind check to a walk. Then he glanced over his shoulder. It was Dede. The recognition was quick, and, with her, accompanied by surprise. What more natural thing than that, partly turning his horse, he should wait till she caught up with him; and that, when abreast, they should continue abreast on up the grade? He could have sighed with relief. The thing was accomplished, and so easily. Greetings had been exchanged; here they were side by side and going in the same direction with miles and miles ahead of them.

He noted that her eye was first for the horse and next for him.

"Oh, what a beauty!" she had cried at sight of Bob. From the shining light in her eyes, and the face filled with delight, he would scarcely have believed that it belonged to the young woman he had known in the office, the young woman with the controlled, subdued office face.

"I didn't know you rode," was one of her first remarks. "I imagined you were wedded to get-there-quick machines."

Thus, and to his great relief, they launched on a topic of mutual interest. He told her about Bob's tricks and of the whirl and his scheme to overcome it; and she agreed that horses had to be handled with a certain rational severity, no matter how much one loved them. There was Mab, which she had had for eight years, and which she had had to break of stall-kicking. The process had been painful for Mab, but it had cured her.

"You've ridden a lot," Daylight said.

"I really can't remember the first time I was on a horse," she told him. "I was born on a ranch, you know, and they couldn't keep me away from the horses."

And thereat she told him more of her ranch life in the days before her father died. And Daylight was hugely pleased with himself. They were getting acquainted. The conversation had not lagged in the full half hour they had been together. When she talked, he listened and followed her, and yet all the while he was following his own thoughts and impressions as well. It was a nervy thing for her to do, this riding astride, and he didn't know, after all, whether he liked it or not. His ideas of women were prone to be old-fashioned; they were the ones he had imbibed in the early day, frontier life of his youth, when no woman was seen on anything but a side-saddle. He had grown up to the tacit fiction that women on horseback were not bipeds. It came to him with a shock, this sight of her so manlike in her saddle. But he had to confess that the sight looked good to him just the same.

CHAPTER XIV.

Another Sunday man and horse and dog roved the Piedmont hills. And again Daylight and Dede rode together. But this time her surprise at meeting him was tinctured with suspicion; or rather, her surprise was of another order. The previous Sunday had been quite accidental, but his appearing the second time among her favorite haunts hinted of more than the fortuitous. Daylight was made to feel that she suspected him, and he, remembering that he had seen a big rock quarry near Blair Park, stated offhand that he was thinking of buying it. His one-time investment in a brickyard had put the idea into his head—an idea that he decided was a good one, for it enabled him to suggest that she ride along with him to inspect the quarry.

So several hours he spent in her company, in which she was much the same girl as before, natural, unaffected, light-hearted, smiling and laughing, a good fellow, talking horses with unflagging enthusiasm, making friends with the crusty-tempered Wolf, and expressing a desire to ride Bob, whom she declared she was more in love with than ever. Against his better judgment, Daylight gave in, and, on an unfrequented stretch of road, changed saddles and bridles.

"Remember, he's greased lightning," he warned, as he helped her to mount.

She nodded, while Bob pricked up his ears to the knowledge that he had a strange rider on his back. The fun came quickly enough—too quickly for Dede, who found herself against Bob's neck as he pivoted around and bolted the other way. Daylight followed on her horse and watched. He saw her check the animal quickly to a standstill, and immediately, with rein across neck and a decisive prod of the left spur, whirl him back the way he had come and almost as swiftly.

"Get ready to give him the quirt on the nose," Daylight called.

He hung almost gleefully upon her actions in anticipation of what the fractious Bob was going to get. And Bob got it, on his next whirl, or attempt, rather, for he was no more than half-way around when the quirt met him smack on his tender nose. There and then, in his bewilderment, surprise and pain, his fore feet, just skimming the road, dropped down.

"Great!" Daylight applauded. "A couple more will fix him. "He's too smart not to know when he's beaten."

Again Bob tried. But this time he was barely quarter around when the doubled quirt on his nose compelled him to drop his fore feet to the road. Then, with neither rein nor spur, but by the mere threat of the quirt, she straightened him out.

Dede looked triumphantly at Daylight.

"Let me give him a run?" she asked.

Daylight nodded, and she shot down the road. He watched her out of sight around the bend, and watched till she came into sight returning. She certainly could sit her horse, was his thought, and she was a sure enough hummer. God, she was the wife for a man! Made most of them look pretty slim. And to think of her hammering all week at a typewriter. That was no place for her. She should be a man's wife, taking it easy, with silks and satins and diamonds (his frontier notion of what befitted a wife beloved), and dogs and horses, and such things.

But the quarry was doomed to pass out of his plans for a time, for on the following Sunday he rode alone. No Dede on a chestnut sorrel came across the back-road from Berkeley that day, nor the day a week later. As the third week drew to a close and another desolate Sunday confronted him, Daylight resolved to speak, office or no office. And as was his nature, he went simply and directly to the point. She had finished her work with him, and was gathering her note pad and pencils together to depart, when he said:

"Oh, one more thing, Miss Mason, and I hope you won't mind my being frank and straight out. You've struck me right along as a sensible-minded girl, and I don't think you'll take offense at what I'm going to say. You know how long you've been in the office—it's years, now, several of them, anyway; and you know I've always been straight and aboveboard with you. I've never what you call—presumed. Because you were in my office I've tried to be more careful than if—if you wasn't in my office—you understand. But just the same, it don't make me any the less human. I'm a lonely sort of a fellow—don't take that as a bid for kindness. What I mean by it is to try and tell you just how much those two rides with you have meant. And now I hope you won't mind my just asking why you haven't been out riding the last two Sundays?"

She played nervously with a pencil for a time, as if debating her reply, while he waited patiently.

"This riding," she began; "it's not what they call the right thing. I leave it to you. You know the world. That's the trouble. It's what the world would have to say about me and my employer meeting regularly and riding in the hills on Sundays. It's funny, but it's so. I could ride with one of the clerks without remark, but with you—no."

"Look here, Miss Mason," said Daylight. "I know you don't like this talking over of things in the office. Neither do I. It's part of the whole thing, I guess; a man ain't supposed to talk anything but business with his stenographer. Will you ride with me next Sunday, and we can talk it over thoroughly then and reach some sort of a conclusion. Out in the hills is the place where you can talk something besides business. I guess you've seen enough of me to know I'm pretty square. I—I do honor and respect you, and. . . and all that, and I . . . " He was beginning to flounder, and the hand that rested on the desk blotter was visibly trembling. He strove to pull himself together. "I just want to harder than anything ever in my life before. I—I—I can't explain myself, but I do, that's all. Will you—Just next Sunday? Tomorrow?"

Nor did he dream that her low acquiescence was due, as much as anything else, to the beads of sweat on his forehead, his trembling hand and his all too-evident general distress.

"Of course, there's no way of telling what anybody wants from what they say." Daylight rubbed Bob's rebellious ear with his quirt and pondered with dissatisfaction the words he had just uttered. They did not say what he had meant them to say. "What I'm driving at is that you say flatfooted that you won't meet me again, and give your reasons, but how am I to know they are your real reasons? Mebbe you just don't want to get acquainted with me, and won't say so for fear of hurting my feelings. Don't you see? I'm the last man in the world to shove in where I'm not wanted. And if I thought you didn't care a whoop to see anything more of me, why I'd clear out so blamed quick you couldn't see me for smoke."

It had been a happy day. Daylight had met her on the back-road from Berkeley, and they had had hours together. It was only now, with the day drawing to a close and with them approaching the gate of the road to Berkeley, that he had broached the important subject.

She began her answer to his last contention, and he listened gratefully.

"But suppose, just suppose, that the reasons I have given are the only ones?—that there is no question of my not wanting to know you?"

"Then I'd go on urging like Sam Scratch," he said quickly. "Because, you see, I've always noticed that folks that incline to anything are much more open to hearing the case stated. But if you did have that other season up your sleeve, if you didn't want to know me, if—if, well, if you thought my feelings oughtn't to be hurt just because you had a good job with me. . . ." Here, his calm consideration of a possibility was swamped by the fear that it was an actuality, and he lost the thread of his reasoning. "Well, anyway, all you have to do is to say the word and I'll clear out. And with no hard feelings; it would be just a case of bad luck for me. So be honest, Miss Mason, please, and tell me if that's the reason—I almost got a hunch that it is."

"Oh, but that isn't fair," she cried. "You give me the choice of lying to you and hurting you in order to protect myself by getting rid of you, or of throwing away my protection by telling you the truth, for then you, as you said yourself, would stay and urge."

Daylight smiled grimly with satisfaction.

"I'm real glad, Miss Mason, real glad for those words."

"But they won't serve you," she went on hastily. "They can't serve you. I refuse to let them. This is our last ride, and . . . here is the gate."

Ranging her mare alongside, she bent, slid the catch, and followed the opening gate.

"No; please, no," she said, as Daylight started to follow.

Humbly acquiescent, he pulled Bob back, and the gate swung shut between them. But there was more to say, and she did not ride on.

"Listen, Miss Mason," he said, in a low voice that shook with sincerity; "I want to assure you of one thing. I'm not just trying to fool around with you. I like you, I want you, and I was never more earnest in my life. There's nothing wrong in my intentions or anything like that. What I mean is strictly honorable—"

But the expression of her face made him stop. She was angry, and she was laughing at the same time.

Dede Mason had quick, birdlike ways, almost flitting from mood to mood; and she was all contrition on the instant.

"Forgive me for laughing," she said across the gate. "It wasn't really laughter. I was surprised off my guard, and hurt, too. You see, Mr. Harnish, I've not been . . ."

She paused, in sudden fear of completing the thought into which her birdlike precipitancy had betrayed her.

"What you mean is that you've not been used to such sort of proposing."

"I Like You, I Want You and I Never Was More Earnest in My Life."

Daylight said; "a sort of on-the-run, 'Howdy, glad-to-make-your-acquaintance, won't-you-be-mine' proposition."

She nodded and broke into laughter, in which he joined, and which served to pass the awkwardness away. He gathered heart at this, and went on in greater confidence, with cooler head and tongue.

"There, you see, you prove my case. You've had experience in such matters. I don't doubt you've had slathers of proposals. Well, I haven't, and I'm like a fish out of water. Besides, this ain't a proposal. It's a peculiar situation, that's all, and I'm in a corner. I've got enough plain horse-sense to know a man ain't supposed to argue marriage with a girl as a reason for getting acquainted with her. And right there was where I was in the hole. Number one, I can't get acquainted with you in the office. Number two, you say you won't see me out of the office to give me a chance. Number three, your reason is that folks will talk because you work for me. Number four, I just got to get acquainted with you, and I just got to get you to see that I mean fair and all right. Number five, there you are on one side the gate getting ready to go, and me here on the other side the gate pretty desperate and bound to say something to make you reconsider. Number six, I said it. And now and finally, I just do want you to reconsider."

He was such a boy, this big giant of a millionaire who had half the rich men of San Francisco afraid of him. Such a boy! She had never imagined this side of his nature.

"How do folks get married?" he was saying. "Why, number one, they meet; number two, like each other's looks; number three, get acquainted; and number four, get married or not, according to how they like each other after getting acquainted. But how in thunder we're to have a chance to find out whether we like each other enough is beyond my savvee, unless we make that chance ourselves. I'd come to see you, call on you, only I know you're just rooming or boarding, and that won't do."

"It's getting late now, anyway," Daylight hurried on, "and we've settled nothing at all. Just one more Sunday, anyway—that's not asking much—to settle it in."

She gathered the reins into her hand preliminary to starting.

"Good night," she said, "and—"

"Yes," he whispered, with just the faintest touch of imperativeness.

"Yes," she said, her voice low but distinct.

At the same moment she put the mare into a canter and went down the road without a backward glance, intent on an analysis of her own feelings.

WOMAN'S NOVEL EFFORT TO COMMIT SUICIDE.

Threw Herself Into Bear Pit in Park so That Animals Would Devour Her.

Lima, O., Oct. 30.—In an attempt to end her life while suffering from despondency, Miss Anna Harter, 33 years old, Saturday leaped into a pit at the city park in which were confined two large black bears. The bears, however, refused to harm her. The woman was found in the pit some time later by Lee Stuckey, a park attache. The bears attacked him when he went to the woman's rescue, and drove him from the pit, but he subdued them with a stream of water from a hose and dragged Miss Harter from the enclosure.

Miss Harter recently lost $500 and this is believed to have preyed on her mind. She said she hoped the bears would devour her.

According to the town assessors, there are 283 dogs in Westfield and only about eighty are licensed. The dog tax this year is only fifty cents per dog.

PLAINFIELD TEAM LOSES TO THOMAS A.A

The Plainfield Association Footbal club lost a hard fought game to the Thomas A. A., of Kearney, on the local grounds, Saturday afternoon, the final score being 3 to 2. Thomas kicked off and made a combined rush for the home goal which fell within a minute of the start. From the kick-off the visitors again broke away and scored making their total two in ten minutes of play.

This put the home team on their mettle and the visitors were kept on their end for a time. They were awarded a penalty but the ball was sent past. The locals were not to be denied and after thirty-five minutes play Sutton scored. Half-time was called with the score 2 to 1 in favor of Thomas A. A.

Resuming play the Thomas A. A. had another break away and scored making their total three. Plainfield was playing in hard luck, but it only spurred them on to renewed effort and the long delayed goal came at last, McLaughlin having no chance to save.

This half was a repetition of the former one. Plainfield, with the exception of one or two break-aways by Thomas A. A., hall all the play and kept the visitors to their own end. But despite their best efforts they could not score, the ball striking the uprights and the bar and would not go through.

The Plainfield Driving Association held its last matinee race meet of the season at the driving park, Saturday afternoon. No admission was charged and a large number of lovers of good trotting witnessed the races. The card, combining three races, was one of the best offered this season. The horses in each race were evenly matched and each heat was closely contested.

The horses entered are all well-known, and have appeared at various meets throughout the season. The first race, a free for all, proved to be one of the most exciting of the afternoon, being won by Dr. Brown's "Dick Allen," with "Ivan B.," second. "Little Bride" took the second race, a 2:16 mixed, in straight heats, while "The Rector" took the third race, a 2:30 mixed, in straight heats. The time in each race was good, especially in the first event. The summaries:

PRAISES NOMINEES

Acting Governor Tells Why the People Should Elect Pierce and Smalley.

BOTH MEN OF HIGH CALIBRE.

The Special Interest of Patronage Will Be Eliminated by Their Selection, Says Union County's Able Representative.

President Ernest R. Ackerman, of the Senate, said yesterday that he believed the records made by the Republican Senators who are seeking re-election were such that the people of the State would be justified in continuing them in office. This assertion was made by Mr. Ackerman when asked to express his views regarding the coming election. Basing his statements upon his association with the Republican candidates Mr. Ackerman then spoke as follows:

"The people of New Jersey are to be congratulated on the high character of the nominees for the State Senate selected by the Republican voters at the primaries in those counties where a Senator will be elected this fall. Direct primaries for legislative offices in New Jersey have been in operation for the last four years. The law was signed by a Republican Governor. During the time stated the power of nomination has been directly in the hands of the people, that is to say, the candidates have been chosen by the voters.

"If the Republican nominees are elected the existing high standards of care, economy, watchfulness and efficiency in the Senate of New Jersey will be continued and guaranteed to the people of the State. That the Republicans of New Jersey stand for the true interests of the people is shown by the nomination, by Republicans, for the Senate of high-minded public servants like Colgate, Gaunt, Plummer, Smalley and Pierce, whom I intimately know from personal association in legislative work. They have demonstrated to the people their ability and honesty.

"During legislative sessions I have known these men to work early and late, without regard to any personal interest or comfort, to protect the people and to see that matters of legislation were wisely and properly expressed. They have been weighed in the balance and not found wanting. They are squarely representative of New Jersey's highest traditions of honor and patriotism. While other nominees may not have had like opportunities, still it is fair to say that the voters of their counties considered their ability and capacity before nominating them, and as time passes they will, no doubt, measure up to the high standard already fixed by the Republicans voters of the State.

"Legislation should not be influenced by any special interest whatever, not even by a special interest which might naturally arise from a desire to see particular persons appointed to office and which the political vernacular designates as 'the plums of patronage.' Special interest takes all sorts of forms among all classes of people and not the least among which is the desire to get office or an itching wish to be the power behind the throne.

"With the election of such men as Pierce and Smalley the special interest of patronage will be eliminated for men who will loyally work on appropriation bills as they have during long, weary hours, analyzing burdensome details, are not apt to be influenced in that respect, especially when it is considered that their arduous efforts were in the direction of economy and the reduction of taxation. Work performed by quiet investigators like Colgate or Plummer or Gaunt offers very little chance to 'play to the grand stand,' but it has been very effective and valuable to the people. Emphasis is laid on the fact that the terms of office of the Senators to be elected this fall will extend beyond the present administration, so that this question will be one of pertinence to a new administration.

"Who will be reckless enough to declare that the Republican nominees for the State Senate are not good, honest, patriotic citizens? Who will be so audacious as to say that the leadership of a man like Austen Colgate is a discredited leadership? Who will be so wild as to charge that a man like W. W. Smalley would trim or hedge for a political position? Who would have the effrontery to link the name of Carlton B. Pierce with a program of political insincerity? Who would be adventurous enough to assert that Senator Gaunt was a political charlatan, or who so venturesome as to proclaim the Senator a self-seeking agitator?

"Republicans are proud of the men nominated to represent them in the State Senate, for as a tree is judged by its fruits, so a political party is judged by the character of its nom-

DEMOCRATIC MEETING IS SLIMLY ATTENDED

Less than fifty voters greeted the local and county Democratic candidates at Reform Hall, last night, where a mass meeting was held under the auspices of the Democratic City Committee. P. J. Reville, chairman of the city committee, called the meeting to order and introduced John O. Stevens as president. Mr. Stevens mentioned his own candidacy and that of his colleagues for members of the Common Council. In introducing Robert H. McAdams, candidate for Senate, the chairman praised Governor Wilson and the last Legislature.

Mr. McAdams gave his version of the record made by his opponent, Carlton B. Pierce, while a member of the Assembly, alleging that former Governor Fort had made it possible for him to do this, inasmuch as Mr. Pierce's record in the assembly had been defended by the former executive before any attack had been made on it. What Mr. McAdams considered improper he pointed out and told what he, himself, would do if elected.

Hugh J. McLoughlin, James E. Lowden and John R. Connolly, candidates for members of the Assembly, were introduced in turn and each talked for a few minutes.

J. Logan Fay, candidate for sheriff, was also introduced.

NO BAIL YET FOR BOYD AND REAMER

Clarence W. Boyd and George W. Reamer are still being held at police headquarters in default of $250 bail each, under which they were placed yesterday morning in the city court by Judge William G. DeMeza, on the charges preferred by the Misses Nellie and Violet Bennett, of New Brunswick. The men were arrested here Sunday on complaint of the young women who allege that they were detained here two days and nights by the prisoners who, according to the women, had made promises of marrying them, and had sent a telegram to the mother of the women asserting that the double wedding had taken place.

Both men are in the employ of a Pittsburgh concern whose interests they were promoting in this city. The father of Boyd is president of the company and came here from Trenton yesterday, where he is engaged in looking after the firm's contracts. The senior Boyd has wired his bank for $500 to bail the young men and it is expected that it will arrive tomorrow. Dr. Reamer, of Mt. Holly, brother of the other prisoner, also came here today to assist in arranging for the bail bonds.

The young women returned to home in New Brunswick yesterday after the hearing in the city court and have steadfastly refused to be seen by all callers. It is understood that when they first preferred the charges they stated that they had been drugged. Later they confessed that this was false and had acquiesed in the plans and to allow the alleged marriages to be performed the next day.

V. W. Nash, Jr., counsel for Boyd and Reamer said today that the telegram sent to Mrs. Bennett announcing an alleged marriage was prompted by a "dare" given by Violet Bennett to Boyd while the latter was under the influence of liquor.

BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS AGAINST ALEXANDER KANE.

DeWitt C. Ivins, Voehl & Waldron and the Gale Hardware Co., all of this city, have made Alexander Kane, formerly of Plainfield but more recently of New Brunswick, defendant in bankruptcy proceedings. The necessary papers were filed in Trenton this morning and the hearing was set for November 15 before Atwood L. DeCosta, of Elizabeth, as referee.

Mr. Kane stated today that his liabilities are approximately $5,000 and that he has real estate holdings at Galvin's Park and at Commercial and Talmadge streets, New Brunswick estimated to be worth $2,700. Since leaving this city business has been bad for Mr. Kane, he asserts, and he has suffered several heavy losses.

'MEN AND RELIGION'

Pastors and Laymen Plan For a Campaign Here Early in the Year.

THE MOVEMENT EXPLAINED.

Henry D. Dickson and Rev. J. J. Moment, Both of Newark, Tell What May Be Gained—"Committee of 25" to Be In Charge.

Pastors and laymen, seventy-five in all, representing nearly every Protestant congregation in Plainfield and North Plainfield held a conference in Y. M. C. A. Hall last night and the "Men and Religion Movement" was enthusiastically endorsed. It was decided to begin the preparations at once for a local campaign. A committee of five representing the five principal denominations in the city was empowered to increase its number to twenty-five in order to obtain representation from each Protestant church in the city and borough. The names of the additional members will be proposed by the pastors themselves. This enlarged committee will have charge of all arrangements for the local campaign to follow the Newark campaign covering from January 27 to February 4.

In the course of his remarks the chairman, Howard McWilliams, stated that one of the chief results to be obtained through the movement would be the enlargement of the scope of interdenominational co-operation. He referred to the great campaigns which have just been conducted in Minneapolis and South Bend, where on every day during the eight days of the campaign thousands of men met to study principles and methods of boys work, social service, evangelistic work, Bible study and missionary work. Under the leadership of the mivement's experts in these five phases. He stated that the movement is not a Y. M. C. A. one nor a denomination one, but a movement on the part of the men of all the churches on behalf of the men and boys who are now either unattached to or loosely related to the church.

Henry D. Dickson, of Newark, the executive secretary of the Newark "Committee of 100," said that the movement is an answer to the challenge presented in the fact that there are now 3,000,000 more of women and girls than men and boys in the church. He asserted that the movement seeks to accomplish two things: First to set a standard for Christian productivity and to apply it to individual lives, individual churches and interdenominational effort; and second, because this standard is high and difficult the movement seeks to study the conditions which oppose and those conditions which favor productivity. The movement would apply business methods to church work. He quoted Josiah Strong's statement that it now takes twenty Christians twelve months to make one convert to the church and said that it is because of the churches' failure to apply scientific methods to the work that it make this lamentable showing.

The movement, Mr. Dickson stated, offers a splendid opportunity to the local church to correct the condition revealed in Dr. Strong's statement. The institutes planned in connection with its campaigns will offer opportunities for the study of the best methods in all phases of the church's work. The leaders of the movement, he declared, have already shown that the weakness of the old evangelism which simply brought the convert to the altar and left him there with no program to keep him alive can be remedied by linking evangelism with social service. In closing he said that one of the splendid things about the movement is that it gives men an excuse for talking to others about Jesus Christ. He strongly urged that each church should have a committee of six men who should promote the movement within that church.

The other speaker was Rev. J. J. Moment, pastor of the High Street Presbyterian church of Newark, who gave an illuminating address upon the topic, "The Church and Social Service." Mr. Moment said that the classical illustration of social service was given by Christ himself in the parable of the Good Samaritan, and he said that the church must believe in social service because Christ taught it. He declared that the whole business of the whole church is not simply to preach the gospel but to apply the gospel as well. The great task of the church today, he asserted, is not merely to get principles right but to get application right as well.

Asking the question, "What is the Christian Church?" he answered by saying: "It is an aggregation of Christian men and the only charter it has ever received is the charter given by Christ to the individual man. If it is the individual man's

LUTHER GREATEST

Prof. Spaeth, of Princeton, Places Religious Reformer First in Germany's History.

TELLS OF HIS ACHIEVEMENTS.

Goethe, the Poet, and Bismarck, the Statesman, Over-shadowed By the Priest Who Defied the Vatican.

The first lecture of the course on Germany, one of the subjects chosen by the Monday Afternoon Club for the winter's work, was given yesterday at the Hartridge Auditorium by J. Duncan Spaeth, professor of philology at Princeton University. "Luther—Reformer and Founder of the Literary Language of Germany," was the theme of Dr. Spaeth, who named the three men pre-eminent in German history, Luther, the reformer; Goethe, the poet, and Bismarck, the statesman. Luther, he considered the greatest of the three. Though his religious intensity postponed the development of Goethe's greatness and the rise of Germany, both were made possible by the influence of Luther. His personality was given as a strong element in this influence, for he was a man of the people, born in 1483 of peasant and burgher stock and inured to poverty, discipline and rigorous trials.

Luther's career in school, high school and university were graphically told. The lecturer said he won his place as leader by disputation, argument and debate as in modern days, the leader's place is won by athletics. Influences were given that led Luther to give up a worldly career and enter a monastery where his intense conviction of sin was followed by careful study of the Bible and an inward change that placed him in new relations with his God. Luther's loyalty to his church until he went to Rome, and, doing penance, came to the new understanding that not penance but faith was his soul's justification were told by the speaker, who hastened through the ordeals at Leipsic and the Diet of Worms where Luther stood for truth and the right so that he became the national hero of Germany.

Dr. Spaeth told of the translation of the Bible in German by Luther and said his qualifications were such that when he gave the sacred Vord from the original Greek text he used words intelligible to the common people and himself a German of the midlands, harmonized the dialetic differences of high, low and middle German. His vocabulary was drawn from the Bible, he said, but his words touched the life of the German people, for they expressed truths of his own experience.

Luther tried to break down the lines between what is secular and what is ecclesiastic, the speaker said, and in closing gave three prominent points for which he contended. Luther believed, he said, that religion was an inward, spiritual state independent of outward authority; liberty of individual opinion and government should go unchallenged and that nothing is holy in a special set of deeds, but that all our life may be touched with holy thought and motive in the common acts of every day.

CLEVER MONOLOGUES BY MISS HERFORD

Miss Beatrice Herford gave one of her delightful entertainments at the Plainfield High School, last night, under the auspices and for the benefit of the Woman's Exchange. There was a large attendance of patrons and friends of the Exchange and as a result a substantial sum will be realized as profit. Miss Herford, whose clever work as a monologuist is so well-known throughout the country, gave a number of her best selections last night.

Miss Herford gave a clever impersonation of a child and her character selections were especially good. For over an hour Miss Herford kept her audience convulsed with laughter and in nearly every instance she was obliged to respond to an encore. She furnished the entire program and her selections were so varied and entertaining that she had little trouble in holding the attention of the audience throughout.

MISSIONS' MEETING

The Women's Union, of Newark Classis of Reformed Church in Session Here.

PRESENTATION OF THE REPORTS

Mrs. H. V. Youngman Presides—Luncheon Served By Trinity Society—Election of Officers This Afternoon.

Interesting reports and short addresses were the features of the morning session of the annual convention of the Women's Missionary Union of the Classis of Newark, being held at Trinity Reformed church, today. There were about seventy-five women present from the different churches in the Classis of Newark, when the morning session opened at 10:30 o'clock with Mrs. H. V. Youngman, of Montclair, the president, in the chair.

After the singing of a hymn, Arthur L. Titsworth being at the organ and Miss Etta Raybert, soprano soloist, leading, the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. John Y. Broek, the pastor of the church. Rev. Daniel Rapalje offered prayer. A short address of welcome was given by Mrs. Edward T. VanWinkle, of the entertaining church, to which Mrs. Youngman made a happy response.

Then followed the report of the secretary, Mrs. C. B. VanDewater, of Nutley, and the report of the treasurer, Miss E. E. Sleight, of Newark, who is filling out an unexpired term. Out of eighteen societies eight failed to make a report, yet all the others showed marked progress during the year in the work of missions, especially in the contribution toward the support of Miss Anna Thompson, the missionary in Japan.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church reported through Mrs. Leonard Smith that $40 had been contributed toward the support of Dr. Paul W. Harrison in Arabia, and $55 had been given to foreign missions and a like amount to home missions, and in addition $10 was given to the work in Kentucky, $5 to the work in Japan and a Christmas box valued at $20 had been sent away. Mrs. E. T. VanWinkle gave an excellent report of the Ladies' Christmas Work Society. All the other societies reporting showed that the pledges had been raised and paid. The report of the treasurer, Miss Sleight was incomplete, and only contained the fact that $200 had been paid toward Miss Thompson's salary and $35 had been given toward the salary of the Indian interpreter.

Miss Anne Littel, of Newark, representing the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and Miss Edna Merritt, of the Woman's Executive Board presented the report of the Classical committee. Miss Littel reported that $290 was given last year toward the support of Miss Thompson, the missionary, and also called attention to the fact that on November 9, the anniversary of Miss Thompson's birthday would occur and asked the women to remember her on that date. Miss Merritt spoke more especially of the good work being done by the Indian interpreter.

Mrs. Edwin W. Belcher, of the Woman's Board of Domestic Missions, who was to speak on "Kentucky, Past and Present," was unable to attend and instead Miss Helen Searle, daughter of Rev. Dr. Searle, of New Brunswick, who has been in Kentucky in the interest of missions, gave a most excellent talk of the work at McKee and other mission stations. She said that one of the most difficult things a missionary has to overcome is the dishonesty of the natives. They are always suspicious, but once the missionary gains their friendship it is lasting.

Miss Searle said that it was the fond hope that many of the young men would eventually go to college and get an education, yet the missionaries did not feel sure that they would return to their people afterward and work for their uplift. However, if they did not they at least would be saved from continuing to live a life of ignorance. In describing the work of other ministers in the mountain districts of Kentucky, he cited one, who until recently was in the habit of smoking while preaching in the pulpit to his people. A serious illness with typhoid fever cured the minister of the habit.

Following the address, Miss Raybert sang a beautiful solo, "The Earth is the Lord's," accompanied by Mr. Titsworth on the organ. The rest of the morning session was occupied with a report of the associate members by Miss Ruth Francisco, of Caldwell, and a report of the Young Woman's Branch, by Miss Anne Littel, of Newark, both bringing greetings to the meeting. Miss Olivia H. Lawrence, of New York, corresponding secretary of the Board

BICYCLE THIEF HELD IN $500 BAIL BY COURT

Arrested on suspicion of being a bicycle thief, James Pasco, of Washington street, admitted his guilt when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning and was placed under $500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The wheel Pasco admitted stealing belonged to Jules Schedzmock, of Johnson avenue, and was taken from the yard of the Spicer Universal Joint Works on Madison avenue last Tuesday.

The bike was one of forty in the yard and a man is employed by the company to watch them. While he was absent for about two minutes, according to the police, Pasco made his selection and took the wheel to Westfield, where he sold it for $10. Schedzmock told of his loss to another employe of the Spicer concern whose home is in Westfield and the latter learned of a great bargain an acquaintance of his had made in buying a bicycle. A little investigation revealed the fact that the bargain was Schedzmock's wheel and further investigation by Sergeant Overbaugh traced the sale to Pasco. It is thought that several bicycle thefts that have occurred during the past several months can be traced to him although he denies ever having stolen anything before in his life.

ASSAULTED A GIRL AND STOLE A RIG?

Because Miss Pauline Martz, of Spooner avenue, this city, would not go carriage riding with James Keiderling, of North Plainfield, last night, after he had hired a rig and driven to her home, he attacked her, beating her with his fists and pulling her hair. The young woman's sister came to the rescue and Keiderling ran away, eluding the police and being able to make his way to the barn of his employer, Harry Pasch, of North Plainfield, whose horse and buggy he stole, made his escape, according to the local police.

The young man's father conducts a restaurant in Cranford and the local police communicated with the police of that town asking them to be on the lookout for the thief. The horse was found in Brown's stables there, where a young man answering Keiderling's description had left it a short time before the police arrived. His description has been sent to all nearby towns and his arrest is expected during the day. He is at present on probation for participating in a free-for-all fight on a main line trolley here during the summer. He is eighteen years old and the young woman is about the same age.

TO GIVE THEIR OPINION ON COMM. GOVERNMENT.

The committee appointed some time ago by the Chamber of Commerce to consider the advisability and feasibility of the "Commission Form of Government" for Plainfield, will submit its report Thursday night. The committee named consists of former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, as chairman; L. V. F. Randolph, David E. Titsworth, R. Henry Depew and A. E. Force.

In other places throughout the State where this form of government has been voted upon by the people it has been rejected. The statistics of each special election held by these places have been carefully gone over and it is rumored that the committee will recommend waiting to see how the experiment works out in other places. There is practically no sentiment in Plainfield for this form of government.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF WILLIAM FITZGERALD.

Funeral services for William Fitzgerald were held this morning at his late residence on Clinton place and at St. Mary's church, where a requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. B. M. Bogan. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery. The church services were largely attended by relatives and friends and large delegations from the Foresters, and Pond's Benevolent Association, of which Mr. Fitzgerald was a member. John Winzenried, Edward J. McCue and Thomas Fitzgerald, from the Foresters, and John Driscoll, Edward Harding and Edward Kelley, from the Pond Benevolent Association, acted as pall bearers. A large number of floral tributes attested the esteem in which the deceased was held by his numerous friends.

Thomas Jones, of Jackson avenue, has been appointed organist at Hope chapel to succeed Miss Bertha Jones, resigned. He will assume his duties for the first Sunday morning and makes the request that all who wish to join the chair meet him at the church Friday night.

LOSE OLD MEMBER

Nelson A. Miller Resigns After Eight Years in Borough Board of Education.

CANNOT DEVOTE THE TIME.

Debele Auditorium Leased For Scholastic Athletics—Nurse Engaged For Work In Schools—Other Business Transacted.

Nelson A. Miller, who has been a valued member of the North Plainfield Board of Education for the past eight years, formally tendered his resignation at the regular monthly meeting of the body last night. He was unable to be present and in his letter of explanation stated that his action was prompted by a pressure of private business which kept him from home a great deal. Mr. Miller's interests take him to distant points at frequent intervals, making it very hard and many times impossible to attend the school meetings. He declined re-election as president at the beginning of the fiscal year for this reason.

Mr. Miller's resignation was accepted regretfully and Edward A. Overton was elected to complete his term, which expires next March. The new incumbent is fully acquainted with borough school affairs, having served in similar capacity for a number of years.

In the regular order of business it was voted to hire Debele's auditorium as a school gymnasium for the promotion of athletics. The lease is for five months at a cost of $60 a month. The step is made necessary through a lack of facilities in either borough school.

The committee recently empowered to consider the engagement of a school nurse reported that favorable action had been taken. The work will be supervised as it is in the Plainfield schools, where the plan has been in successful operation for some time. The nurse will be supplied by the Charity Organization Society, which maintains the city nurse in Plainfield, at a cost of $25 a month.

The question of hiring an assistant janitor for the Somerset School was discussed at some length and subsequently referred to the building and grounds committee for action. A list of library books to be purchased was referred to the committee on books and supplies, as was also a request from Miss Alexander for old books to be used in the colored industrial school.

Superintendent H. C. Krebs announced the school calendar for 1911-12, which was adopted. The only important change is the closing of school a week earlier in June. The truancy committee reported that all cases had been properly disposed of and the report of the fire drills showed a creditable efficiency on the part of the pupils.

Warrants to the amount of $4,400 were ordered paid and $2,600 was borrowed in anticipation of taxes.

ACCUSES E. G. WHITNEY OF RECKLESS DRIVING.

Hearing on the charge of reckless driving against Ernest G. Whitney, of East Sixth street, preferred by Mrs. Howard McWilliams, of Hillside avenue, was put over until Friday morning by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. Mr. Whitney, according to eye witnesses of a collision between his carriage and Mrs. McWilliams' automobile at North and Watchung avenues, last night, was at fault, although his counsel, J. Henry Crane, stated in court this morning that such was not the case and that the driver of the automobile should have been arrested instead of Mr. Whitney.

Fred Ivamy and W. A. Pinto were the eye-witnesses to the accident and their stories of the affair to the police agree.

No one was injured in the collision although the automobile was badly scratched.

THANKSGIVING DAY SET BY PRESIDENT TAFT

Chicago, Oct. 31.—President Taft yesterday issued his annual Thanksgiving proclamation, calling upon citizens of the United States to celebrate Thursday, November 30, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer. The proclamation reads as follows:

"The people of this land having by long sanction and practise set apart toward the close of each passing year a day on which to cease from their labors and assemble for the purpose of giving praise to Him who is the author of the blessings they have enjoyed, it is my duty as Chief Executive to designate at this time the day for the fulfillment of this devout purpose.

"Our country has been signally favored in many ways. The round of the seasons has brought rich harvests. Our industries have thriven far beyond our domestic needs, the production of our labor are daily finding enlarged markets abroad. We have been free from the curses of pestilence, of famine and of war. Our national counsels have furthered the cause of peace in other lands and the spirit of benevolence has brought us into closer touch with other peoples, to the strengthening of the bonds of fellowship and good will that link us to our comrades in the universal brotherhood of nations. Strong in the sense of our own right and inspired by a strong sense of the rights of others, we live in peace and harmony with the world. Rich in the priceless possession and abundant resources wherewith the unstinted bounty of God has endowed us, we are unselfishly glad when other peoples pass onward to prosperity and peace. That the great privileges we enjoy may continue and that each coming year may see our country more firmly established in the regard and esteem of our fellow nations, is the prayer that should arise in every thankful heart.

"Wherefore, I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, designate Thursday, the thirtieth of November, next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and I earnestly call upon my countrymen and upon all that dwell under the flag of our beloved country, then to meet in their accustomed places of worship to join in offering praise to almighty God and devout thanks for the loving mercies he has given to us.

"In witness thereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Chicago, this thirtieth day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and eleven, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-sixth.

"By the President:
"P. C. KNOX, Secretary of State."

CHICAGO'S SALOONS SHUT AT PRIEST'S COMMAND.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Rev. Maurice J. Dorney, pastor of St. Gabriel's Catholic church, known as the "Mayor" of the district "Back o' the Yards," ordered the proprietors of thirty saloons in the district to close every evening last week from 7:30 to 10, and they obeyed the order without a word. A mission, conducted by the Paulist fathers, was under way. He wanted the men to attend the mission instead of the saloons.

Father Dorney removed it Sunday night, thanked the saloon-keepers and incidentally took occasion to lay down a code of business principles in keeping with the spirit of the mission.

"Keep your places clean and conduct your business on as high a moral standard as the grocery or dry goods business," he advised. "There is no reason why the saloon-keeper should not occupy as high a place in the community is any other tradesman."

YOUTH BURNED AS HE WORKED BENEATH AUTO.

Summit, Oct. 31.—Dropping a lighted match in some gasoline which he was using in cleaning the machinery beneath an automobile in a garage Saturday night, Lestel Palmer, sixteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Palmer, of Morris avenue, Springfield, was terribly burned.

Young Palmer was lying in a pit cleaning the machinery when he dropped a tool. Lighting a match to find the tool a portion of the burning match dropped in the gasoline.

In an instant the young man's clothing was ablaze. His cries attracted the attention of the proprietor of the garage, Howard Johnson. Mr. Johnson dragged Palmer from the pit and extinguished the burning clothing, but not until young Palmer's arms, face and body had been frightfully burned.

NEW THEORY OF MINE DISASTER.

Rockaway, Oct. 31.—With the water in the Upper Hibernia mine reduced fifty feet since the accident, eleven days ago, when twelve miners were drowned, a new theory is put forth regarding the cause of the disaster. This is, that the break in the 225-foot rock wall separating the new from the old mines, was caused by driving the drift in the new shaft in the direction of an old one which had been started in the old mines some time ago and had been forgotten. A mere slab of rock, it is assumed, was between the headings in the two drifts and when the last blast in the new heading was fired, the shell of rock burst and allowed the new mine to be flooded before the men who worked at the bottom of it had time to escape.

It is said that a lawyer connected with the Austrian consulate in New York, called upon the families of the drowned men recently and made them promise not to accept any money from the Wharton Steel Company in settlement of their claims until an investigation is made to show whether or not the death of the men was due to the negligence and culpability of the company. On the other hand there are many who believe it will be impossible to prove the company guilty.

Water to the depth of 300 feet still remains in the flooded mines. There are six lateral drifts, or "levels," as they are termed in mining vernacular, below the hole in the rock wall through which the water poured in upon the men. These levels extend from the new shaft toward the southeast and are now filled with water, which has to be pumped out before it is lowered in the shaft.

Superintendent August Munson says the water in the new shaft is now down to level No. 11, which is 1,000 feet long, and will require several days' pumping to be emptied. To accelerate the work he has had a new "skip," a little car, built which hoists water from the mine in addition to the pumps, at the rate of 200 gallons a minute. He does not expect any bodies will be recovered until the water gets down to level No. 13, in which Joseph Swenty was employed. He thinks this will take another week.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, or Ty Cobb, as he is known to the thousands of baseball fans throughout the country and the man whose hand President Taft said it was a pleasure to grasp, has fallen for the glare of the footlights and Plainfield theatregoers and ball fans alike are to have their first opportunity to look this wonderful young man over in their own bailiwick at the Plainfield theatre on Wednesday, November 1, when the hero of the diamond will portray the role of a gridiron hero in "The College Widow," the George Ade comedy which is to appear here that evening.

There never has been and, perhaps, never will be during the life of the present fan, any diamond star who could in any way compare with the illustrious Tyrus. He has gained the championship in every line he has attempted on the athletic field and he has tried them all except pitching. He is the champion base stealer, the champion fielder and the champion hitter of the world today and it is only a matter of a few days since the sporting writers of the American League circuit gave him a percentage of 1,000, as being the most valuable man to his team of any in the entire league and for this little compliment the "Georgia Peach" received an automobile from a Detroit firm.

Since he went to Detroit he has been first in everything he attempted. During his first season in major league ball he was the champion hitter of the league and his honors have come thick and fast during the last five years until now, and he is yet under twenty-five years of age, he has achieved about all the honors that can possibly come to a ball player. While it is to be expected that his natural strides have not been met with favor by all ball players yet they are a unit in declaring him to be a wonder and the greatest of the age.

The McAll Auxiliary will meet tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the public library. Someone who recently visited the missions in France will speak.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

Why is the soda cracker to-day such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

To-day there is a soda cracker which is the recognized staple — Uneeda Biscuit.

Uneeda Biscuit are the most nutritious food made from flour and should be eaten every day by every member of the family from the youngest to the oldest.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package.

Plainfield, N. J., October 31, 1911.

'THE OLD HOMESTEAD' REFRESHING AS EVER

Refreshing as a breath of new-mown hay from its New Hampshire meadows, "The Old Homestead" came back to the Plainfield theatre, last night. It was greeted by a house full of old friends, many of whom bearingly told youngsters in adjoining seats they had seen it "twenty years ago" when real oxen were the very thing in the first act. There were no oxen last night, but there was everything else that has made the play dear to the hearts of the American people: "Uncle Josh" was just as innocent and lovable as ever, "Happy Jack" reformed for the 'steenth thousand time, the double quartet sang about the same bucket, and "Seth Perkins" and "Cy Prime" quarreled and made up just as humorously as they have done it for nearly three decades. Young and old laughed at the quips and jokes as if they were brand-new and went home to talk it all over once again.

Speaking of old friends, there is quite a collection of them in this cast of "The Old Homestead." Gus Kammerlee heads the list, having played the part of "Henry Perkins" continuously for twenty-six years. Fred Clare has played "Jack Hazard" for twenty-two years. Charles Clark first played "Seth Perkins" eighteen years ago; Maggie Beyer has had no other part but "Aunt Matilda" for ten years; George L. Patch has acted "Reuben Whitcomb" for twenty years and Dave Willard has played lead in the kitchen orchestra for eighteen years. E. L. Snader, who is now taking the late Denman Thompson's place as "Uncle Josh," has been in the original company for twenty-five years.

YOUNG WOMEN'S GUILD GIVES "HALLOWE'EN COFFEE."

The Young Women's Guild of the Church of the Holy Cross conducted a "Hallowe'en Coffee" at the home of Mrs. E. A. Overton, on Rockview avenue, yesterday afternoon. Home-made cakes, candies and pies were offered for sale and refreshments were served. Mrs. J. M. Van Mater poured coffee and Mrs. T. C. Overton poured tea. A feature of the affair was embodied in the novel fortune telling of Miss Constance Wilcox. Twenty-five dollars was realized from the affair and it will be used in purchasing hymnals for the choir.

The president of the Guild, Miss Marion Carman, and the vice-president, Miss Madeline Ashwell, were in charge. The receiving committee was composed of Miss Carman and the Misses Clare Kenworthy, Muriel Ashwell, Iola Moore, Annette Van Mater, Katherine Overton, Dorothy Langford, Margaret Hawkins and Ray Pla.

Smith Is Acquitted.

After being out but a short time yesterday, the jury in the trial of George Smith, of this city, brought in a verdict of not guilty on the charge of assault and battery preferred by Mrs. Alfred S. Gudgeon, of South Second street, whose home Smith entered by mistake on the night of July 22. He lived in another apartment in the house and alleges that he was not aware that he had gotten in the wrong place until Mrs. Gudgeon herself, instead of his own wife, appeared before him.

Had No License.

George Pelligrina and George Philea, the junkmen arrested yesterday for stealing a tent from a back yard on Gresham road and when upon being questioned at police headquarters were found to be doing business without a license, were fined $10 each by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. They paid and promised to take out a license before doing any further business.

Miss Sickler's Funeral.

The funeral of Miss Gertrude Sickler, daughter of Mrs. Amelia Sickler, was held at her late home on West Second street, yesterday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. John Y. Broek and was private. Burial was in the Plainfield avenue cemetery, members of the family acting as pall bearers.

In the Borough Court.

George York, arrested for reckless driving on Somerset street, was arraigned before Recorder Dolliver, last night. A fine of $15 was imposed and suspended.

inees, and the Republican nominees reflect that high grade leadership demanded by the people of the State.

"The National Republican party has been one of the greatest forces for progress that the world has ever seen in a political organization, and its policies have been constructive. Can the same be truthfully said of the Democratic party?

"The State platform is wisely and conservatively progressive, is always, and ought to commend the support of all citizens who wish to see the rule of the people wisely and deliberately expressed. The controlling factors in legislation should be caution and honesty, and the Republican candidates have made those guarantees in the splendid adopted in Trenton.

"In legislation words are transient but cast are permanent. Therefore, a political party is judged by its record. When that record is good why should it be hidden under a bushel? Why should it not be referred to with approval and satisfaction?

"Since 1894, with one or two exceptions, the Republicans have had control of lawmaking and it may be confidently and honestly stated, considering the entire period of seventeen years, that Republican platform pledges have been succeeded by Republican legislative performance.

"Republicans when in power initiated, advocated and enacted legislation bringing millions of dollars of revenue to the State, its schools and its municipalities. Among the acts are those compelling the payment of interest on State deposits, municipal taxation at local rates of second-class railroad property and the taxation of the main stem of all steam railroads in the State. The abolition of the fee systems in the counties of the State has been a great saving to the taxpayers. What practical measures have the Democrats introduced looking towards creating additional revenues for the State in order to meet the growing needs of the commonwealth?

"The voters of the State will not be unmindful of the fact that Republicans are responsible, among other things, for four great achievements as represented by Civil Service, direct primaries, good roads and public utilities."

The city and borough police today began verifying the registry lists of each district as required by the Geran law. The work is being done in the city by Detective Sergeant John Flynn and in the borough by Chief Marshal Weiss. It will be several days before the work is completed.

duty to look out for social justice, good housing, clean amusements, proper provision for the criminal, the dependent, the defective, the protection of the child, the church should also be concerned with these matters. The church is fearfully handicapped at present because the individual has assumed the responsibility for social service and repudiated his obligation to preach the gospel, handing it over to the church. There is no good reason for such separation.

"The only final solution of the social question is evangelism but evangelism without social service is barren and empty. The first thing for the church to do is to find out what is the matter and then do something to relieve conditions. To meet this requirements, a survey of religious and social conditions has been planned." This survey for Plainfield will be undertaken at once.

Blanks were distributed last evening.

Win Convention Flags.

The set of flags offered by the Plainfield convention committee to that Sunday-school which should first report its list of delegates to the New Jersey State Sunday-school Convention to be held in the First Baptist church, November 14-16, has been won by the Central Baptist Sunday-school of Woodbury, of which C. A. Brown is superintendent. The flags, which are of bunting and are of large size and mounted on staves, are Old Glory and the Christian Conquest flag, blue with a red cross in a white field. The presentation will be a feature of the convention program.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

DUNELLENITES REVIVE PUBLIC HALL PROJECT

The proposition of erecting a suitable public hall and lodge building in Dunellen has again been taken up in earnest by the secret orders in that borough. The matter has previously been under discussion by the different socities individually but the more recent plan is to make it a joint affair. A committee has already been appointed by Court Dunellen, I. O.F., and a similar one is to be named by W. G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., tonight. Other organizations are to follow suit, after which all will meet to form an association. It is believed that this collective body will be able to devise ways and means whereby a suitable building can be erected, designed as a home for all the interested fraternities and also providing a hall for dances and all public gatherings.

The need of such a place as described has been made more apparent than ever by the arrangement of the Dunellen Board of Trade to hold a public dinner on November 9. There is not a suitable place in the borough large enough to accommodate the crowd that would necessarily attend and the committee was in a quandary until a public spirited citizen solved the problem. E. C. Lapham, who resides in what is best known as the Christian Schepflin house, generously placed his home at the disposal of the board. It is large and commodious, providing all the necessary space and facilities required for an event of this kind. The dinner committee breathed a sigh of relief when Mr. Lapham came forward but is now urging the Board of Trade to lend its undivided support to the hall project.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth and New streets, with preaching by Rev. N. H. Nyrap, of Brooklyn.

The annual harvest supper of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be held in the parish house, Thursday night from 6 to 9 o'clock. The Women's Guild will have the affair in charge and the members have worked hard to make it a success.

The speaker at the regular weekly service in Hope chapel tomorrow night will be Rev. Daniel McConaughy, of the Presbyterian board, who will address the congregation on the subject, "Systematic Giving." Mr. McConaughy comes at the invitation of the ways and means committee, who are thus fulfilling instructions of the congregation at the annual meeting of the church last March.

PERSONAL.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, accompanied by his sister, Miss Christina Broek, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who has been visiting here, left at noon today for Washington, where they will spend the rest of the week sight-seeing.

"INTRODUCE ME" AT THEATRE TONIGHT

Woman's rights from a brand new angle forms a salient feature of the new comedy, "Introduce Me," that will be seen at the Plainfield theatre tonight. "Abe" Erlanger, "Joe" Weber and a score of other New York producers will witness the performance. This comedy is from the pen of the talented young author, Della Clarke, and while she is not in any sense a suffragette but is in every way a womanly woman, she believes firmly that the weaker sex is weak merely through an implied term and not so much as a matter of fact.

In her new play Miss Clarke has shown the wife as the source of success and income of the Nichol family. Herein shows the novel manner of Miss Clarke's handling of the situation for it is all done in a manner that does not lessen the audience's respect for the husband nor yet place him in the position of a dependent upon his wife.

"Introduce Me" finds George Nichol as an unsuccessful author but his wife, under the name of Francis Everton, has written several books that have made her famous as well as giving the family a fine income. The husband does not even know his wife has written the books; she has kept it a secret from him, letting him believe an old aunt is giving her an allowance.

In an adriot and intensely interesting way Miss Clarke has developed her story so that the clement of suspense is sustained to the very drop of the last curtain. She has worked in little dtails of domestic infelicity that always did come about just to have the "making-up" all the sweeter. In the end she has established the husband in a secure position of manly dignity and independence, but she has not failed to show that women have rights in this world and are of value and importance. And it might also be said that "Introduce Me" appeals as strongly to men as to women and it was just made for women.

Three Deer Killed.

Three deer on the game preserve of Dr. J. Ackerman Coles at Scotch Plains were killed by dogs yesterday and another so badly injured that it had to be killed. The dogs broke into the enclosure through the wire fence and went out the same way before the game wardens could secure any of them for identification. This is the second raid made by these animals on the game in Dr. Coles' preserve and his herd of twenty deer has been reduced to nine by the visits.

Illegal Selling.

There was onther postponement of the trial of Alexander Zogi in the city court this morning, owing to the illness of his employer, Mrs. Lena Hoerster. Zogi was arrested three weeks ago, when the police were raiding a number of "speakeasies." Zogi is accused of delivering beer to the joints, the police allege, illegally. The hearing was put over for two weeks. Mrs. Hoerster's place is on somerset street, North Plainfield.

Leonard Yung, formerly of this city, but now a resident of Elizabeth, is spending a few days in town with old friends.

STATE FIREMEN NEWARK'S GUESTS

Welcomed by Mayor Haussling, of Newark, 400 members and delegates of the Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association, representing various parts of the State, attended the fifteenth annual convention at Wever's Colosseum yesterday. A parade preceded the opening of the meeting.

Headed by the Jersey City delegation, the visitors started from Truck No. 1, at Mulberry and Lafayette streets, 11:30 o'clock and marched past the city hall, where they were joined by the Mayor and Fire Commissioner Burke, who were in an automobile. The line then swung up Market street toward Springfield avenue, and headed for Wever's Colosseum.

Ten o'clock found the Newark delegation waiting in front of the truck house, and half an hour later, the Hoboken men, wearing soft brown hats, and white carnations in the lapels of their coats, marched into view, led by "Cap," the little mongrel of no particular breed, that belongs to Engine No. 3, of Hoboken.

The Newark delegation held the rear of the line. As this section of the paraders passed the City Hall, where Mayor Haussling, Mr. Burke and Charles F. Kramer, of the Board of Works reviewed them, a rousing cheer was given, to which the reviewers responded by raising their hats.

The convention was opened by Mr. Haussling, after which routine business was carried on. The principal business of the day was the election of officers, the following being elected: President, Thomas P. Plunkett, of Hoboken; first vice-president, James O'Rourke, of Elizabeth; second vice-president, George Henry, of East Orange; recording secretary, Robert D. Bender, of Newark; treasurer, William J. Rose, of Camden; sergeant-at-arms, William Murphy, of Newark.

A banquet was held at the convention hall last night, at which Alderman John H. Donnelly acted as toastmaster. Addresses were made by Mr. Burke, John H. McLean, of the Health Board; John F. Monahan, Democratic shrievalty candidate, and Captain James D. Clifford, "father" of the State association of New York.

LITERARY.

The Red Book Magazine for November offers as its foremost literary feature a story by Frederick Palmen of an American soldier on the Mexican border; entitled, "A Touch of Soldierly Madness." A railroad story of deep human appeal is Edward Hungerford's "The Book O' Rules Man." Frances A. Ludwig, whose stories of working girls have been so successful, tells of a pair of shipping room twins in "The Double Donohues."

The November Woman's Home Companion contains an article by President Taft of interest and importance to every woman. It is an appeal to the women of our country to help the President in his efforts to get the Senate to assent to the arbitration treaties, which, if signed, will go a long way toward abolishing war. It would be a great achievement, and the President believes that women can help bring it to pass.

Lippincott's Magazine is worth watching these days—worth watching and worth reading. Its recent substantial increase in size, together with a—presumably—vastly increased monetary appropriation, enables it to present an alluring array of fiction, special articles, and other attractive features. Following the noteworthy issue for October, with its striking complete novel by Amelie Rives, comes that for November, with a table of contents just as remarkable. The novelette is "The Island," by Augusta Kortrecht, who has one book—"A Dixie Rose"—and a number of clever short stories to her credit.

Down in New Mexico, which is a part of the southwest range, it is frankly admitted that dry farming has not proved successful generally. But with a rainfall of from 12 to 20 inches a year, intelligent cultivation can produce crops profitably, and this is being done by those who have gone to the new territory. Hundreds of farms are showing progress and their owners are happy and prosperous with a fair promise for their future.—From "The New Era of the Ranch Lands," by Charles Moreau Harger, in the American Review of Reviews for November.

Origin of "Canard."

The French name for a duck is canard and a French journal recalls the etymology of "canard" in the pejorative journalistic sense. A Paris reporter once upon a time in the hot weather could find no news and he fell back upon his imagination. He published an account of a remarkable experiment conducted in a farmyard.

A farmer took twelve ducklings, chopped one up fine and gave it to the eleven others to eat. A second was chopped and the remaining ten gobbled him up. For eight more days one duckling was served up to the others. At last, when only two were left, one of the two was given to the other to eat. This remarkable experiment resulted, therefore, in the one remaining duckling havng eaten up his eleven brothers.

The story of the "Twelve Little Ducks" sprang at once into fame. A "canard" in a newspaper has ever since meant a statement nearer fiction than fact.

Persia's Pipe Guardian.

The queen of pipes belongs to the shah of Persia. Why is the great chieftain of pipes a queen? Probably because pipe is a feminine noun in French. The little shah's pipe was smoked by his father before him, and by his uncle, and by his grandfather, and how many more of the rulers of Darius' kingdom we know not. The pipe is adorned with all kinds of precious stones and is said to be worth £10,000. It is constantly guarded by a high court functionary, whose duties allow him as much leisure as the superintendent of the Persian arsenal, but as there is no arsenal in Persia so the extent of the sinecure may be judged. Still, this functionary is responsible. This is how his office was created: Once a grand vizier was found trying to pry out a stone from the pipe with his poniard. Then the office of guardian of the imperial pipe was created. What became of the grand vizier is not recorded.—London Globe.

A Comedy of Economy.

A comedy of economy is reported from St. Moritz. A stout couple, accompanied by a son and daughter who were also "thick," as the Germans translate stout, entered a crowded hotel at the busy time of lunch and ordered one lunch at table d'hote. The father sat down and finished two helpings of soup and all the bread near him and left the table, his place being taken for the entrees by his wife, who had been waiting with her children in the hotel corridor until her husband appeared.

The young man then took his mother's place to attack the joint, and he was followed by his sister for the sweets, all doing justice to the menu. In the crowd the tourists did not notice the unusual lunch, but the head waiter did, and when asked for the bill presented one for four lunches. The paterfamilias grumbled a good deal—and paid.—Geneva correspondence Pall Mall Gazette.

Winning the Derby.

It costs a good deal of money to win the English Derby. An authority tells us that a horse with the least chance to win will cost anywhere from $25,000 up, which will prevent the average clerk or newspaper man from owning more than half a dozen or so at the outside. Then there is the training, which is a thing not to be done on Sunday afternoons in the back yard. An experienced trainer must be employed, and his charges for the necessary period will amount to about $1,000 for each horse. The jockey has to be paid, and a good jockey would scorn the pay of an archbishop or the profits of even a senator. And if he wins he will expect a present. King Edward used to give his jockeys $2,500 for a win, which makes one wish to be a jockey. But of course it takes brain.—Exchange.

Just Like Himself.

The cheerful patient needed all his good spirits, for the severe operation had been a failure and the doctors were hesitating to tell him. The physician stood by his bedside in the hospital, and from his grave expression the patient suspected the truth.

"Well, doc," he said, with a sad smile, "it must have been like this."

He fumbled under his pillow and produced an envelope which had been erroneously delivered in another ward. On the envelope was scribbled in pencil, "Opened by mistake."—New York Sun.

Jupiter, the largest of the planets, is 1,300 times the bulk and 310 times the mass of the earth, and accomplishes its rotation on its axis in nine hours fifty minutes. As the equatorial circumference is 275,000 miles, the linear rotational velocity of a point on the equator is nearly eight miles a second.

CHAPTER XV.

Life at the office went on much the way it had always gone.

In spite of their high resolve, there was a very measurable degree of the furtive in their meetings. In essence, these meetings were stolen. They did not ride out brazenly together in the face of the world. On the contrary, they met always unobserved, she riding across the many-gated backroad from Berkeley to meet him halfway. Nor did they ride on any save unfrequented roads, preferring to cross the second range of hills and travel among a church-going farmer folk who would scarcely have recognized even Daylight from his newspaper photographs. He found Dede a good horsewoman—good not merely in riding, but in endurance. There were days when they covered sixty, seventy, and even eighty miles; nor did Dede ever claim any day too long, nor—another strong recommendation to Daylight—did the hardest day ever see the slightest chafe of the chestnut sorrel's back. "A sure enough hummer," was Daylight's stereotyped but ever enthusiastic verdict to himself.

His lifelong fear of woman had originated out of nonunderstanding and had also prevented him from reaching any understanding. Dede on horseback, Dede gathering poppies on a summer hillside, Dede taking down dictation in her swift shorthand strokes—all this was comprehensible to him. But he did not know the Dede who so quickly changed from mood to mood, the Dede who refused steadfastly to ride with him and then suddenly consented, the Dede in whose eyes the golden glow forever waxed and waned and whispered hints and messages that were not for his ears. In all such things he saw the glimmering profundities of sex, acknowledged their lure, and accepted them as incomprehensible.

But through it all ran the golden thread of love. At first he had been content just to ride with Dede and to be on comradely terms with her; but the desire and the need for her increased. The more he knew of her, the higher was his appraisal. Had she been reserved and haughty with him, or been merely a giggling, simpering creature of a woman, it would have been different. Instead, she amazed him with her simplicity and wholesomeness, with her great store of comradeliness. The latter was the unexpected. He had never looked upon woman in that way. Woman, the toy; woman, the harpy; woman, the necessary wife and mother of the race's offspring—all this had been his expectation and understanding of woman. But woman, the comrade and playfellow and joyfellow—this was what Dede had surprised him in. And the more she became worth while, the more ardently his love burned, unconsciously shading his voice with caresses, and with equal unconsciousness flaring up signal fires in his eyes. Nor was she blind to it, yet, like many women before her, she thought to play with the pretty fire and escape the consequent conflagration."

"Winter will soon be coming on," she said regretfully, and with provocation, one day, "and then there won't be any more riding."

"But I must see you in the winter just the same," he cried hastily.

She shook her head.

"I've been pretty good," he declared. "I leave it to you if I haven't. It's been pretty hard, too, I can tell you. You just think it over. Not once have I said a word about love to you, and me loving you all the time. That's going some for a man that's used to having his own way. I'm somewhat of a rusher when it comes to traveling. I reckon I'd rush God Almightly if it came to a race over the ice. And yet I didn't rush you. I guess this fact is an indication of how much I do love you. Of course I want you to marry me. Have I said a word about it, though? Nary a chirp, nary a flutter. I've been quiet and good, though it's almost made me sick at times, this keeping quiet. I haven't asked you to marry me. I'm not asking you now. Oh, not but what you satisfy me. I sure know you're the wife for me. But how about myself? Do you know me well enough to know your own mind?" He shrugged his shoulders. "I don't know, and I ain't going to take chances on it now. You've got to know for sure whether you think you could get along with me or not, and I'm playing a slow conservative game. I ain't a-going to lose for overlooking my hand."

This was love-making of a sort beyond Dede's experience. Nor had she ever heard of anything like it.

"So you see," he urged, "just for a square deal we've got to see some more of each other this winter. Most likely your mind ain't made up yet—"

"But it is," she interrupted. "I wouldn't dare permit myself to care for you. Happiness, for me, would not lie that way. I like you, Mr. Harnish, and all that, but it can never be more than that."

"It's because you don't like my way of living," he charged, thinking in his own mind of the sensational joy-rides and general profligacy with which the newspapers had credited him—thinking this, and wondering whether or not, in maiden modesty, she would disclaim knowledge of it.

To his surprise, her answer was flat and uncompromising.

"No; I don't."

"I know I've been brash on some of those rides that got into the papers," he began his defence, "and that I've been traveling with a lively crowd—"

"I don't mean that," she said, "though I know about it, too, and can't say that I like it. But it is your life in general, your business. There are women in the world who could marry a man like you and be happy, but I couldn't And the more I cared for such a man, the more unhappy I should be. You see, my unhappiness, in turn, would tend to make him unhappy. I should make a mistake, and he would make an equal mistake, though his would not be so hard on him because he would still have his business."

"Business!" Daylight gasped. "What's wrong with my business? I play fair and square. There's nothing underhand about it, which can't be said of most businesses, whether of the big corporations or of the cheating, lying, little corner-grocerymen. I play the straight rules of the game, and I don't have to lie or cheat or break my word."

"Don't you see," he went on, "the whole game is a gamble. Everybody gambles in one way or another. The farmer gambles against the weather and the market on his crops. So does the United States Steel Corporation. The business of lots of men is straight robbery of the poor people. But I've never made that my business. You know that. I've always gone after the robbers."

"I missed my point," she admitted. "Wait a minute."

And for a space they rode in silence.

"I see it more clearly than I can state it, but it's something like this. There is legitimate work, and there's work that—well, that isn't legitimate. The farmer works the soil and produces grain. He's making something that is good for humanity. He actually, in a way, creates something; the grain that will fill the mouths of the hungry."

"And then the railroads and market-riggers and the rest proceed to rob him of that same grain," Daylight broke in.

"There ain't much difference between playing halfway robber like the railroad hauling that farmer's wheat to market, and playing all robber and robbing the robbers like I do. And, besides, halfway robbery is too slow a game for me to sit in. You don't win quick enough for me."

"But what do you want to win for?" Dede demanded. "You have millions and millions, already; why can't you do good with all your money?"

Daylight laughed.

"Doing good with your money! Ain't it funny, to go around with brass knuckles and a big club breaking folks' heads and taking their money away from them until I've got a pile, and then, repenting of my ways, going around and bandaging up the heads the other robbers are breaking? I leave it to you. That's what doing good with money amounts to. Every once in a while some robber turns softhearted and takes to driving an ambulance. That's what Carnegie did. He smashed heads in pitched battles at Homestead, regular wholesale headbreaker he was, held up the suckers for a few hundred million, and now he goes around dribbling it back to them. Funny? I leave it to you."

He rolled a cigarette and watched her half curiously, half amusedly. His replies and harsh generalizations of a harsh school were disconcerting, and she came back to her earlier position.

"I can't argue with you, and you know that. No matter how right a woman is, men have such a way about them—well, what they say sounds most convincing, and yet the woman is still certain they are wrong. But there is one thing, the creative joy; and it's a higher joy than mere gambling. Haven't you ever made things yourself—a log cabin up in the Yukon, or a canoe, or raft, or something? And don't you remember how satisfied you were, how good you felt, while you were doing it and after you had it done?"

While she spoke his memory was busy with the associations she recalled. He saw the deserted flat on the river bank by the Klondike, and he saw the log cabins and warehouses spring up, and all the log structures he had built, and his sawmills working night and day on three shifts.

"Why, dog-gone it, Miss Mason, you're right—in a way. I've built hundreds of houses up there, and I remember I was proud and glad to see them go up. I'm proud now, when I remember them. And there was Ophir—the most God-forsaken moose-pasture of a creek you ever laid eyes on. I made that into the big Ophir. Why, I ran the water in there from the Rinkabilly, eighty miles away. They all said I couldn't, but I did it, and I did it by myself. The dam and the flume cost me four million. But you should have seen that Ophir—power plants, electric lights, and hundreds of men on the pay-roll, working night and day. I guess I do get an inkling of what you mean by making a thing. I made Ophir, and she was a hummer."

"I Like You, Mr. Harnish, and That is All."

"And you won something there that was more than mere money," Dede encouraged. "Now do you know what I would do if I had lots of money and simply had to go on playing at business? Take all the southerly and westerly slope of these bare hills. I'd buy them in and plant eucalyptus on them. I'd do it for the joy of doing it anyway; but suppose I had that gambling twist in me which you talk about, why, I'd do it just the same and make money out of the trees. And there's my other point again. Instead of raising the price of coal without adding an ounce of coal to the market supply, I'd be making thousands and thousands of cords of firewood—making something where nothing was before. And everybody who ever crossed on the ferries would look up at these forested hills and be made glad. Who was made glad by your adding four dollars a ton to Rock Wells?

It was Daylight's turn to be silent for a time while she waited an answer.

"Would you rather I did things like that?" he asked at last.

"It would be better for the world, and better for you," she answered non-committally.

CHAPTER XVI.

All week every one in the office knew that something new and big was afoot in Daylight's mind. On Sunday Dede learned all about it.

"I've been thinking a lot of our talk," he began, "and I've got an idea I'd like to give it a flutter. And I've got a proposition to make your hair stand up. It's what you call legitimate, and at the same time it's the gosh-dangdest gamble a man ever went into. How about planting minutes wholesale, and making two minutes grow where one minute grew before? Oh, yes, and planting a few trees, too—say several million of them. You remember the quarry I made believe I was looking at? Well, I'm going to buy it. I'm going to buy these hills, too, clear from here around to Berkeley and down the other way to San Leandro. I own a lot of them already, for that matter. But mum is the word. I'll be buying a long time to come before anything much is guessed about it, and I don't want the market to jump up out of sight. You see that hill over there. It's my hill running clear down its slopes through Piedmont and halfway along those rolling hills into Oakland. And it's nothing to all the things I'm going to buy."

"Look at it," Said Daylight, Extending His Arm in a Sweeping Gesture.

He paused triumphantly.

"The ferry system between Oakland and San Francisco is the worst one-horse concern in the United States. You cross on it every day, six days in the week. That's say, twenty-five days a month, or three hundred a year. How long does it take you one way? Forty minutes, if you're lucky. I'm going to put you across in twenty minutes. If that ain't making two minutes grow where one grew before, knock off my head with little apples. I'll save you twenty minutes each way. That's forty minues a day, times three hundred, equal to twelve thousand minutes a year, just for you, just for one person. Let's see: that's two hundred whole hours. Suppose I save two hundred hours a year for thousands of other folks—that's farming some, ain't is? Come on. Let's ride up that hill, and when I get you out on top where you can see something, I'll talk sense."

A small footpath dropped down to the dry bed of the canyon, which they crossed before they began the climb. The slope was steep and covered with matted brush and bushes, through which the horses slipped and lunged. Showers of twigs and leaves fell upon them, and predicament followed predicament, until they emerged on the hilltop the worse for wear but happy and excited. Here no trees obstructed the view. The particular hill on which they were, out-jutted from the regular line of the range, so that the sweep of their vision extended over three-quarters of the circle. Below, on the flat land bordering the bay, lay Oakland, and across the bay was San Francisco. Between the two cities they could see the white ferry-boats on the water. Around to their right was Berkeley, and to their left the scattered villages between Oakland and San Leandro. Directly in the foreground was Piedmont, with its desultory dwellings and patches of farming land, and from Piedmont the land rolled down in successive waves upon Oakland.

"Look at it," said Daylight, extending his arm in a sweeping gesture. "A hundred thousand people there, and no reason there shouldn't be half a million. There's the chance to make five people grow where one grows now. Here's the scheme in a nutshell. Why don't more people live in Oakland? No good service with San Francisco, and, besides, Oakland is asleep. It's a whole lot better place to live in than San Francisco. Now, suppose I buy in all the street railways of Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, San Leandro, and the rest—bring them under one head with a competent management? Suppose I cut the time to San Francisco one-half by building a big pier out there almost to Yerba Buena island and establishing a ferry system with modern up-to-date boats? Why, folks will want to live over on this side. Very good. They'll need land on which to build. So, first I buy up the land. But the land's cheap now. Why? Because it's in the country, no electric roads, no quick communication, nobody guessing that the electric roads are coming. I'll build the roads. That will make the land jump up. Then I'll sell the land as fast as the folks will want to buy because of the improved ferry system and transportation facilities.

"You see, I give the value to the land by building the roads. Then I sell the land and get that value back, and after that, there's the roads, all carrying folks back and forth and earning big money. Can't lose. And there's all sorts of millions in it. I'm going to get my hands on some of that water front and the tide-lands. Take between where I'm going to build my pier and the old pier. It's shallow water. I can fill and dredge and put in a system of docks that will handle hundreds of ships. San Francisco's water front is congested. No more room for ships. With hundreds of ships loading and unloading on this side right into the freight cars of three big railroads, factories will start up over here instead of crossing to San Francisco. That means factory sites. That means me buying in the factory sites before anybody guesses the cat is going to jump, much less, which way. Factories mean tens of thousands of workingmen and their families. That means more houses and more land, and that means me, for I'll be there to sell them the land. Then there's the water. I'll come pretty close to owning the watershed. Why not the waterworks too? There's two water companies in Oakland now, fighting like cats and dogs and both about broke. What a metropolis needs is a good water system. They can't give it. They're stick-in-the-muds. I'll gobble them up and deliver the right article to the city. There's money there, too—money everywhere. Everything works in with everything else. Each improvement makes the value of everything else jump up. It's people that are behind the value. The bigger the crowd that herds in one place, the more valuable is the real estate. And this is the very place for a crowd to herd. Look at it. Just look at it! You could never find a finer site for a great city. All it needs is the herd, and I'll stampede a couple of hundred thousand people in here inside two years. And what's more, it won't be one of these wildcat land booms. It will be legitimate. Twenty years from now there'll be a million people on this side the bay. Another thing is hotels. There isn't a decent one in the town. I'll build a couple of up-to-date ones that'll make them sit up and take notice. I won't care if they don't pay for years. Their effect will more than give me my money back out of the other holdings. And, oh, yes, I'm going to plant eucalyptus, millions of them, on these hills."

"But how are you going to do it?" Dede asked. "You haven't enough money for all that you've planned."

"I've thirty million, and if I need more I can borrow on the land and other things. Interest on mortgages won't anywhere near eat up the increase in land values, and I'll be selling land right along."

"That's a smart thing I've done," said the doctor to his assistant.

"What's that, doctor?"

"I have put my signature in the column 'cause of death' in this death certificate."—Tit Bits.

AMUSEMENTS ARE SOMEWHAT DIFFERENT

THE FOLLOWING IS A COPY OF LETTERS WRITTEN TO HIS OLD CREDITORS. IT MAY SHOW A REASON FOR SOME KNOCKING:

October 28, 1911.

Dear Sir:—

Enclosed find deed to lots at Uptodate. The price of these lots is $25.00 each, and I expect to increase it soon. I give this deed to take the place of the money I owed you before a certain lawyer in this town, by his ugliness, compelled me to go through bankruptcy.

It helps wind up for me an indebtedness that I had when I came to Plainfield of about $10,000, and got it down to about $1,000.00 when I took this bankruptcy procedure. I held out, by the way, until a constable was brought to my door so drunk that it took two lawyers to bring him. I thought if the city would allow such business it was up to me to do as I did on account of the injustice to my wife, and I am not sorry that I did it.

The price of these lots is such that you are getting interest on your money. I will be pleased to do what I can to sell them for you, and in fact if good fortune should overtake me, I will buy them myself.

Very truly yours,

D. FOSTER UPDIKE.

That has been my slogan for years. The Smoke Nuisance.

Householders are cautioned against annoying their neighbors with the smoke of burning leaves. Dry leaves can be burned without any smoke, but the smudge from damp leaves is a nusance which the police have been requested to abate. Almost everyone has room enough in their yards for burying leaves if they do not wish to pay for carting them away, and it is said that the leaves make an excellent fertilizer.

BORO HIGH DEFEATS BERNARDSVILLE HIGH

The North Plainfield basketball team defeated the Bernardsville High School five at the latter place yesterday afternoon, by a score of 32 to 11. The borough boys played a fast, passing game and outplayed their opponents at every point in the contest. Several new men were tried at right guard, including Barnes and Diman and they both put up a good game. Townley at the other guard played his usual slashing game and held his man to but one basket.

Townley met with a painful accident in the second half when he collided with a pile of drains as he made a dive for the ball. A gash was opened over his left eye, but he recovered sufficiently to finish the game. Taylor scored seven baskets from the field and several were from difficult angles. Dunning and W. Taylor both figured largely in the scoring. Brown did the best work for Bernardsville. The borough team was accompanied by a stage load of enthusiasts, headed by Principal B. J. Phelps. The trip required three hours each way, the boroughites reaching home about 9 o'clock last night. The lineup:

Goals from field—C. Tayor, 7; W. Taylor, 5; Dunning, 4; Hill, 2; Brown, 2; Obert, 1.

HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL AT EAST END CHURCH.

A Hallowe'en social was held last night at the Netherwood Reformed church under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. A program of music was provided. Miss Wood as a "witch" provocked much amusement by telling fortunes. Miss Mary Cooper was at the piano and beside acting as accompanist rendered several solos. The decorations were a feature and were in keeping with the affair. They consisted of corn stalks, pumpkins and lanterns.

The refreshments were selections of the season's delicacies and true to the legends, home-made pumpkin pies having the call. The affair was under the direction of the Misses Florance and Maud Disbrow and Miss Iona Wood.

"PANICKY" IN SOMERSET; HURRAY CALL FOR WILSON.

Evidently realizing that Somerset county is lost to the party, Edward E. Grosscup, chairman of the State Democratic Committee, has sounded a "still alarm" and in response to it Governor Woodrow Wilson will invade North Plainfield, the largest centre of the county's population, on Monday night.

This hurry call was made when the Democrats learned that former Governor J. Franklin Fort is scheduled to address the borough voters on the issues at Saengerbund hall on Thursday night.

Baptists to Hold a Fair.

Under the auspices of the Calvary Baptist church a grand fair will be held at the church, commencing tonight and continuing until November 10. There will be a concert each night. Those in charge of the program each night are as follows: Tonight, Prof. W. M. Johnson; tomorrow night, A. J. Cary; Thursday night, the deacons; November 6, trustees and ushers; November 7, Bright Hope Club; November 8, Sunbeam Band; November 9, Young Ladies' Society; November 10, an address by the pastor, Rev. G. W. Bailey. There will be special dinners each night.

Proctor's Big Bill.

McGrath and Page, expert banjoists, are one of the big hits at Proctor's this week. They offer a program of popular and classical selections. Beatrice Ingram & Co. offers a fine comedy sketch entitled "The Duchess," well acted and well staged. It tells a pathetic story, with plenty of comedy. There are four characters, including the important landlady. Crotton Brothers, strong men, give a marvellous performance, while May Melville, a singer of popular songs, and Shaw and Everts, comedians, complete a fine bill.

"Alice In Wonderland."

The friends of "Alice" will be glad that they are to have the privilege of seeing her and all her followers on Thursday afternoon and evening, November 2, at the Hartridge Auditorium, 3:30 and 8:30. The demand for tickets has been so great that the afternoon house has been sold out, but there are still tickets that can be obtained for the evening performance. Home-made candy will be on sale.

"Ty" Cobb Tomorrow Night.

"The College Widow," that sweetly gracious being who presides over the destiny of the undergraduates, at once the despair and admiration of the entire student body, who is this year being so well escorted by "Ty" Cobb, the great baseball player, will be seen at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

Passed Worthless Check?

Frank Linke, wholesale liquor dealer, of West Front street, made a complaint yesterday against Charles E. Work, of DeLacy avenue, who Mr. Linke alleges tendered a bad check in payment for some goods delivered last week. The check was for $10.00 and was accepted in good faith. After going through the banks, Mr. Linke asserts, it was returned as worthless.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Moore, of Passaic, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank French, of Washington avenue, over Sunday.
